PLAINFIELD WRITERS IN ANSWER TO CHARGE THAT PILLAR OF FIRE SECT HAS BEEN PERSECUTED HERE

"COME BACK" AT LEADERS OF RELIGIOUS MOVEMENT WHO SOUGHT SYMPATHY IN NEW BRUNSWICK.

GIVE FACTS ABOUT ALLEGED STREET RIOTS

Friends of Mrs. Wilson and Miss Leach Say Their Sentence to Jail Was In Violation of Constitution of Rights—Case Will Be Taken to Supreme Court and Tested There.

In answer to an article appearing in a New Brunswick newspaper under the caption "Pillar of Fire Preachers Claim Plainfield Authorities Persecute Them," John J. V. Powelson and Joseph A. B. Gallagher, of this city, compiled a reply, in which they give another view of the matter. This reply also appeared in the New Brunswick paper, and, inasmuch as the affair is a purely local one, is reprinted in this paper.

It was in answer to charges that Mayor Leighton Calkins had "denied" the citizens' rights of the sect and had discriminated against them that the letter of the local people was written. A section of the article in which these charges were made follows, as does a part of an article said to have appeared in the "Pillar of Fire" official organ of the sect. The reply made by the two Plainfielders also follows:

"Time and again within the past few months Mrs. Wilson has told how she was suffering on account of being denied the privilege of preaching the Gospel on the streets of her home city; and she said that she would prefer to go to jail rather than to surrender her rights as a free-born American citizen.

"Mayor Calkins was again asked by Mrs. Wilson and Miss Leach to grant a permit to hold a street meeting, but he flatly refused, and continued to discriminate between the Pillar of Fire and other organizations. As time went on, Miss Leach and Mrs. Wilson could see no hope of a change of mind on the part of the Mayor and Council, and they determined to hold another open air meeting."

The article which is said to have appeared in the "Pillar of Fire" official organ of the sect was as follows:

"Ex-Mayor George W. V. Moy has been retained in the case, and it is our desire, and the desire of many others, that it shall be taken to the Supreme Court. If the people in free America can be haled into court and sentenced to prison regardless of their constitutional rights, it is time for the country to be awakened to its peril and wrongs made right. Never at any other place, or at any

W. L. SAUNDERS TELLS BLACK TOM HISTORY

Three Serious Explosions Have Occurred On Island, He Says.

Black Tom Island has been the scene of at least three other explosions, according to W. L. Saunders, of this city, a member of the Naval Consulting Board, who erected the plant of the National Storage Company. One of the disasters, in a nitroglycerine factory on the island, killed several people.

Before 1870, Black Tom was a barren rock, Mr. Saunders said. Then the Central Railroad of New Jersey became the owner and erected a cribwork around the rock, filling it in with sweepings purchased from the city. Thus, twenty-five acres were gained, and the island was used for storage by the railroad.

Later the nitroglycerine plant was built, the owners spending more than $1,000,000 in developing the factory. Both the first and second explosions occurred shortly after the factory was built. Both of these accidents were serious, but no lives were lost, Mr. Saunders said.

Thre was scarcely a vestige of a building or anything else left after the third explosion shook the island, he declared. The machinery and parts of the buildings were blown in every direction and several workmen were killed.

"Black Tom lay idle for a few years until the National Storage Company engaged me to build a plant for them," Mr. Saunders continued. "The principal building on the island is the old Centennial Hall from the exposition in Philadelphia, which the company purchased at the close of the exposition.

"In connection with the third explosion a curious thing happened. The nitroglycerine was made in receptacles resembling a stove pipe. Pieces of this pipe were found all over the island when I came there. A workman in my employ rigged up a section of pipe to a stove in his house. The first time he started a fire there was an explosion and the man was thrown out of the door. A finger was torn off by a flying piece of pipe and he was rendered unconscious. In view of the fact that the pipe had been exposed to the weather for three years, we thought it remarkable that a trace of the nitroglycerine should remain."

Much trouble was experienced in ridding the island of rats, which overran Black Tom after the explosive factory abandoned the place, Mr. Saunders said. Many people believed for years that the island was "hoodooed," he concluded.

AMPUTATED HIS LEG.

In the hope of saving the life of Elmer E. Teeple, of South Plainfield, he underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday, during which his left leg was amputated. His condition today was reported to be critical. Mr. Teeple had been a cripple since boyhood, the result of a fall from a cherry tree. He has been in the hospital for the past four months.

BORDEN IN LINE TO BE A MAJOR

Second Choice Among Officers to Succeed Bryant As Commander.

Douglas, Ariz., August 1.—Captain Albert G. Borden, of Plainfield, Watchung Troop, is one of those who are being mentioned just now in connection with the vacancy as major of the cavalry squadron of the New Jersey regiment, created Sunday through the sudden retirement of Major William A. Bryant. Major Bryant is still at Douglas, but will start for home within a short time, where he will seek retirement because of physical disability.

It is admitted that Captain Borden has little chance in an election as matters stand, but he will probably receive a large number of votes as a testimonial to the respect in which he is held by officers of the squadron. Lieutenant Hobart O. Brown, of Troop C, will likely be the new major. Lieutenant Brown is temporarily in command of the troop, Captain Patterson being away on fifteen days' leave. Although the retirement of Major Bryant came suddenly, it has been known for some time that his health was failing and already the officers have decided upon his successor, it is said. Enough votes have been pledged to Lieutenant Brown to elect him, unless something new develops in the situation. Captain Borden is a second choice, and if a change in the slate occurs, he will be the favorite.

BERT JORDAN DIES WHEN HE CAN NO LONGER DRINK

Word was received from the county jail at Elizabeth this morning that Bert Jordon, who was sent to the jail yesterday afternoon for medical treatment, was found dead this morning. Jordon was picked up on North avenue Saturday night in a helplessly drunken condition. He could not be taken at Muhlenberg Hospital and so after a doctor had made an examination of him Judge DeMeza sent him to Elizabeth.

As soon as liquor was kept from him the lack of the stimulant weakened his heart, and heart disease is given as the cause of death. He came from Rahway, but his relatives are unknown.

PRIESTS OBSERVE SILVER JUBILEE

Fathers Sciolla and Gastaldi Celebrate Event at Elizabethtown, Kentucky.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES

Reception Follows at Which Several Hundred Parishioners Are Present—Many Congratulatory Messages Received.

Word was received today Rev. Vincent Sciolla, former assistant priest of St. Mary's parish, this city, but now assistant pastor at St. James' church, Elizabethtown, celebrated the silver jubilee of his elevation to the priesthood last Thursday. Father John Gastaldi, pastor of St. Clare's church at Colesburg, also celebrated his silver jubilee. Both Father Sciolla and Father Gastaldi have been warm friends since young manhood and came to this country together, entering the same theological seminary.

Between 400 and 500 persons attended the religious services in connection with the jubilee exercises and to felicitate the popular priests upon their twenty-fifth anniversary. Mass was celebrated at St. Clare's church, at Colesburg, and a sermon was delivered by the Rev. T. J. Hayes, of Bowling Green. The Rev. C. P. Raffe, of Louisville, was master of ceremonies, and about twenty-five priests from different churches in the Louisvill Diocese were present. In the afternoon a number of musical selections were given by the choir from Father Hayes' parish in Bowling Green.

Father Sciolla has been assistant rector at St. James, for less than a year, and has already made many friends. He came to St. Mary's parish to take the place made vacant by the transfer of Father Frederici, who has since died. In March it was announced that the popular priest had been elevated to the assistant rectorship at Elizabthtown. A farewell reception was tendered Father Sciolla at that time. During his long stay here, Father Sciolla made many friends, all of whom were sorry to learn of his decision to go to Kentucky. His health had not been of the best at the time and, inasmuch as he had been advised that the climate of the Blue Grass State would be of benefit to him, he decided to accept the invitation from the bishop of Louisville. The announcement that Father Sciolla had rounded out twenty-five years of earnest, spiritual labor, will be received by his numerous friends here with gratification.

F. G. MAGEE WEDS MISS JESSIE EMMONS

Miss Jessie C. Emmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Emmons, of Duer street, became the bride of F. G. Magee, of this city, at a quiet wedding ceremony performed Sunday afternoon at 5:30. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of the Watchung Avenue Presbytrian church, officiated at the ceremony. Miss Hattie C. Emmons, a sister of the bride, and James L. Niles, acted as attendants for the couple. A reception and wedding supper followed at the home of the bride's parents, after which Mr. and Mrs. Magee left for a short wedding trip. On their return they will reside at 130 North avenue. Mr. Magee is connected with a New Brunswick automobile company.

"BERMUDA HIGH" WAS TOO MUCH FOR YOUNG ITALIAN

Coming from Italy only three months ago and not yet able to talk English, Matto Griffo, not quite five feet tall, strutted into the city court this morning to appear before Judge W. G. De Meza for being drunk yesterday. Matto said he was 15, but he looked two years younger, even though he wore long pants. Judge De Meza let him go upon his promise never to touch liquor again.

The high temperature yesterday proved too much for Matto while he was helping his mother clean house at 213 West Third street. He stumbled into a whiskey barrel, which he tapped and then went for a walk. He was picked up by a patrolman, who found the Italian staggering along the street.

WILL EXHIBIT LIFE-RAFTS AT CIVIC ASS'N MEETING

The East End Civic Association will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in the Netherwood Reformed church, Leland and Midway avenue, to consider flood conditions. According to a member of the association "a safe voyage is assured this evening, as abundant material for life-rafts was collected from the flood, and expert swimmers will be in attendance to explain in detail how they awam the raging tides of Leland avenue, last week." All who are interested in Plainfield as a watering place are invited to attend tonight's meeting.

CLAIM TESTATRIX WAS INFLUENCED

Relatives of Mrs. Ellen Corbett Stevens Seek to Set Aside Will.

Relatives of the late Mrs. Ellen Corbett Stevens, of New York, through whose will Otis Corbett, of this city, is bequeathed $23,000, have instituted proceedings in New York to have the will set aside on the ground that the testatrix was not of sound mind at the time of making her will, and that she was unduly influenced.

Mrs. Stevens died at the Manhattan Hospital, New York, April 9 last. It is possible that the New York Association for the Blind may lose a bequest of $100,000. The sum of $5,000 is bequeathed to each of Mr. Corbett's children, William Phelps Corbett, of Plainfield; Mrs. Julia Phelps Warr, of Newark; Mrs. Amelia Phelps Conklin and Mrs. Elsie Merle Overton, of Plainfield, and Mrs. Marjorie Force, of Montclair.

Those who are contesting the will are Mrs. Anna Day Goodell, of Worcester, Mass, a first cousin and her sister, Mrs. Jeanette Day Knight, of Winthrop Centre, Mass.

OBJECT TO POLITICAL MEETINGS IN SCHOOL

Borough Board of Education "Turn Down" Request of Prohibition Party.

William Lunger, representing the borouh branch of the Prohibitionist party, made application at the meeting of the Board of Education of North Plainfield last night, for permission to hold political meetings in the Somerset School. His request was not granted on the ground that the Board objects to holding political meetings of any sort in the borough schools. However, it was announced that there is no objection to the Prohibitionists or any other party holding social gatherings in the schools. Not only the members of the Prohibition party will be denied the privilege of holding their political meetings in the schools, but representatives of all other parties will be treated in the same manner.

Warrants to settle bills to the amount of $1,800 were authorized at the meeting, which was given in the main to routine business. Many minor matters came up for discussion. The board announced the appointment of three new teachers. They are Miss H. Pumyea, of Mount Holly, who will teach art; Mrs. Curtis, whose last position was in Manasquan, and who will teach Spanish, French and German; Miss L. Wagstaff, of Cranford, who will teach domestic science.

He was with the North Loup church for nine years. During his stay at North Loup, Rev. After a short illness Mrs. Adeline Runyon Heath, aged eighty-four years, died this morning at the home of her niece, Mrs. George Bunting, of New Market. The funeral will be held at that place Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

She had been ill, but her end was not expected. She is survived by a number of relatives, a majority of whom live in New York State.

PUT BLAME ON RAILROAD HEADS

Besler and Thomas to Be Arrested For Big Sunday Explosion.

MACKENZIE GIVES BAIL

Charges of Manslaughter Against All—Jersey City Grand Jury to Be Called In Few Days—Gov. Fielder Asks For Protection for State.

Edmund L. MacKenzie, president of the National Storage Company, was arrested at his home, 927 Central avenue, early this morning in connection with the explosions of Sunday morning at the company's buildings on Black Tom Island.

New Jersey police came over with a warrant last night, but did not serve it, knowing that Mr. MacKenzie would report when he was wanted. The warrant was left at the local police station and at 7 a. m. today Sergeant O'Keefe served it. Mr. MacKenzie went to Jersey City and appeared before Justice Sullivan, where he was held under $6,000 bail.

W. G. Besler, president and general manager of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, another Plainfielder, is also to be arrested as a result of investigation into the explosions, it was announced at Jersey City last night, as is E. B. Thomas, president of the Lehigh Valley. Mr. Besler is not at his home here, but the warrant against him will probably be served at his office today.

Four seperate investigations into the explosion are being conducted. The one from which all arrests have resulted is being made by the Jersey City police. Each of the railroads is investigating, the State of New Jersey is also probing for responsibility, and the Interstate Commerce Commission has a number of men on the scene.

All of the men arrested and those to be arrested are to face charges of manslaughter. A special session of the grand jury is to be called as soon as the New Jersey police have evidence upon which to base indictments.

The entire State is aroused and will make a determined effort to prevent the storing of explosives in New York harbor. Governor Fielder expressed the purpose of the prosecutions in the following statement.

"After the explosion at Compuntpaw in February, 1911, the Legislature enacted a measure which it was assumed had provided reasonable safety. It would be well for the authorities intrusted with the criminal process to find out whether this law was violated and whether reasonable precautions were taken to safeguard the lives of the people of Jersey City and New York.

"It does seem to me that it is barbarous to have dynamite and other explosives piled right up at the door of great cities and almost under the noses of thousands of inhabitants. I do not believe that the people of New Jersey and New York will tolerate a continuance of these conditions. The custom of unloading high explosives in New York harbor will not be permitted any longer by the public sentiment that will surely be aroused by this disaster."

Seeks to Stop Furious Drive On Peronne—Haig's Troops Hold Ground In Face of German Counter Attacks—300 Bulgar Soldiers Killed When Troop Train Is Blown Up.

Petrograd, Aug. 1.—With the entire sector between the Sarny-Kovel and the Kovel-Rojitche railroads lost to the enemy, the Russian advance threatens Lemberg today from three directions as it continues sweeping forward west of the Stokhod.

General Brusiloff has pierced the Teuton lines at several points. An entire Honved regiment, with its commander and staff, were captured along one of the river beds. At another point 900 more of the enemy were taken, with several machine guns. This morning the Russians were more than twelve miles southeast of Brody, and at both ends of a great semi-circle are nearer Lemberg than its defenders are.

In the advance toward Kovel, Russian troops have secured possession of the whole line of the Stokhod on a front of seventeen miles, and are today within twenty miles of Kovel.

An official bulletin says the Austrians are bombarding Brody and the river crossings and are making a desperate resistance at this point, bringing up all available reinforcements in an effort to hold the line.

TWO PLAINFIELDERS QUIT BORDER GUARD

Troopers Megrew and Cady Given Honorable Discharges at Douglas.

(By telegraph to Daily Press.)

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 1.—Two Plainfield men with Troop D, First Squadron, New Jersey Cavalry, have been released from border duty and are now on their way home. Trooper John Cady, Jr., was dismissed last week following his application, in which he cited illness as the reason. He will probably arrive in Plainfield today and will submit to an operation.

Trooper George Megrew, also of Plainfield, took advantage of the law giving married men the right to make application, but it was only after a stubborn fight by his wife with the guard officials that he was given his release. He left today for Plainfield and will probably arrive there Saturday.

Both men were given honorable discharges. While there has been some activity on the part of other troopers to gain releases now that they see they are being kept here merely to patrol the border with little likelihood of seeing real war service, it is believed that no further releases will be granted. A guardsman is compelled to advance an unusually good excuse in order to get away from here now.

Isaac Manning Runyon, aged 87 years, a life long resident of this city, died at the home of his son, Howard J. Runyon, 973 Rahway road, yesterday afternoon. Although he had been confined to his home more or less for the past three years, he was not seriously ill until six months ago, when he began to fail. Infirmities of age and complications are described as the cause of death.

Mr. Runyon was born here on April 29, 1829, in the house at the corner of West Front street and Washington avenue. He lived at that address until nine years ago, when his wife died and then made his home with his son, on Rahway road. For the last twenty-five years Mr. Runyon had lead a retired life.

HEALTH BOARD SETTLES DIFFERENCES WITH GROCER

The differences between the Dunellen Board of Health and Frank Cashin, the Dunellen grocer, charged by the former with exposing vegetables and other eatables on the sidewalk in front of his store in violation of its order, issued since the epidemic of infantile paralysis in New York and suburbs, were amicably settled in the Dunellen court last evening without any formal session.

Judge Rene P. F. von Minden, who was to have presided, was on hand, as was Judge William G. DeMeza, of Plainfield, retained by Mr. Cashin. The latter told the Board of Health that his client had a perfect right according to the State health code to expose all eatables with peels eighteen inches above the sidewalk at all times, and he said that these were the only type of eatables that Mr. Cashin exposed since the Board of Health's decree. The matter was discussed and Cashin consented to co-operate with the Dunellen Health Board in doing what it thought best.

HUGHES ENDORSES "SUFF" AMENDMENT

His Announcement At Acceptance Meeting Is Enthusiastically Received.

Charles Evans Hughes, Republican nominee for President, evoked the warmest applause that greeted any part of his acceptance speech at Carnegie Hall, New York, last night, when he declared himself in favor of giving woman the ballot as quickly as possible. His declaration was accepted as an endorsement of the Federal amendment pending in Congress, by the terms of which no citizen of the United States can be deprived of the right of voting merely because of sex.

Mr. Hughes first declared his approval of the woman suffrage plank in the Republican platform and then added his own reasons for conferring the right of suffrage upon women. That women will ultimately and inevitably vote he said he was convinced. As long as they are deprived of that right there will be bitterness and unrest, and the quickest way to insure American women a normal political viewpoint is to make them voters, that they may take their positions upon political issues as do the men. To give women the vote will be the quickest and best cure for feminism, he said.

Women suffrage leaders are convinced that Mr. Hughes will have the electoral vote of the Suffrage States. They also anticipate that President Wilson will reverse himself and will now declare for the Federal amendment.

That part of Mr. Hughes' speech in which he made his suffrage declaration, was as follows:

"I indorse the declaration in the platform in favor of woman suffrage. I do not consider it necessary to review the arguments usually advanced on the one side or the other, as my own convictions proceed from a somewhat different point of view.

"Some time ago, a consideration of our economic conditions and tendencies, of the woman in gainful occupations, of the nature and course of the demand, led me to the conclusion that the granting of suffrage to women is inevitable.

"Opposition may delay, but in my judgment cannot defeat this movement. Nor can I see any advantages in the delay which can possibly offset the disadvantages which are necessarily incident to the continued agitation.

"Facts should be squarely met. We shall have a constantly intensified effort and a distinctly feminist movement constantly perfecting its organization to the subversion of normal political issues. We shall have a struggle increasing in bitterness, which I believe inimical to our welfare.

"If women are to have the vote, as I believe they are, it seems to me entirely clear that in the interest of the public life of this country, the contest should be ended promptly. I favor the vote for women."

The parade was the big feaure of the opening day of the supreme lodge meeting of the order. Thousands of delegates and visitors are here from every section of the country. Simultaneous with the meeting of the supreme lodge the Pythian Sisters are holding their convention. The sessions of both bodies will continue through the week.

Cows That Never Drink.

The "wild cow" of Arabia, in reality an antelope, the Beatrix oryx, is said never to drink, which is probably correct, for unless these animals can descend the wells they can find no drinking water for ten months in the year. There is no surface water, and rain falls but precariously during the winter. Only once during my journey did I find a pool of rainwater, caught in a hollow rock, and even this I should have passed by without knowing of its existence had not my camels sniffed it from a distance and obstinately refused to be turned from going in that direction. These antelope, however, are provided by nature with a curious food supply, especially designed as a thirst quencher. This is a parasite which grows on the roots of the desert bushes and forms a long spadix full of water and juice. The antelope dig deep holes in the sand in order to get at these.—Wide World Magazine.

Wouldn't Bring an Action.

There is a story told of a very eminent advocate, now no longer with us, who once while endeavoring to dissuade a friend from going to law was asked what he would himself consider a sufficient ground for resorting to litigation.

"My dear fellow," he replied, "I do not say that in no conceivable circumstances would I take proceedings against any one, but I do say that if at this moment you deliberately upset my ink on the tablecloth, chucked my wife out or the window, threw that volume of reports at the bust of Blackstone, 'made hay' with my furniture and finally tweaked my nose I should no doubt use my best endeavors to kick you downstairs. But once rid of you, either by force or persuasion, no power on earth should induce me to bring an action against you."—London Globe.

A Tip.

"I notice you keep your office door closed all the time."

"Yes. I'd never get anything done if I didn't."

"Why?"

"Well, so many people that I don't want to see would wander in here."

"How do you know whether or not you want to see them unless you admit them and hear what they have to say?"

"I don't. I suppose I do miss one or two worth while in the course of a day."

"Did it ever occur to you that the old way to know what people want is to hear what they have to say? It's easy enough to get rid of the undesirable visitor after he gets in, but you never can recall the man with the worth while message if he once goes away."—Detroit Free Press.

Saints of the Bath.

I would not say a word in deprecation of modern plumbing. Beyond a doubt it is one of our greatest blessings and the herald of a true democracy when there shall be neither a "great unwashed" nor a "submerged tenth." But, somehow, Saturday has lost its savor. Life is tamer than it used to be. No man in his senses would wish, in this day of Pullman sleepers, to cross the great plains in a prairie schooner, but the names of the men who risked their lives to do it are enshrined in history. And so I think we ought to build a little altar to the middle class country mothers who, in the face of every obstacle, kept the Saturday night bath a sacred institution and handed it down to their children inviolate.—Katherine Keith in Atlantic.

BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION OF PLAINFIELD — RELIABILITY SERVICE QUALITY VALUE — MEMBER

The Review of Reviews, of Plainfield and Its Business

The "Loyal" Plainfielder takes pride in the city's progress.

"Where do you live?" is frequently asked of travelers, and those travelers take pride, if they're loyal, in naming the city or town from which they came.

Plainfield "is" progressive; she's reached a period of decided progressiveness, preparedness.

The government of our city is doing wonders, the marks of progressiveness of our Council stand out in bold relief. As a mark of efficiency, national attention is attracted here to our automobile manufacturing, machine shops and printing press works, and other great plants.

And they're not over-night promotions, either, these industries, but, they're substantial institutions that have been tried and found true, by many long years of successes, through good, bad and indifferent times, and again, results, Plainfield stands on the brink of a still greater prosperity, so prosperous that not a hint of its inefficiency in any direction can be pointed to by the most jealous rival of our city's progress.

Our city has been most fortunate in avoiding ever, serious labor troubles, serious business failures, serious calamities of any kind that have been noted so frequently in many directions throughout the land—well, all things to Plainfield, "Plainfield Right or Wrong," but, Plainfield's right.

Our Plainfield retail mercantile establishments, what of them? Barring a very few, they have been successful to an extent made possible by a combination of the conservative and the progressive; both must go hand in hand to bring about successful results, and so Plainfield can point with pride to her retail mercantile establishments.

May we especially point out the stores of the members of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield? Stores that have had uninterrupted growth for as long as the oldest inhabitant can remember. But, in all their growth, nothing has equaled that of the past year; and incidentally, nothing has equaled that of the present spring season.

AVOID WEEDS TO CURE HAY FEVER

Season Is Here, and Tips to Prevent Suffering Follow.

ARE OVERCOMING DISEASE.

American Hay Fever Prevention Association Issues Annual Warning. Some Towns Have Greatly Reduced the Number of Victims by Requiring Grass to Be Cut.

The days of horror for hay fever patients approach. Daily the furnace like sun is bringing weeds and pollen bearing matter to fruition, closer each day to the time when the dreaded miasma shall drive human beings of tender throat and nostrils to the forests, the mountains and the seashore, anywhere away from the scourge. But some people can't go, and now yearly at this time the American Hay Fever Prevention association publishes its bulletin on the subject. The report follows in part:

"All cases of hay fever are due to the inhalation of pollen, the majority of these being due to useless weeds. The cases that develop before August are caused chiefly by the pollen of neglected grasses and of spring and summer blooming weeds.

"The principal causes of hay fever cases developing in the fall are the various form of rag weeds, whose capacity for distributing pollen is measured by the hundred millions. The most common forms of this weed are the common rag weed (Ambrosia artemisiaefolia) found in the greater part of the United States east of Kansas, the giant rag weed (Ambrosia trifida) growing in moist areas of this section, and the western rag weed (Ambrosia psilostachya) principally found west of Kansas.

"While the rag weeds are the chief causes of fall hay fever, there are other weeds, such as the marsh elder (Iva axillaris), etc., which flower at this season, so that all weeds should be treated alike to insure safety against hay fever.

Avoid the Weeds and Grass.

"In order to avoid hay fever persons susceptible to it should see that the neighborhood of their residence is free of tall grasses and weeds, and especially of the rag weeds. The three squares in each direction should be inspected and if weeds are found the owners should be urged to have them cut at once. Where this is refused these cases, in the interest of general sanitation, should be reported to the health authorities for violating the grass weed ordinance.

"In cases in which the above cannot be carried out it is sometimes preferable to have the weeds in the immediate neighborhood cut at one's own expense than suffer the torture of a prolonged attack of hay fever from this neglect. It must be remembered, however, that pollen scatters rapidly when borne by the wind, and a single lot full of weeds in the same square mile may be more irritating than an acre at a distance of several squares.

"When the neighborhood cannot be cleared of hay fever weeds the next consideration is a temporary change of residence. The American Hay Fever Prevention association is in constant receipt of letters inquiring for the best resorts for hay fever sufferers. The majority of mountain and seaside resorts unfortunately are infected with hay fever pollens, so that visits to these places in the hope of getting relief are usually disappointing. A careful investigation should always be made, and unless it is found that all weeds and high grasses are systematically cut such places should be avoided.

"As hay fever is due to pollen of neglected weeds, a temporary visit to a more central part of the home town at a sufficient distance (one-half mile) from such weeds will usually give entire relief.

"Hay fever sufferers should avoid unnecessary exposure to pollen. Roads passing near sections full of grass and weeds while in bloom are usually full of pollen, which is inhaled with the dust. An hour of pleasant driving may therefore result in a night of suffering.

"Constitutional conditions have been found to have little influence except as a predisposing cause. The real cause of hay fever is the inhalation of pollen, and the avoidance of this means no hay fever."

ARE YOU A MAMMOTHREPT?

Photographer Didn't Know What Alabama Girl Called Him.

"You impudent mammothrept!"

That's what a southern girl called Jack Donavan, an amateur photographer of Cambridge, Mass., who had bet he could snap six of the prettiest young women in the Harvard summer school within seventy-two hours.

The picture man's first victim was a pretty blonde from Alabama. He sighted his lens and fired. The beauty sighted her flashing orbs and returned the fire doublefold.

"You impudent mammothrept," she cried. Disabled, but with exposure No. 1 in his possession, the photographer retreated, not knowing what he had been called, but fearing the worst.

Whereupon he consulted numerous authorities and finally found in a dictionary this: "Mammothrept—a child reared by its grandmother; a spoiled child."

HEALTH BOARD CARDS CAUSING CONFUSION

Quarantine and Contagious Disease Cards On Houses Have Different Meaning.

In order that people may distinguish between the two different types of yellow cards displayed on various houses throughout the city the Board of Health has issued the statement:

"There seems to be some misunderstanding on the part of the public in regard to the meaning of the large yellow cards posted on many of the houses in Plainfield. The cards in question have reference only to the children under sixteen, requiring them to remain on the premises for a period of two weeks. All children who have been out of town as well as those who may have come in contact with a case of infantile paralysis, are subject to this quarantine. The presence of a quarantine card on a house does not mean that any person in the household is suffering with a contagious disease unless the card so states, in which case the words 'Contagious Disease Within' would appear on the card."

The ordinary quarantine cards are larger in size than the others denoting disease and should not be confused.

BERLIN WORRIED AS TO FATE OF BREMEN

Deutschland Ready to Sail, But Awaits Sister Submarine.

Rome, Aug. 1.—Advices from Berlin state that the Germans are apprehensive over the safety of the merchant submarine Bremen. She is said to carry a cargo worth $16,000,000.

Deutschland Ready to Leave.

Baltimore, Aug. 1.—All indications are that the Deutschland, Germany's first freight carrying submarine, will sail today on her return voyage to Bremen, and the German expectations are that the Bremen, her sister ship, will arrive today at some other port. It has been announced that the Bremen sailed seventeen days ago, and is one day overdue. The Deutschland applied for a pilot yesterday.

The revenue cutter Apache, it is understood, will watch over the Deutschland's sailing and protect her from interference by excursion or press boats, and, accompanied by the Onondaga, escort the submarine to the three-mile limit.

PRICE OF FORDS CUT FOR ALL 1917 MODELS

Detroit, Aug. 1.—In the face of greatly increased cost of material and labor the Ford Motor Company today announced wholesale reductions in the price of all models of the Ford car. The reductions were: Touring cars, from $440 to $360; runabouts, from $390 to $345; couplets, from $590 to $505; town cars, from $640 to $595; sedans, from $750 to $645; chassis, from $360 to $325.

PART OF SEWER TRACT EXEMPT FROM TAXATION

Disputing the claim of the Middlesex county assessing authorites, the New Jersey Board of Taxation yesterday decided that that part of the eighty-nine acre tract in Middlesex county jointly owned by Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen, being used for a sewage disposal plant, should be exempt from taxation. It was the opinion of the State Board of Taxation that public property must be put into public use to be exempt.

PLAINFIELD PRESS COMPANY,

OPEN LETTER

Newark, N. J., July 24th, 1916

UNDER DATE OF JUNE 24th certain labor unions, consisting of the United Brewery Workmen of America, the International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers, and the Executive Board of the Stationary Firemen, issued an open letter in which they explained the condition of the machinists' strike in certain breweries at that time, and endeavored to show the injustice done to the breweries affected by the strike. They stated very distinctly that the issue was one of jurisdiction and that no boycott or action against any plant is justified under such conditions, as it was well established that the American Federation of Labor has always held that no such action should be taken on account of jurisdictional disputes.

THE SAME DISPUTE arose between the engineers and machinists in Elizabeth, and was referred to the Union County Central Labor Union by the brewers, engineers and machinists, and at a meeting of this Central Labor Union on July 20th they passed a resolution that the machinists in Elizabeth breweries should return to work until the controversy has been settled by the National Unions, in accordance with which the machinists returned to work the next day and have so continued.

THE RULING of the Union County Central Labor Union thus confirms the position taken by the United Brewery Workmen of America, and it is manifestly unjust that any employer should be criticised as unfair when conforming to the ruling of the governing bodies of the union. The ruling of the Union County Central Labor Union is conclusive that our position is correct, that the question as to whether engineers or machinists should do certain work is one of jurisdiction for American Federation of Labor—and not for us—to pass upon.

SIXTY-TWO CITIES WERE REPRESENTED AT Y. W. C. A. SILVER BAY CONFERENCE

The Young Women's Christian Association conference at Silver Bay is over, and the Plainfield delegation has returned full of enthusiasm over the good time they have had. The conference was larger than ever before, sixty-two cities being represented and the total registration being 395. The girls from Plainfield represented each a different department of the work of the association. Miss Alice, the secretarial staff; Miss Ethel Titsworth, the board; Miss Myrtie Fedderman the Business Women's League; Miss Ada Van Hise the gymnasium work, and Miss Florence Nielsen the Bible classes. The delegation lived at "Overlook," the most charming of all the cottages on the grounds, and the glorious view of the mountains and Lake George, and the pine-scented breezes which blew continually can only be credited by those, who at former conferences have been assigned rooms in "Overlook."

The Bible classes were, of course, very important factors of the conference, and although attendanhe at any of the classes or meetings was never compulsory, yet every delegate was expected to attend the Bible class. Six courses were offered—one for younger girls, three for general membership, and two for secretaries and board members. The course for younger girls, "Jesus, the Man of Galilee," was taught by Miss Annie Bignell, a graduate of the National Training School, who returns home to Australia in October to continue Y. W. C. A. work there. The purpose of this course was to make the younger girls feel the wonderful personality of Jesus Christ and to bring them into a closer and more intimate relationship with Him.

The second course, "John's Gospel," taught by Miss Mary S. Bushnell, formerly of Plainfield, was studied with these special points kept in mind: the attitude of Jesus toward the crowds and the attitude of the crowds toward Jesus. In the "Foreshadowings of the Christ," the Rev. E. A. George took up eight of the major and minor prophets in the Old Testament, and the members of the class, at the end of the conference knew that they had made eight new friends. "Lives Worth Living," taught by Miss Pauline Sage, dealt with social problems and relationships both in Old Testament time and 20th century days. In the fifth course "The Epistle to the Hebrews," Miss Charlotte H. Adams, resident Bible teacher National Training School, emphasized the difference in the New and Old Testament ideas of man's relation to God. The sixth course, "The Social Principles of Jesus," with Rev. Dr. Robert Seneca Smith as leader, was of particular value, as it offered specific ways of applying practical Christianity to the problems of the community, and particularly to the troubles which come in at our own front door.

During the conference a "Gym" Club was formed under the leadership of Dr. Anna L. Brown, which is called "The Elizabeth H. Dodge Outdoor League of the Silver Bay Association." Miss Elizabeth Dodge, of the national board, became Mrs. Huntington on July 28, and bequeathed to the club upon request, the name she was giving up. The purpose of the club is expressed in the following song:

We are the jolly gym girls,
So full of life and vim,
We exercise our bodies,
And keep our nerves in trim.
We want you all to join us
To fight all pain and ills,
Avoid the doctor, nurse and knife,
And all the nasty pills.
Co-ordination 'twe-en the muscle and mind,
Association spirit in all gym girls you find.
We stand for service, fun and play,
For girl hood, everywhere,
To give them full development
And everything else that's fair.
(Tune: Solomon Levy.)

All Plainfield delegates were happy to become charter members of this league.

Five courses were offered in mission study. The local delegation was represented in four of these. The "South American Tour," by Dr. Thornton B. Penfield, created enthusiasm among those who travelled thereon, and several South American secretaries are probably in the making through the inspiration of this course. A glimpse was given into this new, relatively unknown land of opportunity, of these people, our neighbors, their characteristics, and their needs, their many unsatisfying religions and something of the great results hoped for in carrying the Gospel message there. On one of the afternoons of the conference the hospitality of Dr. Penfield's summer home was extended to the members of the class.

"Comrades in Service," the textbook used in the course called by that name, is "the story of the eleven persons of different nations and races who used well the gift of Life," the last chapter being a study of the life of Miss Grace H. Dodge. Miss Henrietta Roelofs, the inspiring leader of this class, is herself a "comrade in service" on the Commission of Household Employment.

The home missions course, taught by Miss Grace B. Walker brought to the members of the class in a new way the opportunity offered in our own country of evangelizing those of lesser opportunity and of Americanizing the foreigners here in our very midst.

Dr. Jonathan Day, of the Labor Temple, New York city, presented "The Civic Responsibilities of the Christian." He spoke of the need in the world of a deeper, truer feeling of brotherhood and sisterhood, and emphasized in a way impossible to forget that preaching without practice, creed without service, is of no avail.

The work of the Recreation Committee, with Miss Alice Kimball, of Baltimore, as chairman, was much praised for its originality and for the number of events it "pulled off." The entries for the tennis tournaments, both singles and doubles, were large; most of the sixty-two cities represented furnishing one or more contestants. Pittsburgh carried off the honors in both tournaments, the singles being won by Miss Belleville and the doubles by Miss Belleville and Miss Kräns. The field and water sports caused a great deal of interest and amusement. The field sports showed the excellent work that has been done in the physical departments of the association, and the swimming, diving and acquatic stunts the greatest benefits which the swimming pools have proved to hundreds of Y. M. C. A. girls. The Brooklyn delegation won the blue ribbon, signifying second place. The swimming race was won by Miss Alice Titus, of Plainfield, who also brought home the brown ribbon for the obstacle wading race. The tub races, diving contest and rowing races were very exciting and brought forth songs and cheers from the grandstand which made the mountains echo, and it was agreed that more "sharks" prevailed in Lage George this season than ever before.

Long walks and mountain climbs were very popular, and several trips to Fort Ticondeoga and Paradise Bay were made. The sunset picnics were very delightful, for Lake George is at her loveliest at that time of evening. There were pre-breakfast bird walks for the most energetic delegates, and the evening bon-fire songs provided entertainment for those who would lengthen the days at the other end.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, AUGUST 1, 1916.

THE COST OF WAR.

The present week marks the completion of two years of hostilities in Europe. Attempts to gauge its burden to all the Powers involved have resulted in a calculation that the direct cost of the struggle to the present time is in excess of $45,000,000,000. The total military expenditure in the first year was approximately $17,500,000. For the second year it is estimated at fully $28,000,000,000.

These figures represent simply the expenditure for carrying on the hostilities. They do not allow for the destruction of cities, railways, ships, factories, warehouses, bridges, roads, or agricultural values. Neither do they allow for the economic loss through the killing and maiming of men, the loss of production in occupied territories, the decrease in stocks of food, metal, and other materials, the derangement of the machinery of distribution, or the cost of pensions. They measure in a common term an expenditure of capital which, to the Governments concerned, will in the end be translated for the most part into permanent additions to their national debt.

If the war costs $45,000,000,000 it will represent a sum three times greater than the entire capitalization of the railways of the United States, and four times greater than the total deposits of all our national banks. It will represent a sum six times greater than that expended in the Civil War. It will represent forty times the amount of the present national debt of the United States, 120 times the cost of the Panama Canal, 500 times the amount of the annual American gold output.

The aggregate amount named for the two years' warfare is believed to be well within the actual total. Dr. Karl Hefferich, Germany's Finance Minister, has named precisely that amount, $45,000,000,000, as an outside figure of the war cost to only April 1.

Great Britain's expenditures are now in the neighborhood of $25,000,000 a day. The daily average was $14,000,000 a year ago. France is spending $18,000,000 a day, according to the latest authoritative estimates. Last year France spent $8,000,000 daily. Russia, which a year ago spent an amount equal to that of France, is now spending $15,500,000 daily. These daily war expenditures of the Entente Allies make a total of $58,500,000.

Germany's present daily war cost is $16,600,000, on the authority of Dr. Helfferich. That of Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria combined, on the same authority, is $10,900,000. The aggregate for the Central Allies is therefore $27,500,000. Altogether, the cost of strife to all of the belligerents is approximately $86,000,000 a day.

It is estimated that in spite of the present relative position of the nations as regards war cost, the direct cost to the chief nations of the Central Alliance has been only a little short of that of Great Britain, whose aggregate up to the present time has surpassed that of any other single belligerent. Great Britain's expenditure has increased gradually, Germany's was large from the first, because of the extensive campaigns on two fronts, and because of the superior number of individual enemy nations.

Great Britain has lent funds on an extensive scale for the purchase of military supplies to Russia ,France, Italy, Belgium, and certain neutral countries. France has made advances to Russia, Belgium, Serbia and neutrals. Germany has extended credits to Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria. Advances, or loans, by the strong powers to the weaker belligerents and to neutrals have amounted to $3,500,000,000. Figures from English sources indicate that Russia in this manner has received not less than $1,125,000,000, Italy $675,000,000, Belgium and Serbia $875,000,000. Turkey and Bulgaria have received perhaps $700,000,000.

Pro-rated over the entire population, the direct war cost has meant more to France than to any other belligerent. England is second on the list, Germany third, and Russia, because of its vast population, nearly last. Reduced to a per diem basis, the war has cost France 30 cents daily for each inhabitant of the republic. It has cost England 28 cents a day for each inhabitant, Germany 22 cents, and Russia 6 cents.

And it is worth—what?

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR ECONOMY.

If Attorney-General Wescott, of the State of New Jersey, is big enough to put away political pride for awhile, he can follow the lead of Attorney-General Woodbury, of New York, and save the State considerable money between now and November by doing away with the necessity of a special session of the legislature. Gen. Woodbury has just rendered an opinion in which he holds that conditions existing on the Mexican border are such as to bring into operation the provision of the Constitution requiring the taking of the soldier vote "in time of war." The same question is up in all the eastern States and others where soldiers have been sent to the border, and unless there is something radically wrong with the New York opinion there is no necessity for a separate ruling in each of the States. The constitutional amendment in question says:

"Provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the State or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district."

This amendment is liberally construed by the New York official, but as no one cares to prevent the militiamen from voting the ruling is the easiest and best way out of the matter, unless it is wholly illegal. Gen. Woodbury says he recognizes the fact that there does not exist an actual state of war, but reaches the conclusion that the existence of such is not essential to the bringing into operation of this constitutional provision, adopted for the purpose of taking the vote of the citizen soldiers at the front.

It is known that President Wilson's strongest argument for reelection in the campaign now on is that he has kept the United States out of war with Mexico, and Gen. Wescott, officially recognized as a spokesman for the administration, must avoid any statement that will even mildly challenge this fact, but it is to be hoped that he will not impose upon the people of New Jersey the expense of a special legislature session simply out of loyalty to his candidate. There are many in New Jersey who can afford a contribution to the campaign fund of Candidate Wilson, but they prefer to make this through the regular channels, and not through the State treasury.

• • • • • •

The explosion of Sunday, that did damage exceeding $25,000,000 and cost many lives, was just an accident. Nobody was to blame—not even Germany. However, peaceful New Jersey residents have the right to demand that they be protected from future explosions of munitions in large quantities. The State was sleeping soundly without knowledge of its danger when the fire started. Even the Kaiser warns those in danger zones created by his warriors. Why not force the railroads and terminal companies to show some consideration for the safety of the public?

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

The Summer Girl.

She will flirt quite a bit, there is no doubt of it;
She will dangle the men at her ease.
With no thought to deceive, she will make them believe
That the moon is composed of green cheese.

She will rule like a queen and with innocent mein
Till she gives all the spinsters a pain;
Men will follow her, whim, they will golf, they will swim,
And will languish all day in her train.

Yes, the men will jump through, they will fret, they will stew;
They will fight for the chance of a smile,
They'll lie down and roll over, play dead like dog Rover,
Or carry her trunk for a mile.

It is fair to suppose that they all will propose.
They'll invoke the small god with the wings.
If the season is right and enough fellows bite,
She will gather a harvest of rings.

But along toward fall, the gay beach Johnnies all
She will can, with a shrug and a frown;
She will bid them adieu, and will catch the choo-choo,
And will marry some mutt back in town.

In Vaudeville.

Shades of Dave Garrick and W. Shakespeare, what will come next? The champion bean picker of Caluga county, New York, has worked his stunt up into a vaudeville sketch. He sits at his bean separator and differentiates between the good beans and the bad by tossing the good beans out into the audience with all the agility of Howard Thurston, the card shark, and throwing the bad beans up against the back drop. He can pick beans so fast that the rattle of the bad specimens against the back drop sounds like a snare drum solo and he can play anything from "Yankee Doodle to the "Dead March from Saul."

A woman out in Iowa has also gone on the stage recently. Her specialty is knitting socks. She can knit a pair of socks in full view of the audience in less time than it takes a spring lamb to switch its narrative, and embroider the name of any lady or gentleman in the audience on the side of the sock as she goes along. At evening performances, when the size of her audience seems to demand it, she further complicates her performance by repeating the Declaration of Independence backward while knitting the socks. For an encore she knits a whole union suit in four minutes.

Bill Simms, of Northern Michigan, who is one of the champion milkists of that locality, plans to go on the stage with his pet yellow and plush Jersey cow. He ought to thrill the audience all right, as he promises to throw the milk into the mouth of any crying baby in the audience, dierct from the manufacturer to the consumer, as it were. He will also set fire to a papier mache summer house on the stage at each and every performance and then put the fire out with milk cunningly aimed and directed by himself as he sits beneath the eaves of his patient bovine and milks, gives correct impersonations of famous war heroes and whistles "Listen to the Mocking Bird," at one and the same time. That is going some even for vaudevill and Bill promises to be a headliner.

What Has Become of Them?

The party who used to take peppermint drops to church.

The statesman who used to chew "Pride of the Gravel Train."

The torchlight processions and the oilcloth uniforms.

- Proctor's Theatre -

"Casey at the Bat," the Triangle-De Wolf Hopper comedy, to be seen at Proctor's today, tells in picture *form the story of the famous base*ball poem which Hopper has recited from countless stages and at innumerable social gatherings since it first appeared, more than a quarter of a century ago. The basball scenes in this production were staged with the assistance of the managers and captains of two semi-professional teams whose players took part in the picture, and one of the pitchers will be recognized as Frank Bennett, the good looking youth from Watchung, who plays an important part in this production. Mr. Bennett also will be remembered as the young Russian lover in "Sold for Marriage," playing opposite Lillian Gish, and his ability and versatility as a screen artist is greatly appreciated by his many friends and followers in this vicinity. It will be recalled that Casey, the invincible slugger of the Mudville baseball team, came to bat one afternoon in the ninth inning of a close game with a rival nine and when a hit was needed to win, ingloriously struck out, leaving the entire populace of Mudville gasping with amazement and drenched in gloom. The poem does not reveal what untoward circumstance it was that caused Casey to fall down so grievously at a crucial moment. The mystery the picture promises to clear up. In Hopper's support in addition to Mr. Bennett, appear such well known Triangle players as Marguerite Marsh, Kate Toncray, Carl Stockdale and May Garcia. "Casey at the Batt" was adapted for the screen by William Everett Wing and was produced under the direction of Lloyd Ingraham. In addition to a funny Keystone creation today the 8th episode of "The Secret of the Submarine" will also be shown.

On Wednesday William Farnum will be seen in "The Man from Bitter Roots." The admirers of William Farnum especially will enjoy this picture, which presents the star in a very fitting role. As Bruce Hart the misunderstood but invincible hero, he will win both the admiration and sympathy of the audience. The story, which is taken from the novel by Caroline Lockhart, provides five reels of swift action and thrilling incidents which hold attention throughout.

More than half a million less barrels of beer were consumed in April, 1916, than in April, 1915. According to a statement in the June number of the Western Brewer there were consumed in April, 1915, 5,042,424 barrels of beer; in April, 1916, 4,513,512, a decrease of 528,912 barrels.

For the first time in the history of Superior, Wis., so far as the oldest members of the police department are able to remember, on the morning of July 8 there was not a single prisoner in the city jail. Not a single drunk was arrested the night before, and there were no applications for lodging.

"It is something I never saw before, and I have been on the police force for many years," said Captain Louis Osborne. "Prohibition must have some good effects. We are getting fewer drunks since Superior went dry than at any time before."

F. B. Choate, assistant general freight agent of the Union Pacific at Denver, on a recent visit to Salt Lake City, reported Denver as being on the upgrade in fortune, having entirely recovered from the dull times of recent years.

"Prohibition is working out satisfactorily in Colorado," he said. "Workingmen go home now with money for their families at the end of the week, instead of spending much, if not all of it, at the saloons. Of course a man can get liquor from out of the State for his own personal use, if he wants to, but the temptation to the rising generation has been taken away, and when the older heads who have been used to their highballs and beers are gone, the current generation will have matured without acquiring a taste for drink, and that will be the end of whisky—in Colorado, anyhow."

June in Portland, Oregon, heads the list of six prohibition months as a practical example of what prohibition can accomplish in a big city. When compared with June of last year there was a 77 per cent decrease in arrests, or 136 arrests for drunkenness and 36 for vagrancy as against 586 arrests for drunkenness and 94 for vagrancy a year ago. In May of this year 144 arrests were made for drunkenness and 102 for vagrancy, while for May of 1915 there were 541 arrests for drunkenness and 196 for vagrancy.

Does prohibition prohibit in North Carolina? Mrs. T. Adelaide Goodno, president of the North Carolina W. C. T. U., submits the testimony of two well known residents of the State to the effect that it does. According to Major W. A. Graham, at Charlotte, on May 20, the time of the celebration of the Mecklenburg declaration of independence, great numbers of people were in the city to attend the exercises and hear the address of President Woodrow Wilson, who was the speaker of the day. Despite the unusual crowd, says Major Graham, not a drunken man was in evidence that day. Rev. J. S. Farmer, who travels all over the State in the interest of the Biblical Recorder, the Baptist State paper, says he rarely sees a drunken man on the trains nowadays although they were exceedingly numerous in times past.

FIGURES OUT THE CHANCES THAT YOU HAVE OF LIVING

What chance of life has your baby? How long may you hope to live?

Ask Uncle Sam.

If fair haired little Elizabeth, who laughs merrily as she makes brave efforts to walk upon her sturdy eleven months old legs, reaches her first birthday without mishap—provided she is a city baby—she may hope to live to be more than fifty-seven years old.

But if Elizabeth's parents join that forlorn army of bereaved fathers and mothers, they may know that their baby's fate is that of four or five other tots per thousand of the same age in the city.

If Henry's parents live in a rural community he may expect to live longer than if he were a city boy. For if he reaches his second birthday he may hope to live to be approximately sixty-two years old, while but about twenty country boys per thousand die between their first and second years.

Elizabeth's cousin Sarah, provided she is the same age, but lives in the country, may hope to live to be sixty-two years old if she reaches one year of age, while the chances of her not reaching her first birthday are less than three per thousand.

But Henry's city cousin Richard, of the same age, can hope to live on an average of but fifty-four years if he lives to be two, while the chances of his not reaching his second birthday are thirty-three per thousand.

This is a fair example of what Uncle Sam might tell you.

This is not the testimonial of a "fortune teller." It is a simple statement of facts based upon carefully gathered statistics, scientifically computed under the supervision of one of the foremost experts on the subject in the United States.

• • • • • • •

In other words, the bureau of the census, department of commerce, has just issued a set of life tables, a government publication not only unique in the annals of this country's official documents, but one which promises to have farreaching results.

In short, the census bureau has compiled a series of tables from which it is possible to determine the rate of mortality per thousand for any one of several classified groups during each year of life and to ascertain for those surviving each age interval the average number of years of life yet remaining.

A study of these tables shows many general facts of unusual interest:

Infant mortality is still high despite the efforts of medical science to arrest it.

The country baby has a far better chance of life than the city baby.

Girl infants show a smaller rate of mortality in their first year than do male infants.

The life of the average female is longer than that of the average male by approximately three years.

With but few exceptions the rate of mortality is lower among native born whites than among foreign born whites.

• • • • • • •

Practically all tables show the healthiest "age interval" to be those between ten and eleven and eleven and twelve years, the lowest rate of mortality being reached for both males and females at these ages.

Tables dealing with the negro population show that the rate of mortality among them is far greater than among whites and the expectation of life much shorter.

Great as is the death rate among white infants, that among negro infants is fully double.

Of all classes shown, that of white females in rural communities shows the lowest rate of mortality if considered for the entire period of life.

FOREST RECEIPTS GROW.

Receipts from national forests for the fiscal year 1916 reached the high water mark of approximately $2,820,000, according to figures just compiled. This is $311,000 above the 1915 total, which in turn exceeded any previous year. Officials say that the gain was due to increased demand for all classes of forest products.

There was a decided growth in the revenue from all sources, the largest being that of $203,000 in timber sales. Grazing fees showed a gain of $77,000. Receipts for water power development were over $12,000 more than for 1915. Sales of turpentine privileges and charges for special uses were both considerably in excess of the previous year.

Officials say that the national forests are important factors in the prosperity of the regions in which they are located on account of the large amounts of timber, range and other resources which they hold available for use as needed.

Mirror Superstitions.

The classic legend of Narcissus probably has its origin in the belief that if a man sees his image in water he will die. Nor has the idea vanished in our own day. Professor Frazer, in his "Golden Bough," tells us that in Oldenburg it is thought that if a man sees his reflection after a death he will die himself. Therefore all the mirrors in a house of mourning are covered with white cloth, and in some parts of Germany everything that glitters or is capable of reflection—even windows, clocks, etc.—is covered. The same custom prevails in parts of England and Scotland and in Madagascar. When a man is dying the Suni Mohammedans of Bombay cover the mirrors in his room. And not only this, but they habitually follow the same practice in their own rooms before going to sleep, thinking that in sickness or sleep the soul is especially likely to slip away. According to Professor Ralston, the Raskolniks look upon a mirror as an accursed thing, the invention of the devil, though it is not quite certain that their objection arises from the cause under consideration.—New York Post.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

What a Woodchopper Found In a Treetop.

The Woodchopper Took the Child Down.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

SOON as Jack and Evelyn kept still daddy told them: "There was once a poor man who was a woodchopper. Every day he went into the forest to cut down trees. One day as he jogged along to work he heard a cry like a little child's. So he followed the sound till he at last looked up in a high tree, and on one of the branches sat a very little child.

"Now, its mother had taken it outdoors and fallen asleep. While she slept a vulture had taken the child out of her lap, flown away with it and left it in the tree.

"When the woodchopper climbed the tree and took the child down he found it was a pretty little girl. He said to himself, 'I will take this poor child home and bring her up with my own little boy, Hansel.'

"So he named the child Grethel and brought her to his cottage, where the two children grew up together. They grew to be so fond of each other that neither of them was happy apart.

"But the woodchopper became very poor and had nothing in the world he could call his own. Indeed, he had scarcely enough bread for his wife and the two children to eat. The time came when that was all gone, and he did not know where to turn to get help in his need. Then at night, when he turned restlessly from side to side, unable to sleep in his worry and full of care, his wife said to him: 'Husband, listen to me. Take the two children out early tomorrow morning and give each a piece of bread. Lead them into the woods where it is thickest, make a fire for them and leave them to get on as best they can, for we can no longer keep them here.'

"'No; I cannot find it in my heart to leave the children to the wild beasts of the forests,' answered the father.

"'Well, if you do not do as I say we must all starve together,' said his wife. And she would not give him any peace until he came into her hard hearted plan.

"Now, it happened that the children were wide awake too. They were so weak from hunger that they could not sleep, and they heard all that Hansel's mother had said. So Grethel began to cry. But Hansel crept close to her and said: 'Don't be afraid, dear. I will find some help for us.' Then he got out of bed, put on his little jacket, opened the door very softly and went out in the wide world to see how he could make his own and little Grethel's fate," daddy finished, with two big hugs for two sleepy children.

"Oh, daddy, we love that story!" cried Evelyn from the top of the stairs.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

For Pyorrhea.

Prevention is the best remedy for pyorrhea. Dentists preach this everywhere. Begin with the children and teach them how to keep the teeth clean and free from all kinds of food particles. Teach them to brush the teeth and rinse the teeth and gums thoroughly three times a day after meals. Cleanliness keeps the gums healthy. Have the tartar removed from the teeth; this, if allowed to remain, makes the gums recede and loosens the teeth.

Pyorrhea is not a constitutional disease; it is a local affection. But the existence is a menace to health, for it causes diseases of the joints as well as many other systemic diseases.

Watch your own teeth, watch the teeth of the children, for the first sign of tartar and go to a dentist to have it removed. Keep the teeth clean at all times. Use plenty of tooth powder and water to brush the teeth and do not neglect thoroughly to rinse the mouth and teeth.

Bulwer Lytton and His Chorus.

The Princess von Racowitsa met Bulwer Lytton in the Riviera toward the end of the fifties. He was then, she says in her autobiography, "past his first youth; his fame was at its zenith. He seemed to me antediluvian, with his long dyed curls and his old fashioned dress. He dressed exactly in the fashion of the twenties, with long coats reaching to the ankles, knee breeches and long colored waistcoats. Also he appeared always with a young lady who adored him and who was followed by a manservant carrying a harp. She sat at his feet and appeared, as he did, in the costume of 1830, with long flowing curls, called Anglaises. He read aloud from his own works, and in especially poetic passages his 'Alice' accompanied him with arpeggios on the harp."

Seals Can Drown.

It is a curious fact that the fur seal was once a land animal. The baby seals are actually afraid of water. They would drown if thrown into it and have to learn to swim by repeated efforts. When once they have been taught to swim, however, they soon forget to walk.

There are in existence only two important herds of fur seals, one of which has its breeding grounds in the Commander islands, belonging to Russia, the other in the Pribilof islands, belonging to the United States. Of these the latter is much the larger. The Pribilof islands are government property, and thus it happens that the United States government finds itself the owner of by far the most valuable herd of fur seals in the world.—London Mail.

Roads In Olden Days.

A curious illustration of the lack of any systematic authority over the roads in England, even as late as the fifteenth century, is preserved in the records of the manor of Aylesbury. A local miller, named Richard Boose, needed some ramming clay for the repair of his mill. Accordingly—we learn from "Old Country Inns"—his servants dug a great pit in the middle of the road, ten feet wide and eight feet deep, and so left it to become filled with water from the winter rains. A glover from Leighton Buzzard, on his way home from market, fell in and was drowned. Charged with manslaughter, the miller pleaded that he had no place wherein to get the kind of clay he required except on the highroad. He was acquitted.

A Waste of Powder.

A man who never before had been duck hunting fired at a duck in the air.

"Gee!" exclaimed the amateur's friend. "You got him."

"Yes," returned the amateur, "but I might as well have saved my ammunition—the fall would have killed him anyway."—Harper's Magazine.

Vacations Wanted

If you could rescue one little child or one overworked mother from the city's hot, glaring walls and pavements and stuffy rooms, and give them an outing at the beach with bountiful food, rest, coolness, fresh air, a daily dip in the surf, shady porches and sandy beaches, would you not regard such a gift as well worth giving?

Such a gift is entirely within your power. Ten thousand of these mothers and children are waiting for invitations to our Sea Breeze Summer Home. You can send as many as you will for a day, a week or a fortnight.

ANSWER PILLAR FIRE CHARGE

time, in the history of our organization, have our people suffered the bitter persecution that they have at the hands of the officials of Plainfield.

"Incidents in connection with the police force and their refusal to keep order when the 'Pillar of Fire' tent meeting was in progress there on private grounds a year ago, are still fresh in the minds of thousands of our readers. Officers stood by and saw the tent cut down and property destroyed without making a protest. Our workers were egged, stoned and hounded through the streets, and one at least had a revolver flashed in his face by Papal hoodlums, while Patrick Kiely, the Roman Catholic chief of police, and his staff kept in the shadows. The men who did the work boarded the trolley cars and followed our missionaries and preachers all the way to Bound Brook, where they were dispersed by the Bound Brook police. One efficient officer, awake to his duty, could have preserved order at Plainfield."

The "case" of which mention is made is the very latest "Pillar of Fire" episode and centers about the imprisonment of Miss Lovina Leach and Mrs. Laura Wilson. An appeal has been made to the Supreme Court.

The following article, from the pen of the two local young men, appeared in Sunday's issue of the New Brunswick paper:

"Editor Sunday Times:

"In your issue of July 23 we noted an article entitled 'Pillar of Fire Preachers Claim Plainfield Authorities Persecute Them.' The fact that this religious sect was given an opportunity to give its side of the controversy justifies, in our belief, the hope that you will allow us to present Plainfield's side of the question.

"Although we believe that the 'Pillar of Fire' are not worthy of serious thought, still we fear that the citizens of New Brunswick might be led to believe that Plainfield is governed by men who have no regard for constitutional rights with respect to religious liberty and freedom of speech. When Mayor Leighton Calkins 'flatly refused' to grant the 'Pillar of Fire' permission to hold a street meeting, he must have been prompted by a fairly good reason.

"We beg to quote from your article: 'Rights of American Citizens Denied.' In respect to this statement Mr. Calkins has something to say. In his address before the Common Council of our city on October 18, 1915, the Mayor spoke as follows on this phase of the question:

"'Now, the Constitution protects the free exercise of religious belief. But liberty of conscience cannot be construed to justify acts inconsistent with the peace and safety of the community. While the religion of no sect or organization, Catholic, Protestant or otherwise, is above criticism, nevertheless when one sect violently assails another whose exercises of religious profession is equally safeguarded by the organic law, and does this upon crowded streets, it is clear that free speech is not the only right involved. Citizens of one religious class have a right to use the public thoroughfares without having their religious beliefs assailed in offensive language by citizens of another persuasion.

"'Political freedom is as much protected by the Constitution as religious freedom or free speech; yet political street meetings are held subject to the paramount considerations of traffic and public order and their speakers conform to that degree of restraint which recognizes the rights of others.

"The 'Pillar of Fire' frankly proclaim a mission which we know, and which they know, is calculated to cause disturbances. Members of the sect have told me that it is their belief that the Roman Catholic Church as an institution is insecure, fraudulent and immoral, and that they are called by God to attack it publicly. They have told me that they are not only willing, but eager, to die in the cause, and that perhaps the best way for the people of this country to be brought to their senses with respect to the menace of Romanism would be for the members of their sect to attack it with sufficient violence to incite their enemies to strike them down to their death on the streets of our city.'

"The deep religious life of the two women was emphasized in the article and it is, therefore, to be expected that the two can be held to be representatives of the sect. It certainly is difficult to believe that sincere religion finds expression in such outbursts as the exploitation of an ex-monk and the haranguing of Catholic and Protestant institutions—institutions that were in existence and that were doing good work long before the 'Pillar of Fire' were dreamed of. In the above quotation from the Mayor mention was made of the fact that the 'Pillar of Fire' were not 'only willing but eager to die in the cause.' It is hard to believe that it was a mere accident that there was any certainty of arrest, the 'Pillar of Fire' meetings were conducted by women.

"Further along in the article the Mayor is accused of discriminating 'between the 'Pillar of Fire' and other organizations.' We have our views on the subject, but believe that the general public is more interested in something that is official. Hence we again refer to the Mayor's address:

"'There has been no discrimination against this sect, which has been treated with more consideration than any other organization which has ever made use of our streets for public meetings. They twice refused to cease holding meetings for a short period while I investigated a disturbance occurring at one of them It has been necessary to detail an unusual number of officers to prevent trouble, and I have been present myself at practically all of their meetings for the same purpose. On several occasions they openly defied the police when directed to move from a corner where on account of the traffic it was unwise to permit any street meeting to be held, to other locations in the near neighborhood. They proclaimed that they would take orders only from their own leaders. They have been arrested, tried and found guilty of violating the city ordinances. The city authorities have exercised great patience with them. I do not question in any way their sincerity. But it is evident that they place their teachings above the law of the land, liberal and just as that is to them. It would be unwise to give them unrestricted street privileges as it would be to grant pistol permits to children.

"'As I am unable to obtain satisfactory assurance from them that they will conform to the reasonable requirements of law, I have, pursuant to the authority vested in me by the ordinance approved October 4, 1915, unanimously adopted by the Common Council at my request, refused permission to hold any meetings on the streets or public places of the city. I have done this, not in the denial of free speech, but because of its abuse. I assume the full responsibility for my action, but, as stated at the outset, request your approval of other expressions of opinion. * * *'

"Nor is Mayor Calkins, of Plainfield, the only civil authority who has had cause to make public utterance in reference to the 'Pillar of Fire.' William L. Smalley, Mayor of North Plainfield, in ordering Chief Marshal George Weiss, of that borough, to disperse a threatening mob that had congregated at one of the sect's meetings, has this to say: 'I believe in religious liberty and free speech, but this does not imply that I believe that religion consists of abusing those whose religious opinions differ from my own. The 'Pillar of Fire' or anybody else can preach the Gospel to their heart's content, but nothing must be said that will offend the religious opinions of other people.'

"We have submitted this to you in the hope that you will give it just as much prominence as was given the article to which we made reference. Out of justice to Plainfield and to the many Catholic subscribers to your paper, we believe that you will publish this letter.

"We have tried to be unoffending to the members of the 'Pillar of Fire' sect, although we perhaps would not receive like treatment at their hands.

"Thanking you for giving your valuable space to this article, we are, yours respectfully,

ANNETTE KELLERMANN FROM FRAIL CHILD BECAME WORLD'S MOST PERFECT WOMAN

Some of the Interesting Details of the Career of the Famed Swimmer and International Champion Who is to Teach Readers of the Plainfield Daily Press How to Swim in Dry Land Classes.

FOREWORD.

To the Annette Kellermann Swimming Lesson Series.

Several million Americans and other millions of persons throughout the world have seen Annette Kellermann perform her daring and artistic swimming feats in dramatic enterprises and vaudeville.

Throughout the world, in all lands, her name stands for beauty, daring and skill. All women know of her as the possessor of the most perfect figure with which any woman has ever been endowed since the days of the historic Venus.

But the revelation that will amaze you is that all of her perfection of form and figure, all of the beauties of body about which both sexes comment are not natural endowments from the time of her birth. They are self-created. Hard work, life in the open, life in the water and close contact with nature produced the splendid physical specimen known to you as Annette Kellermann.

Miss Kellermann was born in Australia. She was the frailest and most delicate of infants. Her parents had no hopes of raising her. On the day of her birth this little mite of humanity was so tiny that her father placed her little body in an ordinary tin quart-pot and there was still room to spare in the measure.

Naturally the childhood of such a diminutive youngster kept her family in constant dread.

How Nature Made Her Into Remarkable Woman.

But Nature provided a solution of their fears.

The wonderful Australian open country and its health-giving air began to have its effect upon Annette Kellermann and systematic exercise began to fill out her figure.

No one who harbors worries about inadequate physical development need displair if the Kellermann precepts are kept in mind and the theory of them translated into facts.

As devoted as she has always been to physical culture, Annette Kellermann feels that the greatest of all exercises is swimming. She ranks it as the greatest of cure-alls for the development of sufficient physique. She considers it the greatest muscle-builder; the finest nerve-building force and the least dangerous of all sports.

Swimming she ranks as the very best of all of nature's mild stimulants and for women; it is the surest of all forms of physical conditioning

It will interest you to know that the child who seemed to have almost no chance of growing up into fine and healthy womanhood later in life became the greatest all-around swimmed of her sex developed in any country. At the age of 15 she set up new figures for ten miles, covering the distance in 4 hours and 50 minutes. A few years later she swam 13½ miles in the Thames in 3 hours, 54 minutes and 16 seconds. In the championship of France, an eight mile swim in the Seine, she took second to the burly Paulus after a thrilling neck and neck race with Burgess. One of her most superb feats was the twenty-mile swim from Dover to Ramsgate in 4 hours and 24 minutes.

Made Her Way to Fame Without Aid.

Annette Kellermann's is a spirit that cannot be quenched. She has ability—and the energy to develop it She has patience—and the common sense to exercise it. She has ideas—and a happy faculty of making them practical. With these attributes no one can fail to achieve fame.

There is a great deal more to be learned about Annette Kellermann. She has an indomitable will. Her pluck is almost incredible. She has never suffered from enlargement of the cranium.

There is no fluke of fate about Miss Kellermann's enviable success. It was brought about by consistent hard work, that levelled all obstacles and eliminated the words "impossible" and "can't" from the vocabulary in daily use. There was no "pull" about it, either. Annette Kellermann is one of the few stage luminaries who can truthfully say: "I am under obligations to no one. What I have accomplished has been solely by my own effort." This remarkable woman begins her swimming lessons in The Plainfield Daily Press tomorrow.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

EVIDENTLY A "STAR."

"If the Brittons, who own the St. Louis Cardinals, are willing to sell Infielder Rogers Hornsby to the highest bidder, the Pirates may land the prize. Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh Club, recently declared that he would pay $50,000 for a star ball player in the class with Sisler, Cobb, Eddie Collins and Frank Baker. Hornsby, who is serving his second year in the National League, already is considered a wonder. President Ebbets of the Brooklyn Club is willing to hand over $20,000 and two players for Hornsby, but the Brittons are not in a hurry to do business. Dreyfuss will put in a bid this week, it is said, and he may go as high as $30,000. Hornsby is batting at a .300 clip and has played all of the infield positions for the Cards. Ebbets figures that with Hornsby at short field the Robins would surely win the pennant, but Dreyfuss is desperate and intends to secure the young star at any cost if the Brittons will accept money to swing the deal."

YANKS STILL AGGRESSIVE.

The crippled Yankees may not come home at the top of the heap, but they are not ready to throw up their hands. Donovan's men are winning praise all over the country for their remarkable aggressiveness. They are fighting gamely to keep near the head of the American League procession. Donovan has kept his men on their toes in spite of the crippling of Gilhooley, Baker, Magee, Maisel, High and Cullop. Some other ball clubs, similarly handicapped, would have quit cold. But Donovan, it seems, has inspired the Yankees with a spirit that is unusual. The work of the team, under the circumstances, is one of the sensational features of the campaign. The schedule will not be completed until October 4, so that the Yankees will have plenty of time to recover lost ground when the stars of the team return. After the present series with the Browns in St. Louis ends tomorrow, the Yankees visit Detroit on Thursday, where the Tigers are bracing up. Following another trying engagement in Cleveland, Donovan's men will come back to the Polo Grounds a week from next Saturday for a double header with the Mackmen.—The Sun.

• • • • • •

THE GAME WAS PLAYED.

The "big" game was played. Further comment is, really, not necessary, although the good work of the winning team deserves a little commendation. The Royals outhit their rivals and outplayed them, but the score should not have been 7 to 2. The result, as far as earned runs were concerned, was 4 to 2. If the manager of the Tabs sees fit, another game will be arranged with the Royals. But, if said manager is anxious to have a crowd on hand, he had better do a little renovating. The team needs a little shaking up and the work must be done now.

• • • • • •

M'GRAW STILL HOPES.

"John McGraw still believes the Giants can win the pennant. Those four straight victories on the Polo Grounds, especially the three won in extra innings, have pleased John more than anything the Giants have done in a long time. He now feels that it will have a great mental effect on the Giants, who had fallen into a rut largely because they believed they could not win on the Polo Grounds. Until this present stand the Giants had only won seven games at home, and the present run is only the second time they have won more than one game at a time at home. Once before they bunched two straight on the P. G.

"The Giants are actually hitting at home. That is one thing greatly in their favor. They carry the punch all right, but with the exception of the early spring games they did not exhibit it in Harlem. Herzog has been a great help despite the fact that he played poorly in two games. Yet Charley should be forgiven for his many errors because of his fine work on Thursday and Saturday. He seems to be a greater player now than when last with us, or perhaps we appreciate him more. While Herzog was a grand player at third for the Giants the writer does not believe he ever rose to the heights at third base that he has reached at short. With all respect to Fletcher's ability to play short, the writer will be sorry to see Herzog moved back to third. Yet there is no doubt that with Fletcher back in the lineup the Giants will present their most formidable front of the year."—Fred Lieb.

THEY NEEDED "MATTY."

It was decidedly interesting to note, in connection with the engagement of Christy Mathewson to manage the Cincinnati baseball team, that this change brought him back to where he was sixteen years ago.

The history of Mathewson's connection with the New York team is one of the features of baseball history in this country. His wonderful work made the Giants and himself famous, and the particularly interesting feature of his present management of Cincinnati lies in the fact that it was in this city where he is now manager that he was let go without a trial. Cincinnati missed what New York gained, and what has since become baseball history.

Fate often works some of the strangest circumstances and it certainly played a proper prank with Cincinnati about this new manager. It must be very gratifying to Mathewson to come back to the city where he was originally thrown down.

HE IS INCORRECT.

"What's the matter with the Browns? We have scanned columns of type hopefully when that query has been the introductory sentence. That introduction sort of gives the impression that the question is about to be given. On one occasion we recall reading two columns in one day and the last sentence was the same as the first: What's the matter with the Browns?

"The street car wheels have been humming it lately. The cabaret songs have sounded like parodies on that ultra important question. Street car conductors, barbers, waiters, waitresses, porters, reporters, city editors, policemen, elevator boys, apprentices, everybody has been slinging that question about haphazard of late.

"Finally, we got tired of saying that if we knew we would go get a check for a couple of thousand from Phil Ball. It was decided that perhaps there was a solution. Quite a weighty introduction this, but it's a weighty question."

The Browns thusly come in for Western discussion. The article, doubtless, was written before the St. Louis' sudden spurt. The "St. Loo" writer believes the team needs "roughnecks." But he is all wrong!

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

Well, the battle is over, and the victory has been chalked up against the Royals. The Tabs made a game effort but could not get away with the encounter. Before a crowd of fully six hundred people the two teams battled, and after the fray was over, each fan was willing to admit that the attraction was well worth witnessing.

"Senor" Maiden surprised use all. Few believed that the Third street lad would last the full nine innings and but one or two rooters were of the opinion that he would trounce the Tabs in the fashion that he did. But "Senor" was "there," permitting only three bingles.

If the Tabs had nine men of the "Johnny Dixon" type, the encounter would have been very interesting. Johnny found Maiden no puzzle and was responsible for the double, which sent across the only two tallies the Abstainers made.

Condit, the Royal Giant catching department, was the only weak spot on the Royal team. Condit allowed a few stray balls to pass him and seemed to be a little nervous. He is a mere youngster and was making his debut. Then, too, his fellow players were too eager to give him advice.

Eddie Ford, the first sacker, spent a profitable afternoon. He played faultlessly and hit the ball to advantage. On one occasion, however, Eddie failed to hit the "pill" in the usual manner.

Our pleas for news items have been heard. The T. A. B. press agent has responded to our call and we willingly print what he has to say. The notes that follow are creations of his mind:

"A fishing trip to Sewaren, the object of which is to rid that neighborhood of prowling sharks, is being planned for the near future by Rufus Larew, Bill Mahoney and "Tax" O'Keefe. The required fishing tackle is ready, but they are puzzled about bait. Bill Mahoney suggests corn meal, claiming that he has had success with it in waters. Larew and O'Keefe seem to prefer old-fashioned 'night-walkers.' A large tin can is being prepared to hold one of the finer specimens."

"The hot summer weather has not been sufficient to kill the interest taken in bowling and the alleys are used every night. They will be kept open during the rest of the summer."

"The Denny brothers are not at all backward about criticizing each other's ability on the diamond. It took Jack fully half an hour to tell Tone how he should have played third base, while Tone squandered ten minutes on Jack's fielding."

"Willie Kane, a crack man with a cue, and who in the last game between the East and West End Tabs lost the game for the West Ends by his peculiar pitching, has returned to his native city in the coal mining district. Willie came to Plainfield several months ago and during his stay here became very popular around the clubhouse and will be greatly missed. Willie has not gone for good. He intends to return for the winter and all hope that he will do so."

CITY LEAGUE SESSION RATER WARM ONE

Two Reasons Contribute to "Heated" Gathering In Daily Press Office.

The City League session of last evening was a rather warm one, the fact being due, perhaps, to two reasons. The reasons were the "weather" and the Baptists' postponement. Very little business was transacted at the gathering, the time being given over, in the main, to a discussion of the postponed game between the Hopes and the Baptists.

The Farmers added Davies and McGrath to their list. Davies is from Roselle, and has twirled against Plainfield High School. He is considered a good pitcher and showed up well in all the games he has pitched in this vicinity. McGrath is a second baseman. The discussion relative to the forfeited game waxed warm for some time. The matter of replaying this game was talked of, but the proposition was voted down. The game was forfeited to the Hope Chapel team at one other league gathering, but, for some reason or other, the matter was re-opened last evening. At that time three managers voted in favor of Hope and two voted in favor of the Baptist. The Netherwood manager did not vote on the subject. However, Dan Randolph, who was acting in the capicty of president in the absence of President Walter C. Dobbins, voted in favor of the Baptists. Hence the matter stands just where it did before. Neither side has scored a victory and it is not actually correct to credit the Hope Chapel with the victory in the league standing.

By the way, the league standing, as published in this paper last evening, was correct. The Tabs and Hopes are tied for second place honors. However, if the league moguls decide against the Hopes, the Tabs will be the only residents of second place.

NATIONAL TOURNEY WEEK GREATEST AUTO OUTING

America's greatest automobile outing, National Touring Week, has won a place on the cards of Dame Fortune. No movement furthered in the interests of automobile touring has ever gripped the nation as this project to speed a quarter of million owners of motor cars to discover the charm and joy of the open on August 6.

Motor car owners are overhauling the old car, or investing in a new one, perparatory to setting forth on a little Columbus expedition directed toward the scenic beauty and wonder of America.

Seeing America First has been revamped to chant "See America First by Seeing Your Own State Now." The motorists of this country have been awakened to the new understanding that Scenic America concedes prestige to no scenic beauty in the world. Moreover, they have reached the realization that Scenic America is not a thousand miles away, but in reality lies just over the hill, or at least not far from the horizon that bounds the vista of one's garage.

ANDY MC DONOUGH IN DIOCESAN UNION MEET

Local Athlete Will Compete for St. Rose of Lima Club.

Andy McDonough, the North Plainfield athlete who carries the colors of Notre Dame College, has, according to a news item appearing in a Newark paper, joined the St. Rose of Lima Club, with which club he will run in the coming Diocesan Union games. The addition of Andy to the Roseville club will add greatly to that club's chances of making the most points in the coming event.

Entry blanks for the meet have been issued and the card contains a list of nine events. There are the 100, 220, 440, 880, one mile, 600-yard novice and 1,000-yard novice relay. The feature event on the program is a medley relay, consisting of four-man teams to run respectively, distances of 150, 300, 600 and 900 yards. The winner in each event will receive a twenty-year guaranteed gold watch. Second prize is a gold medal, and third, a silver medal. In the relay events a silver cup will be awarded the winner and silver and bronze medals for first and second teams. Entry blanks will close with J. F. Martin, of 114 West Twenty-fourth street, West New York, August 5.

THROCKMORTON IN JUNIOR SEMI-FINALS

However, Harold Had Best of Opposition In Welsh and Collom.

What with the oppressive heat and the five instead of the usual two out of five instead of the usual two out of three, junior tennis players were a pretty tired lot at the close of the first day's competition for the Middle States championship of the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, yesterday. It was rather fortunate that nearly all the matches ended in straight sets. The contestants who came from many cities, were youngsters less than 20 years of af age, who had won various sectional tournaments in the Middle States and were anxious to qualify for the junior national championship, which is to be held late this month.

Among those to advance to the semi-finals was Harold A. Throckmorton, the 19-year-old New Jersey State champion. Throckmorton has beaten some of the leading players in the country, and on that account was expected to have easy sailing among the juniors. However, in Stanton P. Welsh, of Binghamton and J. A. Collom, of Stamford, Throckmorton met apponents who were worthy of his mettle. Collom forced him to play his best tennis to prevent the match from going into extra sets.

DUNELLEN DEFEATS SOUTH PLAINFIELD

Hoeny Pitches Excellent Game, Allowing But Five Hits.

The Dunellen A. C. continued its winning streak Sunday afternoon, whe it easily defeated the crack South Plainfield team at South Plainfield, by the score of 15 to 4. The Dunellens got the "run" on the South Plainfielders, when they forced four runs in the first inning and from then on they crept steadily ahead. Hoeney, who occupied the mound for the Dunellens, would have obtained a shutout if he had been tendered proper support. He pitched a great game, allowing but five hits and striking out ten men. Dealaman, the Dunellen centrefielder, got five hits out of six times at bat.

Queries--Comment--Answers

Question—When does the City League baseball season close. "Fan." Answer—The league season closes on August 12, but there a number of postponements that have to be played off

Question—How many firemen are there in the city fire department? J. H. Answer—There are twenty-nine firemen, including officers.

Question—When do the city schools open. "Scholar." The schools open on September 12.

Question—When will "The Mother and the Law," David Griffith's latest masterpiece, be placed on exhibition? "Reel Fan." Answer—This monster "movie" is scheduled to open its New York season early in October. We do not know when it will be shown in this city.

Question—Is there any chance of Leonard the Giants getting a new manager? J. H. G. Answer—There is perhaps, a chance of their getting one if President Hempstead deems it a wise plan. But Johnny McGraw's contract has two more years to run. What's the matter with retaining "Muggsy?"

Question—Who is the best pitcher in the City League? G. F. D. Answer—There are three or four exceptionally good pitchers in the league, but Warry McLaughlin and Russ Stewart seem the most formidable at the present time.

Question—Who won the bout between Freddy Welsh and Benny Leonard? "Outsider." Answer—Various sporting authorities differ on that question. As we did not see the fight, we will have to rely on others for our answer. The Sun gave the decision to Leonard, while the American, Journal and Times were in favor of Welsh. The World favored Leonard.

PLAINFIELD CHECKS

Many New York business men have formed the habit of using New York checks. There was a good reason for this when checks on Plainfield banks were subject to an exchange charge in that city, but this is no longer the case.

Checks on The Plainfield Trust Company are now collectible through the New York Clearing House and commuters are beginning to realize that it is to their advantage to keep their accounts with us and receive

WHY BURDEN A FRIEND?

SERVICE
Capital, $100,000

The average individual is no more fitted to handle an estate than he is to conduct a law suit or cure a disease. You hire a lawyer to do the one and a doctor to do the other.

Then why burden a friend, a business associate or a member of your family, with the responsibility of being your executor and trustee? Few men are familiar with the duties of trusteeship or with the investment of trust funds.

Name this responsible trust company instead; it is organized for the purpose; equipped to meet every emergency; to transact any business which may arise in connection with trust service; and it is permanent; unaffected by the hazards of human life.

NEED FUNDS FOR ARIZONA GUARDS

Plainfield and North Plainfield Auxiliary Plans to Provide Necessities.

PLAN FOR CAMPAIGN

Captain Borden In Letter to Chairman George P. Mellick Tells of Conditions at the Border—No Luxuries to Be Purchased.

That there is a remarkable chance for good work on the part of the Volunteers' Auxiliary of Plainfield and North Plainfield in relieving and bettering conditions in border militia camps was indicated by reports submitted at a meeting of the organization in the mayor's office last night, at which Chairman George P. Mellick presided. The fact that some people have formed a misguided impression of the object of the auxiliary was also evidenced and in order to lay aside any false ideas the officers outlined specifically the proposed plan of work which it will follow.

The money donated by Plainfield and North Plainfield citizens, totalling at the present time $589, will be used to purchase and provide absolute necessities for guardsmen at Douglas, Arizona, many of whom are born and bred Plainfielders. There are too many things needed at the present time of an essential character to warrant the expenditure of money for luxuries and not a single cent of the present fund or of that to be collected in the future will go toward the purchase of sweets, playthings, etc., which some misinformed individuals have pictured. The soldiers are in need of certain life requisites and if they don't get them their stay at the international line will be one of misery. Under the most ideal conditions living on the hot sands of the Arizona desert is no picnic and the auxiliary is planning to provide some few necessities that will probably enable the militiamen there now to stick it out until the government recalls them.

To carry on the work the auxiliary must have funds and the $589 now at hand is a mere drop in the bucket. Triple or ten times that amount could be well spent and Secretary William R. Townsend is today sending out appeals to nearly every citizen of North Plainfield and Plainfield and it is to be hoped that the response will be ready and generous. No contribution is too small and none is too big. It is surprising what can be purchased for a small amount by the auxiliary, but the big amounts are needed to buy the big things and investigation has proven that the soldiers are keeping a stiff upper lip concerning what they are in need of, believing that the folks back home will not forget them and disdaining the possibility of being classed as "cry babies." No individual is bemoaning his lot but in his own heart he admits that if certain little necessities were provided by the people back home his life would be a whole lot more comfortable.

Even Captain Borden, of Troop D, has been backward in citing the needs of his boys. He has probably refrained from listing their needs at their earnest solicitation. They want to stick it out as real army men and they don't want friends and relatives to know the real kind of an existence they are leading. His letter to Mr. Mellick, read at last night's meeting, is indicative of the spirit of the leader and his troop of cavalrymen. It follows.

"Your letter of July 21st was received yesterday and has been read with great interest. I take due note of all you have to say. The fund for field expenses has already been very useful. I have bought some pillows and pillow cases and mosquito netting for some men who were sick, in addition to buying some extras in the way of food—milk and butter—for the troop generally. I am glad to report that so far the health of the command is pretty good. There are always present in camp minor ailments which at the time seem pretty hard to those who are laid up as, for instance, this morning to the six or seven who have reported for sick call. Yet I think that in a few days all will be all right again. I am mentioning this because I don't want you to assume from my previous remark that we have any undue illness here.

"With respect to the ladies' committee, about all I can think of for the minute for them to send to us would be a liberal supply of gauze bandages such as those which some of the ladies furnished us with at Sea Girt. They were a little bigger than handkerchiefs and proved very useful in many different ways—as handkerchiefs, napkins, washrags, towels or as bandages for cuts. A supply of towels would also be welcome—inexpensive towels that might readily be discarded after substantial usage; also a few novels. There was a time when I thought of asking the committee if it couldn't consider rubber boots for the troop. We had such a continuous line of rain. But many of the men have by now equipped themselves and I am rather hopeful that the worst of the rains are over.

"There is one substantial item which I feel I ought to bring to your notice. The flies in camp have become unbearable, so much so that we had a meeting yesterday and decided that we would erect a screened-

DR. ROWLAND COX, JR., DIES IN NEW YORK

Former Well-Known Plainfielder Passes Away Following Operation.

Meager details were received in Plainfield this afternoon of the death of Dr. Rowland Cox, Jr., of Paterson, son of Mrs. Rowland H. Cox, of West Seventh street, and a former Plainfield resident. His death occurred this morning in the New York Hospital following an operation.

Dr. Cox has been practicing in Paterson, making his home at 287 Broadway, for several years following his graduation from the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons. He is a brother of Councilman Robert H. Cox, of this city, who is now a corporal in Troop D, First Squadron, New Jersey Cavalry, stationed at Douglas, Ariz. Another brother, Archibald Cox, of Watchung avenue, president of the Plainfield Board of Education, and one son survive him besides his mother.

Details regarding funeral arrangements will be made public later by the bereaved family.

RESERVES DECISION IN LARCENY CASE

Judge De Meza Dismisses One Complaint and Will Decide Another Friday.

After hearing testimony for two hours this morning, City Judge William G. DeMeza dismissed the complaint against John Cramtrilico, on a charge of larceny made by Sotiriors Cocalis, and reserved decision in the complaint against Goriras Katsona until Friday morning. Cocalis charged both men with stealing money and a watch from him last Saturday, but there was no evidence on which to hold Cramtrilico. If the judge decides there is sufficient evidence to warrant it he will hold Katsona for the grand jury.

Cocalis is tenant of the building at 140 West Front street, living on the second floor and renting rooms on the third floor to the two Greeks named in the complaint. Saturday morning he missed a vest that had been hanging in his room, and after the police had been called, Captain Flynn is reported to have found the stolen articles, including a check for $100, $10 in bills and a watch in Katsona's room.

Walter Hetfield, Jr., counsel for the defendant ,tried to show that the affair was a "frame-up," and to substantiate his belief he brought out a reported controversy between the two men. The watch and check could not be used as evidence when the question of whether or not it was larceny was considered and it narrowed down to the ten dollars in bills.

Captain Flynn and Patrolman Welsh testified to finding the articles in Katsona's room and also said that when the watch was found the latter tried to cut his throat. William Newcorn, through witnesses ,attempted to prove in behalf of the complainant that parties speaking for Katsona had tried to make a settlement with Cocalis.

FREEHOLDERS INSPECT AND ACCEPT BRIDGES

Two line bridges were inspected and accepted in this locality yesterday afternoon. The acceptance was made by a joint committee of Freeholders, representing Union and Somerset counties. The bridges accepted were those at Raymond avenue and Grove street.

The Grove street bridge, like that at Raymond avenue, is of concrete construction and will be opened to the public in a few days. At the present time it is closed and a coating of yellow sand is being placed upon it. It is one of the best appearing bridges that span Green brook. Its cost was $2,800 and the work was done by Contractor Arthur Smith, of this city. The Raymond avenue bridge cost $7,384.

HELD FOR JUVENILE COURT.

Charged with being incorrigible by Miss Mabelle Philips, representative of the Charity Organization Society, Irene Hopes, colored, aged 18 years, was held in $500 bail for the juvenile court this morning by City Judge William G. De Meza. Complaints have been numerous about the girl for some time and the Charity Organization Society wants her put in a home.

SLIGHT FIRE.

In response to a telephone call to fire headquarters at 6:20 this morning the chemical auto went to 1001 South avenue to extinguish a fire due to a gas stove. The damage was slight.

LETTERS FROM THE BORDER.

Dr. A. K. Brennan, of Grant avenue, has been in receipt of several letters and cards from his brother, Russell Brennan, who is stationed with the New York militia at Fort McAllen, Tex. Mr. Brennan is a member of the Seventh Regiment, of New York.

MARTINE URGES SENATE ACTION

Makes Passionate Appeal In An Effort to Prevent Execution of Casement.

SHUDDERS AT THOUGHT

Reads Letter from Father Bogan in Which Latter Congratulates Senator for His Interest In Patriot's Case.

United States Senator James E. Martine, who has been urging the American government through Congress to lend its influence in an effort to stay death sentence of Sir Roger Casement, the Irish patriot, made one more passionate appeal at the session of the Senate on Saturday, his stirring words appearing in the Congressional Record being as follows:

"God knows my heart is in this case. According to the latest report it is decreed that this unfortunate man is executed on the third day of August, now so close at hand, and I shudder at the very thought. My efforts have been directed toward stopping this cruel and brutal execution; but every step that I have taken has been met with parliamentary rebuff and technical objection, carrying my efforts over for days and even for weeks, until the fatal hour is near at hand, and I feel we must do something.

"Oh, that the spirit of '76 might prevail today. Oh, Mr. President, think of what our Washington did, think of his deep sympathy for Ireland, and then look upon us—dumb, stoic and idle. On July 20, 1738, George Washington wrote to Sir Edward Newenham as follows: 'If Ireland were 500 miles farther distant from Britain the case with respect to the former would be speedily and materially changed for the better.' Again he wrote, 'Patriots of Ireland! —Champions of Liberty in all lands —be strong in hope. Your case is identical with mine. You are calumniated in your day. I was misrepresented by the loyalists of my day. I triumphed. Had I failed, the scaffold would be my doom. But now my enemies pay me honor.' He had the courage of his thoughts; he had the courage to express his sympathy.

"I am criticized by some. I want to read just a little scrap of a letter I received from a very dear friend of nearly forty years of my life:

"'Permit me to congratulate you on the efforts you are making to save the life of Sir Roger Casement. 'Superior diplomacy may call your plea a blunder, but the heart of humanity is with you. It would indeed be a victory of honest sympathy over polished punctilios indifferent to the throb that makes the whole world kin!'

BOROUGH COUNCIL MEETS ON FRIDAY EVENING

There will be a meeting of the Borough Council on Friday evening. At this meeting there will be several matters taken up for discussion. The matter of furnishing light for the clock on the Somerset street school will be taken up.

This matter was brought up at the meeting of the Board of Education on Monday evening, but was held off for the action of the Council. It is believed that the members of the Council do not favor expending money to provide the necessary light. Definite action on the subject will be taken at the meeting.

MANY MOURNERS ATTEND BERNARD SHERMAN'S FUNERAL

The funeral of Bernard Sherman, whose death occurred on Sunday, was held this morning at 8:15 at his late home on Astor place, and at 8:45 in St. Mary's church. The service was in charge of Father Walter J. Hennessy ,pastor of the church, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends of the deceased. The floral offerings were especially beautiful, many set pieces being included in the number. Among the latter were a pillow with the inscription, "My Son;" a pillow, "Husband;" wreath, "Father;" and a cross, "Brother." Interment took place in St. Mary's cemetery, the following acting as pall-bearers: Charles Marier, John Emery, Samuel Bowden, John Ludgate, Leo Colvin and Bernard Colvin.

FRENCH WIN IN VERDUN CHARGE

Take Strongly Fortified German Works After All Night Fighting.

GAS ATTACK SUCCEEDS

Teutons Gain Some Ground In Vaux Le Capitre—Dutch Steamer Sunk By Submarine—Crew Allowed to Escape.

Paris, August 2.—It was announced by the War Department today that French troops north of the Somme last night took a strongly fortified German work between Hemwood and Manacu Farm, on the right bank of the Meuse River, north of the fortress of Verdun. There was a violent series of engagements throughout the night at Vaux Le Chapitre Wood and Chenois, expanding to the east as far as the south of Damloup. After several unsuccessful attacks, some with gas, the Teutons gained a little ground in Vaux Le Chapitre and at Chenois. During the actions the French took one hundred German prisoners, including three officers. A Russian reconnoitering party dispersed a German detachment in the Champagne region by a bayonet charge.

Sink a Dutch Steamer.

London, August 2.—The Dutch steamer Zeeland, 1203 tons, was sunk by a German submarine in the North Sea, says the South Shield Gazette. The crew was allowed to take to the boats before the vessel was torpedoed.

Teutons Hold at Kovel.

London, August 2.—The great battle for Kovel continues with increasing violence on the west bank of the Stockhod, where the Russian forces that broke across the river and established themselves there are being subejected to terrific counter attacks delivered by von Linsingen with his full strength.

The battle will decide the fate of Kovel and Vladimir Volynsk; that much is certain. But of vastly more importance, according to military critics here, is that if the Russians win they will have driven home the wedge between the Germans and the Austrians.

Russians Repulse Asttacks.

Petrograd, August 2.—The Russian War Office today reported that small Teuton attacks were repulsed at various points on the front outside of rifle and artillery duels. There was nothing else to report.

British Gain More Ground.

London, August 2.—British forces have gained further ground east of Pozieres in the Somme region, the War Office announced, this afternoon. The capture of enemy trenches was reported. A German counter attack at High Wood, delivered during the night, was repulsed, the statement says.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF MRS. P. T. KEELY HELD

Relatives and friends in large numbers attended the funeral service of Mrs. Patrick T. Keely, held in St. Mary's church this morning at 10:15 o'clock. Rev. Father John McGrath, of Stony Hill, conducted the service, while Rev. Father Bernard M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, spoke. Beautiful floral pieces were sent by relatives and intimate friends, among the number being those with the following inscriptions: "Mother," "Aunt" and "Sister."

Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the following acting as pallbearers. William Bell, Dr. A. K. Brennan, Michael Ginocchi, John O'Brien, George Madden and Sylvester Sharkey.

DEUTSCHLAND IS ON WAY TO SEA

Due At Virginia Capes Early This Afternoon.

WARSHIPS IN WAITING

Crew of Appam Celebrated Start of Super-submarine All Last Night—Almost Everybody Wishes Undersea Boat Success.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 2.—While the German super-submarine Deutschland has not yet been sighted here on her way down the bay from Baltimore, reports received here from up the Chesapeake indicate that she may reach the Virginia capes by 2 o'clock this afternoon. One warship, supposed to be an English cruiser, is visible off the capes today.

Over in Newport News, where the general expectation that the boat would put in there has been somewhat dampened in the last few days by the fact that no cargo had been accumulated at that port, marine men were concerned last night with the behavior of the German prize crew on board the Appam. All night long the Germans kept the Appam brilliantly lighted, and lights were not doused until daybreak. Connection between that fact and the expected arrival of the Deutschland was seen.

The Appam is now in the stream where she can be seen for several miles.

The Deutschland, leaving Baltimore at 5:38 yesterday afternoon, made good progress in the night, though not showing any speed calculated to distress the press boats following her. At times she approached sixteen knots, but for the most part was content to pass along with the tug Timmins around ten knots.

Solomon's Island, at the mouth of the Patuxent River, was passed at 2:18 o'clock.

At this rate it was apparent she would be able to reach the capes about dark this evening, but was loafing along today. There would be no reason for her holding back, if her purpose was to run the gauntlet after dark, without stopping at Norfolk or Newport News. Watchers in this harbor this morning were in despair of spotting the submarine unless she came in close, knowing of the green paint that had been used to increase her "high invisibility."

Almost every one here seems to be hoping that the Deutschland will get away. Contrasted with the warships waiting outside, the Deutschland has become the "little submarine," not the "giant" she was called on her arrival from Germany, and the opinion is generally expressed that she will prove invisible to the British gunners.

The lawn was decorated with flags and illuminated with electric lights. About twenty-five guests were present. Those who sang were Miss Gillespie, Miss Mentz, Mrs. Henry Elliott, Miss Stewart and Mrs. Menzel.

WAYS AND MEANS TO CONTROL FLOOD CONDITIONS DISCUSSED BY EAST END CIVIC ASSOCIATION

EMPLOYMENT OF SPECIAL COUNSEL AND ENGINEERING COMMISSION TO ASSIST IN WORKING OUT THE PERPLEXING PROBLEM IS SUGGESTED.

LEGISLATURE WILL ALSO BE APPEALED TO

Councilman C. S. Sminck Reports the Result of An Investigation of the Flooded Area and Its Source in Washington Valley—State Road Supervisor R. A. Meeker, David T. Kenney and Others Address the Meeting.

Ways and means for controlling flood conditions in Plainfield, especially the eastern section, where discussed at some length at a largely attended meeting of the East End Civic Association in the Netherwood Reformed church last night. Resolutions offered by former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, suggesting methods of relief, were adopted.

These resolutions provide for the employment by the City Council of special legal counsel, that the city employ a consulting engineer to advise with A. J. Gavett, the city engineer, that North Plainfield should participate as it will share in the benefits, and that the City Council be requested to take early action on the plans suggested.

George Johnston, of Scotch Plains, told of watching the rise and progress of the last flood and the manner in which it was deflected by certain conditions in Green Brook, and then forced into the head of Cedar Brook. In his opinion the retaining wall at the bridge above Scotch Plains should be removed and the bridge rebuilt with another span; also the low places in the bank of Green Brook below Scotch Plains, where the water turns off, should be filled with embankments.

"If this was done," said Mr. Johnston, "and the course of Green Brook cleaned and deepened, the danger would be removed, so far as Cedar Brook is concerned."

David T. Kenney, of North Plainfield, who, as president of the Chamber of Commerce, has taken a great interest in flood conditions and ways to prevent them, spoke especially of the necessity for the improvement of the course of Green Brook, which in his opinion would remedy the trouble.

Councilman Charles S. Sminck told of his inspection of the entire valley after the flood, showing that it was due to the excessive rainfall in Washington Valley, about five inches having fallen in two hours. He spoke of the legal and financial difficulties in the way of the improvement of Green Brook, and suggested that the city make Cedar Brook a great storm sewer throughout its length, broad and deep enough to carry off any flood that might come.

Perhaps the greatest interest was centered in the remarks of Robert A. Meeker, State supervisor of roads. He told of the complications in the laws of the State which prevent freeholders from appropriating money for the care of the streams or even of roads damaged by floods. He spoke from his wide experience in the matter of road building.

It was suggested by Mr. Simmons that a practical plan would be to ask the City Council to appoint an engineering commission to examine and report on the whole matter and then to secure from the Legislature such relief as may be necessary to carry out the suggestions of such a commission.

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph told of the recent flood at East Front street and Farragut road, the water being backed up by the Hyde dam on the Johnston property and overflowing the lawn of that place into the streets and over the surrounding property. It was revealed by the discussion that the great source of trouble is the condition of Green Brook. He then offered a set of resolutions which was thoroughly discussed and then adopted by a unanimous vote:

Resolved, That repeated experiences with disastrous floods have taught us lessons and indicated remedies which should, for the reputation, relief and benefit of Plainfield, be put to immediate use.

That, In order to ascertain the necessary work to be done to secure such remedies and the cost thereof, to direct the work efficiently and practically, a consulting engineer should be employed by the Common Council to advise with the city engineer.

That, For this relief special legal counsel should also be engaged by the Common Council, if found necessary.

That, By public direction of the Common Council as advised by legal counsel such legislation be properly sought and obtained as may be necessary, equitable and helpful.

That, Inasmuch as the relief and benefits sought by these undertakings are for the advantage of the city at large, the cost thereof should be borne by the entire community.

That, The time has passed for the toleration of ancient mill-rights, so-called, in the City of Plainfield. For the most part they are without value to anyone, and with their appurtenances of dams and raceways, are only a nuisance to the whole community.

That, As the Borough of North Plainfield will share in the benefits of improvements in the valley of Green Brook, it should participate in the enterprise.

That, The Common Council of the City of Plainfield be requested to take early action on the plans herein suggested for the relief and benefit of the inhabitants of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

NO INFANTILE PARALYSIS IN NORTH PLAINFIELD

There have been no cases of infantile paralysis in the borough confines up to the present time and it is hoped that none will break out. Health Inspector Louis Olliff has been on the lookout for violations of the health code and has been backed up in his action by the borough authorities.

Several violators of the health rules have been brought into court and fined. On several occasions those who neglected to keep their premises in order were instructed to do so at once. Compliance with this order followed in every case.

CATS AND DOGS GOING FAST.

Since the Mayor's proclamation Monday directing that all stray dogs and cats in the city are to be killed the police department has been called upon to dispose of between twenty and thirty of the felines and canines. In most cases private individuals have telephoned to headquarters asking that the animals be called for.

BOROUGH ATHLETE.

Andrew McDonough, of Fairview avenue, a student at Notre Dame, has been elected a member of the St. Rose of Lima Club of Newark. This is a Catholic athletic organization and it is expected that Andy, who is a well known track athlete, will compete in coming events for that club.

I. M. RUNYON'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Isaac Manning Runyon, whose death occurred Monday, will be held from the residence of his son, Howard J. Runyon, 937 Rahway road, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment will be in Evergreen cemetery.

BOROUGH TROOPER NOT HOME AS YET

Trooper Johnny Calder, of 24 Stone street, who is reported as being on his way home from Douglas, Ariz., has not arrived as yet and his people do not know just when to expect him.

During his stay at the border, Calder, who is a member of Troop D., has been very sick and has not been able to follow out much of the army routine. He received his honorable discharge owing to the fact that his health has been poor.

SOCIAL AND DANCE.

The next social and dance to be held at Stony Hill will take place Friday evening. Special music and volunteer vaudeville will feature the program. Buses will be run as usual, stops being made at various corners along the route.

LOOKING BACK AT THE WAR ABROAD

Great Changes Have Occurred In Last Twelve Months.

ALLIES ON THE OFFENSIVE

Results Thus Have Been More Spectacular Than Radical, However—Battle of the Champagne and Battle of Verdun Greatest In History of All the World.

The second year of the world war closes with the "battle of Europe," a concerted effort of the allies on three fronts to crush the central powers, which has developed into a titanic struggle before which superlatives, already exhausted, are completely beggared.

France and Great Britain in the west, Russia in the east and Italy in the south are hurling wave after wave of armed men on the Teutonic lines, together with an avalanche of shells and bombs such as the world has not known up to the present time. For the first time the Teutons are, temporarily at least, on the defensive on the thousands of miles of the existing battle fronts.

The change in the situation which the year has brought is striking, although the results so far have been more potential and spectacular than radical. A year ago the Germans, continuing their great drive against the Russians, hurled the Slavs back along the entire eastern front, captured Warsaw, the great fortresses of Kovno, Novo Georgievsk and Brest-Litovsk and established lines far inside Russian territory, which they maintained virtually unbroken until within the last three months. They seized all Poland, a great slice of Russia to the south of that country and expelled the invaders from Galicia and Bukowina. Field Marshals von Hindenburg and von Mackensen were the heroes of these great successes.

On the western front the changes in position during the year were comparatively small, but the twelve months were marked by three events of interest. The battles of Champagne and Verdun and the opening of the great Franco-British offensive on the Somme took place in this period.

Battle of Champagne.

The battle of Champagne opened on Sept. 25, after a week's terrific bombardment of the German lines by the French, British and Belgians. In a week of the bloodiest fighting that had been known up to that time the allies announced that they had taken twenty miles of trenches, six towns and 23,000 prisoners. But there they halted, and the grim deadlock which marked the western front for so many months was resumed. The battle of Champagne marked the removal of Sir John French, the British commander in chief from the beginning of the war up to that time. In December, 1915, it was announced that he had resigned to take a home command, and Sir Douglas Haig was appointed his successor.

In sheer human interest the battle of Verdun probably surpassed all other individual events of the war. On Feb. 21 the German crown prince began his assault of the historic French fortress, known throughout many centuries as the gateway to France. For five months the defenders withstood a storm, the fury of which made the world stand aghast. Foot by foot, almost inch by inch, the Germans forged forward with a reckless disregard of their lives, a tenacity and cool courage which was only equaled by the heroic determination of the French. On June 3 an unofficial estimate of the German losses at Verdun placed the total at the appalling figure of 450,000. The assailants fought their way to within about three and a half miles of the fortress, but for several weeks have reported no further progress, and the force of their attacks appears to have lessened.

The Franco-British offensive on the Somme opened July 1, 1916. It was preceded by a bombardment of unparalleled intensity, featured by the appearance of new and gigantic howitzers. Under this awful hurricane of the big gun fire the German first defenses crumbled. When the British and French troops advanced they reported that they found trenches in which there was not a single survivor—only the dead guarded the silent rifles and machine guns. German first lines were carried over an extent of twenty-five miles and the second positions pierced at certain points, but up to the present the fighting has been indecisive in so far as the forcing of the Germans to withdraw their main lines is concerned.

The first move in the great allied offensive was not made by the Franco-British, however, but by the Russians. On June 4 the troops of Emperor Nicholas opened a tremendous assault on the Austro-German lines on a 300 mile front extending from the Pripet marshes to Roumania.

A Story In Four Words.

A dollar bill that told a whole story of the cost of high or of reckless living passed through the hands of City Treasurer Harry J. Corwin as he was making out the city payroll in Paterson. On its face was written in indelible ink, "The last of $10,000." The dollar went into the pay envelope of a street sweeper.

NEED FUNDS FOR GUARDS

in kitchen and mess hall as being imperatively needed for the health of the troop. The government has expected ultimately to furnish the material, but rather than wait the required number of weeks we felt it best to go right ahead, and the lumber was delivered yesterday. The men can sleep pretty well at night because it is cool then and the flies are dormant, but in the last few days it has seemed almost impossible to eat your food without at times swallowing mouthfuls of flies. The material for the shacks, including other lumber, it will be necessary to buy, will cost in the neighborhood of $300. I am going to try to collect as much of this as possible from the government, but if I am not successful and there is any channel through which the money could be collected in Plainfield rather than from the men down here it would be a great help. I have thought very seriously of doing more than this and enclosing the sleeping tents with wire screening, as has been done by other outfits down here with funds at home, but that would cost $300 or $400 more and I thought we could let things rest a bit and see how they worked out. If you can let me know about the above at your convenience I shall be very much obliged.

"It was very good of you to telegraph me to use the wire if necessary in replying to your letter, but I have hardly thought it necessary to do so.

"Will you please convey to the members of your committee the very great appreciation of the troop for your interest in their welfare. It seems pretty far from home down here, but it is a great help to know that there are people back there giving such visible evidences of their interest in us. Please accept for yourself personally an added measure of appreciation for the leading part you have been playing and believe me, with kind regards."

FUNSTON TO SEND REPORTERS HOME

Many Responsible For False Stories, He Says—Calls Them "Pests."

San Antonio, Texas, Aug. 2.—General Funston last night sent to the War Department at Washington a telegram announcing his intention to rid the various National Guard camps of newspaper correspondents who send out false accounts of conditions in the camps. He referred to such correspondents as "pests," and said he had endured them as long as he could.

An order has been sent to all district commanders along the border covering future action against newspaper men sending out despatches which may be classed as untruthful. In each instance the offender will be tried by a special court of militia officers from his State. If found guilty he will be ordered from camp.

"The great mass of the militiamen are standing the hardships of camp life well," said General Funston, "and have no cause for complaint. It is only 'mollycoddles' and 'sissies' who kick. These are the ones that tell tales to special correspondents."

The General's telegram which was sent to the Adjutant General, said: "I wish to call the attention of the War Department to the carnival of lying being indulged in by many of the correspondents who accompanied the State troops to the border. I have never seen or heard of anything that approached it for sheer maliciousness and shamelessness.

"While there are honorable exceptions, many of these correspondents are men of no judgment or balance, or have so little experience of the world that they seem to have no sense of balance or proportion. Ordinary inconveniences or deprivations that to a man with real soldierly instincts are merely subjects for joke sare magnified by them into the most distressing stories."

ASQUITH HINTS HE MAY RETIRE SOON

British Premier Starts Talk by Remark In Commons.

London, August 2.—Some of the morning newspapers attach great importance to a remark of Premier Asquith in the House of Commons yesterday, when, replying to an inquiry regarding certain routine matters at the autumn session of Parliament, he said:

"I don't know who will be responsible for the conduct of the business at the next session—I have not the faintest idea."

"This," says the Daily Graphic, "may be a preliminary hint that he intends to retire."

The Daily Chronicle holds the same opinion, saying that Colonel Winston Spencer Churchill and Sir Edward Carson will be again in ministerial offices.

ENDRESS WINS OUT AGAINST PUBLIC SERVICE

Damages of $53.75 were awarded in District Court in Elizabeth on Monday to Fred Endress, Inc., in a suit against the Public Service Electric Company. The Public Service company filed a counter-claim, but Judge David decided that their wagon was to blame for the collision.

Funeral services of Mrs. Bridget McCarthy, wife of the late James McCarthy, were held this morning at her late residence, 1322 West Front street, at 8:45, and at St. Mary's church at 9:30, where a solemn high mass was offered for the repose of her soul. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. McCarthy was one of the oldest members of St. Mary's parish and knew it in the early days of struggle for a permanent church home, she and her late husband often driving to New Brunswick to church service until the year 1859 when services were held in what is now used by the T. A. B. Society.

For forty years Mrs. McCarthy has been a member of St. Joseph's Union, an institution founded for the care of the homeless child, located on Staten Island, and has been the official collector for this district. She leaves three daughters and one son, twenty-three living grandchildren and sixteen great-grandchildren.

A TRUCELESS WAR

The Unending Struggle Between the Sea and the Shore.

VICTORIES ON BOTH SIDES.

Sometimes the Ocean Lashes Its Way Through Rocky Cliffs, and Sometimes the Wind and Land Combine to Beat the Billows Back to Defeat.

It is a truceless war that the waters of the world are waging against its lands. John Oliver LaGorce, associate editor of the National Geographic society, has prepared for that institution a study of this striking struggle between the earth and the sea with the shores lines of the world as the far flung theater of war.

After calling attention to the fact that the processes which have transformed the polar regions from dense jungles of tropical growth into lands of perpetual ice and snow, which have brought the tops of mountains to the bottom of the sea and the bottom of the sea to the tops of mountains, are still going on, although the hands upon the face of the clock of geology move so slowly that we cannot perceive their movement, Mr. LaGorce continues:

"Along every coast line on the face of the earth there is perpetual warfare between the land and the sea, with the wind as the shifting line, now throwing its weight into the balance on the one side and now on the other. Here the land is taking the offensive, driving the sea back foot by foot, always with the aid of the wind; there the sea marshals a great drive and eats its way landward slowly and laboriously, but none the less successfully.

"The varying fortunes of this relentless and age long war which neither truce nor treaty will ever bring to an end can be read in the shifting sands of the seashore. At many points along the coast of the northeastern states are found bold cliffs, and the charging sea attacks them with the shot and shell of loose shingle. Some of them, however, are adamant and impregnable in their frontal fortifications and hold out against the sorest siege, but between them have occurred stretches of softer rock which have been literally pounded to dust by the ocean's heavy artillery, thus permitting flank attacks on the hitherto unconquered defenses.

"Along the southeastern coast, however, the rock bound cliff is the exception and the long stretches of glittering sand the rule. Here the sandy beach reaches out farther and farther into the sea, and the water is thus enabled to penetrate farther and farther into the land because the attack of the sea is usually a frontal movement and that of the land frequently a wedge attack. Thus we can account for the long straight shore on the one hand and the split on the other.

"The formation of the beach immediately guarded by the Cape Henry light is not changing so rapidly as is the case only a few miles on either side because of its somewhat protected position, due to the many sand bars or reefs far out from shore which, acting as the first trenches, serve to break the charge of the white horses of Father Neptune as they dash in from the ocean, and, because of this knowledge of defense, it is plain to be seen that a good quarter of a mile of beach has been added by the defender since the old light was erected.

"Rockaway beach, Long Island, grows westward at the rate of nearly a mile every twenty years. At Nag Head, N. C., the land has extended into the sea at the rate of thirty-five feet a year. In 1804 Dr. Nathaniel Bowditch prepared a chart of Salem and Marblehead harbors, giving the soundings over various ledges of rock. Ninety years later similar soundings were taken, and in all cases the water was found to be considerably deeper, once again telling the tale of endless warrings.

"On the shore of Cape Cod, near Chatham, the land is retreating at the rate of a foot a year, and on the southern shore of Marthas Vineyard it is giving up the fight to the enemy at the rate of three feet every twelve months, while on the southern face of Nantucket the retreat has been as much as six feet a year, the records tell us.

"In its incessant warfare against the land the sea literally takes its captured hosts and makes them do battle under its command. The bowlders that are shattered from the face of a cliff are dashed up against it again and again, hammering others loose, the while being worn round and smooth as the projectile of big guns must be. As the process goes on these huge shells are worn down and crumbled until there remains nothing to tell the story of forced fighting against their own stronghold save grains of sand on some distant beach or the soft carpet spread upon the floor of the sea many fathoms deep.

"How rapidly this process goes on is sometimes strikingly shown. A schooner laden with bricks is beached on some bare shore in a storm. These bricks are rolled and tumbled a distance of five miles or so in the course of a year, and by that time attrition has usually completed its work. Authorities say that on the shores of Cape Ann a fragment of stone as big as a nail keg has been worn completely round by its constant turning during the course of but five years."

A propensity to hope and joy is real riches, one to fear and sorrow real poverty.—Hume.

NO MORE MUNITIONS IN NEW YORK BAY

Jersey City Gives Order, But Railroads Will Fight In Court.

To prevent another Black Tom explosion, the Jersey City Commission ordered the railroads yesterday to stop shipping war munitions from the piers of New York Bay. The railroads decided to fight, and are expected to ask for an injunction today.

Simultaneously it became known that Brooklyn is menaced by a similar peril, against which the New York authorities have failed to take any precaution. It was discovered that a flotilla of ships, lighters and barges lay off the Gravesend shore, which are loaded with far greater quantities of high explosives than those which caused the catastrophe of last Sunday.

Following a conference between federal and local authorities, Public Prosecutor Hudspeth, of Jersey City, said:

"We are informed that enough high explosives have been allowed to accumulate in Gravesend Bay to menace the safety of shipping and imperil the lives of the residents of South Brooklyn.

"There is a shortage in ships to transport these war munitions abroad. Consequently explosives are being brought to the Jersey terminals faster than they can be loaded on vessels and sent to sea. As a result transports and barges loaded with the most dangerous kind of explosives have been collecting at the entrance of New York Bay. If one of these boats is expioded, it will doubtless set off all the rest, and a far worse disaster will result than that of Black Tom."

BELIEF THAT CATS HELP TO SPREAD DISEASE GERMS

Although the New Jersey Legislature failed to pass the cat license law last winter, several municipalities have declined to wait for the State to lead the way but have adopted local ordinances levying a feline tax. A wide-awake sentiment, especially in suburban towns, has grown to recognize the cat the worst enemy of wild birds life but in these Jersey communities which have opened war on cats by local laws, human conservation has been the more vtial issue, with health boards generally leading the crusade.

Prominent health authorities have expressed the belief that cats have had a large part in spreading infantile paralysis, now epidemic in New York viennity. Health officials for many years have regarded the cat as one of the most active agents in carrying disease germs into the home. Microbes find a snug loafing place in pussy' fur, and a child, innocently handling its pet, transfers these germs to its hands and thence to its mouth. Parents in localities threatened by the epidemic have been warned against permitting children to caress pet dogs or cats.

One outcome of the present fight against the plague is that many physicians already have declared that they will jjoin the movement to have the cat-tax bill passed by the next Legislature. They have adopted the slogan of the bird conservationist that "The only good cat is a dead cat."

When Turkey Barred Coffee.

It is hard to realize that there was a time when the sultans of Turkey passed the most stringent laws against coffee drinking. The same time these laws were passed Turks were forbidden to smoke tobacco. Yet at the present day the Turk can hardly be thought of without his pipe or cigarette and his cup of coffee.

Sultan Murad IV. made it an offense in 1633, punishable by death, to drink coffee or to smoke. It is related that so determined was he to abolish these "bad indulgences" that he used to walk about Constantinople in disguise to detect any offender against the law.

In those early days coffee was denounced by preachers as one of the four ministers of the devil, the other three being tobacco, opium and wine.

The Chess Automaton.

Baron Kempelen of Hungary began to astonish the civilized world of Europe about 1769 with his chess automaton. This was apparently a figure controlled by mechanical devices and which was able, notwithstanding the fact that apparently no intelligence was concerned in its movements and decisions, generally to beat its human antagonists. The cabinet connected with the automaton appeared entirely too small to contain a hidden operator. And yet it did conceal a man who was an expert chess player. He was a Polish patriot who had lost both of his legs—perhaps in the war over Poland. This man, Woronsky by name, was an expert player. With him hidden in the cabinet and yet really on the spot the rest was easy.

Weeping Willows.

It is recorded that about the year 1748 a resident at Twickenham planted a "weeping willow" tree which had been sent to him from the river Euphrates, western Asia. The tree flourished, and subsequently it became the custom to plant it in cemeteries, owing to the graceful droop of its branches. There is a legend to the effect that this was the tree upon which the exiled Jews hung their harps as they sat down and wept by the waters of Babylon and that it was the weight of their harps that first caused the boughs to droop.

Repeating.

I know a very bright man and one day complimented him to his sister. "I suppose he is smart enough," she said, "but I become very tired hearing him repeat." We all do that. Next time you are talking around the family fireside ask yourself if you are not repeating.—Ed Howe in Independent.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

The engine of my car runs very unevenly. I cannot throttle it down to run slowly. The valves have been dressed down and ground twice in the last two months. The carburetor has been adjusted several times. When the engine is put through a hard pull it fires back through the carburetor. The garage machanic has not been able to adjust the carburetor so as to prevent this. Can you suggest a remedy?

Possibly the ignition is not timed correctly, but the main trouble is probably with the carburetor adjustment, providing you have good compression in all the cylinders. If the compression is poor that would explain your trouble.

The mixture is too lean. Adjust the carburetor for a slightly richer mixture.

I wish to install an electric lighting system on my car. Will you please advise me what is necessary for a lighting system?

For a lighting system that will charge itself you must have a generator driven from the engine in some way, a storage battery, switch and lights as desired. An ammeter is also a good thing to have.

What are the arguments for and against aluminum pistons other than the light weight and increased heat conductivity? Are they likely to wear rapidly? What is the largest bore in which they are suitable?

They reduce the reciprocating parts weight which tends to reduce vibration. They have to have practically twice the clearance of cast iron pistons to allow for difference in expansion and this sometimes is made an objection due to slight slapping at starting and until the engine gets heated. This slap does not last over a few minutes at most. Their wearing qualities are said to be equal to any other piston. They are suitable for any size of motor car engine, as has been proved conclusively.

My engine is worn. Will my patent piston rings, not being fastened in the grooves, lap in to conform to the worn shape of the cylinders or will they shift in the grooves and retain their perfect circular shape?

If your cylinders are not worn over 0.005 inch oversize or out of round the rings should conform very readily and be effective without pinning.

Would the four spark plugs of one manufacturer give better results than four different kinds on a four cylinder motor?

Not necessarily. Four different spark plugs properly adjusted and of standard manufacture will answer the purpose as well as four of the same make.

Please explain how to time a six cylinder motor. The high tension magneto was taken off some time ago and the motor has been turned over. How must I set the motor and magneto so that they will fire correctly?

To time a six cylinder motor remove the distributer cover so that you can see the carbon brush of the high tension distributing arm. Set the piston in No. 1 cylinder until it is exactly at the top of the compression stroke. Turn the armature of the magneto until the distributer brush touches the segment corresponding to No. 1 terminal on the magneto. Then move the armature more gently while examining the low tension end until it is seen that the break is just about to take place. If you then attach the magneto while in this condition you will note that the break will occur and the spark take place just as the piston is coming over dead center, which is correct for full retard. With a fixed spark magneto the setting would have to be made with a piston about one-half inch or even more below the dead center and on the rising side. You will probably find it advisable to get an approximate setting to run the engine and then try advancing setting one tooth. If the motor lacks power it means the magneto is too much retarded. To make quite sure you have the distributer set correctly follow the firing order of the cylinder so as to check this and then see that the high tension wires are in proper sequence on the cylinder.

What would be the necessary changes to make in a modern gasoline engine to burn kerosene instead of gasoline and what effect would the kerosene have on the motor compared to gasoline? Would there be any difference in power, fuel consumption and motor cleanliness?

A certain quantity of kerosene can be mixed with good gasoline and used in an ordinary carburetor, but to burn pure kerosene a special vaporizer is necessary. Usually an engine running on kerosene carbons up more rapidly. There should be practically no difference in power, fuel consumption is a little heavier and motor cleanliness is naturally inferior.

Will you please tell me of what benefit a muffler cut-out is to a motor?

No direct benefit or harm results to the motor from the installation of a muffler cut-out. Many motorists like to listen to the sound of the exhaust, but it is unfortunately true that the use of the cut-out is often abused.

Can you give me directions for removing scale and other deposits from the radiator of my car?

Scale can be removed by using a saturated solution of common washing soda and water. Thoroughly flush the radiator out with this solution, then clean with fresh, pure water. A mixture of ordinary washing soda in which four ounces is used to the gallon of water will do the work properly.

Will you kindly furnish me with the correct definitions of the different systems of ignition, single, dual, double, two point and duplex?

Dual ignition is where there are two sources of current and one set of plugs, the systems being independent in every respect until the distributer mechanism is reached. In this point, including the distributer, high tension leads and spark plugs, the one set does for both systems.

Double ignition employs two current sources and two entirely independent systems, either one of which may be used independently of the other. Both may be used at the same time, but perfect synchronism will not be attained unless there is some special arrangement for attaining it. The double system means that there are two absolutely independent ignition systems.

Two point ignition is where two sparks occur in the cylinder at the same time. Generally this is done by the use of a double distributer, but recently there have been series spark plugs put on the market by means of which a single spark ignition is made into a two point system by simply connecting the plugs in series.

The duplex system is where a coil is used in a battery circuit and connected to the primary of the magneto. This gives a hot spark at low rotative speeds and is only intended as a booster current for starting. After the motor is running at normal speeds the circuit is the same as the single magneto system, the duplex coil not being in use.

My car slips out of high gear about every five miles if the street is rough, while on country roads it is much worse. I have tightened the top and lower springs that hold the pinion without results. I have examined the gears and found them as good as new. The connections on the gear box are all right, and it goes in high into full mesh, but seems to work out. What is the matter?

It is very likely that the two plungers that drop into grooves in the gear shifter shaft to retain it in any of its four positions are not operating properly. It may be that these plungers have frozen in their guides or that their points have been badly worn, but it is more probable that when the shift to high is made the second speed pinion bottoms in the internal clutch of the direct drive gear before the proper lock groove on the shifter shaft has come squarely under the plunger. If this is the case the rear rod of the shifter may be disconnected and the shaft screwed into the shifter fork until there is left one-sixteenth inch for travel of this mechanism after the lock plunger has dropped into the clutch, but before the second speed pinion bottoms as above described.

If any of the above possibilities should exist it is very possible that in going over uneven roads the driving pressure on the gears might stop momentarily at the sudden slackening of the motor speed just when a sufficient jolt to throw the gears out of mesh was received.

I have a car which misses at low speed, whether running idle or pulling. The miss is approximately one shot out of four. Sometimes two miss together, and there is nothing regular about it. When the car is running twenty miles per hour and faster it runs perfectly and for all speeds higher. It has been acting so for nearly a year. It never refuses to go and starts very easily. Can you tell me how to remedy this?

It would seem that the ignition system was deranged in some way as to cause a momentary interruption in firing at scattered intervals, and it is advised that this be overhauled. Eliminate spark plug considerations by trying a new set of plugs. Then borrow a new timer from another car of your make and try this. The same process may be used with each of the ignition units. Sometimes a loose part in a switch will cause uneven firing, due to momentary interruption of the current. Faulty insulation or terminal connections give the same indications. See if all of the valves close properly. If one should stick or hang up a few thousandths of an inch it would cause the trouble.

Would it be feasible to mix kerosene with gasoline to use in a gasoline motorcar, providing the fuel is heated and a small jet of steam was let into the intake manifold? If so, about what proportion of gasoline and kerosene?

It is better not to use a mixed fuel, but rather one of lower gravity which would give the corresponding fuel. The jet of steam would hardly produce the desired results in automobile practice.

THIRTY TRAINS TO MOVE.

Twenty-seven Royal Wives of China Travel Like a Circus.

It takes just as much preparation and as many cars to move the royal family of China from point to point as it does to keep an American circus on the move for a month. Thirty trains were required to move the twenty-seven wives of the late president of China, Yuan Shih Kai, and their families and possessions from Peking to their southern home.

The families embrace Yuan Shih Kai's thirty-one children, of whom sixteen are sons and fifteen daughters. The vast movement has been in preparation ever since the death of Yuan Shih Kai on June 6.

"NOTHING TO SELL BUT SERVICE," THE SLOGAN OF THE WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH COMPANY

"The spirit of progressiveness manifested by 'Big Business' of late years seems to have found its leadership in the telegraph companies," states J. B. Mendelson, commercial agent, First district, Western Union Telegraph Company.

"Nothing to sell but service" is the slogan of the Western Union company, as more than two thousand business men in Troy, who have recently been visited by efficiency and sales engineers representing this company, can testify.

As a matter of fact, "service" is all that the public is concerned with, and that at least one telegraph company is convinced of this is shown by the fact that all their telegrams now show the "filing" time as well as the "receiving" time, so the public can see at a glance just how long a telegram has been in transit. That this innovation is a progressive move and of immense help to the average business man goes without saying, yet for telegraphic reasons the companies demurred for some time against anything looking towards this end until President Newcomb Carlton, of the Western Union, voluntarily put this plan into effect because, he declared, his company desired to take the public into its confidence, and no better method of advertising the service could possibly be obtained.

This was the first revolutionary change in policies over old methods, and since then they have been coming thick and fast. Cheaper rates, faster transmission and the maximum of accuracy have become a reality.

The reasonable cost of the night and day letter has made this service a keen competitor of Uncle Sam's mails, especially where time is a factor and the expeditious movement of correspondence is necessary. That the Western Union company realized the lucrative field for these services is evidenced by the special agents at present sojourning in Troy. These men are advance agents of meetings being held from coast to coast for the purpose of training telegraph employes so that they may become efficient sellers of telegraph service and be able to enlighten the public whenever necessary as to the true value of the telegram in commercial dealings of every character.

The extensive use of the wire is now apparent on every side. Important contracts are closed through telegraphic day and night letters because of the ample number of words allowed. The telegraph is being used as an auxiliary salesman, thousands of business men throughout the United States are daily moving accumulated stock in this manner, as well as using the telegraph as a buying medium.

A uniform service of five minutes at each relay point for fast telegrams is gradually being brought about by the Western Union, and this company has an able staff of local and traveling representatives constantly supervising accuracy in this transmission of telegrams.

Many business men favor the telegraph as against the telephone, because the latter is peremptory in character, and therefore does not afford a record in office or allow the correspondent time to "digest" or "think over" a proposition.

No other nation enjoys such facilities for conducting correspondence by telegraph, and this has been a vital factor in the jumping of American business methods into world leadership. The Western Union company is now operating about 27,000 offices and the Postal Telegraph Company about 5,000, at which over 50,000 persons find annual employment.

The miles of poles utilized by both companies reaches up to a quarter of a million, and if run around the earth would circle the globe ten times.

Approximately one hundred million telegrams are handled annually by the Western Union and twenty-five million by the Postal company, each message going through the hands of at least four persons. Naturally, with this large number of operators, errors will occasionally creep in because of poor copy, climatic conditions, etc., and the wonder is that these mistakes are so few in number when the complicated nature of the business is realized.

The support, co-operation and confidence of the public is constantly solicited by the telegraph companies. Suggestions looking toward improvement in the service are gladly accepted and appreciated.

With all this improvement in telegraphic conditions, there is no let up in the daily striving for "the height of efficiency" by men of inventive brains and administrative skill who hae made the telegraph their life study.

TAKE PRECAUTIONS AGAINST ILLNESS

Millions of Flies Bother Soldiers at the International Border.

(HARRY H. KROH.)
(Daily Press Correspondent.)

Douglas, Ariz., July 27.—Indications of the possibility of a serious outbreak of dysentery in the New Jersey National Guard encampment led to the institution of drastic steps with a view to checking the spread of the disease among the 4,200 men who are down here on border duty. Noting a rapid rise in the number of cases in camp, the medical department took the matter up with brigade headquarters. General Hine, through an order made public today, turned the entire situation over to Major Joseph M. Hector, the chief surgeon of the camp, with instructions to handle it as expeditiously and thoroughly as possible without the red tape of reference to brigade headquarters.

Stringent regulations prohibiting the sale of soft drinks, ice cream, melons and other fresh fruits and green vegetables through the various post exchanges and sales departments were established and large details of men were dispatched to various parts of the encampment for the purpose of digging deep holes in which to bury refuse. Tin cans, empty bottles and such articles were collected throughout the camp and buried.

Primarily the fight is being directed against the millions of flies that infest the encampment and which seem constantly to increase despite the heroic work at elimination which is being carried on with every known weapon of aggression against the winged pests. Huge fly traps are found throughout the camp and the flies are caught in them by thousands. As fast as they are killed by incineration and reset the traps again swarm with the flies. So serious has the fly nuisance become that unless the trouble can be overcome at the source within a few days it may prove necessary to move the encampment. It is feared that a change of location in the corrals would not prove effective at this time. The stock yards of the railroad, which lie to the south of the camp, and which are nearly always in a filthy condition, are largely responsible for the trouble, and it is just possible that the army officials will demand the abolition of the yards if they are not kept in a clean manner.

The somewhat sudden increase in dysentery, although leading to action toward curbing its spread, is not considered alarming at this time and there seems little reason to fear a real epidemic of the disease unless conditions grow steadily worse instead of better. While it is almost certain that the flies are responsible for the increase, it is not positive that a continuity of the pest will necessarily mean a steady increase in the sick-roll.

Word that Congress is taking action to allow extra pay to the officers and men who are here on border duty was received today in camp with acclaim. The proposal provides a 20 per cent additional compensation for enlisted men and 10 per cent increase for officers.

The bill pending at Washington giving the men the right of franchise from their posts in the field is also being received approvingly. There was a big fight brewing among the New Jersey organizations for recognition of their franchise rights while on duty here. Steps which were taken back home, as some of them believe, with a view to cutting off this privilege, were made the subject of protest, and action was pending looking toward a general clamor for voting rights.

Under an order issued from brigade headquarters the mess sergeants are to hold school every day where they are to be given instruction in the handling of the food question from every angle. The job of the mess sergeant is not the easiest in the field. He must be a good buyer, a conservative financier, an organizer, and must have a knowledge of proper dieting. The schools, which are to be held in regiments, will be under the direction of regular army instructors detailed here for the instruction work and supervision of the mess work. The school is divided into a number of departments, which can best be classified as follows:

Organization of kitchen forces; discipline of kitchen force; duties of the various details composing the kitchen force; daily routine of the kitchen force; composition of meals; purchasing at the commissary; weights and amounts of articles purchased; cost of articles purchased; ration allowances, how figured; preparation of a bill of fare for one week, ascertaining amounts of various articles needed and the cost of the same; avoiding waste; avoiding the stealing of rations; methods of issuing to avoid waste; cleaning of utensils and the policing of the kitchens.

The cooks when not on duty are to assemble once each day also for instruction from experts on cookery in the camp, and with especial reference to the preparation of standard dishes in the service.

This work is a part of the general plan of instruction and application of education which has been established by the regular army. It has been done with a view to systematizing the preparation of meals for the troops, regulating their composition to give the best results and the greatest amount of nutrition and keeping generally good the health of the various commands to whatever extent is possible through the safeguarding of the food.

The mess sergeants who are detailed as instructors to the guards men are personally directed to oversee the preparation of all food and to assist the men in securing the proper education through explanation and demonstration.

In order to assist Colonel Henry D. Styer, U. S. A. inspector instructor, to make up his reports on the Sea Girt mobilization General Hine has directed the commanding officers of the various organizations to forward as soon as possible information as to the number of men enrolled prior to the opening of the recruiting station on June 19 and also the number of recruits who were taken in after the stations were opened and who were later rejected by the examining surgeons.

Captain Enochs, the senior mustering officer for the Arizona district, has been named, in the absence of the regular organization recruiting officers, to take care of the applications for re-enlistment which are coming in as the terms of the men on duty here expire. He is to receive all re-enlistments and they are all to be considered on their merits by him.

The question of re-enlistment is an interesting one. It was generally believed that the signing of the dual oath automatically amounted to a re-enlistment for the period of three years, but it is found that it only covers the remainder of the term of enlistment agreed to when he signed the papers first. At the end of his enlistment the War Department must pay his transportation, food and regular pay until he is returned to the station at which he recruited. He automatically becomes a member of the reserve force and can be called upon for duty on a subsequent call for troops any time within three years, after which he is entirely discharged.

In spite of the grumbling that was heard here concerning the failure of the War Department to return the troops to their homes if there was no need of them here, it is not believed that many of the boys whose terms are about to expire will return home. Most of them, it is said, intend re-enlisting right away so that they will not be criticized or accused of having a "yellow streak." Each man would, of course, be honorably discharged, and there could be no stigma on his record if he chose to return home, but few, if any, will take advantage of the release.

There is going to be a merry round of entertainment here for the officers of the New Jersey National Guard. The Country Club today requested the names of all commissioned officers in the New Jersey camp and already invitations have been received to numerous functions which are being held, many of them in honor of the New Jerseymen.

An order of instruction, pointing out the proper way for an application for a discharge or a furlough to be made out, was issued today from brigade headquarters. It directs that the application should be made in due form to the organization and company commanders, who will then endorse it with their approval or disapproval.

BOROUGH FIREMEN USE NEW AUTOMOBILE ENGINE

The borough firemen were called out yesterday afternoon to extinguish a blaze in Smalley's dump. The fire did not amount to much and was extinguished with little difficulty. No damage was done.

This small fire afforded the North Plainfield "fire eaters" their first chance to make use of their new engine. This engine, which was designed and manufactured by the Mack Company, has been at the fire house a little over a week and is a model of workmanship. It has been carefully demonstrated by Walter Zimmer, of Jersey City, who returned to his home a few days ago. The truck made the run to the dump in quick time and was in charge of Fireman Al Fritts.

INTERNATIONAL MOTOR COMPANY.

"• • • Throughout the 20 years we have used your service we have found same economical and very reliable."

ARMSTRONG CORK CO.

Our ability to serve is based upon —A great inter-connected system of 22 generating stations and 61 sub-stations having a total capacity of more than 227,800 H. P.

—And a large corps of highly trained engineers, including commercial power engineers, whose services in a consulting capacity are at your command.

Our manner of serving is best described by our customers themselves in the accompanying extracts from their letters.

The "very satisfactory service" rendered

—And the "pleasant business relations" mentioned

—Are two of the reasons why more than 10,000 power users are buying Public Service power.

A large number of these customers have shut down their own power plants and are buying our power

—Because Public Service Power users have an abundant supply of power, day or night, by simply turning a switch

—Because the supply of power can easily and economically be increased

—Because of economical overtime operation

—Because Public Service power supply increases profits by eliminating most of the power losses, which vary from 27 per cent. to 75 per cent. of all the power used in belt-driven factories

—Because of further increased profits due to the fact that electric motors maintain the speed of machines at normal and thus increase the factory output from 10 per cent. to 19 per cent.

—Because 50 per cent. to 80 per cent. of the investment in a private power plant is non-productive except at brief intervals, as numerous tests prove that the average load of a plant is seldom above 50 per cent. and is frequently less than 20 per cent. of the total capacity of the plant.

During the first six months of this year we signed contracts for 40,000 horse power.

Why not let our engineers make careful tests in your factory?

Perhaps you can save money by using Public Service power.

PUBLIC SERVICE

PLAINFIELD · SOMERVILLE ELIZABETH

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

MANUFACTURERS' INTEREST IN A RAILROAD STRIKE.

The manufacturers, at least, are awakening to the seriousness of the impending railroad strike. In the following extract from an article by P. N. Beringer in American Industries the ordinary citizen is given an idea of what such an incident would mean to the "backbone of the country":

"Any strike is an economic loss. No point gained by either side can ever compensate those who have suffered thereby. A general railroad strike would be an economic disaster. If it should come about it will be because of the indifference of the business man and manufacturing world, to their own welfare and to that of the country in general.

"The railroads have been asked to grant a wage preferment of one hundred million dollars. This sudden expansion of the pay-roll cannot be met from thin air. It must be provided for by additional taxes to be levied on the traveling or freight-shipping public and, as the Interstate Commerce Commission fixes the rates the roads may charge, this question properly comes within its jurisdiction as arbitrators. It is but logical that, being the arbitrary judges of rates, they should also be the arbitrary judges of what a railroad may pay out in wage because that must affect the rate and must be taken into consideration.

"No one in the whole country is so vitally interested as the manufacturer, as any raise in rates operates as an additional cost of manufacture. The manufacture of merchandise is so closely related to the delivery of it to the consuming public that the interests of the common carrier and manufacturer cannot be divided.

"Therefore, the impending strike is of paramount importance to every industry in the country. There is sure to be a great struggle, and if the railroad unions do not climb down from their position of refusing to arbitrate, it is going to be a most disastrous blow to reviving industries only recently saved from practical annihilation by a fortuitous war in Europe."

AND MANY FOLLOWED HIM.

Exercises were held today in Paris in honor of the memory of Jules Andre Peugeot, Corporal of the Sixth Company of the Forty-fourth Regiment of Infantry, who was the first French victim of the present war. Two years ago today, the day before the formal declaration of war, Peugeot was killed by a German patrol. At the time he was doing sentry duty on the road to Faverois, when an advancing German patrol was sighted. He was amazed to see German troops twelve miles inside French territory, and went out to arrest the German officer. He was twice wounded, but before he was killed shot and fatally wounded the lieutenant in command of the German troops.

Corporal Peugeot was a school teacher by profession, but was incorporated into the army on Nov. 26, 1913, and made a corporal the following April. He had passed examinations to become an officer in the reserves. A national subscription has been started in France to raise funds for the erection of a handsome monument on the spot where he was slain, near the village of Joncharey in the Department of Haut Rhin, but there will be not even a stone to mark the graves of hundreds of thousands of others who went after him.

* * * * * *

New Jersey is showing the proper spirit in conducting an immediate investigation of the Black Tom explosions, and in the determination of officials to punish the men "higher up" if they are found responsible. If it is proven that the National Storage Company, the Lehigh Valley Railroad or the New Jersey Central Railroad violated the law by storing explosives for more than twenty-four hours, then the men in authority are to blame, and not trainmen or other workers who merely carried out orders. At any rate the probe has gone far enough to insure the State against a repetition of the tragedy, although it should not end here.

Hughes made a strong bid for the Western vote when he declared in favor of a suffrage amendment yesterday, and it is likely that his expression will bear fruit. He is far ahead of his platform, and of course, cannot be expected to bring about equal suffrage if elected, but he has at least become a convert to the cause and this is a great victory for the women.

COLONEL COLGATE WILL NOT RETIRE

F. J. Bock Declares Essex Co. Man Is Strongest Gubernatorial Candidate.

Newark, N. J., August 2.—The statement that appeared in the New York Sun insinuating that Colonel Austen Colgate would retire from the campaign for the Gubernatorial nomination, was given official cognizance today by former Postmaster Frank J. Bock, campaign manager for the Essex Senator. Mr. Bock puts the quietus once and for all upon such suggestions, and declares that the Colonel will be nominated because he is the strongest candidate.

"I have refrained from commenting upon inuendos that Colonel Colgate was not in the race to stay," said Mr. Bock in a statement, "because I knew by whom they were inspired and the psychological effect it was desired to create. Since the withdrawal of former Governor Edward C. Stokes as a Senatorial candidate, however, the story has been persistently and maliciously circulated that the Colonel would step aside as part of the plan under which Mr. Stokes retired.

"To permit the continued publication of the insinuation would be a gross injustice to the Colonel and would be without any basis, in fact. I therefore take opportunity to announce authoritatively and without qualification, that Colonel Colgate has no intention of relinquishing the advantage he has gained already, and that the fight is but starting. The recent State-wide conference in this city has thrown a genuine scare into the camps of his rivals, which explains the vaporings about his withdrawal. It demonstrated that the sober second thought of Republicans throughout the State who are not interested in the personal fortunes of any one man, but who are sincerely desirous of seeing a winner nominated, is that Colonel Colgate is the man who will poll the most votes in November.

"His standing in the business community; his legislative record; his reputation for honesty and fair dealing, insure the support of the great independent vote, a factor that cannot be ignored. His strength in Hudson, where his great business interests are located, makes him thousands of votes stronger than any other Republican. He has no factional fight in his home county of Essex, which is united behind him. It is no wonder that the Democrats are praying for the nomination of some one else."

INCREASING INTEREST AT EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS

Increasing attendance and interest marks the evangelistic meetings being held in a tent on Watchung avenue, between Front and Pearl streets, under the auspices of the Christian and Missionary Alliance. These meetings are held every night, except Monday, and there will be preaching service Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

Among those registered at the New Monmouth, Spring Lake, for the month of August, are the following Plainfielders: Mrs. Florence B. Deknatlet, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Wilcox and Miss Grace Wilcox.

On the Spur of the Moment

Resort Conversation.

I love the oogly-googly talk
A feller hears this time of year,
Wherever he may chance to walk
And there are sweethearts hovering near.
The soft-boiled stuff appeals to me;
Spring conversation, as it were,
When some young swain believes that he Must murmur nothings sweet to her.

A full-grown boob, who's six feet tall,
Will blubber baby-talk that you
And I can't understand, at all;
The language of the bill and coo,
We have to listen, though, while he
Sings that daft song for eons sung,
And throw no bricks at him, for we
Were batty, too, when we were young.

Uncle Abner

Rev. Hudnutt has struck a snap. He has dug up a barrel of old war sermons he preached in 1861-65 and is using them on the present generation.

In spite of the war and lack of importations, Miss Amy Stubbs, our ladylike milliner, is making "genuine Paris hats" in the back room of here emporium as usual.

Amos Butts, our gentlemanly undertaker, also livery, feed and sales stables, is about disgusted with business conditions. The last doctor we had moved out'n town eight months ago and nobody has died since.

Lem Pringle has put stools along in front of his lunch counter. Guess he is afraid folks won't stand for the food.

The mewl that will kick you when your back is turned ain't much on fair play, but he is a gentleman compared to the man who will talk about you under similar circumstances.

There may be several different forms of embarrassment, but there ain't one that can compare with bein' sent into a store to buy a corset for your wife.

Hank Purdy had his whiskers cut off at a sawmill today, while trying to count the teeth in the saw.

The pastor has had the benches in the church whitewashed in order that the public may look at the back of a man's pants and tell whether or not he attended church.

When a feller wears a diamond solitaire ring on his necktie it is a purty sure sign that he has been disappointed in love and doesn't care who knows it.

Deliver us from the friends who come to tell us disagreeable things because they think it is theirduty. They can spread more gloom in five seconds than the sciatic rheumatism and the yaller janders combined.

FRIENDS OF CHILD LABOR BILL INCENSED OVER ACTION

Friends of the Child Labor Bill in Congress are highly incensed by the action of Senator Borah in attaching the Immigration Bill as a rider to the Keating-Owen bill. This, they believe, will seriously jeopardize the passage of the Child Labor Bill as the President will probably veto it in that form. The Immigration Bill has no possible relation to the Child Labor Bill and this move by the Republicans looks to the friends of the children like a mere political trick for the purpose of putting the President in a hole.

At the office of the National Child Labor Committee today the general secretary, Owen R. Lovejoy, said: "Senator Borah has always been a good friend of child labor reform and we hope to induce him to save himself and his party the embarrassment of being responsible for the defeat of the measure. The Democrats had wisely decided to steamroller the half-dozen reactionaries who have been standing in the way and until this Immigration rider was loaded on we were sure of victory. We have just sent Senator Borah the following telegram:

"'We earnestly urge you to withdraw immigration rider from our bill. Many Republicans here believe your party now loses all advantage it has gained by forcing vote at this session. American children have already borne every conceivable burden. Why load the immigrants on to their backs?'"

ONE MAN IN FAVOR OF COMPULSORY SERVICE FOR "STAY AT HOMES"

- Proctor's Theatre -

At Proctors' Today.

From a story by Caroline Lockhart, Director Oscar C. Apfel has constructed a pleasing and effective vehicle for the abilities of William Farnum, entitled "The Man From Bitter Roots," which is the headline photoplay attraction at Proctor's today. Mr. Farnum is at his best in a role into which pathos, coupled with rugged strength, is thrown, and that is the sort of part he has in this production. The locale is mainly Western—a mining camp—and Mr. Farnum is occupied with seeing that the step-sister of his former partner gets her rights. The villain, who wants the girl for a sinister purpose, hires a forger to alter the diary left by her step-brother, so as to make it appear that he was killed by Burt (Mr. Farnum) in a fit of insanity. In reality, the step-brother was himself insane, and committed suicide in Burt's presence. This false accusation of insanity pursues Burt until the very end, when a woman whom he defended from insults at the hands of a rough character gets the forger to tell her the truth. After Burt checkmates the villain in his attempt to burn the electric plant at the mine, the way is paved for a pleasing and happy ending. Patrons attending Proctor's today will also have the opportunity of witnessing motion pictures of the big explosion at Black Tom Island early Sunday morning, and also get a good idea of the damage wrought. Crane Wilbur will also appear today in "The King O' Make Believe," and several comedy features will afford variety.

Tomorrow Thomas H. Ince will offer Frank Keenan in "The Phantome," which is acknowledged to be the best crook drama ever produced. Patrons are requested to note the fact that the famous Keystone comedies are presented at Proctor's every Tuesday and Thursday, and as many of the large stores have designated Thursdays as summer holidays, the people of this vicinity will be provided with a splendid amusement by attending Proctor's on these afternoons. In addition to other features tomorrow the latest Mutual Weekly will also be shown.

The feature photoplay on Friday will be a Selig production entitled "Into the Primitive," featuring Kathlyn Williams, which was booked by the management at the urgent request of many patrons.

The attraction on Friday will include a two reel drama, "The Taming of Wild Bill," featuring Jack Richardson and Nita Davis.

LITERARY

Sins of the Father Descend to the Hen.

Farm and Fireside reports an interesting discovery to poultrymen. It says:

"Just why one hen is a loafer and another as like her as two peas in a pod is a good layer has always been a poser to poultrymen.

"Raymond Pearl has spent nine years delving into this mystery. Look the world over and no one can be found who has investigated this matter quite so carefully in a scientific way as he has done at the Maine Experiment Station. He now is fully convinced that it is possible for a poultry keeper to control the egg-production quality in his hens by breeding, and thus insure heavy egg production in a large proportion of the pullets hatched. Pearl's work has not been mere scientific theory. He has bred, hatched, raised, and tested thousands of birds with which to demonstrate his opinions.

"His discovery, reduced to its lowest terms, is that the quality of heavy egg production descends to the pullet from her father, and that, in order to insure a large proportion of the pullets hatched being heavy layers, their father must be the son of a heavy layer."

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Hansel and Grethel Followed Some Pebbles.

"Why do you lag behind, Hansel?"

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

FOR a bedtime story daddy told Jack and Evelyn about Hansel and Grethel, whose parents left them in a big woods, because they were poor and had nothing to eat: "All that afternoon the children sat by the fire alone, and when supper time came they ate the last piece of bread which their father had left for them. They still thought their parents would come back and take them home. They imagined they heard the blows of an ax. But really 'twas a bough which their father had fixed so that it blew back and forth on other boughs and sounded like an ax. Still, nobody came to take them home.

"When it was quite dark Grethel began to cry. But Hansel said, 'Wait till the moon rises.'

"Soon as the moon arose Hansel took her by the hand, and there lay the white pebbles along the ground, the pebbles he had dropped on their way into the woods. They glistened in the moonlight like new pieces of money and marked the way out of the woods.

"Toward morning the children reached the woodchopper's home. In his heart he was glad to see them again, for he was grieved to leave them in the woods. His wife seemed to be glad, but in her heart she was angry.

"Now, the woodchopper was very poor. Soon it happened that there was no bread in the house. Hansel and Grethel heard their mother say to their father: 'The children found their way back once, and I took it in good part. Now, there is only half a loaf of bread in the house, and tomorrow you must take them so deep into the woods that they cannot find their way back, for we shall all starve without food.'

"It grieved the father to do as his selfish wife said. He thought it would be better to share their last morsel with the children. But he had done as she said once, and he now had no courage to refuse her.

"The children had been awake and heard what their mother said. Hansel wanted to go out in the yard and pick up more pebbles. But when he got to the door he found his mother had locked it. Still, when Grethel cried he comforted her with: 'Sleep in peace, dear sister. God is very kind and will help us.'

"Early the next morning they started off for the deep woods. Each child had a tiny piece of bread. On the way Hansel crumbled his in his pocket and often stopped to throw a crumb on the ground.

"'Why do you lag behind, Hansel?' asked the woodchopper. 'Hurry up!'

"'I am looking for my little dove that is sitting on the roof and wants to say goodby to me,' said Hansel.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"
When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.
In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

CONFERENCES FOR JERSEY GUARDSMEN

Will Settle Issues That Arise Among Soldiers at Douglas Camp.

(HARRY H. KROH.)
(Daily Press Correspondent.)

Douglas, Ariz., July 29.—At a conference tonight of the commanding officers of the various organizations comprising the New Jersey encampment here, who were called by Brigadier General Edwin W. Hine, important matters affecting the work and the administration of the encampment were taken up and discussed at length. The conference, which took place in the office of Major Alexander P. Grey, Jr., the adjutant general of the New Jersey forces in the field, lasted for almost two hours and was terminated after a long discussion of the question of the discharge of soldiers having dependents at home. The meetings are to take place every week hereafter and all subjects of individual interest to the various commanders will be generally threshed out in consultation. General Hine, explaining the purpose of the meeting tonight, said that it was called with a view to establishing a uniformity of operation in the various organizations.

Among those who attended tonight's meeting were Major Harold D. Corbuster, Field Hospital, and Captain Albert. G. Borden, of Troop D.

In taking up the question of the release of soldiers with dependents back home the officers discussed it from every angle. Criticism, which was apparently aroused through a misunderstanding of the intentions of certain officers in their dealing with the situation, led to acute questions of rights and it was to settle this definitely so far as the New Jersey officers are concerned that the matter was made a part of the conference.

The orders for the release of any man who shows conclusively that he has one or more people dependent upon him is entitled to an honorable discharge, according to the War Department. Whether or not his dependents are being cared for by relief committees or other organizations has nothing to do with the case. Persons thus protected are objects of charity under the interpretation of the order, and the fact that they are being provided for is not a reason for refusal to grant a release.

In order to clear up any misunderstanding in the case Brigadier General Edwin W. Hine, commanding the troops, stated at the close of the conference that so far as any of the New Jersey officers were concerned there would be no obstacle thrown in the way of any man getting his discharge if he fulfills the requirements of the order, which, briefly stated, are that he present the application, together with the affidavits of two responsible and non-interested parties, to his commanding officer After an investigation, which is made to determine whether or not the people mentioned are actually dependent upon his earning ability or his provisions for them, his case is endorsed favorably or otherwise by the commanding officer and forwarded to the departmental commander for final action.

The interpretation placed on the order tonight was new to a number of the officers commanding outfits. It was believed that the fact that provision was being made for the maintenance of the families of the men by relief organizations was sufficient to bar such men from participation in the benefits of the order. Under the new plan there will probably be a few applications more favorably considered. Already a large number of applications have been received and forwarded to the departmental commander for his action.

While it is impossible to estimate the numbers that will probably avail themselves of the opportunity to leave for New Jersey under discharge, it is very likely that the poll will be quite heavy for a few months. It is believed that several hundred men out of the 4,200 here will apply for their discharges and return home.

Private Fenton, the First Regiment man whose discharge was granted so that he could hasten to his home in Newark, where his three little children are reported to be dying with infantile paralysis, will leave Douglas on the home trip early tomorrow morning. No transportation having been provided up until this morning, a conference of officers was held and as a result of the consultation Captain Wakefield, in whose command Fenton was enlisted, was directed to do nothing during the day until he had secured the discharge and the transportation. It was secured finally this afternoon and the unfortunate man will leave tomorrow morning, hoping against hope that the youngsters will be alive when he reaches there and that they will recover from the dread illness.

The long looked for shipment of lumber which the government is to provide for the erection of mess shacks and kitchen tents in the New Jersey troops arrived today, and tomorrow will be carted to the various outfits. The lumber has been awaited anxiously by the guardsmen, who wish to screen the new halls in to keep out the glare. A large number of mules are also to be unloaded and distributed [illegible]

The f[illegible] from all indications tod[illegible]lly getting worse. Valiant efforts are being made to wipe out the plague, but they seem futile against the breeding places and the filthy conditions that make possible the breeding on property nearby the encampment.

A noticeable dropping off in the number of cases of illness today was received with joy by the medical department. While there were a large number of new cases of dysentery reported, the increase was much less on a percentage basis than for a few days past, and the practitioners are confident that they will have the situation well in hand.

Word was received at brigade headquarters today to the effect that Captain Stephen Barlow, who is connected with the quartermaster's department of the State of New Jersey, was coming down here to represent the State in the condemnation of old clothing and equipment. The old equipment of men who have been supplied with new outfits is to be stacked up and surveyed next week by the government surveying officers and credit given for the discarded stuff. Berlow is to represent the State and see that the quantity of material is properly checked up.

Just while things were at their hottest yesterday and everyone longing for something cool and inviting along came the White Rock man. He stopped at brigade headquarters to tell the newspapermen that a case of water would be delivered tomorrow morning. Pounding copy may not be such a task in the future during the heat of the day.

Colonel Albert A. VanWalraven, commanding the Fifth Infantry, and some of his staff officers, including Lieutenant Colonel Wilmer A. Cadmus, Major Joseph M. Bergen and Chaplain Charles W. Gulick, were storm stayed last night in Bisbee after an exciting experience. The colonel and his officers rode by automobile to Bisbee and while there they were caught in the terrific storm that swept over that section. The streets were all flooded under about two feet of water and it was more than an hour before a start could be made for home.

Nine miles outside of Bisbee they came to a stream the bridge over which had been washd out by the rising waters. An automobile had become stuck in the stream where the driver had attempted to ford it. All efforts to move it proved futile and the parties stood watching the water slowly rise until it had completely covered the car. Colonel VanWalraven and his party returned to Bisbee with the occupants of the submerged car. They remained in the mining town all night, returning to camp early today.

YOU CAN LEARN TO SWIM ON "DRY LAND" IS ANNETTE KELLERMANN'S ASSURANCE

The Greatest Swimmer The World Has Ever Known Is Ready To Enroll A Big Class Through the Plainfield Daily Press and Make You Skilled and Proficient In Six Lessons. Read Her Series Each Day in the Plainfield Daily Press.

International Record-holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film, "A Daughter of the Gods."

ANNETTE KELLERMANN, GREATEST WOMAN SWIMMER AND STAR OF WILLIAM FOX $1,000,000 PICTURE

In this, the first of my series of articles, I will outline my plan in a brief sketch in order to acquaint you, the reader, with what is to follow.

First of all I hope to enroll through the medium of the Plainfield Daily Press a class of people who are not only ready and willing to follow out my instructions, but who will faithfully adhere to them.

Swimming is an Art as wonderful as dancing or singing. In fact, swimming should occupy a much more exalted position than it does. I have always tried to bring this sport up to the level of public appreciation and approval that it deserves to occupy.

With this still in view I have prepared for you a series of articles which I consider to be my supreme effort. I earnestly hope that with these articles and your cordial support we will be able to revolutionize the greatest sport of the athletic world.

Great Lack of Pools and Bathing Beaches.

The one great fault with swimming in America is the lack of proper bathing pools and beaches. Of course, the coast cities and a few of the larger inland cities have provided pools for the convenience of those who wish to swim. There are, too, splendid pools in the athletic clubs of some of the larger cities, but the use of these naturally is restricted to the club membership.

But for every city that has provided pools there are hundreds of places where no provision has been made for would-be swimmers. It seems a great pity that the healthiest of all sports should suffer so through such glaring laxness of the various city authorities. But the time will come when they will have to awake for the movement to provide swimming pools is on the way, and when it once starts nothing will stop it.

I will request all of my pupils to pledge me their word to aid me in a campaign to bring about the success of my plan and that will be, to force every city in the United States to provide pools for bathers. My methods in the campaign for bathing houses or pools will be drastic and I will not accept "No" for an answer. As I expect shortly to enroll about three-quarters of a million or more pupils, I feel assured of success, for with the support of this vast number of enthusiastic supporters, I will not be afraid of failure.

Another thing, too, a proper bathing suit will have to be introduced. The average bathing suit of today, with its super-abundance of frills and what-nots is hopelessly inadequate. A more convenient form of suit will have to be introduced. The hide-bound members of the complainers' league will have to be overcome by the most sensible of all arguments—safety and comfort.

Dry Land Swimmers Will Be More Capable.

Now as to what I am about to do. I feel that there is not time like the present to form national swimming classes through the medium of the American newspapers. I have outlined a course that will be found suitable for men, women, boys and girls.

All I ask of you is to follow the lessons carefully and faithfully. In presenting these lessons I am introducing what has come to be known as dry-land swimming, to which I myself have become an ardent convert. After carefully making a study of this latest method I have prepared a series of articles which, if followed out faithfully, will make you proficient in the art of swimming.

Through the Plainfield Daily Press I will teach you to swim just as easily as though I were by your side and directing you personally.

Always bear in mind the fact: That you are to learn to swim without entering the water. This assertion seems a little out of the ordinary now, but if you decide to join my class I will easily prove to you that this can be done. And not only that, but after you have taken my course, I will guarantee that you will be able to swim better and with more grace than ninety per cent. of those people who have learned to swim in a pool or on a bathing beach. So now, who is ready to join the Plainfield Daily Press Annette Kellermann Swimming Association? The course of lessons will embrace dry-land swimming, at the completion of which you will be instructed in how to swim in real water with the strokes and practices you learned.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

JEFF TESREAU WILL STAY NOW.

One of the Pittsburgh daily papers announced a rumor the other day to the effect that Jeff Tesreau, the Ozark bear, would soon become a member of the Pirates. The same rumor stated that McGraw was after Babe Adams, who has not been doing startling work this season. Adams however, has found favor with Johnny McGraw, according to the story, and is willing to cast his lot with the New York club. But, in our humble opinion, Jeff will not become a member of the Pirates. The "two-hit" attraction which he hurled against the Pittsburg squad the other day is enough to prevent the transaction of the deal. If Tesreau is exchanged for Adams, something is radically wrong with the management of the New York team. It is true that Tesreau has not been going exceptionally well this year, but still his recent feat seems to be the forerunner of many another of like nature. Adams gained a "rep" in the World Series tilt with the Detroit Americans, and, since that time has been doing fairly good work. Now and then he pitches brilliant ball, but this has been one of his weak seasons. We fail to see wherein the Giants are going to profit by the deal under consideration.

DUPES OF DESTINY.

That the owner of the Chicago Cubs is a wise man is the opinion of followers of the destinies of the National League. His latest exhibition of wisdom is in the form of a trade executed at the expense of Jimmy Callahan, manager of the Pirates. By this trade, Frank Schulte came to the Pirates as did Fischer, a catcher. Artie Wilson, former Giant and former Fed, is, by virtue of the deal, a Cub. Sport writers in the Smoky City fail to see where the Pirates will profit by the trade. Schulte may still be a fast man, but he failed to exhibit any remarkable speed this year. Fischer is not as good a catcher as Wilson. He will be remembered as having caught for the Plainfield team in that immortal game with the Somerville team in the Central New Jersey League. At that time, he was in the International League and was just entering upon a somewhat varied career, marked, at times, by success.

FINANCIAL MATTERS BETTER.

It is a great year for the Eastern teams of the National League and the Western clubs are benefitting financially from it. Last Saturday at Brooklyn, an attendance of 20,000 was registered, at the game between the Dodgers and the Reds. Just across the river at the Polo Grounds the Giants were entertaining a crowd of nearly 30,000 people. Crowds of this size are proving of great assistance to the Western clubs; two or three of these clubs having had anything but large crowds at their games. The Pirates seem to draw well at home on Saturdays, but that fact may be attributed to the appearance of the Giants and Dodgers on successive Saturdays. The Giants, with their squadron of stars, draw well all along the circuit, while the Brooklyn team, at present the league leading outfit, naturally attracts the crowds. The Braves and the Phillies have been doing fairly well. The last named team has little opposition in the Athletics, who, as every fan knows, are going from bad to worse. The Braves, however, have not been drawing unusually large crowds, and the fact that the Red Sox are leading the American League has not helped Percy Haughton's boys along to any great extent. Taken all in all, this is going to be a banner financial year in the big leagues.

CONSIDER THE CADDY.

A caddies' golf tournament attracts but passing attention these days, but there are so many little "ins" and "outs" attached to such an affair that the staging of a caddies' tourney is an event that is worthy of consideration. The men who employ these young boys seldom realize their relationship to them. These youngsters look upon the men for whom they "caddy" as representative citizens and as men of wealth, refinement and influence. They, naturally, come to the conclusion that what these men do must be along proper lines. Now, it is well known that every child's first inclination is to "ape" what he sees and hears. Hence, these boys "copy" what they see or hear done by the men for whom they carry golf clubs. Thusly, it is seen that the average golfer has an unusual opportunity to set a good example. If he makes the air "blue" with profanity, he is but setting the "pace" for the youngster at his side. If he is courteous, jovial and at all times discreet, he is going to command respect and is setting a good example. Men of such calibre are the ones who reap big rewards. Think it over.

GAINING RECOGNITION.

To St. Louis fans Fielder Jones is once more the "wizard man." Eleven straight victories for his Browns have startled the natives. It was about this time last year that Fielder brought his St. Louis Feds from last place in a long-distance drive and landed them on top. The Slofeds didn't win the pennant, but they were less than two games away when the curtain was rung down. The present situation is apparently the same. Less than two weeks ago the club apparently was hopelessly rutted in seventh place with the determined Athletics blocking the way to the cellar. But the eleven-game drive has landed the club close on the heels of Washington. In fact, the leading Boston Red Sox are just seven and a half games away.—Newark News.

WELSH TO THE FRONT.

Freddie Welsh's astonishing performance against Bennie Leonard last Friday night has stirred up some lively discussion in all centers where pugilism flourishes. Everybody seems willing to admit now that the Englishman has some of the things that go to make a champion, even though he has reached thirty years and has not done much real fighting since he won the title. It doesn't seem probable, though, that this will mean a new lease of life for his money-making powers. There are few who think he will open up and fight the same way against Charlie White at Colorado Springs Labor Day. He took chances with the light-hitting Leonard; he would be inviting disaster if he left the same openings with White. The fight probably was the result of the severe criticism that has been heaped upon Welsh lately. He went right in and trained to the limit, intending to stake his all. If he should get the decision against White, he probably would be ready to retire inside of a year. All champions like to feel that they have retired undefeated. Welsh realizes that he is slipping, so he may decide to pass along the lightweight honors.—News.

WASHINGTON OUTFIT QUITS SCHWAB LEAGUE

Frank Hand's Team Will Play Independent Ball, However.

The Washington baseball team, of which Frank Hand is manager, is no longer a member of the Penn-Jersey League. However, the team has not disbanded and, according to present plans, will continue to play independently. The team representing Phillipsburg also withdrew from the circuit and this team will play independent baseball.

When the regular league meeting was held the directors of the Washington club decided that it was time to throw up the sponge. The Phillipsburg-Easton owners came to a like conclusion and the managers of both teams were instructed to get together and arrange a series of games. In that way the Washington team hopes to "break even," financially, for the season. The poor schedule arranged by the league officials did not meet with the approval of the managers of the various teams. This was the reason assigned for the withdrawal of the two teams.

Frank Hand will be retained as manager of the Washington club and each one of the original players will retain his berth. Tommy Mullin will remain at short, with Cliff Randolph as pitcher. And, according to the newspapers, it is expected that several carloads of fans will come from Phillipsburg. Unusual interest has been aroused by the attraction.

"Buck" Herzog, the recent acquisition to the Giants, is rapidly proving of value to that team.

BASEBALL

The Yankees have registered twelve shutout victories up to the present time.

In club batting the Donovanites have been holding down third place and in club fielding have stood fourth.

Philadelphia and Washington have been the easiest picking for the Yanks so far this season, the New Yorkers having won eleven games from each.

Mullen is the only member of the Donovan crew who has been able to stick with the .300 class of hitters. But lack of .300 swatters has not prevented the team from winning games.

Pitcher Ray Caldwell, who started to hang up a healthy batting average earlier in the season, has suffered a big slump in stick work. Pitching for a top-line team doesn't give a heaver much time in which to train his batting eye.

While Lee Magee is hitting under .250 against .327 in the Federal League last year, the brilliant gardener is leading the Yanks in base stealing and otherwise putting up a flashy game.

"Germany" Schaefer comes through for a share of credit for the Yanks' dash. He is in a class by himself when it comes to "makin' a bit o' fun" for the boys.

Being shifted from the down-trodden Athletics to the hustling Yanks seems to have given Rube Oldring a new lease of life. The former Mackman started pastiming for New York at top speed.

Pitcher Bob Shawkey, another former Mack pupil, is improving steadily in his work for the Donovan crew, and present indications are that he will be up among the leading twirlers of the league before long.

Two years ago Frank Baker, Rube Oldring and Bob Shawkey were big factors in the winning of the American League pennant by the Athletics. Now this same trio of pastimers are striving to duplicate the trick for the Yankees.

The Yankees have not finished a season in the first division since 1910, when they landed second place. Since 1903, the year in which the American League invaded New York, the team has never won a pennant and only four times has it finished in the first division. In 1908 and 1912 it finished in the cellar.

Nick Cullop, the Yankees' star heaver and leading pitcher of the American League, was formerly with the Cleveland Indians. Last year he worked for the Kansas City Federal League team and finished the season in a tie with Eddie Plank for third place in the league's pitching records. Both pitchers won 21 games and lost 11.

The Yankees have been the prize pippins of the season in the matter of disabled players. Few teams could stand the gaff with such players as Frank Baker, Frank Gilhooley, Fritz Maisel, Nick Cullop, Ray Caldwell and Hughey High all out of the game at the same time on account of injuries.

Before tackling the job of manager "Smiling Bill" Donovan had a great reputation as a pitcher. He starred in the big show for many years, first as a member of the Brooklyn Superbas and later with the Detroit Tigers. Bill's first managerial experience was gained at Providence where his fine showing as a pilot won for him his present berth as boss of the Yanks.

JACK MARTIN BACK IN BREWER LINEUP

He Is Not Batting In .300 Class Despite Local "Rumor."

That Milwaukee baseball team is still going from bad to worse, and the rattle of the "tin can" is being heard daily. The latest players to receive notification of the fact that their services are no longer needed are Joe Hovlik, Jim Bluejacket, Cy Young and Art Mayer. These players have not been of much value to the Brewer combination and Manager Harry Clark's step to get rid of them has not caused surprise.

Just at the present time Jack Martin has not been setting the Milwaukee world on fire. Jack was out of the game for a few days, but is now playing at his regular position. However, he has been removed from second to fourth place in the batting order. His fielding is still good, but his work with the stick has fallen off considerably. The impression given by a contemporary that Martin's batting average is .300 is far from correct. Jack is batting only .212, having fallen to that depth shortly after he was taken ill. Before his illness he was batting in the neighborhood of .240. But at no time has he been hitting in the .300 class. At least, that's what the official figures say.

The attempt by President Charles Ebbets, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, to secure Rogers Hornsby, of the St. Louis "Cardinal" club, seems to be the fulfillment of a prophecy made by a local man not long ago. This man stated that Hornsby was slated to go and that Corhan, a second baseman, would have to give up his slight chance of playing short to Jack Miller. There may be some truth in the rumor at that.

THROCKMORTON WINS OVER ELLIOT BINZEN

Thereby Earns Right to Compete In Junior National Tennis Championship.

Harold A. Throckmorton, of Elizabeth, earned the right yesterday of playing in the junior national tennis championship late this month by winning the Middle States title on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills. He had a far easier time in the final match against Elliot H. Binzen, the junior indoor champion, than had been anticipated. Binzen had forced Throckmorton to extend himself in the Gedney Farms tournament only a week ago, and on the strength of that match a close tussle had been predicted. The Jersey youth, however, scored in three straight sets, winning eighteen games out of twenty-five, and getting 103 points to 71 for his opponent. Binzen was nowhere near the form he has displayed of late.

The boys' championship for lads less than 16 years of age went to Benjamin Letson, of De Witt Clinton High School, who defeated J. Kemmerer, of Pleasantville.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

It is rumored about that the Tabs had a chance to sign up Gene Lidgate for first base or outer garden in the game with the Royals. Some people never listen to Dame Opportunity. But, if she knocks at the door again, it is a safe bet that the Tabs will respond quickly.

Warry McLaughlin is still the "grand old man" of baseball. Warry is always ready for work and his latest feat of holding the Knights of St. Peter to four hits in eleven innings goes to show that Warry is still on the job.

The New Brunswick sport writers admit that the Netherwood team is a fast combination, and state that its best feature is its aggressiveness. That's some tribute, and its value is further enhanced when it is announced that the Netherwood team that performed in the Middlesex city on Sunday is not exactly the same team that performed in the regular City League contests. The club was minus the services of Eddie Hannon and used Haberman, who is not a regular, in the outfield. Venezia, who like Haberman, is not one of the regular "Ironside" players, performed in the outer garden on Sunday.

Many City League fans believe that Johnson is the best catcher in the league. There are others who declare Francis Teeling to be the best catcher on the local circuit. The matter is open for discussion. Each man has his good points and which is the better of the two in this respect is, really, a matter of opinion.

We appreciated the notes sent in by the Tab press agent the other day. They were snappy and of "human interest." The effort at humor was well directed and, unlike many other communications we have received, was not of the sarcastic type. More of these notes will be received in the future, according to the present plans of those directly connected with the Tab organization. Other organizations are hereby invited to follow the Abstainer lead.

Davies of Roselle, is now a Farmer. While he may have been previously inclined toward agricultural pursuits, still this is the first time that he has received his title. As a pitcher he ranked with the best in scholastic circles. When he hurled against Plainfield and North Plainfield High schools, he was in good form and experienced little difficulty in holding the local hitters in check.

They are still discussing that Baptist and Hope forefeiture. We were of the opinion that the matter was settled some time ago. But, evidently, there have been new developments in the case, and the moguls have decided to investigate the matter carefully. Such is the life of a baseball magnate.

The Farmers looked like a new team in their contest with the Dunellen clan on Saturday. The addition of one or two new men provided a little more "pep" than usual. If the Farmers retain this talent for the next season, they will not be the "joke" of the circuit.

The umpiring in the league has been good of late. There are three first-class arbitrators in the ranks, and their work has come in for commendation on several occasions. If there have been "kicks," they have been few and have been registerd on the spur of the moment.

One look at the list of backstops at work in the City circuit will convince any fan that in this department each team is well supplied. The Netherwoods have Johnson, one of the best to be found anywhere. The Tabs have Teeling, another "find." The Hopes can always depend on Jim Nash, while the Baptists have two good men in Stine and Banks. Eddie Bergen is "the" catcher for Dunellen, while Ford or Florio is a "nifty" little Farmer backstop.

SCOOP THE CUB REPORTER — ENTERTAINED EN MASSE — BY "HOP"S

Dear Boss -
Met a dandy girl yesterday - discovered after I had called tho, that the whole family are very clubby and entertain en masse - I suggested to friend girl that she get her Daddy to take our pictures - hers and mine - but her Mother thought her daughter better snap it. I am enclosing the snap - I'm just behind her father - We went to a dance last night and Mother leaned on me for most of the program - I am to get up at 4 A.M. tomorrow morning and meet some relatives of hers on the early boat - bringing them up here in my car to save a livery bill - I also am invited to fill out a hand of auction and take her Mother festing - It looks funny Boss - you know I'm not a home wrecker - so I'm going to pull out before she learns to think too much of me - Of course I know that I was born with a certain amount of magnetism and personal charm - but it works in most unexpected quarters - at that unquestionably - this is the life - Yours Scoop -

PLAINFIELD CHECKS

Many New York business men have formed the habit of using New York checks. There was a good reason for this when checks on Plainfield banks were subject to an exchange charge in that city, but this is no longer the case.

Checks on The Plainfield Trust Company are now collectible through the New York Clearing House and commuters are beginning to realize that it is to their advantage to keep their accounts with us and receive

THE GREAT "CAMPAIGN" IS ON

Started today, and from now on it's going to be a Battle-Royal. Literally slaughtered "Let-Go" prices, making summer shoes of the utmost style-value and service-value take a tumble out of the store.

Crowds of eager buyers were here for the opening of the sale today, and you had better follow suit Friday (tomorrow we are closed). Pickings are at their best right at the start.

We don't expect to sell to everybody. We don't claim to reduce everything in the house—far from it,—but we are closing out all discontinued lines and broken lots of Summer Shoes for CASH—at genuine bargains.

All sale goods sold for Cash only. No Exchanges or refunds on sale goods. Try on both shoes to insure a proper fit.

WHY BURDEN A FRIEND?

SERVICE
Capital, $100,000

The average individual is no more fitted to handle an estate than he is to conduct a law suit or cure a disease. You hire a lawyer to do the one and a doctor to do the other.

Then why burden a friend, a business associate or a member of your family, with the responsibility of being your executor and trustee? Few men are familiar with the duties of trusteeship or with the investment of trust funds.

Name this responsible trust company instead; it is organized for the purpose; equipped to meet every emergency; to transact any business which may arise in connection with trust service; and it is permanent; unaffected by the hazards of human life.

Give Your Porch a Permanent Roof

A flat porch roof usually requires patching long before the main roof does. You can stop such repairs now and have a roof that will last for a generation or longer by using

Pronounced "RU" as in RUBY
RU-BER-OID ROOFING
COSTS MORE - WEARS LONGER

We recommend RU-BER-OID because it has proved its durability. Our customers who have used it tell us that it never cracks, warps or rots, and we know of many cases where it has given more than 20 years of service without repair.

Don't take a chance with a cheap roofing that you will have to replace in a few years, but pay a little more and get RU-BER-OID, the roofing that lasts. It is economy in the end to use a roofing that will save the expense of constant repair bills.

RU-BER-OID contains no sand, coal tar, asphalt, wood pulp, or paper. It is made of heavy felt, waterproofed with a compound containing animal and vegetable substances.

We sell genuine RU-BER-OID, with the "Ru-ber-oid Man" (shown above) on every roll. The U. S. Appellate Court has enjoined imitators from using the word "Rubberoid or any similar name as the trade name or brand" of their roofing. Come in and get our prices.

CASEMENT PAYS WITH HIS LIFE

Hanged By England For Part In Recent Irish Rebellon

SHOWS NO EMOTION

Daily News Calls Act a "Terrible Blunder"—Says Execution of Captain Fryatt By Germans a Parallel Case.

London, Aug. 3.—Roger Casement paid with his life this morning for his leadership in the Irish rebellion. He was hanged in the Pentonville jail at 9 o'clock. Casement walked to the gallows calmly, and went through the ordeal without displaying emotion. He was pronounced dead nine minutes after the trap was sprung.

The plea of President Wilson for clemency, written in the name of the American people, was received before the execution, but created no comment. Before death Casement embraced the Roman Catholic church and his last moments were spent with a priest. If he made a statement it was withheld by the government.

In a statement made yesterday Lord Robert Cecil defended the action of the government, saying that Casement's crime was rebellion against the government, and clemency would encourage future uprisings. In an editorial the Daily News calls the Casement execution a terrible blunder. This editorial follows:

"His guilt was unquestioned and unexpiable, and on personal grounds it is hard to advance a valid reason why the law should not take its course. But at such a time as this personal grounds sink into relative insignificance.

"We cannot but reaffirm our conviction that, resolving that the death penalty must be exacted, the government has exhibited grave unwisdom. From a commutation of Casement's sentence no evil results could follow. To pretend that further exaction is necessary as an example or warning—to hang Casement, is to give the disaffected section in Ireland another martyr, to embitter feeling throughout the island, to alienate many persons, and to enable Germany to play off the death of Casement—the parallel in reality is grotesque, but it is near enough for her purpose—against the death of Captain Fryatt.

"No one can contend that the execution of Casement is a crime; but that it is a lamentable blunder can hardly be contested."

Honored with knighthood—a title since taken from him by King George's order—for his many years of service for Great Britain as consul and consul-general, Roger Casement assumed leadership, at a period of his country's crisis, in the recent Irish rebellion, the plans for which were laid while Casement was in Berlin, where he was reported to have negotiated an understanding with the German imperial authorities.

FORCE EMPLOYES ENJOYED ANNUAL OUTING YESTERDAY

Thirty-seven employes of the A. F. Force & Co. store went on the eleventh annual outing up the Hudson yesterday as guests of Mr. Force. The store was closed all day, and the start from Plainfield was made at 8 o'clock. In New York the Hudson River Day Line boat, Robert Fulton, was boarded, and Newburgh was reached shortly before noon. Lunch was enjoyed on the boat.

The afternoon was spent at Orange Lake, a miniature Coney Island, where there was swimming and other amusements. On the return trip Newburgh was left at 5 o'clock and Plainfield was reached at 10:30.

WIFE-BEATER SCORED IN COURT BY JUDGE DE MEZA

Charged with not supporting his wife and two babies, Carl Weigand, of Wallace place, was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in city court this morning and ordered to live apart from his wife and pay her $12 a week for the support of herself and her two children.

Laura Weigand appeared against her husband, and the case proved to be one of the most pitiful that has been brought before the judge in some time. The brutality with which Weigand is alleged to have treated his wife and children was told by the little woman between sobs, and when he had heard it all the judge expressed the wish that he could send the man to State prison and hard labor. Twenty-five years old, of athletic build and neatly dressed, Weigand stared sullenly at his wife during the proceedings, and angered at his attitude, Judge DeMeza said, "I would that there was a thrashing post here, because that is where you would go."

ANOTHER PARALYSIS CASE REPORTED HERE

Child Afflicted Lives In Thickly Populated Section of Plainfield.

Plainfield's fifth case of infantile paralysis developed this morning, when Dr. Ellis Campus decided that Charles Gumerove, the fifteen months' old son of Samuel Gumerove, of 340 West Third street, had the disease. The case is said to be the worst of any that has developed here so far. The child was taken ill several days ago, and had been under observation since.

The section of West Third street where the last case was found in one of the most thickly populated in the city, and the house where the Gumeroves live is an eight-family one, acting as shelter for a cosmopolitan aggregation of people. The entire house has been put under quarantine by the Board of Health and no one is supposed to enter or leave it.

APOPLEXY FATAL TO MRS. GERTRUDE SHARP

Aged Woman Passed Away at Home of Daughter, Mrs. Nelson Y. Hull.

Mrs. Gertrude Sharp, widow of the late John J. Sharp, died last night at seven o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Nelson Y. Hull, of 521 East Second street, following a stroke of apoplexy, which she suffered last Saturday. Mrs. Sharp was in her eighty-fourth year, being born at Neshanic on August 22, 1832.

She had made her home in Plainfield for the past thirty-six years, during which time she had made the acquaintance of hundreds of local persons. Despite her advanced age she was keenly interested in live topics of the day and took much interest in the work of the First M. E. church, of which she was a member. Her death removes the last of a family of twelve children.

Mrs. Sharp is survived by four daughters and two sons. These are the Misses Marietta B. and Gertrude Sharp, Mrs. Nelson Y. Hull, of this city; Mrs. William H. White, of Newark; John B. Sharp, of New Brighton, S. I., and William B. Sharp, who is assistant postmaster here.

The funeral will be held at the late home on East Second street, Saturday afternoon at three o'clock and the service will be in charge of Rev. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church. The interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

FUNERAL SERVICE WILL BE HELD IN GRACE CHURCH

The funeral of Dr. Rowland Cox, Jr., who died in the New York Hospital yesterday afternoon following an operation, will be held at Grace Episcopal church, this city, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Dr. Cox, who is the son of Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, formerly lived here, for some time has been making his home in Paterson, where he had a large practice in medicine. Beside his mother he leaves two brothers, Archibald Cox, of Watchung avenue, and Albert H. Cox, who is now a corporal with Troop D, at Douglas, Ariz.

MRS. NELLIE RISINGER OBSERVES HER BIRTHDAY

The eighty-fifth anniversary of her natal day was observed yesterday by Mrs. Nellie Risinger, of Richmond street. In observance of the event she entertained between twnty-five and thirty friends at tea during the afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock. She makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. Josephine Burd, of the Richmond street address.

Mrs. Risinger was born at Cape May, but had made her home the greater part of her life in and around Flemington, where seven of her eight children reside. For the past eleven years she has made Plainfield her home. During her stay here she has gained the friendship of a large circle of Plainfielders. She is a member of the Home Department of Trinity Reformed Church.

ENJOY CAMP LIFE.

Letters received from Alfred Seals and John Raymond Manley, of this city, who are with the hospital corps at Tobyhanna, Pa., indicate that the young men are well and enjoying camp life with the soldiers. They are hoping that they may reach the First Field Hospital Corps at Douglas, Arizona, but have no idea as to when they may be sent to the border town.

PREPARING FOR OPENING.

Under the direction of Benjamin Evans the various public school properties in Plainfield are being repaired and put in first-class condition preparatory to the reopening of the schools in September.

FINANCES WILL BE RE-ADJUSTED

International Motor Co. Plans to Take Care of Notes Totaling $2,800,000.

TO ISSUE NEW STOCK

Move Is to Provide Funds to Care For Business Which Necessitates Operation of Plant Day and Night.

To take care of $2,800,000 notes, maturing on November 1, 1916, to wipe out a loss deficit which on December 31 last amounted to $2,457,078.75, and to put the company in funds to take care of the business which is keeping its plant going night and day, the finances of the International Motor Company are to be readjusted, it was reported today.

According to the present plan of the readjustment it is said that the note holders will be given first preferred, 7 per cent. accumulative stock par for par; that the present preferred stockholders will receive 60 per cent. in second preferred stock and 10 per cent. in new common, and the present common stockholders 10 per cent. in new common and 10 per cent. in second preferred. The present stockholders, it was also said, will be given the privilege of subscribing to first preferred stock at par.

This information will be quite a disappointment to those who purchased the preferred stock when it reached 70 last August and the common when it touched fifty toward the end of last year.

On the New York curb yesterday six shares of preferred were sold at twenty and the common opened at seven and declined two points to five.

SEEKS TO REVIEW COURT PROCEEDINGS

Hearing In Pillar of Fire Case Scheduled Before Judge Connolly Tomorrow.

Former Mayor G. W. V. Moy, representing Mrs. Laura Wilson and Miss Lavinia Leach, members of the Pillar of Fire, and Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., assistant corporation counsel, will appear before Judge James C. Connolly at Elizabeth tomorrow morning, when there will be a hearing upon application of Mr. Moy to review the police court proceedings which sent his clients to the county jail in addition to exacting a fine.

After the two women had served about ten of the seventeen days in jail Mr. Moy paid their fines of $20 each, thereby securing their release. The fines were paid under protest, Mr. Moy reserving all rights to an appeal.

Mr. Moy hopes to show to the court some technical error regarding the commitment, and thus be able to set aside the action. He also intends to take the matter up to the highest court for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of the ordinance which prevents the Pillar of Fire from holding street meetings here.

MAY ESTABLISH SKY LINE RULE IN THIS CITY

The councilmanic street committee now has under consideration plans for restricting the height of buildings in Plainfield to conform with the new rules established by the authorities in New York. This matter was brought to the attention of the councilmen by David T. Kenney, president of the Chamber of Commerce. While there does not appear to be any real necessity for such action at present, it is with the idea of looking to the future that the members favor a restrictive policy.

There are no "skyscrapers" here, but no one can tell when some person or contractor may ask for the privilege of erecting a building of this type, and for the purpose of preserving the sky-line rule it is quite likely that councilmanic action may be taken in the near future.

CAPSTICK HOPEFUL OF RE-NOMINATION

Congressman Drops Into Town and Renews Acquaintances—Is Optimistic.

Congressman John H. Capstick, of Montville, dropped into Plainfield today to call on some of his friends and renew acquaintances. The Congressman, having announced his intention of seeking a renomination, is now determined to make a vigorous fight to retain his seat at Washington. He feels quite optimistic over the result and says that he has been assured by a large number of constituents that he will have their support at the primaries and if nominated, will be given a large vote at the November election.

Mr. Capstick does not appear to be disturbed in the least over any opposition that he has at present or is likely to have, being perfectly satisfied to go before the voters on his first term record and appeal for their support.

The Congressman expressed great confidence in the strength of the national ticket, believing that Hughes and Fairbanks will be elected by a large majority.

TRY TO ARBITRATE STREET CAR STRIKE

Conference In Office of Mayor Mitchell Brings No Results, However.

New York, August 3.—The conference called for 10 o'clock this morning between representatives of the New York City Railways Company and New York and Queens County Railroad Company with the Mayor at the City Hall, was adjourned shortly after 11 o'clock until noon today. T. P. Shonts was present representing the New York Railways and it developed that Mayor Mitchell, in suggesting the conference, was of the impression that the New York and Queens County Railroad is also controlled by the other company. It was announced that the adjournment was taken in order to notify President Woods of the Queens county line, and to give him time to reach the Mayor's office. When Mr. Woods was questioned he said that he must consult with his fellow officials regarding whether they would submit the matter of wage scale to arbitration. Mayor Mitchel called an end to the strike conference when Mr. Wood refused to say whether he would arbitrate the question of wages. The Mayor said he would have to wait. He would do nothing further now until the railway companies consented to answer the men's question regarding whether they would recognize their right to organize unions and submit the question of wage scale to arbitration.

WILD RUMOR STARTED

Quiet On Somme Front—Austrians Capture Italian Submarine—Zeppelins In New Raid On British East Coast.

New York, August 3.—With reference to reports that a steamer of the name of the Britannic was sunk by a submarine, it was stated at the office of the White Star Line this afternoon that its steamer Britanic was now at Belfast. The vessel which was recently in the service of the British government as hospital ship is undergoing some changes, it was stated.

The rumor has not been traced.

Zeppelins Raid England.

London, August 3.—The fourth German air raid this week on British East Coast counties occurred early today, and like previous excursions resulted in little damage, according to early official reports.

Six or seven Zeppelins formed the squadron. They dropped "a considerable number" of bombs, according to the War Office statement, but exact reports of any damage have not yet been received.

It is reported one of the raiders was hit and badly damaged by anti-air guns.

Russians Nearing Kovel.

London, August 3.—The Czar's forces are said to be within ten miles of the city of Kovel, and all signs point to a speedy fall of the place. The Russian forces are reported to have advanced along the entire front and unofficial advices report a ten-mile gain at the northern end of the Volhynian battle line, between the two railroads diverging from Kovel.

PINOCHLE TOURNAMENT PLANS CONSIDERED

The Pinochle and Domino Tournament, which is a feature at the North Plainfield fire headquarters each fall and winter, will be resumed this year. Plans for the tourney are already well under way and it is expected that the managers of the four teams that were entered last year will get together in the near future and formulate a schedule. Some of the games are played in the fire house and others are run off in the club rooms across the way.

Last year the tourney was indulged in by four teams, representing the Fire Department, Domino Club, Harness Shop and Republican Club. The managers of the various teams were instructed to adhere to the set of rules drawn up by the executive committee. Those who played in the tourney last year and who are expected to compete again this year are James K. Arnold, William J. Smalley, J. J. Stahl, U. G. Tingley, Howard Woolston, "Chief" McCullough, Al Fritts, C. Conover, L. Sheelen, Fred Koller, Levi Kline, James C. Walker, Claude Hann and others.

MERCHANTS AND EMPLOYES ENJOY FIRST HOLIDAY

Many Plainfield merchants are today observing the first Thursday holiday, according to the arrangement to close their places of business on Thursday. This gives the clerks a full day to enjoy an outing. Some of the merchants close at noon, giving their help a half day.

With the closing of the stores there is not much doing in the business section and there is almost a "Sunday quiet" in evidence.

NO BATHING IN GREEN BROOK.

The local police, as in former years, have been receiving numerous complaints during the recent hot weather about boys swimming in Green brook. It is said the youngsters do not bother donning bathing suits or other paraphernalia, and the police will have to stop the practice.

NO Y. M. H. A. MEETING.

It has been decided by the directors of the Y. M. H. A. to discontinue meetings for several weeks while the hot weather lasts. Work on the campaign to raise a fund for a club building, however, is still going on.

STORE CARS OF EXPLOSIVES AT SOUTH PLAINFIELD WHEN THEY ARE BARRED FROM JERSEY CITY

LEHIGH VALLEY ENDANGERS THIS SECTION IN ARRANGING SHIPMENTS OF MUNITIONS TO PERTH AMBOY.

EXPLOSIONS WOULD CAUSE MUCH DAMAGE HERE

Red Flags Stop All Trains At Corporate Limits of Jersey City—Policemen Look For Cars Containing Contraband Explosives—Railroads May Seek Injunction Against Action of Safety Commissioner.

Barred from taking explosives into Jersey City, the Lehigh Valley railroad is storing numbers of cars of munitions at South Plainfield, according to reliable reports. A stretch of woods just outside South Plainfield is being used as a storage place for the cars, and guards have been set to watch over them.

Twenty cars came in early yesterday morning. How many were there before could not be learned, but a representative of the Daily Press at South Plainfield said that the number exceeded fifty. These cars are within approximately three miles of Plainfield and there is enough power in the explosives to almost blow this city off the map.

The purpose of storing the explosives there is to prepare for hauling them into Perth Amboy, where they are to be shipped on barges for reloading on ocean steamships. Since Jersey City issued an order refusing to permit explosives in the city, Perth Amboy has been selected as a shipping point.

The station agent of the Lehigh Valley at South Plainfield this morning denied knowledge of explosives there. When asked how far away from the station the cars of munitions were "parked" he said he knew nothing of any cars containing freight of this kind.

The embargo on explosives into Jersey City went into effect at noon today. It is an arbitrary order on the part of the commissioner of public safety, backed up by authority of the Council, but even the officials doubt its legality under present ordinances. However, they state that they will protect the city at the present and frame a law giving the authority later.

The Lehigh Valley, the New Jersey Central and other roads yesterday afternoon posted embargo orders carrying out the command of Jersey City. That of the New Jersey Central simply stated that shipments of explosives for Jersey City would not be accepted by the road from any point.

Policemen in Jersey City are to stop all trains and search them for cars containing explosives.

Chief of Police Monahan gave his subordinates last night orders to lay in a supply of red flags. After locating the spot where a railroad bisects the boundary line, the cop flagman will stand in the middle of the track, wave the red flag, and it is reasonably expected that the engiener will stop. A demand will be made upon the conductor to produce his manifest, and if the papers show that any cars contain explosives the engineer will be directed to cut out the cars, sidetrack them and take them right out of town.

If the train crew refuses to obey orders they will be placed under arrest on the charge of "aiding and abetting in the maintenance of a public nuisance." In case of an arrest of an engine driver the locomotive will be cut loose from the train to prevent anybody else from running high explosive freight into the city, and policemen will be detailed to see to it that flagmen do their full duty to prevent a rear end crash and a possible explosion.

No injunctions to restrain the police from interfering with railroad traffic had been served up today. Chief Monahan said it was his understanding that the police would have to do something first before they could be enjoined. Railroad lawyers expressed the belief that the action of the City Commission in adopting the resolution and Director Hague's orders to Chief Monahan to prepare for the stopping of the trains was sufficient basis on which to make an application for an injunction.

Railroad officials were at first sceptical of the seriousness of the order. They were informed that the official order meant exactly what it said. Copies of the order were delivered by Jersey City detectives to the presidents or other responsible officials of railroads and the roads were given twenty-four hours in which to obey it.

Superintendent Mullican, of the Lehigh Valley, telephoned police headquarters late in the afternoon that the burning ruins at Black Tom threatened two carloads of explosives, supposedly loaded shells, on the end of a pier. He asked the city to help prevent another explosion. Acting Fire Chief Kern ordered some city firemen to the scene, and railroad men asked them to please wash melted sugar from the tracks so they could run trains. The firemen obliged.

The ruins burned so briskly that fifty of 200 men who were at work clearing up the debris were called off the job for the sake of safety. Shells exploded occasionally, causing much anxiety.

Seven or eight ditches, two feet wide, were dug from burned storehouses to permit thousands of tons of melted sugar to run under the railroad tracks down to the bay. Hydrants, the tops of which protruded above the surface, were turned on and the streams swept the sticky mass into the water.

Assistant Prosecutor McCarthy, of Hudson county, and Prosecutor's Detectives Charlock and Ross visited the Black Tom ruins with experts in order to prepare for the hearing before County Judge Sullivan of the four men arrested for manslaughter in connection with the loss of life in the explosions.

He was well known locally, being born in this city and moving to the borough about a year ago. For a number of years he was employed by the Plainfield Ice and Supply Company, and at the time of his death was in the employ of Wadley & Goodenough.

He was 41 years of age, unmarried, and resided at the home of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Callaway, who survives him. He is survived also by four brothers and one sister. His brothers, all residents of the borough, are Albert, Leonard, James and Stephen Callaway. The funeral will be held at his mother's home at 219 Westervelt avenue on Friday evening. Interment will be made at the convenience of the family.

REV. J. M. HARE HAS FOUR OFFICES

Local Pastor Is Captain, Chaplain, Executive Officer and Postmaster of Regt.

F. CARTER PROMOTED

Is Now Major's Orderly and Growing Accustomed to Camp McAllen Life—Hall and Morely Located There, Too.

The Rev. J. Madison Hare is still working hard, according to daily letters that are received by Mrs. Hare. He now occupies three or four different offices and between them all is held responsible for the welfare of all the men of the Fourth Regiment at Douglas, Ariz. Besides being chaplain of the regiment, he has to take care of his duties as captain and executive officer. He is also postmaster for the regiment and daily hands out the bundles of joy from those at home.

Mr. Hare is succeeding wonderfully well in his efforts to raise funds for a building to be used as a reading and writing room and infirmary. When Mrs. Hare last heard from him he had over $100 of the $250 now needed. He drew the plans for the new mess hall and is constantly working on plans to better the sanitary condition of the camp.

Frank Carter, who is with the New York Signal Corps, is beginning to climb in the ranks and is now acting as orderly to the major of the corps. Frank is six feet two inches tall and makes quite an appearance in a uniform, and he says he looks great standing at the door of the major's tent, but he would rather be chasing Mexicans. He says he works from 5.15 in the morning until 6.15 at night and when he goes to sleep it is on "Mother Earth," because there are no cots.

James Hardy is doing well with Troop D, of Plainfield, which is at Douglas.

HEALTH BOARDS ARE ACTIVE IN COUNTY

Dr. F. W. Wescott Officer In Co. Organization Working For Health Improvement.

Local health officials are taking an active part in the formation of a county organization that will work to protect the health of residents. It is comprised of representatives of the Boards of Health in all the towns of Union County. Dr. F. W. Wescott, of Martine avenue, who is president of both the Fanwood Borough and Township health boards, is vice-president of the organization, and Ronald Riblet, another member of the Fanwood Board of Health, is one of a committee appointed by the organization to talk over plans for an isolation hospital with the Board of Freeholders.

The committee was appointed to take up the matter with the Board of Freeholders because of the lack of room to take care of cases of disease that need isolation throughout the county. The Elizabeth isolation ward is inadequate to take care of all the cases and the freeholders will be asked to provide a building.

Although they are taking an active part in the county plans to prevent infantile paralysis or other diseases, the two local Boards of Health are not letting local precautions slide. Plans are now being made to inspect cellars, cesspools and other places in search of health violations.

EDUCATION BOARD WILL RECEIVE BIDS TOMORROW

A special meeting of the Fanwood Township Board of Education will be held in School No. 1 tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, when the Board will award bids for the building of an eight room addition to School No. 1. The building and improvements to the main structure will cost in the vicinity of $30,000, that being the amount voted at the recent school election.

It is not known when actual work on the new structure will be started, but it will not be in time for completion for the opening of school in the fall. The bonds have not yet been issued for the building.

FLOOD DAMAGE OF LAST WEEK BEING REPAIRED

Signs of the flood of last week, when Green brook overflowed its banks and did considerable damage, are rapidly disappearing. Although it will be several weeks before it is passable, the Valley road is being repaired as fast as possible. In most cases it is being filled in. The bridge across the brook at the paper mill has been temporarily rebuilt and men are now working on the wreckage around the mill itself.

Gage Walker, owner of the mill, has not yet announced his plans about rebuilding the mill. The water practically rendered the entire plant useless and it will take between $5,000 and $10,000 to reconstruct it.

HIGH VALUATION MAY LOSE THE ONLY LOCAL PARK

People of both the township and borough are becoming rather incensed over the action of the Board of Taxation in placing a valuation on the local property of the New Jersey Central. By placing a value of $19,777 on the property the board is practically forcing the railroad to abandon the park and grounds with which it has surrounded the station.

Neither Fanwood nor Scotch Plains can boast a park of any description other than that maintained by the railroad at a cost exceeding $1,000 a year. Once before when the Board of Taxation put a high valuation on the property the railroad refused to keep the grounds in condition, and it was not until Tax Collector Charles Sheelen induced the board to cut the valuation nearly in half that any more interest was taken in the park.

REALTY SALES INCREASING IN THE FANWOOD BOROUGH

A large number of sales of lots in the borough have been reported in the last few days and as all the buyers have the intention of building in the near future, local contractors should have a busy fall and spring. Those sales recorded with the assessor are as follows:

Engelbert Glattes, New York, lot 1, block 3, section 1; Rachel Riblet, Fanwood, lot 3, block 23, section 3; Eugene Rau, Bayonne, lot 4, block 23, section 3; Anna Thorn, Plainfield, lots 5 and 15, block 27, section 3; Harold S. Sheffield, lot 28, block 35, section 3; Amiee Weeks, Fanwood, lots 19 and 20, block 37, section 3; Fanwood Realty Co., New York, lots 4 and 5, blocks 29 and 42, section 4; Emilie Albertz, Fanwood, lot 15, section 6; Mary Ann Gottlick, Westfield, lot 12, block 38, section 3; Ada Miller, Westfield, lot 17, block 20, section 2.

COUNCIL ADOPTS BUDGET FOR 1917

Will Be Submitted to Voters For Approval at the Coming Election.

$4,850 IS REQUIRED

$100 Is Appropriated to Fight Disease—Luke A. Pandick is Appointed Special Policeman—Bills Approved and Paid.

The budget for 1917 was adopted by the Fanwood Council last night and will be submitted to the voters for approval at the coming election. It calls for $100 more than last year and represents a total of $4,850. The budget is divided into four parts, as follows: Police, $950; streets, $1,800; lights, $1,600 and general fund, $500. The light account is the only one to get an extra appropriation.

Upon the recommendation of the Board of Health the Council appropriated $100 to be used in taking precautions against infantile paralysis. A number of bills incurred by the Board in employing an inspector and making inspections were approved and paid. A list of violators prepared by the police committee of those that have overflowing cesspools was given to the Board of Health, with instructions to compel those on the list to comply with the ordinance.

Following the report of the street committee that people from out of town were using the borough dump it was decided to have the marshal keep a watch out for those who use it and have them arraigned for violating the health code. A list of owners of dogs that have not paid their license will also be given to the marshal, it was decided, with instructions to force them to get licenses. The sum of $25 was appropriated for a volume of the revised laws of the State for Recorder Sheelen.

Because the Council felt they needed additional police protection in the borough in case of emergency, Luke A. Pandick, of North avenue, was appointed a special marshal without pay. He will not have to do regular duty, but in case he is needed by Marshal Logan he will respond.

The cash on hand was reported as being $2,222.29, and bills were audited and paid totaling $325.47.

LOCAL CHURCH TO BUILD $10,000 PARISH HOUSE

The congregation of All Saints' Episcopal Church is now working to raise a $10,000 fund to build a parish house and rectory. The announcement of a gift of seventy-five feet of land on the south side of the church will be a great help.

The church was started in the Memorial Parish House in 1873 and the present structure was completed in 1889. The church is observing its forty-second anniversary this year and expects to have the two new buildings by the time the fittieth is reached.

BOROUGH AND TOWNSHIP REPAIRING WESTFIELD ROAD

Gradually, after years of discussion and disagreement, the street departments of the township and borough are getting the thoroughfares that form the boundaries between the two places repaired. Work has now been started on the repairing of Westfield road, a street that has been in an almost impassable condition for several years. The expense of all such work is stood jointly by both the borough and township.

Through the sharpness of one of those instrumental in the formation of the borough, the boundary lines of Fanwood were all made on the inside gutter of the roads running along the border. Because of this the borough people have contended ever since that the roads belonged to the township, and the township people thought that the roads belonged to the borough as much as to the township. As a result neither town would keep the roads in repair and it was not until the agreement of a short time ago was reached that anything was done.

G. A. R. TESTIMONIAL.

Over one hundred and fifty people attended a testimonial party given to Mrs. W. S. Corey, of Park avenue, Wednesday night by the Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., of Plainfield. Mr. Corey was a prominent member of the Post until his death a year ago. Music was enjoyed during the evening, a duet being rendered by the Misses Michael, and others playing the piano and violin. Refreshments were served before the party broke up.

STONY HILL DANCE.

The young people of the Stony Hill Catholic church have completed arrangements for the regular monthly dance to be held in the parish house tomorrow night. On August 18 another dance will be held. Besides there will be a minstrel show and sketch. Music will be supplied by an out of town orchestra and refreshments will be served.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH.

The congregation of the All Saints' Episcopal church is now engaged in trying to raise a fund of $10,000 to build a parish house and rectory. The announcement that the C. M. Bell estate has given a plot of land, seventy-five by a hundred and fifty feet, as a site for the rectory has spurred the workers to greater efforts.

SHACKAMAXSON CLUB NEARING COMPLETION

Features of New Golf Club Taking Form and Whole Will Be Ready By Spring

Work on the Shackamaxson Golf Club in the Willow Grove section of the township is now nearing completion and it is only a matter of a few weeks before the entire eighteen holes are ready for use. W. R. Nelson, on whose property the club is located, has had an attractive booklet printed, explaining about the club and showing pictures of different parts of the course.

Although the links themselves will be completed shortly, work on the clubhouse, skating house and summer houses has not been far advanced, but will be completed during the winter. The improvements to "Lambert's" pond to permit swimming will not be completed this year, but it is expected that the skating shed will be ready for use by cold weather.

By the time next spring rolls around the entire club and links will have been completed. The park around the pond will be finished by that time and the pond will be walled up on three sides and sloped into a beach on the fourth. It will take time to complete the clubhouse with grill room, sleeping quarters, gymnasium, wide verandas and other features and it will probably be the last thing to be ready for use.

JOTTINGS.

Henry Albert, of Scotch Plains, has taken a position with the Hall Signal Works of Garwood.

There will be no more meetings of the Lend-a-Hand Society of the Baptist church until fall, they being discontinued on account of the hot weather.

Bradley Barrett, of Westfield road, has returned to his position in New York after enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

THREE TAX DELINQUENTS.

When Collector Charles Sheelen holds the annual tax sale of Fanwood Borough on August 22 it is highly probable that there will not be any properties to sell. When the sale was first advanced there was the largest number of delinquents on the list in all the seventeen years Mr. Sheelen has been collector, but now there are only three left and the collector is sure of adding another year to his record.

EPWORTH LEAGUE MET.

The monthly business meeting of the Epworth League of the Methodist church was held in the church last night. Work will be started shortly on the improvements to be made to the church. Sam Macauley has been awarded the contract for installing the water. Heat is also to be installed and the roof will be repaired.

Moldenke, pastor of St. Peter's Lutheran church, of New York, officiated. There was a large gathering of relatives and friends and many floral tributes. The pallbearers were: Edward T. Canning, Edward Cooper, Robert Luerssen and William Cooper. Interment was made in Hillside Cemetery.

The Christian Endeavor meeting will be held tomorrow evening in the church. Arthur H. Meyers will be the leader and the topic will be "Consecration of Friendship."

SEVERELY BURNED EXTINGUISHING FIRE

Amanda VanBenschoten Carelessly Drops Match and Starts Fire.

As Amanda Van Benschoten, the 13-year-old daughter of Mrs. Cornelia Van Benschoten, of Prospect avenue, was retiring last evening she struck a match, which she allowed to burn close to her fingers and then threw away. Supposing that the match had dopped to the floor and had gone out, she got into bed and went to sleep. The lighted match dropped among the bed clothes, causing a fire which smouldered for some little time.

Amanda was awakened about ten minutes or so after she dropped into a sleep by flames which were rapidly consuming the bedding. She yelled "fire" and her brother Charles and a boarder, Elmer Winsor, responded. They put the blaze out, smothering it with rugs. Before they succeeded in doing this, however, the bed clothes had been consumed and the mattress half destroyed. A physician was summoned as soon as possible to attend to Amanda, who was burned about the arms and suffering from shock.

EXPERTS STUDY PARALYSIS IN N. Y.

Nation's Greatest Men In Conference On Dreaded Disease.

New York, Aug. 3.—Confronted by the news that the last twenty-four-hour infantile paralysis report showed 166 new cases and 41 deaths, a score of visiting and local expert bacteriologists and pathologists began a two-day conference this morning in the faculty room of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, 435 West Fifty-ninth street.

Public and press alike are to be excluded, according to Health Commisisoner Emerson. The permanent chairman probably will be Dr. Simon Flexner, of the Rockefeller Institute. The experts will deal with every phase of poliomyelitis and several clinics at the hospitals are part of the program. As a result of the conference there will follow a country-wide series of laboratory investigations in an effort to determine how the disease is transmitted and how it can be cured.

NO CURE YET FOUND FOR INFANTILE PARALYSIS

New York, Aug. 3.—Dr. Haven Emerson, health commissioner, admitted today that, so far as the medical profession was concerned, a cure for infantile paralysis had not been found, and that he expected before the cold weather set in, in September, there would be 5,600 cases in Greater New York. The cold weather, he said, would be a great means of wiping it out.

PARIS SHOWS FISHIONS FOR WOMEN FOR 1917

Paris, Aug. 3.—What will be the fashion in winter dresses was revealed today, when new models were placed on view. The exhibition marked the opening of the August displays and was attended by many buyers, who, contrary to anticipation, were not prevented by the strike of the mantle makers in New York from coming to Paris.

Longer skirts and coats, with the elimination of the big hip, are the predominating features in the new styles.

Skirts are less full, but still are far from skimpy. The tendency to enlarge the sleeves near the shoulder is growing more marked, but we still are safe from the leg of mutton infliction which has been threatening for some time.

TWO PATIENTS ESCAPE FROM MORRIS PLAINS

Morris Plains, August 3.—Two inmates of the New Jersey State Hospital for the Insane wandered away from the institution yesterday afternoon. One has been taken into custody and returned to the institution, and the police and hospital authorities are conducting a search for the other.

Mrs. Anna Hobson, 31 years old, managed to get outside of the hospital grounds while walking with other patients during the afternoon. She was observed shortly afterard on the Scotch road by Henry Eggert, who was attracted by her garb and her peculiar actions. Mr. Eggert induced her to return with him to the hospital.

Joseph Nolan, who also made his getaway during the afternoon, is still at large. Nolan was committed to the hospital from Trenton, having been picked up while wandering about the street. He had previously been a patient in similar institutions in other States.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Miss Frances A. Kellor, chairman of the Women's National Committee of the Hughes Alliance, who has taken upon her shoulders the huge task of bringing together the women of the United States in a line-up for the Republican nominee, is a noted sociologist, and the author of many books in behalf of the "submerged ten thousand" which have had a wide appeal. She was born at Columbus, O., and is a lawyer, trained for her profession at Cornell and at the University of Chicago. She was once vice-chairman of the Commission for Immigrants in America, and is a member of the National Americanization Committee. Besides her books, her views on the subject of the immigrant, which are fearless and radical, are expressed in the Immigrants in America Review, of which she is editor. Miss Kellor was once a prominent pillar of the Progressive party and chairman of its National Service. Her swinging around to the Hughes orbit will be of immense value to the Republican organization in its efforts to secure the support of women voters in both Progressive and Republican ranks.

Miss Dorothy Potter, daughter of a Chicago millionaire, has organized at Ovando, Mont., near her summer home, what has been called the first "preparedness church" in America. Finding the local non-sectarian Protestant church about to disband because of an empty treasury, Miss Potter promised every assistance from her papa's and her own capacious pockets to start the church on its feet again if it would only devote one service each Sunday to patriotism and the cause of preparedness. The farmers and woodsmen comprising the membership agreed readily and immediately raised sufficient guarantees. Besides, the news and novelty of the patriotic services of the "preparedness church" have brought new adherents who had never had any interest in the church whatsoever. The clever and patriotic Miss Potter is a daughter of E. C. Potter, a director of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

A fashion note both patriotic and decidedly novel has been struck by Englishwomen, who are wearing "national petticoats," embroidered with the heraldic emblems of Britain or of her allies. The coats of arms of Russia, France, Italy and Belgium, with the Union Jack, are now as familiar a design on milady's underskirts as the pink baby ribbon, tissue roses, silk ruches and bows and ruffles of more ordinary and less heroic days. Even unfortunate Serbia and little Montenegro are not overlooked, and their colors and crest may be admired worked out in brilliant silks on the edge of a pretty girl's petticoat when she prepares to cross one of London's muddy streets. The patriotic petticoat is not only pretty and novel; it also serves the practical purpose of giving employment to women embroiderers who otherwise might suffer for work. Belgian women refugees in London have been the chief workers on the novel skirts.

Miss Lotta Crabtree, once one of the feted idols of the American stage and now nearly 70 years of age, has joined the artist colony at Gloucester, Mass., and recently began the study of art. Last year Miss Crabtree made the long journey from her home in New York to the San Francisco Exposition, where she had her "day" and was entertained like a queen, the Golden Gate city having been the scene of her first and her greatest triumphs. She went on the stage at the age of 6 and retired with a large fortune. She never married.

Mrs. Margaret T. Watson, widow of David T. Watson, of Pittsburg, a famous international lawyer, recently died, leaving an estate of $2,500,000 to maintain a home for white crippled female children, to be established at the magnificent country residence of the Watsons, "Sunny Hill," near Leetsdale, Pa. Useful trades and a "common sense education" for those who are taken into the home are specific instructions in the will, which bequeathed only a sum of $100,000 altogether to relatives, friends and servants of the deceased.

Dr. Rhoda Erdmann, who has been appointed lecturer in biology at Yale for the coming year, the first woman to be elected a full member of the Yale faculty, has received further recognition at the hands of the Rockefeller Institute, which has appointed her associate in the department of animal pathology. With the appointment of Dr. Erdmann on the faculty, the Yale Corporation has also decided to admit women to the Yale School of Medicine. They will be admitted only in limited numbers at present, and must bring credentials that their equipment will insure continuance of the high standards of the institution.

Anti-suffragists often refer with some bitterness and contempt to the "fat suffrage purse," the allusion in this traveling most directly to Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, whose vast wealth and administrative ability have made her a dominant figure in the equal suffrage movement during the last dozen years. Mrs. Belmont has pledged herself to raise a fund of half a million to secure the passage of the Federal amendment granting suffrage to women. She was one of the foremost among the women active in the organization of a woman's party during the national conventions. Her gifts to civic causes are numerous and generous, and she also shapes events by her prolific and polemical writings and many interviews. She is a Southern woman, the grand-daughter of General Robert Desha of Tennessee, of Civil War fame, and was first married in her early girlhood to William K. Vanderbilt, whom she divorced.

If Mr. Hughes is elected president there will come to the White House a woman who will forever refute the common belief that one cannot be at one and the same time a "college woman" and an "old-fashioned home woman." Mrs. Hughes is essentially a college woman, is a connoisseur in old engravings, in classical music and the highest forms of European literature, is, in fact, distinctly a "high brow" type as much as her distinguished husband, and yet all who know her well describe her as a woman with whom home, wifehood and motherhood are a consecration. She is a slender, charming woman, with dark hair and blue eyes with a twinkle in them. Because of her slenderness and the youthful gaiety of her smile, she looks about ten years younger than her 52 years. She studied for three years at Wells College in Western New York, which was also, by the way, the alma mater of the wife of President Cleveland, and afterward spent two years at Wellelsey College, Massachusetts, on special courses. Her daughters are like herself of the studious type. The elder, Miss Helen, was a Vassar girl; the second, Miss Katherine, will enter Wellesley in the fall.

The adoption by American women as the latest mode of hairdressing of the high, round, ornate comb worn by Spanish belles of fifty or sixty years ago is one of the most interesting and picturesque fashion conceits of the day. The natural vivacity and piquancy of the American woman's face makes the coquettish ornament fully as becoming to her as to the charming Andalusians, famed for their wondrous hair and their bewitching and complicated coiffures. Some predict that American women, keenly alive to the artistic in dress, will not stop at the Spanish comb, but will for the summer adopt the Spanish mantilla for evening wear. In a few of the fashionable resorts, this beautiful head dress, probably the most becoming ever devised for a young and beautiful face, has already made its appearance, along with other manifestations of the "Spanish note" which is now the slogan in modish circles.

ANCIENT WAR WEAPONS.

The Battleax, the Halberd and the Armor Smashing Mace.

Probably nobody ever enjoyed being killed in battle. But there is certainly a choice as to how the job could be done. If you had to pass out, how much nicer it would to have a high class swordsman turn the trick! He'd go to work so courteously and do such a neat, genteel job that you couldn't help feeling you had died in good society. But nothing of the sort about being killed with an ax. This would be one of the most untidy ends a man could meet.

The big hatchet, however, and its various descendants were long favorites for taking people apart, and even at the time that everything which could cut was made of flint it was in popular demand.

Later on we find the real battleax the favorite weapon of the Celts and the Scandinavians.

The halberd was the next step (up or down, as one looks at those things). This was a combination of ax and spear; a broad blade backed with a hook and tipped with a spear point, all mounted on a six foot haft. Humane chap who got it up! It was invented to give a single man on foot a chance against one on horseback. And it did. If you missed your jab you could still take a healthy swing with the ax or pull him off his horse with the hook. A whole regiment with spears might hold off a cavalry charge, but in individual contests the soldier with the halberd stood the better chance.

The ax was especially favored by the Swiss, and they did so nicely with it that it spread and became the principal weapon of central Europe for nearly 200 years. One English variation, the bill, had more of a sickle shaped blade; but, like the other, it was effective. After one big blow you had a case for the coroner, not the ambulance.

Other cheerful products of those days was the mace. This was a club of iron or steel, blossoming out at the business end into projecting ridges of metal. The operator grasped it with both hands, gave it a whirl and then smashed his opponent. Armor was useless; it crushed right through.

Philip II. of France had a royal bodyguard of sergeants-at-arms, who carried maces—real ones. King Richard I. took up the idea, but after awhile the good, stout old weapon lost its punch, so to speak. It got to be only a symbol of authority, a pretty ornament at fancy ceremonies. The house of commons in London has one dating back to 1649. It has the royal crown on top and is lugged around from time to time to show the king is boss.

It occasionally happens that a member of our own congress gets obstreperous and won't behave when the speaker talks nicely to him. Then the latter gives the order, and the sergeant-at-arms comes down the aisle, carrying the big silver mace. This means that Uncle Sam has stood all he plans to stand and that the row must stop at once.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

TRAFFIC IS RESUMED.

Traffic over the new bridge on Grove street was resumed this morning, the contractors having completed the macadamizing of the thoroughfare with amiesite. The new structure is one of the most attractive in this section.

AUTOMOBILE DELIVERY.

An attractive automobile is now used for the delivery of parcels post packages in Plainfield and North Plainfield, taking the place of a horse and wagon used for that purpose.

WARNING AGAINST ADVERTISED NOSTRUMS

No Drug Is Known to Either Cure or Prevent Infantile Paralysis.

Trenton, August 3.—The State Department of Health advises all people in the State to beware of advertised nostrums for the prevention or cure of infantile paralysis. In a statement concerning the matter given out this afternoon, the State Department emphasizes the fact that no drug is known to either prevent or cure this disease, and deplores the reported appearance at this time of secret mixtures advertised as preventives or cures. The statement reads as follows:

"The State Department of Health strongly advises people to place no credence in any claims that may be made for nostrums or secret preparations advertised to the public as preventives or cures of infantile paralysis. No such preventive or cure has yet been discovered. Tests are now being made to determine the value of a suggestion or two that have come from reputable sources, but no conclusions can yet be drawn. Should any remedy of real value be discovered, full information concerning it will be given to the medical profession so that any well informed physician can use it. This is the course always pursued with medical discoveries that have merit.

"It cannot be emphasized too strongly that at present no drug is known that will either prevent or cure infantile paralysis, and that no drug has yet proven to have even a beneficial effect in all cases. While various authorities believe that some drugs are of value in the treatment of the disease, none should be given except by a physician who knows the effect to be expected and who can watch results. None of them are secret preparations, and all are avafable for use by any physician.

"The only preventive measures that have a sound scientific basis consist in such measures of isolation, quarantine and the destruction of discharges as have been found effective in preventing the spread of diseases like diphtheria, scarlet fever and typhoid fever. More drastic measures than these are neither warranted by present knowledge nor supported by law.

"The one thing that has been found of most value in treatment of infantile paralysis is rest. There should be absolute rest in bed for three weeks after the onset of the disease, and the completely paralyzed muscles should have rest for a considerably longer period. The physician, of course, must be the judge as to the time in each case.

"After the period of complete rest, the next step in treating infantile paralysis is designed to prevent deformity and restore the use of the paralyzed muscles, and consists in the re-education of these muscles. The one thing to remember then in the treatment of infantile paralysis is that for the first few weeks there should be rest, more rest, and then more rest, until the time comes for beginning the re-education of the paralyzed muscles.

"Advertised remedies are of no value except to make money for the advertiser, who is willing to derive profit from the fears and misfortunes of others. Give no heed to advertisements that make promises impossible of fulfillment. No physician in good standing with the medical profession will advertise a secret remedy to the public for the purpose of profiting by its sale."

RELATIVES OF SOLDIERS NOW ON BORDER MAKING TEXAS REAL SUMMER RESORT

Railroads Want Those Who Usually Go to Europe, to the Seashore or to the Mountains to Visit Their Soldier Sons on Rio Grande.

Interesting Little Side Lights on Camp Life — Men Anxious to Return Home and Are Betting on the Date That They Will Break Camp.

TEXAS a summer resort? This may sound like a joke at first, but that is exactly what the stay of the national guardsmen at the border is going to make out of the Lone Star state. Hundreds of the elite of the effete east and the fashionable north who ordinarily seek Europe for their summers when there is no war there or who usually turn to the seaside resorts or the mountains are now on the border, and many others are going.

They are the fathers, mothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts of the "boys" from New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and other big cities who now are sweltering along the Rio Grande—nothing "grand" or "big" about that creek but its high sounding name, by the way—waiting for word from Washington to cross the international boundary and go after Villa—or Carranza or Zapata or anybody else.

The passenger agents on all the railroads coming into Texas got together and filed with the interstate commerce commission at Washington an application to have cheap round trip railroad rates made effective to Texas points this summer. Low rates are sought for the benefit of the many people desiring to visit relatives and friends who are numbered among the 100,000 militiamen engaged in border patrol duty.

A telegram was sent to the interstate commerce commission requesting the necessary authorization, and it is believed this will be given without delay. In view of the exceptional circumstances the opinion is general among railroad men that the desired tariffs will be prepared and made effective within ten days or two weeks.

The rates requested are approximately the same as the winter tourist rates applying to Texas from northern and eastern points, one and one-third fare for the round trip. The interstate commerce commission has been asked to make these cheap summer rates from St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago, New York and points beyond the gateways from which militia movements have originated to San Antonio, Brownsville, Laredo, Eagle Pass, El Paso and other border points where militia organizations are stationed.

At the present time summer excursion rates do not apply to Texas from other parts of the country. A person coming into the state from a distance cannot purchase a round trip ticket and effect a saving on the straight fare. It is to remedy this situation for the benefit of the families of guardsmen that the passenger agents made their application. The excursion tickets will be good until next May.

The question of going home continues to be the chief topic of the camp discussion and betting at McAllen among New York troops. In the cavalry, where, according to one estimate, between $3,000 and $4,000 already has been laid, the odds at present are 3 to 1 that the order to entrain will not be received before the 1st of September.

It is assumed, though, that it will be transmitted shortly after. One bet of $100 was made by a private of Troop E, First cavalry, at those odds. It is estimated that $500 has been wagered altogether in the second squadron of that regiment. In the Seventh perhaps an average of $100 to a company, or $1,200 altogether, has been placed at even money. Aug. 15 is the date about which most of the betting centers. This date probably is to be credited to a "rumor club," which recently started the story that the troops were to be sent home on "the 15th," but without stipulating whether it was to be Aug. 15 or Jan. 15.

The view expressed by Major General O'Ryan that the troops might eat their Christmas dinner on the border finds few to second it in camp. In the First cavalry a wager of 5 to 1 was offered that the guard would not remain here until Christmas, but there were no takers.

Making full allowance for legitimate desire of the men to return home if they are not here to serve the purpose for which they enlisted, it is pointed out by observers that the national guard has been planked down in the nest which to a large extent it prepared for itself.

New Hair Cut For Society.

Major Cornelius Vanderbilt has adorned himself with a hair cut known in sporting circles as a "bush leaguer." It includes shaving the back of the neck from a line across the base of the skull down to the collar. This hair cut is favored by professional baseball players.

The fact that it has the sanction of Major Vanderbilt will undoubtedly give it a vogue on Fifth avenue and Broadway, where it has been taboo.

Camp Life Depicted.

"With the novelty of being a soldier fast disappearing and their mind set upon their work, the guardsmen of the Second infantry of Philadelphia are now down to it good and hard," says one letter. "From reveille until taps the citizen soldiers are doing their bit. The three hours' drill and hike which each company received five mornings out of a week have made a phenomenal change among the rawboned rookies—in fact, enough to make the average regular take notice.

"The ranks include men who are from virtually every walk of life—from a laborer to a banker, marching and working shoulder to shoulder in their khaki uniform, answering the same mess call, all temporarily putting aside their families, friends and business, showing their 'red, white and blue blood' by answering the call to uphold the dignity of Uncle Sam.

"From noon until taps the boys have much time to themselves, which is spent in various ways, as playing ball, taking trips up the mountain, going to town, while others read and some sleep in their tents, and still some play cards and others answer letters from their loved ones. In the evening there are the band concerts and lots of singing among the men. In fact, there is not a company in the regiment that does not contain talent, some of which is very good, but it all helps to keep the idle moments from being dull."

After Dr. Darlington.

Investigators headed toward McAllen may take due notice that Dr. Thomas Darlington, former health commissioner of New York, felt that after he had been waited on by a committee of citizens of McAllen he would be safer under a military escort. The alert doctor was not long in ignorance of the fact that a Texas officer of the peace, armed with a large, brilliant revolver, had been inquiring about him at camp and speaking of spattering of lead and other unpleasant things in connection with anybody who would asperse the health giving qualities of the McAllen water.

Dr. Darlington was not seen about McAllen after his meeting with the citizens' committee. When he left these parts he went in an auto to a railroad station outside McAllen, and it is reported that he was escorted by a soldier carrying three revolvers, who was furnished at the doctor's request by Major Wright of the First cavalry. Dr. Darlington, as befitted an old campaigner and badger lassoer, carried a pistol, but not openly. It was in his valise. Incidentally the regret that the departure of Dr. Darlington spoiled the prospects of the biggest badger fight ever pulled off on the Rio Grande has not abated.

White Elephant.

The Eighth Illinois regiment has a white elephant on its hands, or, rather, in the guardhouse. It consists of seven men who refused to sign the federal muster at Springfield and were brought to San Antonio as prisoners. Were it not for red tape Colonel Denison would gladly order the guardhouse sentries to let them escape or even spur their escape.

As it is, the judge advocate's department is the only authority that can release the men.

The guests themselves form a restful colony. After reaching San Antonio the seven consented to be mustered in, but were found physically unfit. They are, however, the most provokingly healthy "unfits" a regiment ever boarded. Eat, sleep and eat.

The question all hinges on how to get the men home. Who pays the fare? They are not government men. Who pays the mess? They are not in the federal service. Who pays their salaries? Government didn't hire them.

Colonel Denison put the problem to Brigadier General Hill, and he passed the buck to the judge advocate's department. Things sent to the judge advocate's department come out after much delay.

Didn't Need a Fork.

Captain Hamlet C. Ridgway of E company, First Illinois infantry, has passed the man who eats peas with a knife by a good many bounds. There was a shortage of mess kits in camp. Captain Ridgway said he could make out without one. He went to his bag, came back and started to eat. For awhile the officers couldn't make out what sort of trowel he was stoking himself with. Then he laid it down—and it was a safety razor.

With a little salt breeze blowing one could easily fancy himself at sea if he hung around the mess tent of the machine gun company of the First Illinois. The cook, John V. Steger, otherwise known as "Dynamite," and his assistant, Will Willing, are both ex-navy men. And their jargon is all seafaring. Instead of "Put the tent fly over the buzzycot," which is army stuff, they say, "Put the rigging over the gallery." A plain bucket is "the scuppers," and the potato masher is a "belaying pin." But, as the men fervently assert, the sailors are "dinged fine chefs."

City Men Stronger.

Military men say the bodies of city lads are more responsive to military training than those of their rural brothers, and this is supported by the regimental sick rolls. The Eighteenth Pennsylvania infantry, made up exclusively of city reared men, has only eleven men in the regimental hospital and none in the base hospital at Fort Bliss, while the records of the Tenth infantry, having many farmers, show forty-two in regimental hospital quarters and one in the base hospital. The Sixteenth infantry, another organization made up of country youths, has two officers and five men in the base hospital and twenty-six men in the regimental hospital.

Major G. A. Dillinger, medical officer of the First Pennsylvania artillery, has observed the same of the men of that organization. Nearly all of the men in the hospital quarters are from the country districts.

Not a Mexican.

Captain J. T. Slawitsky of I troop, Illinois guard, was dozing in front of his tent one forenoon when somebody tapped him on the shoulder.

"Beg pardon, sir," said a big bronzed faced fellow, "but if you are the commander of this outfit I want to tell you something. I don't know whether yo' boys think I am a Mexican, but for two straight nights somebody from this yere camp has been shooting at me. I came over here to identify myself. I am a Texan. Been living here twenty years. You just tell them boys it would be mortifying to me if one of them put a bullet in me thinking they had shot a Mexican. I am just a railroad man."

Maybe that is where all these Mexican scares are coming from.

He Wouldn't Quit.

Private Thomas Connors' father has had his trouble for his pains. Private Thomas Connors is of Battery C, Illinois national guard, his family wealthy and influential. The elder Connors, who knows how to go about things, arranged through the war department to have his son discharged. The war department dutifully did the Connors' bidding, and the order arrived in camp.

Young Connors kicked. He said it was a disgrace, or words which would assay about so much gold a ton, and he went to General Funston with a full heart to pour out. As a result of Connors' spunk, a second order was issued delaying the operation of the first until the young man's own side of the case can be presented to Washington.

"And if they discharge me," said Connors, "I am going to enlist again within the hour. So what's the use?"

Pershing Starts Baseball.

Baseball is being taken up by the punitive expedition as a diversion to work off surplus energy. Funds from the boxing carnival will be used to purchase baseball bats at headquarters. General Pershing has directed the regiment commanders each to name an athletic officer to take charge of the sports and to schedule eighteen baseball games for the camp championship. It has been arranged in advance that the winner will play the headquarters baseball team for the championship. The boxers are now training for the next series of bouts. Work of constructing the adobe houses practically has been completed until the camp looks like a permanent mud city. The caterpillar tractor arrived after a trip of a hundred miles from the border, pulling a scraper, roller, excavator and other machinery.

Tobacco For Men.

Pittsburgh suffragists lead the nation's women in taking the first step to provide tobacco for the men who have laid aside workaday tasks at the call to arms. The Border 'Baccy Fund club has been organized in that city and is busy collecting money to help the lads in khaki while away weary hours. Many such funds are certain to follow, and it is easy to foresee that the troops will have liberal allowance of the fragrant weed.

This calls to mind that one of the most insistent appeals of the world war has been the fighting man's cry for tobacco. Dame Nicotine has been the true sister of mercy to the men in the trenches, and practically every one of the belligerents has adopted tobacco as a part of the daily rations issued to troops.

Boys Can Enlist.

Secretary of War Baker has sent the following telegram to department commanders:

The secretary of war directs that no person under eighteen years of age shall be enlisted in the national guard, either with or without the consent of parents or guardians.

Minors over eighteen years of age may be enlisted in the national guard without the consent of parents or guardians after June 3. Any previous instructions not in accordance with the above are hereby revoked.

It is understood that the department reached its conclusion as the result of a test case in the District of Columbia courts in which parents attempted to have released a son who had reached the age of eighteen but is under twenty-one years. The case was fought by the adjutant general of the army.

It is understood the department has been informed that the national defense act of June 3 will sustain the position taken in the instructions.

Moving Day.

All of the troops took advantage of one fine day at Nogales, Ariz.—that is, all did but the Connecticut outfit. They were too busy moving to a new camp site. The camp established by the New Englanders on their arrival was not as favorable a spot as it might have been, and the heavy rains of the last few days drove them out. That night the canvas was stretched on a new and higher elevation just west of the cavalry and artillery outfits.

The Review of Reviews, of Plainfield and Its Business

The "Loyal" Plainfielder takes pride in the city's progress.

"Where do you live?" is frequently asked of travelers, and those travelers take pride, if they're loyal, in naming the city or town from which they came.

Plainfield "is" progressive; she's reached a period of decided progressiveness, preparedness.

The government of our city is doing wonders, the marks of progressiveness of our Council stand out in bold relief. As a mark of efficiency, national attention is attracted here to our automobile manufacturing, machine shops and printing press works, and other great plants.

And they're not over-night promotions, either, these industries, but, they're substantial institutions that have been tried and found true, by many long years of successes, through good, bad and indifferent times, and again, results, Plainfield stands on the brink of a still greater prosperity, so prosperous that not a hint of its inefficiency in any direction can be pointed to by the most jealous rival of our city's progress.

Our city has been most fortunate in avoiding ever, serious labor troubles, serious business failures, serious calamities of any kind that have been noted so frequently in many directions throughout the land—well, all things to Plainfield, "Plainfield Right or Wrong," but, Plainfield's right.

Our Plainfield retail mercantile establishments, what of them? Barring a very few, they have been successful to an extent made possible by a combination of the conservative and the progressive; both must go hand in hand to bring about successful results, and so Plainfield can point with pride to her retail mercantile establishments.

May we especially point out the stores of the members of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield? Stores that have had uninterrupted growth for as long as the oldest inhabitant can remember. But, in all their growth, nothing has equaled that of the past year; and incidentally, nothing has equaled that of the present spring season.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

I have heard that there is an acid solution or bath used by brass workers, clockmakers and others in which brass parts may be dipped and the brass will not be affected by the acid, which will, however, remove all dirt, grease and tarnish and the brass will come out of the bath bright and clean. Can you give me the formula for this acid bath and instructions for its use, advising, also, whether it must be kept in lead or glass containers?

The parts to be cleaned are first dipped into a solution of hot lye and then dipped into what is known as a bright brass dip. This is made up as follows: Two parts sulphuric acid to one part nitric acid with a tablespoonful of salt to each three and one-half gallons of acid. Care must be used in mixing. Put the sulphuric acid in a jar first, then add the nitric acid. Let this stand until it stops working or fuming, then add the salt. The parts to be dipped should be dipped first into the hot lye solution and then into the acid solution. Immediately after the acid dip the parts should be rinsed in cold water and given a second dip into the acid and then into the cold water to rinse them off. After this they should be dipped into very hot water and thrown into sawdust to dry.

How can a machine with four square feet of head resistance travel faster than one with six square feet if the motor speeds are the same, as are also the weight of the machines, horsepower, gear ratios and size of wheels?

If the motor speeds are both the same and the gear ratios and size of wheels are both the same both machines must travel at the same speed regardless of any other factors.

Why do some of the manufacturers leave the intake closed for some time after the exhaust valve is closed? Do they not cut down on volumetric efficiency by doing so?

The reason for the delayed opening of the intake is to create a vacuum in the cylinder which will cause the inlet gases to rush in and fill the cylinder. It takes a noticeable amount of suction to overcome the inertia of the gases, and this vacuum is left for the purpose of overcoming this inertia.

If the maximum speed of a motor is 4,200 revolutions per minute, with gear ratios and horsepower the same in both instances, would reducing the head resistance increase the speed of the car?

If the same maximum motor speed is obtained, the gear ratios being constant, the speeds must be equal, but neither the same maximum car speed nor the same motor speed would be obtained in two cars with different head resistance, but otherwise identical.

What is the best paint to use on the rim of a wheel to keep it from rusting?

Graphite paint is probably the best to use on the rim of a wheel to keep it from rusting.

I have a six cylinder car equipped with a disk clutch. The car is geared about three and three-tenths to one with a large wheel, and I have experienced trouble in clutch slippage. Not taking into consideration whether the clutch is too small or not properly constructed, would a lower gear ratio have a tendency to keep the clutch from slipping?

A lower gear ratio would tend to keep your clutch from slipping. The reason for this is that the amount of energy through any given period of time transmitted through the clutch is less with the lower gear ratio for a given car speed.

There are two factors in the transmission of horsepower. One is the foot pounds of energy, and the other is the time. If the time is increased the foot pounds energy is decreased. Since the revolutions per minute can be considered as a time factor it is quite evident that in transmitting a given horsepower through the clutch the energy at the clutch will be less when the speed of the crank shaft is higher.

What are self lubricating bearings? Does this self lubricating quality last as long as the life of the bearing? For what special work are they used?

Self lubricating bearings are those in which the fractional qualities of the bearing liners are such that they do not require the use of an additional lubricant. The self lubricating quality does not always last as long as the life of the bearing. For instance, in the case of wooden bearings where a treatment is given the wood by impregnation with a certain substance it is often necessary to renew the treatment. Bearings of phosphor bronze and compressed graphite, such as are used on brake shafts, are claimed to last the life of the car.

They have a wide variety of uses, for example: In friction shock absorbers of certain types wood friction discs are employed which are self lubricating, and in marine work the last bearing of the propeller shaft is lined with lignum vitae. This is a wood with lubricating qualities. As stated, the phosphor bronze and graphite are used in brake work and often for spring eye bushings.

How can a twelve volt generator be used with a six volt storage battery and six volt lamps?

It is a rather difficult proposition to use a twelve volt generator with a six volt battery. A twelve volt generator, if its fields are connected in series, can sometimes be changed to a six volt by connecting the field in parallel. The generator can also be made to develop six volts by cutting the speed in two. When this is done the generator, battery and lamp will work together, although the capacity of the generator will be limited to a considerable extent.

Can you tell me how to line up the front wheels of a car?

In lining up the front wheels the first thing is to make sure that the wheel bearings are properly adjusted. They should be just tight enough so that there is no side play in the wheels; but, on the other hand, they should not be so tight that the wheels bind and do not turn freely. This done, take a long stick or rod that will reach from the inner edge of one rim across to the inner edge of the other. Then measure the distance between the rim edges horizontally back of the center of the wheel. Mark this distance on the stick, and then try it on the rims horizontally in front of the wheel centers. The front distance should be one-fourth inch to three-eighths inch less than the distance across the back of the hubs. If you find these distances are not correct you can get the proper adjustment by taking up or letting out on the steering cross rod, which parallels the axle and runs across just back of it. First loosen the lock nut at one of the ends, then take out the pin that goes through the steering arm and yoke and screw the yoke out or in, as the case requires. Then check the wheel alignment again and tighten the lock nut.

My generator has stopped charging. I have tested the fuse and found it all right. I took the relay off, cleaned the brushes and commutator, then when it was started it charged, but the engine sat idle for a day, and when started again it failed to charge. On pressing the platinum points together on the automatic relay it did not show any discharge on the ammeter, but when lights are on the ammeter shows discharge. Can you tell me anything to do in this case?

Although you do not give sufficient data to diagnose accurately the trouble, the majority of similar complaints are due to loose connections. Therefore it is suggested that the first possible cause of the trouble is a break in the generator charging line. A loose connection at the relay or a loose or broken connection or broken wire in the generator charging line will, of course, prevent the generator from charging the battery and would prevent a discharge reading on the ammeter when the relay contact points are placed in contact.

You state that you have examined the relay fuse and found it all right. However, it is suggested that you pinch the fuse clips a little closer together to be sure that these clips are making good contact with the ends of the fuse.

As a third possible cause of this trouble there may be a small quantity of dust or dirt between the relay points. A very fine piece of sandpaper should be drawn lightly between these points and all dust carefully removed. A very small quantity of dust or dirt lodged between the points might prevent them from making good contact and would therefore prevent the generator from charging.

I should like to know the principle of operation of a gear pump. Will one operate against a pressure of five kilograms?

The principle of a gear pump is simple, as it consists merely of two gears rotating within a chamber. The pump chamber is so arranged that the side of the two gears coming into mesh are in the intake compartment and coming out of mesh in the exhaust compartment. The oil is led in and as the gears come into mesh it is picked up in the clearance space between the teeth and thrown out on the other side. By a pressure of five kilograms it is presumed that you mean a pressure of five kilograms per square centimeter. This is equivalent to about seventy pounds per square inch, which is slightly above the capacity of the usual gear pump.

Which motor develops the most power, the valve in the head, the L head or the T head? Providing they are of equal size, how much per cent of power does the one develop over the other?

The valve in the head motor is generally credited with giving slightly more power for the same size and weight of motor than either the L head or T head. The T head comes second in the matter of power for piston displacement. The L head gives slightly less power, but weighs less than the T head. This, of course, is assuming they are equally well made and well designed. As to the per cent of advantage of the different types, this depends entirely on such things as timing, valve sizes, port sizes, carburetion and a dozen other things.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, AUGUST 3, 1916.

Even those who are most interested in the epidemic of infantile paralysis that now stalks through New York city like a devouring monster, seeking the bodies of little children, have measured its work by the daily health reports. Only a little more than twenty per cent. of the children infected die, according to statisticans, but of the eighty per cent. left, almost half are paralyzed for life in some part of the body. This means thousands of boys and girls who are to start life with limbs dead and useless, some doomed to spend their days in bed. Those stricken in this manner number more than the dead, and their condition is all the more pitiable because most of them are offsprings of poor parents who are unable to properly care for an invalid.

Jersey City is closed to all freight shipments of explosives. Her own officials doubting the legality of the order, it has been decreed that no more dangerous freight cars are to be allowed to enter there after noon today, and the Commissioner of Public Safety will attempt to carry out the order. Railroad men will, of course, seek to prevent its enforcement as the recent congestion in this district has been due to the large amount of war munitions handled for shipment to the Allies, at enormous profits to the carriers. However, the municipality certainly has a legal right to protect the lives of its citizens and the Black Tom disaster will result in some action guaranteeing against a repetition of the explosions of last Sunday.

Courage will always win admiration. The little band of sailors that left Baltimore yesterday on the super-submarine Deutschland start their perilous journey with the good wishes of nine-tenths of the people in this country, irrespective of partiality in the European war. Fiction never dreamed greater dangers for her imaginary seamen. It is their duty to take a much-needed cargo to their Fatherland through waters infested with enemy warships. If they are caught they will die like rats, for they are unarmed, carrying not even the small pocket guns used by policemen. They left with their faces wreathed in smiles. May they still smile when they land safely at their destination.

Wescott is not to be admired for his courage in the matter, but he is to be commended for not carrying politics even further and making the special session necessary.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Not since the days of the famous "Raffles" series has there been a detective story so exciting, so full of adventure as "The Phantom," the latest Thomas H. Ince Triangle play in which Frank Keenan is starred, and which appears as the headline attraction at Proctor's today. With each succeeding production in which Mr. Keenan is starred critics of the photodrama declare that he is establishing a precedent in the matter of makeup for the various characters which he portrays. His best work in this line so far is said to be in "The Phantom." Keenan attributes his ability to his long experience on the stage, and experience which dates back to the beginning of his notable career in 1878. Like all actors who have been constantly before the public for such a long term of years, he has played many parts, the majority of which have demanded that he appear in strong characterizations. His appearance as Jack Rose, in "The Girl of the Golden West," which role he created, is one of the memorable achievements in the history of the speaking stage. His characterization of "Buck" Warren in "The Warrens of Virginia," has done more than any one thing, it is said, to establish a certain type of Southern gentleman in the minds of the American people. In addition to "The Phantom" today the Proctor management present one of thes world-famous Keystone comedies, certainly the best comedy creation on the market, and every one of which are sure laugh producers. The latest Mutual Weekly is an added attraction today.

On Friday, by special arrangement with the Selig Company, Kathlyn Williams, one of the pioneer picture stars, and the first artiste to appear in a serial production, will be featured in a thrilling story of love and adventure, entitled "Into the Primitive," a gripping feature of which is the appearance of the ferocious Selig lions, tigers and leopards throughout many scenes of the production. On Saturday Metro will offer Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in their latest film success, entitled "A Million a Minute."

PICTURES OF DEUTSCHLAND.

Moving pictures of the German submarine, the Deutschland, and her crew will be shown at Proctor's Theatre this afternoon and tonight. The undersea craft left Baltimore on Tuesday night on her return trip to Germany and last night announcement was made that she had successfully passed the three-mile limit on her homeward voyage. Patrons of the West Front street theatre who did not have an opportunity to see the previous pictures will be favored with another chance today.

NEW BORO PHYSICIAN.

Dr. W. B. Gray, a staff physician at Muhlenberg Hospital for the past year, has opened an office at 49 Somerset street, the borough, and is ready for practice here. Dr. Gray, who is a graduate of Jefferson Medical School, Philadelphia, has made a large circle of friends in both the city and borough during his stay here. He is attending the patients of Dr. Dundon while the latter is away on his vacation.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

Swatting the Fly.

A lonesome fly got in our house
One day not long ago;
The family armed itself at once
And started for the foe.

Potato mashers, frying pans
And baseball bats we got,
And broomsticks, and we started in
With might and main to swat.

We smashed three plate glass mirrors
And tore down the chandelier;
We broke a $40 vase
And wrecked the jardiniere.

It seems a shame to stop and think
What father's got to buy;
We swatted everything we could
But didn't swat the fly.

Why Worry.

Leave it to the bewhiskered old boys of science, they of the square spectacles and ear muffs, and this world will be pulled through its rather precarious existence. Some time ago somebody who needed the money wrote an alarmist article for a magazine stating that in a very short time, in fact within eight or nine million years, the earth's food supply would be entirely exhausted. That set all the scientists going like gyroscopes, and in the dizzy whirl of investigation some very interesting things came to light. It was up to the scientists to find something for the people to eat eight or nine million years hence. It was not wholly a new problem. Scientists long ago evolved the scheme of sawing up timber into breakfast food and said that a man could go forith with a bucksaw and get enough sawdust out of a fence rail to keep himself and his family supplied for some time.

One learned scientist thinks that he has solved the problem for all time. He says that the nut trees could, in a pinch, supply food for the entire world.

This knotty question has become a nutty question, and one which he has apparently solved. Those who are on earth now should be of good cheer; they will not have to starve eight million years hence.

I love to board the trolley car
And ride, it matters not how far
Upon a fine and breezy seat
I can defy the sultry heat.
I like the happy pick-up crowd,
The warning bells that clang so loud,
And when along the rails we zip,
It makes a fine and dandy trip.
I don't believe that I would care
To do my riding in the air
Like Beachey did or Orville Wright;
I like to know where I will light.
I don't call autoing much fun;
I almost never ride in one.
And carriage riding palls on me;
It's tame so far as I can see.
Somehow or other I don't like
To go out riding on a bike
And motor boating to my mind
Is riding of a tedious kind.
Of course, maybe some folk will think
That my idea is on the blink,
But I will tell the reason why
The street car ride I'm swearing by.
A simple hint will quite suffice,
It is a matter of the price.
The trolley way is, woe betide
The only way that I can ride.

Helpful Household Hints.

How to Make Curried Beef: First catch your beef and stretch it on the kitchen table, nailing it firmly at each end so it cannot get away. Then go to a livery stable and borrow a curry comb. Take the curry comb home with you and when you get there pass it rapidly over the beef with a motion which resembles that of shaking dice for chances in a raffle for a $3 diamond ring. If this process is kept up long enough the beef will be thoroughly curried. Curried rice is very nice, but rice is harder to curry than beef, because it is harder to nail to the kitchen table and will not stand while being curried.

What to Do With Superfluous Hair: Stuff a sofa pillow with it. If the sofa pillow will not hold it all put the rest in a bed tick.

How to Reduce Flesh and Become Sylphlike: Live at a $2 boarding house and split four cords of wood every morning before breakfast. If this does not reduce the flesh sufficiently eliminate the boarding house feature of the exercises daily.

OPTIMISTIC REPORTS ABOUT CANDIDACY

Col. Colgate Feels Sure of Being G. O. P. Nominee for Governor.

Newark, August 3.—Optimistic reports concerning the candidacy of Senator Austen Colgate for the Republican nomination for Governor, continue to come in from all sections of the State, according to his campaign manager, Frank J. Bock, former postmaster of Newark. While it is admitted that the colonel's campaign did not really get under way until very recently, it is claimed that in the short time it has been active—surprising results having been achieved. Emissaries have been sent to the different counties, with instructions to "dig up" influential Colgate men there and get them on the job. As a result, the Edge men in those counties have been put on their mettle.

As a sort of offset to the attempt which is being made by Edge workers to make inroads into the Colgate strength in Essex, Colgate workers are now starting an aggressive boom for their candidate in Atlantic. They are working with the idea that the strong opposition which developed against Senator Edge during the Atlantic City commission government election campaign can be used as a big asset for Colgate at the primaries.

The dominant idea which the Colgate managers are now trying to impress upon the Republican voters of the State is that Colgate would be the strongest candidate the party could nominate. They also give it out that the Democratic leaders don't want Colgate because he would be the hardest man to beat.

Daily conferences of Colgate leaders from different counties are being held at the headquarters, 45 Academy street. A general plan of organization throughout the State, determined upon at the conference at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, a week ago, is being perfected. It is intended to have Colgate campaign committees in each county. In a number of the counties headquarters have already been opened, under the auspices of a chain of organizations known as Colgate Republican clubs.

As Assistant Adjutant General of the State, Senator Austen Colgate finds it necessary to spend a good deal of his time at the State camp at Sea Girt. For that reason he has been unable to do any active campaigning this week. At headquarters here it is stated that his friends are working harder for him because of his inability to get out and hustle for himself as he would like to.

ICE CREAM FESTIVAL TONIGHT.

An ice cream festival will be held in the Sunday school rooms of Trinity Reformed Church tonight under the auspices of the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society. AND THERE'S ANOTHER HOT WAVE COMING WE CAN'T AVOID

ORDERS ISSUED TO RESUME RECRUITING

Troops Now Stationed at Douglas, Ariz., Are In Need of More Men.

Sea Girt, Aug. 3.—Announcement was made yesterday by Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., that the authorities at Governor's Island have issued orders to again begin recruiting for the troops now at Douglas, Ariz. A significant feature is that the recruiting is to be done in Camden, Perth Amboy and Elizabeth, towns from which no organizations have gone to the border. Captain Anthony W. Lamy, of Elizabeth, a medical officer, will recruit in that city; Captain E. W. Duffield, of the medical corps, who has been here with the Third Regiment and whose home is in Glassboro, will take up the work in Camden, and Captain James F. R. Long, of Mt. Holly, Co. E, Third Regiment, has been sent to Perth Amboy. The offices have already been established.

Colonel David S. Hill, chief of the quartermaster's staff, went to Governor's Island to try to hurry up contractors who furnished the State with horses during mobilization. Red tape has delayed the payment to such an extent that it was costing one horse dealer $100 a month for interest on the money he had tied up.

General Sadler gave out a letter yesterday which he received from Captain Samuel G. Barnard, of Battery B of Camden, denying reports about trouble which his men had when they reached El Paso at the time of mobilization. The captain tells of the arrival at El Paso and says the work of unloading started as soon as the cars were placed.

His comment on the weather at Douglas is interesting. "While the temperature here may run up to 108 or 110 degrees in the shade," he says, "it is quite bearable, and we are inclined to feel sorry for the people at home who have to bear the humid heat there. I would rather spend the summer in this climate than I would in Philadelphia."

COLUMBIA THEATRE.

The regular season of the Columbia Theatre will open Monday afternoon, August 7, when that house will return to its customary policy of changing the performance every week. For the initial attraction, Max Spiegel's production, called "The Merry Rounders," will be given. This is announced as the most pretentious of the many presentation of burlesque. The cast includes several of the most prominent players in this division of amusements, among them Abe Reynolds, George F. Hayes, May Latham, Ruth Wesley, Frank Ward, Eugene McGregor and Elizabeth Jane and there is a chorus that is said to be made up of girls chose for their comeliness and vivacity as well as for their vocal abilities, besides a large representation of male voices.

In selecting "The Merry Rounders" as its premiere attraction, the Columbia Theatre management was desirous of giving the start of the new season the advantage of a performance that could be relied upon to score a success of the kind that attracts unusual and widespread attention to the house, which is a valuable point to be achieved by a theatre having weekly changes of bill. During the brief summer vacation, the Columbia has been thoroughly renovated and redecorated and supplied with a number of innovations in its furnishment that are calculated to add to the comfort and convenience of its patrons.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

GOOD LUCK, DEUTSCHLAND!

Without forgetting or in any way departing from those excellent principles of neutrality so carefully announced by President Wilson at the beginning of the war, Americans unhesitatingly today pay renewed tribute to the daring and skill summed up in the Deutschland. The achievement of bringing the German merchant submersible to our shores challenged the world's admiration. With her start on an even more perilous voyage, because the veil of secrecy has been lifted, the test of her abilities and resourcefulness of her men is pronounced. Captain Koenig and his crew face smilingly the risks they run. To escape he net set for them will tax all their powers. When they put out for open sea may they have fair play and an even chance to add to their well-won laurels.—Newark Evening News.

MANOEUVERS NEXT AT CAMP FIELDER

Third Regiment Shows Such Improvement That Field Work Is Decided Upon.

Camp Fielder, Sea Girt, Aug. 3.—Two days' hard drilling for the rookies of the Third Regiment, N. G. N. J., who are here for a week, has effected such improvement that Colonel Thomas D. Landon yesterday decided to proceed with field manoeuvers. The morning was given over to drills by ten of the companies, the other two, B and M of Camden, spending the day on the rifle range.

Yesterday afternoon the First Battalion, commanded by Major Raymond G. Nixon, packed up light marching equipment, and at sundown departed for the country to the west of the camp ground. The units pitched their shelter tents to spend the night.

A medical officer has taken the band in hand, and is teaching them how to be of service in carrying wounded, giving first aid and similar work. Company buglers are being taught signal drills with flags, as are the members of the mounted orderly section.

Tomorrow Governor Fielder will review the regiment. Earlier in the day he will entertain politicians from South Jersey at luncheon at the Little White House. The guests will come from Camden, Atlantic, Burlington, Cape May, Salem, Gloucester and Cumberland counties.

Miss Merien Schenck, of this city, a cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, while Mrs. Robert Dress, of Reading, Pa., was the matron of honor. The best man was Richard Lauterbach, a brother of the bride. Following the wedding a reception took place, at which guests were present from Plainfield, Elizabeth, Reading, Pa., New York, Hoboken and Westfield.

BEGIN HOT WATER DRINKING IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is dull or aching; if what you eat sours and forms gas and acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisonous waste, gases and sour bile before putting more food into the stomach.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate which is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Men and women who are usually constipated, bilious, headachy or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast. They are assured they will become real cranks on the subject shortly.—Adv.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Hansel Finds Some Nice White Pebbles.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

WITH Jack on one side of him and Evelyn on the other, daddy began the bedtime story: "Once some parents were so poor that they decided to leave their children, Hansel and Grethel, in the woods. When Hansel heard them talking about it he decided to save his little sister from such a fate. So he got up one night and crept outdoors, where the moon shone so brightly in the courtyard that the white pebbles around the cottage glistened like daisies in the green meadows.

"So Hansel stooped down and putt as many pebbles as he could in his pocket. Then he went back into the house. 'Now, Grethel, sleep sweetly,' he told his little sister, and he went to bed and slept soundly himself.

"Early in the morning before the sun had risen the woodman's wife came and awoke them. 'Get up, children. We are all going into the woods,' she said. 'Here is a piece of bread for each of you, but take good care of it and keep some for supper.'

"Grethel took the bread and carried it in her apron because Hansel had his pocket full of pebbles, and together they all went into the deep woods.

"After they had walked on for a time Hansel stood still and looked back toward his home. He did this many times. Then his father said to him: 'Hansel, why do you keep looking back and lagging behind? Move on faster.'

"'Oh, father, I am stopping to look at my white cat that sits on the roof and wants to say goodby to me,' said Hansel.

"'You little fool,' cried his mother; 'that is not your cat—that's the morning sun shining on the chimney top.'

"Now, Hansel had not been looking for his cat, but all the time had been lagging behind to drop from his pocket, one after another, the little white pebbles along the wood path.

"When they came into the midst of the woods the father said, 'Run about, children, and pick up some wood, and I will make a fire to keep us all warm.'

"So they piled up a little heap of brushwood and set it on fire, and as the flames burned bright the mother said: 'Now, children, lie down by the fire and go to sleep, while your father and I go farther into the woods to cut trees. Be sure you wait here till we come back again and fetch you home.'

"Then the father and mother walked off into the woods, and the two little children sat down by the fire to wait," daddy ended the bedtime story.

"Couldn't you tell us more, daddy?" asked Jack.

And daddy waived him upstairs.

FIRST KELLERMANN LESSON FOR SWIMMERS TOMORROW

The Woman With the Most Perfect Figure In the World Tells Why Children Should Follow Her Lessons.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Doughter of the Gods."

As I stated in my article yesterday, swimming is an art and should be respected as such. I can say with perfect safety that only about 90 per cent. of the American swimmers I have seen have what is termed a perfect stroke. That is why I am certain that my course of dry-land swimming articles will accomplish such wonders.

I do not wish to appear ridiculous and say that after taking these dry-land lessons you will swim the moment you touch the water, but I do say that mastery of what I will teach you through this newspaper in just a few brief lessons will mean that within an hour after you enter the water you will be able to swim properly and with a good stroke.

Most of the swimmers I have seen while they were able to swim and swim for quite a distance, have a bad stroke. It is either ungainly or not finished and still they wonder why they are not champion swimmers.

Furthermore, if any one should tell these swimmers that their stroke is bad, the chances are they would not believe you and would say: "Well, what is the right way?"

Training You to Take the Perfect Stroke.

Perfection in swimming is just as important as in dancing. It is my purpose and intention to train my pupils through the Plainfield Daily Press so thoroughly in the art of making a perfect stroke that when the time comes for them to enter the water they will have nothing to think of except how to float.

I earnestly request fathers and mothers to influence their children to follow the Plainfield Daily Press course, for it will benefit them in a thousand ways.

Do not let the child enter the water and splash about making two or three strokes and then cry out: "Look, mamma," and above all things do not praise children at this stage. I ask all mothers to keep their children out of the water until they know how to swim properly.

Three or four yards covered in the water by a child of 10 or 12 years is considered quite an achievement in this country. But it should not be considered so at all.

Australian Children Wonderful Swimmers.

In Australia, the land of my birth, there are little boys and girls around the age of 12 who are wonderful swimmers and able to swim great distances.

That is just why I have desired to start this national swimming class through the Plainfield Daily Press, and a group of other influential papers. I figure that such a class can be kept , and that the interest it will create will mean the establishment of a definite body from which will spring hundreds of excellent swimmers.

A world's champion swimmer, undiscovered and unknown, will soon be in the making. Every one has an equal chance. It may be you who will reach that honored position—one that any king might be proud of.

So, make up your mind to join the Plainfield Daily Press swimming class and start with tomorrow's lesson.

Tomorrow, the breast stroke and how to make it. The way to practice at home on a chair, box or table. Be sure to clip out and save each lesson as printed.

If it's advertised today it is likely that it is of timely interest to you today.

Did you decide, not long ago, that you could not buy some particular thing because the price was a little too high? See if the store advertisements bring to you today any interesting "news" on this question.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

When I am feeling worried
(And oh, I often am)
And need a rest, unhurried,
Where all is nice and kam,
There's no place than can match, sir,
This truly rural spot,
Where I can sit and catch, sir,
The fish-ball while it's hot.

Ah, sir, this sort of angling
Is sport that's hard to beat,
For when your prize is dangling
It's ready cooked to eat.
And though life seems a fizzle,
It cheers me up a lot
To watch the fishballs sizzle
And catch 'em while they're hot.

A Son's Need; A daughter's responsibility.

No man ever lived a right life who had not been chastened by a woman's love, strengthened by her courage, and guided by her discretion.—Ruskin.

CHILD LABOR BILL.

The child labor bill has been burdened by the attachment of the immigration bill. The former bill is intended to prevent the employment of young children at heavy, confining labor, and has no possible relation to the immigration bill.

This move by the Republican party looks like a mere political trick for the purpose of putting the President in a hole.

The National Child Labor Committee has been confident of victory for their bill until the addition of this "rider," and it is still hoped that as Senator Borah has always been a friend of child labor reform, he will save himself and his party the embarrassment of being responsible for the defeat of the pesent child labor bill.

FOOD VALUES.

Food needs to be frequently given to little children but not constantly. Five times a day is advised under 5 years. The first and last meal in a day need to be light; the second and fourth scarcely heavier; the noon meal should be the substantial one each day. Children over 2 years are rarely overfed. The danger to them is wrong food or food at the wrong time.

As the food of children becomes more complex, they still need to eat few foods at a time, but from day to day to be ensured variety. Milk continues an important article of diet throughout childhood. Bread, after a child can digest it, should be part of the food of every meal.

As a child's food becomes more varied, it also becomes more solid. In infancy the need is for liquid food. In early childhood the food should be finely cut. So soon as a child can, it needs to chew well the food it eats. It cannot otherwise digest solid food. Thorough mastication is necessary for general health, also from the health of the teeth, of those that are and some that are to be. Water aids in keeping the system free from wasteproducts. Air makes possible the conversion of food into body-tissue, heat and energy.

Exercise makes a child's need for food felt and prepares it to use naturally the food that its growth and life requires.

HELPING THE BOY.

Especially should fathers learn to discriminate between the contrasting types of children in regard to will, the impulsive boy with the precipitate will, and the backward boy with the obstructed will. When a father can locate a boy under one or the other and thoroughly study the type he may understand why his son acts so queerly and discover the special treatment he needs to make him normal.

The father needs to know something of the power of suggestion. Though if he is shrewd and tactful he has already instinctively found his way to the secret of this powerful agency. Certainly he must know the awful and splendid possibilities of the law of habit that most important of all moral subjects.

The father should be taught the different kinds of habitual decisions, to discover how he may pigeon hole his boy's ordinary choices and how to help him to develop that nobility of character which comes not from emotion or impulse but from conscious choice. Is the boy's will naturally reasonable, or is it drifting or reckless or convertible or strenuous? The wise father will find out. Profit by his discovery in the guidance of his boy.

Lastly, the father should be encouraged to discover and arouse the boy's native interests, the secret springs of his enthusiasms and his truest ambitions. When they are identified, the formula is discovered by which many of the boy's life problems can be worked out with ease and satisfaction.

WILL PREPARE REPORT.

Armstrong Mulford, Charles L. Kling and H. C. VanEmburgh, commissioners to assess benefits for the macadamizing of East Fourth street, Filmore and Sherman avenues, will meet in Mr. Mulford's office tonight to prepare the final report for presentation to the City Council on Monday night.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

AND THE END IS NOT YET.

The filing of more damage suits against the former Federal League magnates revives a subject long ago consigned to the grave. But, Bill Bradley and Claude Cooper have started suits against the defunct Brookfeds, their action being the sixth suit against former Fed backers. There is a prospect of more following. The players have a pretty good chance of collecting if they go through with the action, as most of the defendants are wealthy business men, who gave their personal bond to the contracts while the frenzied finance stuff was being pulled. It would appear that these men, recognized as very shrewd in other lines of business, lost all conception of commerce when they entered the baseball business. The big percentage of suits by players are dropped, however, or compromised for a small percentage of the original figure, as the players do not have the funds, as a general rule, to go through the courts. They say that Bradley has the money, however, and his case may set a precedent for others.

ST. LOUIS TEAM SETTING RECORD.

The St. Louis American League team, by virtue of its winning streak of twelve games in a row, has set a record for that circuit. Due to the Browns' spurt the Yanks have been pulled from the league lead. The Browns have a percentage that is in itself a record for a seventh place combination. The club is in the race for the pennant just as much as any other team is. In fact, the only outfit in the Johnson league that is out of the dash for the flag is the Athletic combination. Poor Connie Mack holds out no hope for his youngters, but promises to present a much better team next year. Fielder Jones is setting the pace for all the leaders. The fielder always believed that in his collection of organized baseball and Fed players he had a strong combination. We have a sneaking suspicion that Jones was on the right track when he made statements to that effect. With Davy Davenport hurling "a la" Jone McGinnity, the St. Louis club is sure to present some interesting arguments before the close of the league season.

AND TESREAU NEEDS IT.

One of the well known sport writers states that the recent two-hit encounter hurled by Jeff Tesreau may give that pitcher encouragement. And Jeff is the gentleman who needs encouragement. He has been going very poorly this season and his showing has been a source of worry to John McGraw, who had almost decided to let the "Big Fellow" out or trade him for Babe Adams, the Pittsburgh hurler. Now that Jeff has uncorked a two-hit attraction it does not look as though he would be allowed to roam far from the New York premises.

YANK SLUMP TEMPORARY?

Bill Donovan believes the slump of the Yankee team is only temporary. The outfit bumped up against the Brownies just when the heat had affected the Fielder Jones outfit and when they started on a rampage that promises to eclipse the western drive of the Giants. Donovan kept his team fighting hard when his stars were being cut down right and left ,and a club that can do the things his did against such big odds is not to be counted down and out just because they are tangled up a bit now. The majority of the Yank injured crew is ready for emergency work and will be in the lineup regularly within another week. Then will come the big dash down the line, as, with only nine more weeks now to make their drive, the Yanks will be better fortified than any other team in the Johnson circuit to stand the heavy drain of double-headers on their resources. The team members have not lost heart, and with the pitching holding up, it is going to be a pretty thing to watch, these fellows coming down the home stretch for the finish wire.

TY COBB MUST START.

Tris Speaker has had easy sailing for the leadership of the American League in hitting. Only once did Joe Jackson creep up close enough to make a try for the top honors. Then Speaker began his famous drive that has carried him to within three points of the .400 mark in almost 100 games. Jackson is dropping back, but with August here it is time for Ty Cobb to unloose his reserve strength. Ty usually gets in his best wallops the last two months of the season. He has a handicap of some 37 points to makeup, but it would not be surprising to see him bridge the gap in six weeks. Speaker is laid on the shelf temporarily, as a result of an accident in Sunday's game, and that will be a help to him, as by all the laws of average he could not consistently keep up a .397 batting average. He was just about due for a bump when the chance came to take a rest. His injury is very disastrous to the Cleveland team, but if he does succeed in capturing the individual batting honors this season he can attribute it to the injury that he is suffering from now.—Leader.

ROBBIE EXPECTS TO STAY.

As long as the Brooklyns have a winning percentage of .600 or better Uncle Robbie says that no other team in the National League will beat them out of the pennant. The Robins led the race this morning with a percentage of .618 and were four games ahead of the Boston Braves. If the Robins can maintain this clip, their rotund manager declares that of the sixty-five games yet to be played his team will have to win forty to get into the world's series. Robbie insists that a record of ninety-five victories, fifty-nine defeats and a percentage of .617 will defeat his nearest rival. The Brooklyns have another western trip to make which will put them to a severe test but they expect to do as well on the road as the Braves, Phillies and Giants. Then comes the wind up in a long series at Ebbets Field which, Uncle Robbie predicts, will settle the controversy in Brooklyn's favor.

ANDERSON NO "IRON-MAN."

Fred Anderson shut out the Pirates last Saturday in masterly fashion. Although he had enjoyed only two days of rest, McGraw asked him to tackle Callahan's players again yesterday with the result that the former Federal League spitball expert failed dismally. Anderson is not a physical marvel. He isn't an iron man and about one hard game a week is all that he can stand. He occupied the box for three periods yesterday and it was as clear as a crystal that he wasn't there with his best line of goods.—Sun.

HOPES AND ABSTAINERS HAVE REMOTE CHANCE

In Case of Tabs All Depends On Saturday's Game With Netherwood.

It's no easy matter to pick the pennant winner in the City League, although it is the prevalent opinion that the Netherwood team is the outfit that will, eventually, walk off with the flag. There is every reason to believe that the East End aggregation is the one that will answer to "championship" roll call.

Figures do not lie, and the City League statistics state that if Netherwood captures but two games out of the five that are still to be played, it's all over but the shouting. However, there is a remote chance of the Hopes or Tabs attending to things in a different manner. The Tabs' chances are a little better than those of the Chapel team, inasmuch as there is a great amount of discussion relative to that game forfeited by the Baptists to Hopes. If the moguls of the City League continue to allow their decisions to be appealed at will, something will happen sooner or later that will put an end to their well formulated plans for a bigger and better circuit. The Hopes must win, at least, three out of the four remaining games if they intend to pass Netherwood. The East Enders must lose all five of their games in order to allow the Chapel team to be on an even footing with it. The Tabs have to do as well as the Hopes if they intend to do business with the mayor of Pennantville.

In the case of the Tabs everything depends on Saturday's game with Netherwood. If the Abstainers lose, their chances of finishing first this year, are gone forever. If they win, the battle is prolonged. With Benny Rosenson and Frank Lee out of the lineup the Tabs' chances do not look very bright. Tony Denitzio will be ready for action, however.

WESTFIELD GOLFER IN MOHAWK EVENT

Covers Course In 87, Finishing Among First Thirty-two.

There was a fair sprinkling of metropolitan golfers in the field of 140 which played in the qualifying round of the Mohawk Golf Club's tournament today, and one of them, Charles T. Lansing, of Knickerbocker, won the medal with an 80. Max R. Marston, of Baltusrol, another metropolitan entrant, who won last year's tournament here, was second, with an 81, and Gilman P. Tiffany, of Mohawk, and W. Hamilton Gardner, of Buffalo, tied for third place at 93. L. A. Wilson, of Westfield, covered the course in 46—41, 87.

The golfers from New York who have been golfing on sodden courses all this season found something new to them when they began to play yesterday. There has been little rain in this part of the State recently and the entire course is baked hard, the greens being so fast that it is difficult to control the ball on them. This fact and the natural difficulties of the links made low scoring an impossibility, and Mr. Lansing's 80 was better than it sounds.

JAPANESE PLAYERS SPRING SURPRISE

Reported That They Will Play On Courts of Westfield Golf Club.

Hashishiro Mikami and Ichiya Kumagae, the two Japanese tennis players who have been touring the country, surprised New York players yesterday on the courts of the Crescent A. C., when both of them were victorious in the singles and later on were winners in the doubles. In spite of the fact that tennis is supposed to be one of the leading amateur sports there was quite a little wagering done to the effect that Kumagae would not survive his match with Harry S. Parker, although the latter is far from the first rank. Parker started off as if he was going to take the man from the Orient into camp in straight sets. Parker had no trouble at all in winning at 6—2 in the first set, but something seemed to get into the play of the Japanese which enabled him to weather the storm, and he took the next two at 6—2 and 6—0.

S. H. Voshell, who played in the recent invitation doubles tourney held by the Plainfield Country Club, defeated C. M. Bull, Jr., 6—2, 6—2. R. L. Murray defeated E. J. Fixman 6—1, 6—2.

APPRECIATE HARTZELL.

In appreciation of the long and faithful work of Roy Hartzell with the Yankees the owners of the club yesterday told the veteran player that the transfer to Baltimore of the Inter national League is not a permanent move. They assured Hartzell, who leaves today for Baltimore, that he would be reclaimed at the end of the season and be used either in the capacity of a scout or else a minor league managerial berth would be found for him. If he desires his unconditional release at the end of this season he can have this, he was informed.

A. H. MAN PLAYS.

Tennis play for the State championship and Bridgman cup, at the Norfolk Country Club., advanced to the semi-finals yesterday, the afternoon play resulting in the elimination of A. J. Vesey, of Montreal, runner up in last season's tournament, by Alrick H. Man, Jr., who won in straight sets. Today Man, who played in the Plainfield Country Club invitation doubles, will play against Cedrick A. Major, winner of last season's championship, in the semi-finals.

HOFMAN WITH YANKS.

Artie Hofman, who played with the Cubs when they were great rivals of the Giants, has signed a contract to play in the outfield for the Yankees. He will join them at Detroit tomorrow.

GAMES WANTED.

Pete Simmons, manager of the Royal Giants, is looking for games for Saturday. Pete can be reached at his pool room on Madison avenue or by telephone. No discrimination in picking rivals is shown by Simmons.

AUTOMOBILE OWNERS REPORT PREPARATION

National Touring Week, Which Starts Sunday, Attracts Considerable Attention.

Automobile dealers and garages all over the country report a widespread preparation for National Touring Week, scheduled to begin Sunday. The unvarying word is that more motor cars will take to the road on the morning and afternoon of August 6 than ever before got going at the same time.

Father is oiling up little old last year's car, equipping it with new tires, or investing a piece of prosperity in a new car.

Certainly America in this year of 1916 is going to be discovered more than any year since the visit of the late Christopher Columbus, and according to the road log, 1492 is going to be a way-back number compared with 1916 in the America-discovering business.

"See America First By Seeing Your Own State Now," has roused the State pride of the citizen of this country. He is going to fix his attention on the natural beauty near him. The man with the motor car particularly is ready to learn that one need not go a thousand miles from home to enjoy the spell of scenic grandeur.

A Want Ad Is Often the First Link in a Chain of Consequences

It initiates something of far-reaching importance to you. You meet someone with whom you will do business for years—or you buy or sell property that changes the currents of your daily affairs. Many a want ad is of but transient importance of course. But others influence your life for years and years.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

Those Athletics! Readers of this department will wonder why we refer to the Athletics in an "amateur" department. To those readers we would put this question: "Have Connie Mack's recruits done anything to date that is above the class of an amateur?" There are few who would dispute the question with us.

When the Athletics win the fans of Philadelphia hire a band and hold a regular Fourth of July celebration. All this show costs money and these fans are not by any means rich. But the Athletics win so seldom the financial stain amounts to but little.

Charley Pick pastimes at third for the Quaker combination. Whenever Charley is entrusted with a throw to home plate the cry "Pick to Picinich" goes the rounds. Picinich is the new catcher Mack unearthed somewhere in the wilds of a college campus. It is needless to say that the fans of Philadelphia are having a hard struggle deciding what is the correct pronunciation of the catcher's name. Some insist that the last section of the name is "ick," while others prefer "itch." Some struggle.

When one of the Royal Giant batters fanned unceremoniously last Sunday he was "hooted" to some extent by the fans. He deserved the "ovation" because he, by antics and words, had indicated that he intended to knock the cover off the ball. However, he fanned, and offered the excuse that "Ty Cobb does it." Perhaps Ty Cobb does fan occasionally, but, then again, Ty steals bases, hits triples and, at times, pounds out home runs. All of which is something that the local player did not do Sunday.

Let's all vote for Dave Driscoll to succeed Jimmy Callahan as manager of the Pittsburg Pirates. It does look as though Jimmy was slated to go after this season closes. And Dave, being a fine insurance agent and "semi-pro" leader, ought to make a successful big league manager. But, friend fan, there is as much chance of Dave Driscoll going to manage the Pittsburg team as there is of holding an athletic meet at Parker Field on Labor Day. And every one knows that there is very little chance of holding any kind of a meet here.

That reminds us. It is time for us or for our esteemed contemporary to get busy with some publicity for that Kennel Club affair. We have attempted to start a "boom" for an athletic meet here on Labor Day, but there seems to have been very little action to the "boom." Still, there is plenty of time and if the backers of the movement really wish to get things started we will give the plan plenty of press notices.

Some day we hope to be able to print the following in glaring headlines: "Jack Martin to Manage the Phillies." We are not cruel enough to wish on him the management of the Milwaukee team. That combination is as active as the late lamented Athletic team. How Jack Martin manages to live in the region of the Milwaukee baseball field is one of the seven wonders of the world.

Well, we see by the papers that Frank Hand is now managing an independent squad. It must seem funny to be "elevated" from a league leadership to the management of a team with which one can do as he sees fit.

Mike Mowery is becoming one of the most valuable men on the Brooklyn team. We fell out of our crib, overcome by surprise, when Mike, as a member of the Reds, hit a home run with the bases full.

Ollie O'Mara and Ivan Olson may be supplanted before long. According to well founded reports, Rogers Hornsby is slated to go to Brooklyn. And, perhaps, John Martin may join St. Louis.

"Stirring news" today—war news, local news, store-news.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

SCOOP THE CUB REPORTER — SAYS SHE TO ME — BY "HOP"

Dear Boss —
I was talking to an interesting little party this afternoon and somehow the subject of kissing came up - She said of course she didn't do that sort of thing but if she did she'd prefer a man of about thirty because a man had to be that old before he learned to keep his mouth shut - said she had heard that if a girl was kind along those lines to a lad of around say eighteen - that the news of it scampered all over the resort and in no time they were all swarming on it like a bunch of flies - Swarming was an awful comical word to use - wasn't it Boss - She's one comical kid — Unquestionably this is the life — Yours Scoop

WHY BURDEN A FRIEND?

SERVICE
Capital, $100,000

The average individual is no more fitted to handle an estate than he is to conduct a law suit or cure a disease. You hire a lawyer to do the one and a doctor to do the other.

Then why burden a friend, a business associate or a member of your family, with the responsibility of being your executor and trustee? Few men are familiar with the duties of trusteeship or with the investment of trust funds.

Name this responsible trust company instead; it is organized for the purpose; equipped to meet every emergency; to transact any business which may arise in connection with trust service; and it is permanent; unaffected by the hazards of human life.

'FAVORITE SONS' GUESTS OF GOV.

Three Gubernatorial Candidates Among Those Entertained at "White House."

RECORD AN ABSENTEE

South Jersey Counties Are Well Represented at Big Gathering—Governor Reviews the Third Regiment.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Camp Fielder, Sea Girt, N. J., August 4.—Three of the four candidates for Governor at the coming primaries accepted an invitation from Governor James F. Fielder for the luncheon which he gave this noon for politicians from Camden, Atlantic, Cumberland, Burlington, Salem, Gloucester and Cape May counties. Senator Walter E. Edge, of Atlantic county, said to have the support of most of the organization Republicans throughout the State, was here for the first time; the others, Colonel Austen Colgate and H. Otto Wittpenn, having been guests at the preceding three Governor's days. George L. Record, of Hudson county, was the absentee.

The crowd numbered well over three hundred when time came for the serving of the luncheon under a big tent, immediately adjoining the Little White House, and included in it were three judges, state officials and just "plain citizens." Practically every member of the Legislature from the counties named, the county judges, prosecutors, and other county officials, were in the throng.

Many of the visitors came in automobiles, and the parade ground across the road from the cottage looked like the parking space of a county fair. They began to arrive shortly after 10 o'clock, and came in a steady stream until 1, the time prior to luncheon being occupied visiting the companies of the Third Regiment, which come from the same counties that the visitors represented. This afternoon Governor Fielder will review the regiment, his last act of the kind as Chief Executive of the State.

Camden county men who accepted Governor Fielder's invitation included Circuit Court Judge Frank T. Lloyd; Frank T. Jess, of the State Board of Taxes and Assessments; William T. Reed, State treasurer; Congressman William J. Browning, of the First district and Assemblyman Charles A. Wolverton.

Besides Senator Edge those who accepted from Atlantic county included General Lewis T. Bryant, commissioner of labor; Judge John J. White, of the court of errors and appeals, and his brother Charles D. White; Mayor Henry Bacharach and Commissioner of Parks and Public Property J. B. Johnson, of Atlantic City, and Allen A. White.

Senator Collins B. Allen, former Senator William Plummer and William H. Chew, members of the State Board of Health, were those who signified their intention of coming from Salem county, and from Gloucester county the visitors included Assemblyman Raymond Shepherd and Oberling Smith. Former Judge John G. Horner, former Prosecutor Samuel A. Atkinson, Charles H. Folwell, William H. Cowperthwait and Assemblyman Emmor Roberts were in the group that come from Burlington county, while Senator Lewis T. Stevens, W. Scott Hand, Mayor James G. Champion, of Ocean City, and Mayor Richard H. Atwater, of Sea Isle City, were included in the group of Cape May county visitors.

Others of the invited guests were Assemblyman Oliver J. West, of Gloucester; Assemblyman John B. Kates and Garfield Pancoast, of Camden, and Lemuel H. Greenwich, of Salem.

MRS. D. J. RANDALL WAS NOT INJURED AS REPORTED

Mrs. D. J. Randall, of North Plainfield, who was reported as being in an automobile accident at Meredith, N. H., on Wednesday, was not injured as was at first supposed. Two automobiles, one belonging to the Randalls, and a waterworks truck were in a mixup on Elm street, south of Merrimac, Meredith, late Wednesday afternoon, and the result was a bent mud gaurd for each of the automobiles.

The Randall machine skidded on the car tracks and struck the trailer of the truck, swinging in around against the other auto. No one was injured and the damage to the machines was slight.

WATCHUNG BOARD ADOPTS QUARANTINE

No Children Will Be Allowed to Leave or Enter the Township.

Watchung township is under quarantine orders against the coming or going of children under 16 years of age. William De La R. Anderson, chairman of the township committee, said this morning:

"Owing to the outbreak of infanparalysis in the township and for the prevention of further spread of the disease there; also for the protection of outsiders, the Board of Health met last night and issued orders quarantining the township against children under 16 years of age, and against departure from the township of children under 16 years of age, without permit of the Board of Health. To make this order effective a health patrol has been appointed, covering the principal roads in the township. The Board of Health also issued instructions to citizens for a general cleanup of premises.

"The Board asked for co-operation of the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield and vicinity, in its efforts to keep down any further outbreak. The Board also requests that the township refrain from having assemblages or gatherings of children under 16 years of age."

The health patrol includes Dr. Charles A. Eaton, eorge Mobus, Ephraim S. Acker, John Herrmann, John Walsh, George Gunn.

MEETING TODAY ON NEW TROLLEY LINE

President McCarter Will Come to Talk Over South Plainfield Extension.

Business men of this city and South Plainfield will meet in the Queen City Hotel late this afternoon to discuss the proposed extension of the trolley system to South Plainfield. At the meeting Thomas McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation, will make an address and will listen to arguments advanced in favor of the extension of one of the local trolley lines to South Plainfield. A similar meeting was held at the offices of the Spicer Manufacturing Company on July 21, but Mr. McCarter was unable to be present at that meeting. Owing to his absence, little more than enthusiastic discussion regarding the proposed plan took place.

The citizens of South Plainfield are anxious to impress the Public Service with the feasibility of extending one of the local lines to South Plainfield, inasmuch as they realize that their township is going to reap much benefit from an extension of this nature. The officials of the Spicer company are also very much in favor of the plan and see in it a means whereby the nondescript conveyances now used to bring to work the men employed in their factories will be done away with. Members of the local Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, West End Civic Association and Business Men's Association will be present at the gathering and it is expected that the presidents of these various civic bodies will make addresses having a direct bearing on the subject of extension. It is very probable that Mr. McCarter will be impressed by the enthusiasm and logic exhibited by the local men and that he will send the company's engineers out to this city to look over the proposed route. The local advocates of the proposition intend to leave the matter of deciding the route to be taken in the event of an acceptance of the extension proposition entirely in the hands of the Public Service. According to one of the leaders in the movement, no difficulty in securing a right of way is anticipated.

Charles L. Dana, head of the Spicer company, in discussing the meeting, several days ago, stated that he was very much in favor of the proposed plan and that he would do all in his power to help the cause along. He said that the need of a trolley line to South Plainfield was apparent and that it would be a vast improvement over the means of conveyance now in use.

IT'S A GIRL.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. I. Cubberley, of 118 Washington avenue, are parents of a girl, born to them yesterday.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

COLGATE DINES WITH HUGHES

Old Acquaintances Rewened at Luncheon In New York This Week.

TALK OVER OLD TIMES

New Jersey Man Promises Candidate 50,000 In This State—Manager Bock Pleased With Reports Coming In.

Newark, August 4.—Old acquaintanteship was renewed when State Senator Austen Colgate, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor in New Jersey, met Charles E. Hughes at the Hughes headquarters in the Hotel Astor, New York, Thursday afternoon, and later had luncheon with him there, at the invitation of the Presidential candidate.

When Mr. Hughes was Governor of New York he was made an L.L. D. of Colgate University, hich was named after the Colgate family. He was present at the time the degree was conferred, as the guest of the board of trustees, of which Senator Colgate has been a member for years. Later he was entertained at the Senator's hunting camp in the Adirondacks.

"Governor Hughes manifested a keen interest in the political situation in New Jersey," said the Senator after the luncheon, "making it quite clear that he was fully aware of the campaign in the home State of his Democratic opponent. He was kind enough to make specific inquiry regarding my own candidacy, and diplomatically wished me 'good luck.' He asked me what New Jersey would do for him, and I assured him of a minimum plurality of 50,000 votes.

"He was very optimistic over his own prospects, and so was everybody else I met at the headquarters. Though he had aged a trifle since the last time I saw him, his old-time vigor did not appear to have abated one whit. He is a most charming host."

Optimistic reports concerning the candidacy of Senator Colgate continue to come in from all sections of the State, according to his campaign manager, Frank J. Bock, former postmaster of Newark.

As a sort of offset to the attempt which is being made by Edge workers to make inroads into the Colgate strength in Essex, Colgate workers are now starting an aggressive boom for their candidate in Atlantic. They are working with the idea that the strong opposition which developed against Senator Edge during the Atlantic City commission government election campaign can be used as a big asset for Colgate at the primaries. This dominant idea which the Colgate managers are now trying to impress upon the Republican voters of the State is that Colgate would be the strongest candidate the party could nominate. They also give it out that the Democratic leaders don't want Colgate because he would be the hardest man to fight.

TROOPER MEGREW HAS APPENDICITIS

Wife Obtains His Discharge Through Influence of Personal Friends.

George Megrew, of Central avenue, who has been at Douglas, Ariz., with Troop D, of Plainfield, of which he is a member, and who is now en route for his home, obtained his discharge because he was suffering from chronic appendicitis, according to information received today from Mrs. Megrew, who is now at Wilton, New Hampshire, and not through "a stubborn fight with guard officials," as reported.

Mrs. Megrew states that she has had no words with any one in or out of the guard, and was extended every courtesy both by officials at Douglas and in Washington. She says that she was able to obtain her husband's release through a personal friend of her familyy, Assistant Secretary of War William Ingraham, and that General Funston gave Mr. Megrew a discharge at once because of chronic appendicitis. He had been in the hospital tent for several days under the care of Dr. Harold D. Corbusier.

Mrs. Megrew further states that except for illness it would have been impossible for her to secure an honorable discharge for her husband, but the latter had been suffering from apppendicitis for the past six months and went to Arizona hoping that the trouble would not reoccur. Mrs. Megrew is grateful for the courtesy shown to her and her husband by the guard officers.

BUSY SESSION OF COUNCIL PROMISED

Many Important Matters Will Be Considered At Tonight's Session of Boro Body.

At the meeting of the Borough Council to be held this evening many matters of importance will come up for discussion. It is thought that a number of citizens will enter their protest against the proposed discontinuance of the light in the borough clock. Much unfavorable comment on the subject has been voiced by borough residents since the announcement that the action was to be taken.

It is expected that the Council will adopt stringent measures now that the first case of paralysis has appeared within the borough confines. Every precaution has been taken by the borough authorities up to the present time and will be taken in the future. Although no ordinance regarding the disposal of cats and dogs has been issued by the North Plainfield authorities, many citizens of the borough have been of the opinion that the ordinance used by the local authorities had application in North Plainfield.

While no ordinance of this nature has as yet been made, it is possible that the Council will consider the matter at the meeting this evening. The present method employed in North Plainfield for checking the spread of infantile paralysis is the same as that in force on this side of the brook. A rigid watch of all incoming people is maintained by Health Officer Louis Ollif.

Discussion regarding the progress of the Somerset street widening will occupy considerable time and action taken by the Board of Education on several matters will probably come up for discussion.

PARALYSIS CASE IN NORTH PLAINFIELD

Edmund Sheelan the First Victim—Muriel Curtis of Watchung, Succumbs.

North Plainfield has its first case of infantile paralysis and it was discovered yesterday afternoon in a family of eight children. The first borough victim is Edmund Sheelan, the three and one half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Sheelan, of Manning avenue.

The child has been ill for several days, but up to yesterday afternoon the malady was not thought to be paralysis. Although the case is a serious one, the precautions taken by borough authorities to prevent a spread, it is believed, have been effective. All of the rest of the family have been put undr strict quarantine and the house thoroughly fumigated.

Muriel D. Curtis, aged about six years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Curtis, of Watchung, died last night following a brief illness from infantile paralysis. The child was stricken with the dread disease a couple of days ago and her condition was critical from the first. This is the first death from the disease in Watchung. There are two other cases in that section, both being reported as doing well. The funeral of the Curtis child was held at the grae in Hillside cemetery at 3 o'clock this afternoon, Rev. J. Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, officiating.

AUTO RAN INTO BOY.

Leon K. Benny, of 1008 East Seventh street, reported to the police at 6:40 last night as he was driving his automobile on Watchung avenue, near Nnith street, he ran into Avelino Avar, of 403 Berckman street, as he was riding his wheel on Watchung avenue. Benny took the youth to Muhlenberg Hospital, but after examination showed he was not seriously hurt he was taken to his home. No arrests were made.

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., the arrival of all persons from out of town, INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

URGES BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

H. Otto Wittpenn Speaker at Testimonial Dinner In His Honor at Englewood.

FAVORS TRUE ECONOMY

Gubernatorial Candidate Attacks Republicans So-Call "Efficiency Bills"—Executive Should Be Responsible.

Englewood, Aug. 4.—Naval Officer H. Otto Wittpenn, Democratic candidate for Governor, pointed out the increased cost in the administration of some New Jersey departments under the so-called Republican "economy and efficiency" legislation and called attention to the attacks made upon the Geran election law by the Republican Legislature of 1916 in an address before a big gathering of Bergen county Democrats here last night.

Mr. Wittpenn was the guest of his Bergen county friends at a testimonial dinner and it was a notable fact that Republicans joined with the Democrats in making the affair a success. Mr. Wittpenn was tendered a reception preceding the dinner, and following it he again met his friends and informally discussed the political situation with them.

In his address Mr. Wittpenn said, in part:

"Possibly the most pressing need of our State today is the inauguration of a real business administration of its affairs. I have heard it said that this is a trite phrase—that every candidate for the office of Governor this year is using it, and that, from constant use, it is becoming more or less threadbare. Nevertheless, it is a big issue and an issue in which every citizen of New Jersey should be vitally interested.

"Government should be directly in the hands of the people, and the surest and safest way to place it there is by making the State's chief executive officer the responsible, active, working head of the government. He should be in close touch

PLAY A JOKE ON MAJ. CORBUSIER

Hospital Corps Makes Merry As They Carry a Load of "Wood."

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 4.—The "boys" of the First New Jersey Hospital Company played a joke on Major H. D. Corbusier, of Plainfield, their commanding officer, one day last week, which was appreciated by the major as well as by all who witnessed the occurrence. The members of the company, in charge of Sergeant R. F. Doran, were on the opposite side of the road from camp attending to some duties when the major called out: "Sergeant, have each man bring a stick of wood back with him."

When the company returned to the street in single file, with Sergeant Doran leading, it presented a curious and amusing sight. Each man carried at right shoulder a thin stick of wood, about the lightest that each could select from the pile of cordwood alongside the railroad track. Marching past the major, with Sergeant Doran saluting gravely, the company filed up to the woodpile and each man as he deposited his stick gave a cheer and disappeared.

FINED $2 FOR VIOLATING CITY FIRE ORDINANCE

Theodore Wellonsky, of 184 West Front street, was fined $2 in police court this morning by City Judge William G. DeMeza for violating the fire ordinance in building a bonfire in the rear of his store.

Fire Chief Doane has issued numerous warnings against the danger of lighting fires throughout the city and as not much heed has been taken of them he has decided to resort to the police court and all offenders are to be fined by the judge until the practice is broken up.

NO NEW PARALYSIS CASES.

Although it is the worst case of infantile paralysis that has developed here, the three-year-old son of Samuel Gumerove, of 540 West Third street, seems to be holding his own since Dr. Frank Clawson diagnosed the case yesterday. The dwelling where the Gumeroves live is a two-family house and has been quarantined. No new cases have been reported since.

NEW FIREMEN.

William Kelly, Carl Ulmer, William Ryder and Ray Schmidt, the four new firemen appointed at the last meeting of the councilmanic fire committee, started on their new duties this week. They will have to serve six months' probationary period before they are appointed as regulars.

BELIEVE DEAD MAN WAS PLAINFIELDER

Neatly Dressed Body Found On Lehigh Valley Tracks Today.

A neatly dressed white man, aged about 35 years, believed to have lived in Plainfield, was killed by a Lehigh Valley train near Oak Tree early this morning. The body has not yet been identified.

A conductor on a Lehigh Valley passenger train saw the body lying by the track about 8 a. m. He stopped his train. It had been there only a short time, and the train just ahead may have brought death to the stranger. He was probably walking along the track, although this has not been established.

The body was badly mangled. It was cut almost in two above the waist, and one leg was entirely off. It was the left leg that had been severed and the foot and lower part of the limb was found many feet away. Here was found a clue that will likely lead to the identification of the dead man. Although his foot was badly mashed, the left shoe had been recently cut, as though to relieve pain from a corn, or a bruise.

In one of the pockets was found a Chinese laundry ticket. It was not old, but seemed to have just come from the file of the Chinaman, leading to the belief that the man only left Plainfield last night.

He was well dressed in a blue serge suit of good material. The hair is dark brown, and the face is smooth shaven. The body is at the undertaking parlors of Casey & Son, where it awaits identification. Detectives of the Lehigh Valley railroad are at work on the case and they hope to know the name of the unfortunate man within a short time.

MARTINE SAYS THE WORLD OPPOSED CASEMENT HANGING

"We expect barbarism from barbarians," declared Senator James E. Martine, yesterday, excoriating Great Britain for its execution of Roger Casement.

"I have been informed," he said, "that public sentiment of Great Britain, as of the world, opposed the unnecessary and murderous killing. But officialdom had set the decree of death, just as it pre-determined the question of Casement's guilt. England will pay richly and justly for this cruel and bloody murder."

Senator Phelan, of California, declared Casement had done nothing to condemn him in the eyes of the world and that the refusal of the Crown to reprieve him had been a serious blunder.

VON HINDENBERG STOPS RUSSIANS

Stiffens German Resistance—Gas Figures In Counter Attacks.

AUSTRIANS ARE ANGRY

Feel That They Are Slighted In Naming of Generals—Italian and Austrian Warships Engage in Naval Duel—No Results.

Petrograd, August 4.—With Von Hindenburg in supreme charge of the German and Austrian armies in the East, a more determined resistance is being offered to the advance of the Russians, even to counter attacks with the deadly poisoning gas but the War Office reports further small gains. The objective of Czar Nickolas' enemies now is not only the capture of Lemberg, but the cutting off of 300,000 men who compose the crippled armies of von Bothmer and von Bissingen.

Official German reports assert that all attacks on the Czar's army have been repulsed with heavy losses, and that several planes have been brought down and some enemy outposts taken by General von Bothmer.

More than 100 Turkish troops were taken prisoners in an advance upon the Caucasus in the direction of Diabekr, according to today's report. Several machine guns were also taken.

Bad Feeling in Austria.

London, August 4.—A Vienna dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says:

"The announcement that the German Field Marshal von Hindenburg has been appointed commander of the Eastern front has brought no joy in Austria-Hungary. Three Budapest papers were suppressed yesterday owing to adverse criticisms of the appointment.

"It is stated here that the new commander in chief has already ordered the recall of a number of Austrian generals. It is added that Austria, in acceding to the appointment, made the stipulation that von Hindenburg should appoint a number of Austrian officers to the staff, but it is learned that only one such appointment will be made."

British Gain on Somme.

London, Aug. 4.—A statement issued by the War Office today says that minor operations last night by the British on the Somme front resulted in the gain for them of some ground west of Pozieres.

Slows Advance on Pripet.

Berlin, August 4.—"Russian advance on [illegible] (in the Pripet marshes, southwest of Pinsk) failed," the War Office reports on the Eastern campaign. "A strong attack southwest of Lubieszow (near the confluences of the Stokhod and Privet) broke down.

"The enemy advancing on the Kovel-Sarny Railroad was driven off by our fire. In the forest near Ostrow, north of Kiselin (west of Lutsk) more than 100 prisoners were taken."

Italian-Austrian Naval Battle.

Vienna, August 4.—Following a bombardment of the Italian port city of Molfetta, a naval engagement developed in the Adriatic between Austrian and Italian warships, it was stated in the following report issued by the Ministry of Marine today.

"An Austrian squadron of torpedo boats bombarded Molfetta. Later they engaged an enemy cruiser and six torpedo boats, some of which were hit."

EDUCATION NOTES

To signalize the Cervantes Tercentenary, the University of London has created a chair in Spanish Literature, naming as its incumbent Professor James Fitzmaurice-Kelly, who is a member and medalist of the Hisponic Society of America, whose efforts to promote the knowledge of the language, history, literature and life of Spain in the United States are so extensive and successful.

It seems that learned scientific publications abroad have for the present abandoned a lofty philosophical detachment, and are "taking sides" like common mortals. Considerable turmoil has been stirred up in the Astronomical Society of France by the resignation of a Swiss member, who gave as his reason that he "had enough of this abominable war in the daily press, and when he sought recreation in the study of astronomy he did not wish to read more on the same subject." This criticism had reference to the monthly journal of the society, L'Astronomie, which has delivered one onslaught after another upon the Germans, including the German astronomers, ever since the war began.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo not only deems the study of Spanish "advisable" for American youth but thinks that it should be made compulsory in the public schools if the great work of rapprochement and understanding between the two Americas undertaken by the Pan-American Congress is ever to be accomplished. "One half of America," says Mr. McAdoo, "is in woful ignorance of what the other half thinks. We rarely think of citing Latin-American publicists and scientists. Practically no refence is ever made to Latin-American literature. We pay little attention to the currents of thought of Central and South America, unmindful of the fact that important contributions have been made and are constantly being made there in every department of literary and scientific effort." The public schools of the United States have not contributed their full share, in his estimation, toward inculcating a proper understanding of the political, economic and social development of the Latin sister republics.

Three meetings of great interest will be held this week before the North Shore colony of Massachusetts, by Indian students from Hampton Institute of Virginia, the famous school for Indian and colored youth. The Indians will sing their tribal songs in native costume and in true Indian style, without harmonies or accompaniment. Hampton has stood as a model for industrial education, but at the same time it has also proved a definite influence for the preservation of the genuine negro music and for the music of the Indian. Though collections of Indian songs have been made by the Bureau of American Ethnology at Washington and also by individual students of the subject, there is in the United States no large organized effort for the study and preservation of native folk music, as there is in France, for instance. The work that is done by Hampton along these lines is therefore of exceptional value and interest, and is engaging the attention of American folklorists to a wider and wider extent.

Chauncey P. Colegrove, who is to become president of Upper Iowa University next year, has been vice-president of the Iowa Teachers' College at Cedar Falls. He is a graduate of Chicago University, in the class of '96. He has filled his present position for twenty years, and during that time has made considerable reputation as a writer on pedagogy and on normal school subjects. Another change in academic circles is the one brought about by the resignation of President Abram W. Harris, of Northwestern University, who becomes secretary of the national board of education of the Methodist church. Thomas F. Holgate, professor of mathematics at Northwestern, has been chosen president ad interim, as the resignation of President Harris has not yet been accepted and the election of a permanent president may be deferred another year. Professor Holgate has studied at Toronto and Clark universities, has served as dean of the College of Liberal Arts, was the secretary of the International Congress of Mathematicians in 1908, and is the author of several books and a contributor to mathematical journals.

FOREST SERVICE URGES WOOD BLOCKS

Creosoted wood blocks, already extensively used as paving material for city streets, have been coming into use as flooring for the last four or five years. Its durability, noiselessness under heavy traffic, and sanitary properties are its chief advantages suggested by the United States Forest Service for paving. It is said to have special value for making floors, especially for use where heavy trucking, the moving of heavy machinery, or other severe use makes the maintenance of floors a serious problem.

Wood block, the Forest Service authorities say, is now widely used for flooring in factories, warehouses, machine shops, foundries, various types of platforms, wharves, and docks, and for such mis ellaneous purposes as hotel kitchens, hospitals, laundries, and slaughter houses. Possibly one of the oddest of these uses is for the floor of wild animal cages and runways. Notwithstanding the recent increase in the use of wood block for these purposes, they believe that the growth of this industry will be even more rapid in the future. These floors are well liked by the workmen, they say, because they are easy on the feet.

A statement from the Forest Service says:

"Most of the blocks for these floors are now made of southern yellow pine. Hemlock, larch, Douglas fir, black gum, beech and maple are also used. The blocks are sawed from long sticks of timber and are treated in huge steel cylinders from six to seven feet in diameter and one hundred feet or more in length. Creosote oil is run into the cylinders and pressure is then applied to force it into the wood. The oil is a product obtained in the manufacture of coke and its purpose is to prevent decay of the wood, and also to prevent shrinking and swelling of the floor after it is laid. The blocks are laid with the grain vertical, so that the most wear-resistant surface is exposed and usually on a concrete foundation. The joints or cracks between the blocks are then filled with hot paving pitch or asphalt which binds the many separate pieces into one continuous surface. According to experts, the cost of creosoted wood-block floors averages about $1.50 per square yard for the blocks alone and about $2.40 per square yard for the completed floor."

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

As between Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Franklin Murphy for United States Senator the Republicans of New Jersey should have an easy choice. Rather Governor Stokes has withdrawn from the contest in the interests of party harmony and thus a three-cornered fight has been avoided. Both Mr. Frelinghuysen and Mr. Stokes represent the more independent and progressive element of the party throughout the State, and unless we mistake that is the element which largely prevails. It would seem, therefore, that much of the following which Mr. Stokes had, and it was very potential, would naturally shift to Frelinghuysen without much pressure.

Mr. Murphy doubtless has powerful interests behind him and the party organizations of several of the big counties will use their power to have him nominated. He is a man of great ability, experienced as a political leader and successful in business affairs. His membership in the National Committee for years will no doubt bring outside help to his cause if needed. But Mr. Frelinghuysen has a record of recent public performance which should bring to his support the votes of many whom he has served well. As the father of the present automobile law, passed after a great fight and preserved from a bitter assault, who can estimate the benefit to farmer or automobilists alike? It was a new question at that time but it was well handled. For six years he was a prominent figure in the State Senate and when he led a fight for any measure it was known that he never let up until every honest means was used to win his point.

Since his retirement from the Senate Mr. Frelinghuysen has been a member of the State Board of Education as reorganized through legislation which he was instrumental in having passed, and is now president of the Board, and thus the head of the great school system of the State. He is likewise the head of the State Board of Agriculture, reorganized so as to be much more effective, through his efforts. He is thus constantly serving the State in two important capacities and his deeds are known by his works.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

BOROUGH COURT CASES

Thomas Parnell, of Watchung, was arraigned before Recorder Fred Hand in the borough court this morning, charged with drunkenness. He was given the alternative of paying a fine of $5 or serving ten days in jail. He paid.

William Witso, an itinerant harness maker, who said that he came from New Brunswick, was arraigned before Recorder Hand this morning on a charge of drunkenness. Upon his promise to leave the borough at once, he was released.

Edward Houston, and not Edwin Hewson, was the man arraigned in the court yesterday afternoon on a charge of non-support. He was ordered to contribute $5 per week to the support of his family.

PAID IN CORN AND RYE.

Two Old Time Offenders and the Way They Were Punished.

Two poets, both honest and peaceable and one a Quaker, were fond of telling anecdotes of two old time delinquents, the one quarrelsome and the other thievish. John Greenleaf Whittier was exceedingly fond of quoting the lines, handed down from time immemorial in the Haverhill countryside:

The man who whipped old Timothy Swan
Paid his fine in Indian corn.
He paid his fine and he paid it quick—
A peck of corn for every lick!

Whether the fine imposed on old Timothy's assailant was judicially decreed and legally assessed nobody knows. But in the case of a fine of three bushels of rye once ordered to be paid by Ebenezer Snell, grandfather of William Cullen Bryant, it is quite certain that neither judge nor jury had anything to do with the matter. Nevertheless it was paid and promptly.

"My grandfather," Bryant used to relate, "once found that certain pieces of lumber, intended for the runners of a sled and called in that part of the country sled crooks, had been taken without leave by a farmer who lived at no great distance. Such timbers were made from a tree, the grain of which was curved so as to correspond with the curve required in the runners.

"The delinquent received notice that his offense was known and that if he wished to escape a prosecution he must carry a bushel of rye to each of three poor widows living in the neighborhood and tell them why he brought it."

He escaped prosecution. But if the tongues of the three poor widows were as lively as those of most country gossips and the public opinion of the village as strict as in most New England communities he did not escape punishment a good deal in excess of three compulsorily bestowed bushels of rye.—Youth's Companion.

A WORD ABOUT THE SCOT.

And the Influence He Wields All Over the World.

Wherever the Scotchman goes he becomes a leader. You hear of the Irish vote, the German vote, the Italian vote, but you hear only of Scottish leadership. He has had a powerful influence on our country.

Our first newspaper was published by a Scotchman; a Scot first won international honors for American letters; the steamboat, telephone, telegraph and electric light were devised by men of Scotch descent. The second college in our land was founded by a Scotch divine; our constitution was framed and adopted largely by the influence of two Scotch lawyers; our most majestic orator, our most winning politician, our most metaphysical statesman, our greatest diplomatist and our greatest poet were of Scotch lineage. So of many of our business captains and railroad magnates, almost one-half of our presidents and a large proportion of our cabinet members, judges and governors. Was there ever such a drain of leadership upon a like area?

The Scotch have not alone helped make America. They control Australia, direct New Zealand, lead Canada and rule Africa. For centuries Scot and Briton were bitterest enemies. Edinburgh and Paris conspired against London. The union when it finally came was one of crowns and not of hearts. There still lurks jealousy under the surface. Write a letter to a loyal Glasgonian, address it "North Britain," and see what happens.—Samuel P. Orth in Century.

Historic Phrase.

On the morning after the assassination of Lincoln James A. Garfield, then a representative in congress, addressed a large assemblage in Wall street, New York city. A crowd were about to attack a newspaper which had been hostile to Lincoln. Garfield calmed them with the simple words: "Fellow citizens, clouds and darkness are round about him. His pavilion is dark waters and thick clouds of the skies. Justice and judgment are the establishment of his throne. Mercy and truth shall go before his face. Fellow citizens, God reigns and the government at Washington still lives!"

Dream Life.

I called aloud in the forest, and the shout came back. Then I searched long to find who answered me, but the sound had no source. I followed the will-o'-the-wisp through swamps at evening. It led me hither and yon, but I came nowhere. It was only the ghost of a light. I saw an apple hanging in the depths of a pool. I stopped to pick it and laved my hands in the water. The apple had no form. This is dream life.—Atlantic.

Life's Little Comedies

It is funny to watch a cat whip a dog.
The dog always looks sheepish.
So does the owner.
And after it is all over the woman who owns the cat usually pops out and demands truculently:
"What you trying to do with my cat?"—Chicago Herald.

Little Pitcher.

Maiden Aunt—So you're studying physiology, Willie? Well, tell me, to what part of the animal kingdom do I belong? Sweet Little Willie—Dunno. Pa says you're an old hen and ma says you're an old cat.—Baltimore American.

Protected by Grass.

Chinese railroad embankments are protected from floods by planting them with a native grass with tenacious roots that resist erosion.

Politeness is a locksmith and opens many difficult doors.

N. Y. BEGINS NEW CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

Deaths From Paralysis Now Total Almost One Thousand.

When the total number of cases of infantile paralysis in New York has reached 4,506 and the number of deaths 908, a clean-up campaign is started in hopes of wiping out the epidemic. The city has been "cleaned up," but not effectively, and experts in charge of the situation believe that a more strict enforcement of the sanitary laws will decrease the number of cases. However, there is little hope of stamping out the epidemic until cold weather comes to aid the doctors. Experts from all parts of the country were in session this morning, but will not make a public report until the situation has been thoroughly gone over.

MRS. VIRGID KANE DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Virgid Kane, the wife of Martin Kane, died this morning at her home, 509 West Third street, after a lingering illness. She leaves four children, John, Francis, Peter and Margaret, also one sister, Mrs. Margaret Nolan, of New York, and one brother who lives in California. Funeral services will be held from St. Mary's church Monday morning.

MISS ANNA SCHLEIF DIES FOLLOWING LONG ILLNESS

Miss Anna Schleif, aged 52 years, died this morning at the home of her brother, Charles J. Schleif, 283 Duer street, North Plainfield, following a long illness. Miss Schleif was born here and has always lived in this vicinity. There survives three brothers, Charles J., Stephen and Herman Schleif. The funeral services will be private.

REV. BOSTERLE TO PREACH.

Rev. George T. Bosterle, formerly of Plainfield, but now of New York, will occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church, at the morning service on Sunday. His subject will be "The After Touch of the Transfiguration." Rev. C. C. Cain, formerly of Grace M. E. church, now of Verona, will preach at the First Presbyterian church, morning and evening, Sunday, August 13. The church will be closed for repairs for the last Sunday in the month.

EXPECT N. Y. CAR STRIKE TOMORROW

Union Ultimatum Expires at 3 —No Hope of Peace in Sight.

New York, Aug 4.—Hope of averting a general tie-up of the city's surface car lines by tomorrow at latest was practically abandoned this morning. The time limit fixed in the union ultimatum expires at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Tonight employes of the New York City Railways Company, the New York & Queens County and probably the Second Avenue (blue car) line will take the strike vote, and it is expected a walk-out on all the roads mentioned will follow.

The police were making ready this morning to meet the situation. All peace parleys attempted so far have failed and no further official efforts are in prospect. Inspector Schmittberger was in conference late last night with members of the police department, and issued orders for the protection of the public should violence break out at any time.

CITY HALL PLANS TO COUNCIL MONDAY

Bids In September Will Tell What Building Is to Cost.

All drawings pertaining to the new city hall are to be submitted to the Common Council at its meeting on next Monday night and the building committee will ask for authority to advertise for bids so that construction can start at the earliest possible moment.

September 2 has been fixed as the date on which the bids are to be received, and authority from the Council will be simply a ratification of the decision of the committee, but it is necessary in order to make action legal.

Whether or not the new municipal building can be erected for the amount originally set aside for this purpose is a question that is worrying city officials much now, but they realize that it will not be decided until competitive bids have been received. The City Hall bond issue was $150,000. Of this amount $35,000 has been spent for a site and in preparing the property for the new building. A total of $115,000 is left, but out of that the committee desires to build, furnish and completely equip for occupancy a handsome new home for all municipal departments. The building decided upon can be built for $82,500, according to the estimates of architects who drew plans at the time the plans were accepted, but since that time labor, which will be an important factor in determining the price, has gone up repeatedly, and this will make a big difference in the final cost. Several contractors have made estimates of the cost, but all were submitted in a personal way and until signed bids are received the real amount necessary to spend on the City Hall can not be known.

HISTORY AS IT IS TAUGHT.

A Plea For Really Neutral Textbooks In Every Country.

History in every country is so taught as to magnify that country. Children learn to believe that their own country has been always in the right and almost always victorious, that it has produced almost all the great men and that it is in all respects superior to all other countries. Since these beliefs are flattering they are easily absorbed and hardly ever dislodged from instinct by later knowledge.

To take a simple and almost trivial example: The facts about the battle of Waterloo are known in great detail and with minute accuracy, but the facts as taught in elementary schools will be widely different in England, France and Germany. The ordinary English boy imagines that the Prussians played hardly any part; the ordinary German boy imagines that Wellington was practically defeated when the day was retrieved by Blucher's gallantry. If the facts were taught accurately in both countries national pride would not be fostered to the same extent, neither nation would feel so certain of victory in the event of war and the wiflingness to fight would be diminished.

It is this result which has to be prevented. Every state wishes to foster national pride and is conscious that this cannot be done by unbiased history.

The defenseless children are taught by distortions and suppressions and suggestions. The false ideas as to the history of the world which are taught in the various countries are of a kind which fosters strife and serves to keep alive a bigoted nationalism.

If good relations between states were desired one of the first steps ought to be to submit all teaching of history to an international commission which should produce neutral textbooks free from the patriotic bias which is now demanded everywhere.—Bertrand Russell in Atlantic Monthly.

SCENIC BEAUTY OF ALASKA.

A Grand Panorama That Reaches Its Climax In Mount McKinley.

A careful reading of literature pertaining to Alaska prepared me in part for what the journey was bound to disclose, but seeing is the only sense that can give knowledge and secure appreciation of the grandeur, the sublimity, the fascinating beauty of mountain, sea, stream, fiord, falls, islands, forests, cloud and the glorious color effects which the dazzling rays of the sun bring into existence. In connection with all these is a land of enchantment for all who love and can appreciate nature.

Cook inlet, with its arms and reaches, has many bewildering channels, resulting from the numerous rugged islands. The forbidding and embattled shores rising into lofty mountains and at present swathed in white almost to the water's edge possess a virility, a grandeur and sublimity which require the most poetic imagination and most facile pen even faintly to portray. The grand panorama reaches its climax in Mount McKinley, monarch of the North American continent. With its altitude of 20,460 feet it stands alone in lofty pride and is distinctly visible from the vessel notwithstanding the very great distance. This fact well establishes the quality of the clarified and invigorating atmosphere of this far north country.

The Thousand islands with all their beauty would scarcely serve as a prelude to the surpassing grandeur and loveliness of the many thousand islands that adorn the 3,000 miles of Alaskan coast. The fiords of Norway, the farfamed glaciers of Switzerland, cannot compare with their counterparts to be found in Alaska in number, variety, size, color effect and all the qualities that give charm to these works of nature.—Hon. A. Barton Hepburn in Leslie's.

GOVERNOR ENTERTAINS

with every State institution and department. He should know their needs and should give them the benefit of his assistance and advice as a business manager, and he should use the great power of his office and be given additional power by legislation to run the State like an efficient private enterprise.

"One of our friends on the other side of the political fence 'points with pride' to the passage of some of the much heralded economy and efficiency bills. I believe in economy and efficiency, just as you all do, but I am in favor of true economy and efficiency and unalterably opposed to enactments that are misnamed, and I now charge that this is exactly what these bills were.

"Now let us see what has happened to the taxpayers' money under these so-called economy and efficiency acts. There were only a few of them and their scope was limited. They did not settle the big problem before us. When these little measures were before the Legislature we were told that they provided for a net saving to the State of approximately $100,000 annually. The people were happy. The cost of running the State had increased annually until the figures were staggering.

"The consolidations and mergers provided for in the economy and efficiency bills have been in effect about one year. Now let us ese what has happened to the $100,000 saving promised the people. In the fiscal year of 1915 and 1916 there was a saving in the departments effected of $42,000 from the amount expended in the fiscal year of 1914 and 1915. Then along came the Legislature of 1916, Republican in both branches, and what a generous Legislature it was! Up went the appropriations in the departments affected by the new laws and we now find the allowances for the maintenance of these departments and institutions, mind you the very ones in which they were going to economize, $51,000 in excess of those of the previous fiscal year, and higher than before the laws were passed.

"It must be remembered that all of the departments covered by the new laws were those the expenses of which were not large; no attempt has ever been made to reform the business management of the larger institutions. Efforts may be made to explain this increase on the ground that the Legislature of 1915 had anticipated too great a cut in the cost of State government, but is there any explanation of the fact that under the economy and efficiency plan the cost of these same departments had increased and is now $24,535 greater than under the old plan? These figures speak plainer than words. The boast of $100,000 annual saving has been lost sight of by the backers of the scheme and we find an addition of one-quarter of that sum to the expenditures of these departments.

"Now let us take a brief look at the work of the 1916 Republican Legislature, the same body that passed these bills granting greater appropriations for the departments created by a previous Republican Legislature. One of its most remarkable acts was the wholesale attempt to nullify the provisions of the Geran election law, a law that put the corruptionists, the registry padders and the ballot box stuffers out of business. It is true that the Legislature temporarily bowed to a great wave of public condemnation and abandoned a part of its sweeping scheme, but it is likewise true that these same bills will bob up again if the Republicans are returned to power and that eventually we would witness the emasculation of the Geran act from beginning to end, making again possible the pollution of the ballot boxes and the nullification of the will of the people.

"I know the benefits the Geran act has given our people and I urge you in all sincerity to safeguard it in the future.."

100 PERISHED ON ITALIAN STEAMER

Vessel Ran But Submarine Shelled and Sunk It Easily.

London, Aug. 4.—Between eighty and 100 persons are missing and may have perished in the sinking of the Italian mail steamer Letimbro by a submarine in the Mediterranean. Included among those unaccounted for are many women and children.

Despatches received here today said that only three boatloads of survivors have been landed thus far, two at Syracuse and one at Malta.

Survivors declared that a panic ensued during the lowering of the boats when the submarine, overhauling the steamer after a short chase, began shelling her at close range.

LONESOME LUMBERJACK PROPOSES ON PINE STRIP

Elizabeth, Aug. 4.—Miss Mary Hanna, a burnt wood artist in a novelty plant here, found yesterday on a strip of pine a message from a lonely Wisconsin lumberjack reading:

"If a girl finds this board, my name is Peter Peterson, and I want a wife, for I'm lonesome. Address Peter Peterson, General Delivery, Green Bay, Wis."

Miss Hanna admitted a postal showing Broad street at its busiest, and carrying a message not discouraging, was already on its way to Green Bay.

PRINT PAPER.

In the making of a newspaper the cost of white or print paper has come to be a very important factor, says the Trenton State Gazette. The demand for this commodity has grown to enormous proportions during the past twenty years, and the producers say that the high price is due solely to the increase in demand.

The newspaper publishers do not take that view of it. They believe that there is an understanding between the paper manufacturers through which the output and the price is controlled by them. In other words, the newspaper publishers are apparently up against a print paper trust.

A commission created by Congress to investigate the alleged monopoly has finished its work, and Frank P. Glass, vice-president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, declares that he will be able by November 1 to prove collusion among the manufacturers.

There are but two or three ways in which the publishers can meet, or try to meet, the increased expense. He may print smaller editions, abolish returns and reduce his efforts to increase circulation.

If he cuts down the size of his edition, his subscribers howl; if he abolishes the return of unsold copies, the newsdealer howls, and if he is obliged to keep down his circulation, his advertising patron howls. So the publisher is between the devil and the deep sea.

EXPLOSIVES IN SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Lehigh Valley railroad has hit upon a wood near South Plainfield as a storing place for great quantities of explosives because there will be no municipality to guard the lives and property of the people, we presume, but those who are living in the "danger zone," and almost every part of Plainfield is included, will not be content to hope for the best in the face of such danger. Just how many cars of munitions have been stored within a few miles of this city is not known, as the railroad agents refused to give information, but twenty or even ten constitute a menace to the community in which they are "parked" and it is not within the charter of the Lehigh Valley to create such a danger in territory through which it has the rights of a carrier. South Plainfield can do as Jersey City has done—abate the nuisance and then create a law authorizing action. We do not believe that those in charge of the Lehigh Valley are willing to make such an arrangement permanent, but if this is the intent of the road, then action should be taken at once. The people who have builded or rented homes in South Plainfield and in Plainfield are entitled to protection.

• • • • • •

President Wilson made a move toward better government and better conditions for all laboring people when he began overtures toward mediation in the threatened railroad strike. A fair board of arbitration should be able to settle the differences between the workers and their employers. If mediation fails, there is still left the right to strike, but if a strike fails, then there can be no hope for mediation. This is a national crisis. A railroad strike would tie up all big business in the country, and truly it is the duty of the government to do its part in bringing about a peaceful settlement of the controversy.

Sir Roger Casement is dead. Alive, the tottering old man, his mind weak as his aged body, would have been an object of pity or even scorn. Dead, he is a martyr to the cause of Irish liberty, and out of the ground in which he is buried will spring patriots ready to make the same sacrifice in the same cause. Truly England could have spared this old man.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Many of the elements that have made "The Swiss Family Robinson" and "The Taming of the Shrew" popular are to be found in "Into the Primitive," appearing at Proctor's today, with Kathlyn Williams in the leading role. Three people are cast up on a tropical island after being shipwrecked. Without the boatloads of housekeeping supplies that Robinson Crusoe had at his disposal, it is something of a problem for them to exist. Then, too, there is the love interest furnished by the clash of wills between a man of primitive methods and a girl of patrician superciliousness. But, more than anything, this is an animal picture, and the introduction of breath-taking encounters with leopards, lions and other wild beasts gives the spectators many a thrill. Kathlyn Williams, who has achieved fame through her fearless handling of "big cats" and other jungle creatures, has never attempted anything more hazardous in this line than the stunts she tackles here. There is a constant succession of thrills. Guy Oliver, who plays opposite Miss Williams, is excellent, and Harry Lonsdale makes a splendid villain. Jack Richardson and Nita Davis are also seen today in a Western drama entitled "The Taming of Wild Bill," and plenty of laughs are provoked by "Stung by Gum" and "Two Slips and a Miss," rip-roaring comedy features.

Tomorrow the headline photoplay feature will bring together Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, two of the most popular screen stars among local film fans, in a five-part Metro romantic drama entitled "A Million a Minute." Vivian Rich will also be seen in a pleasing offering entitled "The Dancer," and there will be several other features, including some very interesting travelogues.

On Monday, by special request, Nance O'Neil, known as the empress of emotion, will appear in a story of capital and labor entitled "Those Who Toil," while Tuesday Douglas Fairbanks will star in his latest picture, "Flirting with Fate."

RUSSELL SAGE CENTENARY.

New York, August 14.—In New York financial circles today was recalled as the centennial anniversary of the birth of Russell Sage, for nearly half a century one of the most conspicuous figures in Wall Street, and generally recognized as one of the most successful financiers ever produced in America. Mr. Sage was a native of Oneida county, and was prominent in business and politics in Troy before he came to New York city in the early '60s. He opened a brokerage office here in 1863 and dealt chiefly in railroad securities. His speculative activities were confined chiefly to dealings in "puts" and "calls," by which he would stand to lose a great sum at a time. He was never identified with any great speculative operations, as were Gould, Vanderbilt and other men who were famous in Wall Street at that time, but he kept a large supply of ready cash to lend to the speculators on good security. When he died in 1906 he left a fortune estimated at $75,000,000, a large part of which has since been distributed by his widow among numerous charities and philanthropies.

The program this year provides for a wide variety of amusements, but most interest will centre, of course, in the championship races which are to begin next Wednesday. On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

Never Again.

I remember, I remember,
The old resort hotel,
Where during the torrid weather
My family used to dwell.

'Twas a converted farm house;
The farmer had ceased to toil;
No longer did he labor
And till the stony soil.

The lake was but a duck pond,
The "boating" was immense.
He fed his guests a "diet"
Which caused him no expense.

The skeeters all fought for us,
They landed and they bit,
Until my hide resembled
A suit of porous knit.

We slept up in the attic;
I wonder we're alive;
I never saw the mercury
At less than 95.

But once each week we cooled off
And nearly had a chill;
'Twas when the honest landlord
Came forward with his bill.

No longer do we suffer,
We do not care to roam;
When we want summer comfort
We linger right at home.

The Hickeyville Clarion

Hi Higgins says he has got the rheumatiz, jumpin' pneuralgia, lumbago and shingles and two of his cows has died, the mortgage has been foreclosed on his west forty, his well has gone dry, two kids have got the measles, his corncrib has burned up, his oldest son is in jail, and his wife has eloped with a travelin' man, but outside of that he is gettin' along fair to middlin'.

Some unprincipled apology for a human being has broken into our woodshed and stolen our ax. Our wife missed it when she went out to get it for the purpose of chopping off enough wood to get dinner. It was a mean trick, for she had to finally hack the wood up with our razor, the same one she uses for opening cans of tomatoes and scraping the rust off the top of the kitchen range. What is home without an ax? It is like a ship without a rudder or a peacock without a tail. While we are minus an ax, book agents, bill collectors and life insurance solocitors can call with impunity or without it just as they like. We also used our ax to peel onions, open clams, crack ice, spread sandwiches and turn pancakes, so the reader can readily understand our great loss. Will the gentleman who stole our ax please return it by Saturday, as the man who collects the installments on our phonograph calls that day and we are desirous of coming to an amicable agreement with him, which we are sure we can do if we have the ax.

Constable Ezra Hand says he hopes the common council will get our fire engine repaired soon, as it has been out of order for some time and it is quite a chore for him to run down to the Golden Nugget and borrow a seltzer siphon every time there is a fire. The fire engine ain't worked good since William Tibbitts used it to pump out the cellar of his store last spring during the flood, at which time it pumped itself full of potatoes and rubber boots.

Some Climate This.

When I get up I daily don
My suit of porosknit;
The morning sun is very hot,
The thin stuff is quite fit.

At 10 o'clock I hurry home
And don the fleece-lined stuff;
The mercury has dropped like lead,
The weather's very rough.

At noon, I'm sweltering once more,
I plainly see the cause;
The summer sun is out again,
I hurry home to gauze.

At 3 o'clock, I'm shivering,
I think it's going to snow;
The wind has shifted to the north;
Back to the fleece I go.

I let the furnace fire go out
Three times a day, and then
Each time I have to hurry back
And start the thing again.

ANNUAL MEETING OF HUMANE SOCIETY

Important Session Will Be Held In Cincinnati October 16-19.

The 40th annual meeting of the American Humane Association will be held in Cincinnati, October 16-19. Special emphasis will be placed on humane education at all its sessions to commemorate the work of Henry Bergh, who founded the anti-cruelty work in the United States fifty years ago. The first two days will be devoted to the work of child protection and the last two days to animal protection.

Among special features of the convention will be a mammoth meeting of school children of Cincinnati at which humane educational films will be displayed for the first time. The last night of the convention will be devoted to a humane institute for the school teachers of Cincinnati and neighboring towns and cities.

The leading authorities of the country on humane education will be present and speak. Special motion picture films and stereopticon slides will be shown, illustrating the best methods of teaching humane education. Sixteen States already have compulsory humane education laws. Among other special features will be the School of Methods during an afternoon session of both the children's and animals' departments.

One afternoon will be devoted to the new department known as the American Red Star Animal Relief, which shall do for the United States war horses, when sick and wounded, what the Red Cross does for our soldiers. Many prominent speakers have been secured for the different sessions of the convention.

The American Humane Association, with headquarters at Albany, N. Y., is a federation of the 562 anti-cruelty societies in the United States. Last year these societies investigated and cared for cases of cruelty involving 212,215 children and 2,394,721 animals. Dr. William O. Stillman has been president of the association for eleven years.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Petitions are being circulated for the nomination on the Democratic ticket of Charles Hamilton, of Somerville, for sheriff of Somerset county. L. B. Woolston, of North Plainfield, Republican, will also be a candidate for this office.

Many Plainfielders would like to know officially whether Mayor Leighton Calkins intends to seek a second term.

Councilman Francis J. Blair, whose term expires this year, remarked the other day that he would not seek a re-election. Mr. Blatz is now president of the Council.

Friends of Edward Bauer, of Elizabeth, declare that he will surely be nominated and elected county clerk on the Republican ticket, and add that he is growing stronger every day.

Every candidate for councilmanic honors this fall will be obliged to put himself on record as to whether he favors or is opposed to liquor licenses. The Co-operative Church Association promises to be an important factor in the local campaign.

Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Raritan, who is an active aspirant for United States Senatorial honors this year, has many friends in this section who have promised to support him in the primaries and the election, if he is nominated.

One of Senator James E. Martine's petitions for a renomination, is to be found at the Queen City Hotel, and it is reported that the first name of a Democrat remains to be affixed. However, the Senator's petitions will have the required number of signatures at the proper time.

With a President, Vice-President, United States Senator, Congressman, as well as a local Mayor and councilmen to be elected this fall, the campaign promises to be an unusually lively one in this section of the State.

Congressman Capstick, who is to be a candidate for re-election, says he is not worrying as to the result of his candidacy. He is satisfied to again go before the pople, this time on his record at Washington, and he expects a rousing big vote.

STATE MAY PURCHASE THE SPERRY TRACT

Site Considered Favorably For Relief of Hospital at Morris Plains.

There is a probability that the commission appointed by Governor Fielder to relieve the crowded conditions at Morris Plains Hospital for the Insane may recommend the purchase of the Thomas Sperry tract at Cranford. The commission has inspected several sites in this section of the State and seems more favorably impressed with this tract than any other.

It is the opinion of the members of the commission that this tract, which is the best equipped for such purpose, can be bought, and cottages be erected, and keep within the appropriation, which is $150,000 for the purchase of 500 acres. The institution is to be run on the cottage plan.

The Sperry tract s convenient to the Morris Plains institution and contains some very costly buildings, in addition to the main building. The barn on the place cost $50,000 to erect. The place is situate in a healthy location, with splendid surroundings for such an institution.

One of the reasons advanced in favor of the purchase of the Sperry tract in addition to the fact that the place can be bought for a price within the appropriation is the fact that Union County sends more inmates to the Morris Plains institution and is therefore taxed heavier than any other county. Essex and Hudson counties both have insane hospitals.

In addition to the Sperry property the commission inspected several farms in Somerset county, four in Sussex, three in Hunterdon, and the private sanitarium at Belle Meade, which has 600 acres and a fine building for the purposes desired by the State.

The commission is composed of Dr. John Nevin, of Jersey City, president; E. E. Reed, Jr., of Camden, secretary; Oscar L. Hammond, of Bernardsville; Clark D. Eaton, East Orange; John W. Whelan, of this city, and Henry T. Kayas, of Newton, the latter recently named to succeed Dr. Patton, of Princeton, who resigned.

In the last reports of both Dr. Britton D. Evans, of the State Hospital for the Insane at Morris Plains, and Dr. Henry B. Cotton, of the State Hospital for the Insane at Trenton, it was shown that additional room was necessary and the establishment of a hospital for the criminal insane was urged. This recommendation is still being considered, but the recommendation of Dr. Evans, of the Morris Plains institution, that an additional hospital for these less serious patients be established was taken up and the legislature granted an appropriation of $150,000.

When this is completed it will permit the removal of many patients from the hospital and allow Dr. Evans to designate a section of the institution for the criminal insane.

It is also likely that the new institution will be in operation before a year and should progress be shown in this direction the Trenton institution may get some sort of relief.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Miss Gertrude Quinlan, the popular musical comedy star, has announced her engagement to a New York business man, John O'Neil, vice-president of the United Cigars Stores Company, and reputed wealthy. The wedding will be held in October.

Elsie Janis, one of the most charming and versatile of American theatrical stars, has sailed for England to present a one-act play in London at the request of Queen Mary, who is a warm admirer of the vivacious little American. Miss Janis, not content with her stage laurels, published a book of poems last year. Photo plays in which she recently starred were also written by herself, the "leads" being written in verse and of amusing whimsicality seldom found in movie scenarios.

Kate and Ella Kerr, sisters, of Cynthiana, Ky., married James M. Wilson and Benjamin T. Riggs, cousins, in a double wedding fifty years ago, and recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary together.

The youngest homesteader in Arkansas is Miss Nettie Rogers, 18 years old, who has filed a homestead claim on 160 acres of land on Flint Ridge. Miss Rogers is a graduate of an agricultural school and one of the very few women who have had the courage to attempt the cultivation of the rough mountain land in the region.

In contrast with Miss Rogers' youthful grit is the pluck, even more remarkable, of Mrs. Harriet M. Martin, ninety-nine years old, of Newcastle, N. H., who claims the title of the "oldest office girl in the world." Mrs. Martin has the sole care of the office of a physician who practices in her house, and never was known to fail on her daily round of duties.

Miss Emma Webb, eldest granddaughter of Senator Thomas Sterling of South Dakota, with whom she has been making her home in Washington, is on her way to India, where she will be married to Professor Azel Anderson Martin, of the American College at Madura, an institution directed by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Congregational Church. Miss Webb, whose family resides at Trempealeau, Wis., had during her long stay at the capital become a favorite in official society.

The Women's Clothing Wage Board of the Massachusetts Minimum Wage Commission has made a report unanimously recommending that experienced adult women employed in Massachuetts women's clothing factories (cloak, suit, skirt, dress and waist shops) be paid not less than $8.75 a week. Although this figure was recommended after an independent investigation lasting eight weeks, the sum is approximately the same accepted by three preceding wage boards in Massachusetts (brush, candy and laundry boards).

One of the most interesting features of the feminist movement in the whole world is the thirst for education of the women of China, so long the fortress of all that was reactionary in the feminine world. Chinese women do not yet find in their own country the facilites for the higher education, and go to Japan in numbers for it. Chinese girl students are no longer the curiosity that they were in former years, there being scarcely a girls' school in the Japanese metropolis without several students from the only republic in the Far East. Many of these girls are studying to be teachers, while others are only in search of general culture. There are many knocking at the door of the liberal professions, medicine especially. There are twenty Chinese women, mostly married, studying at Mme. Yoshioka's Medical School for Women, Kawadocho, Ichigaya. They naturally wish to go into practice when they have completed their studies, and the far-spreading propaganda they will wage for feminine emancipation in the Flowery Kingdom cannot but exert a very strong influence.

"Trousers for Women" is the astonishing "fashion note" that comes from the warring realms of Europe. The entrance of women into the industrial field left vacant by their brothers fighting at the front, is bringing about a revolution in feminine garb. Women in trousers are becoming more and more numerous. They don the more convenient garb in greater and greater numbers, in order to cope with work where the skirt is found to be a hindrance. This is especially true in the case of Englishwomen, and conservative English opinion, instead of criticizing the change, is inclined to encourage women to dress as men if trey do men's work. In certain munitions towns, the women thus clothed, who had donned the garb only within factory walls, are beginning to go about in it without attracting the least disrespectful comment. Women chauffeurs have also generally adopted trousers without causing undue amazement.

BOX AND CHAIR AND A BATHING SUIT! NOW FOR FIRST KELLERMANN LESSON!

This Tells You How to Make the "Breast Stoke," the First Essential Movement. Breathing and Its Relation to Swimming. You Will Be Swimming In A Week.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

Before taking up the breast stroke I want you to obtain the following articles:

1. A piano stool, or some box strong enough to sustain your weight.
2. A kitchen chair.
3. A one-piece bathing suit or like garment to wear while going through the exercises.
4. A cushion or pillow.

Now before starting open all windows. Fresh air is essential to good health.

Place the piano stool or box in the centre of the room and lay the cushion on top of it. Then place the chair directly behind it, but a short distance removed. Lay yourself so that your stomach is on the stool or box and keep your legs on the chair.

Keep your chest clear of the stool. That part of the body commencing where the ninth rib rests should just clear the edge of the stool.

Now place your hands on a level with your chest, palms downward and hands side by side. Do not place your hands in the usual attitude of prayer. The old method of starting the breast stroke is wrong and besides, it means an extra movement. Keep your hands flat. Now bring them forward as if about to dive. Stretch them straight out as far as you can. Keep them on a level with your chin. Raise your head a trifle so as to clear the imaginary water.

You are now lyin flat with arms extended as though making a dive. Turn your hands until the palms are facting outward, then as if cleaving or rather plowing the water bring them back in a wide circle until they are on a level with your shoulders.

While you are making this movement, inhale a deep breath. With the next movement bend the elbow and keeping the hands flat so as to cut the water, bring them back to their original position on chest and under the chin.

Continue this movement until you do it faultlessly. Keep it up until you are able to do it with perfect ease.

Should this exercise make your muscles ache and become stiff, a few movements in physical culture will soon make them right again.

The following exercises will strengthen the muscles of the stomach and make you feel more comfortable after your breast stroke exercise:

1. Lie flat on the floor. Raise the left leg, bending the knee until the leg is at right angles. Then lower the leg without bending the knee. Alternate movements of legs, taking first the right and then the left leg. Do this about five times with each leg for a starter and then increase to twenty.
2. Now raise both legs and do this from ten to twenty times.
3. Control your breathing, inhale slowly through the nose and exhale through the mouth.
4. Stand up and continue the breathing exercise from three to five minutes. I cannot impress upon you too much the immense value of breathing either for its own sake or in conjunction with swimming.

Of course, you understand that all of these exercises are to be done in the one-piece suit. Your body must be free and it cannot be if you wear many of the senseless garments with which we humans are afflicted.

Tomorrow the leg stroke will be described so that you may take it with ease. This is the next necessary stroke for you to know. Knowing this and the breast stroke, described yesterday, your training is well under way.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How the Birds Picked Up Hansel's Crumbs.

They Came to a Strange Little Hut.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

DADDY told Jack and Evelyn a bedtime story about two children, Hansel and Grethel, whose parents were leading them away from home into the deep woods. Each child had a small piece of bread.

"Hansel crumbled his bread and threw bits of it on the ground, and so they went on farther and farther into the woods, where they had never been before in all their lives.

"Finally their father built a big fire and told them to lie down and go to sleep. 'In the evening we will come and take you home,' said he.

"When supper time came Hansel and Grethel were very hungry—almost as hungry as you two children were tonight, my dears. So Grethel shared her bread with Hansel, because he had strewed his on the ground to mark the way. Twilight passed, evening passed, and nobody came to take the poor children home.

"Still, Hansel comforted Grethel. 'Wait till the moon rises, dear. Then I shall be able to see the crumbs on the ground, and then we can follow them home.'

"The moon rose. But when Hansel looked for the crumbs they were gone. Hundreds of hungry little birds in the woods had picked them up and eaten them for supper.

'Still, the brave little Hansel tried to find the way home. But the children only lost their way in the wilderness and wandered about all that night and the next day. They were very weary and hungry and at last fell asleep.

"The next day they wandered about, hunting for a path they thought might lead home. But they never came to the end of the woods, and they were as hungry as children ever can be, for they had nothing to eat but berries.

"On the afternoon of the third day they came to a strange little hut. It was made of bread, with a roof of cake and windows of barley sugar.

"'Now, we will sit down and eat till we have had enough!' cried Hansel. 'I will eat off the roof for my share. Grethel, you eat the windows. They will be nice and sweet for you.'

"While Grethel was picking barley sugar off the windows a pretty voice called softly from within:

"'Tip, tap! Who goes there?'"

"Was it a fairy?" cried Evelyn.

Then daddy kissed Jack and Evelyn, and they hopskipped off to bed like good children.

For the Republican Nomination for Governor:

SENATOR AUSTEN COLGATE

For President of the United States the Republicans have nominated the man who will poll the biggest vote.

The Republicans of New Jersey have the same duty to perform in selecting a Candidate for Governor.

Senator Austen Colgate is the strongest man the Republican Party can nominate.

Why?

He would poll the full party vote because he has no factional opposition and is popular with every element in the party. His clean record in office, his broad views on public questions and his just regard for the interests of the citizens of every class have made him strong with the independent voters.

The Democrats will choose their candidate from Hudson County, in the hope that his big vote in this great stronghold of the Democracy will insure victory in spite of adverse pluralities in the Republican counties. This plan proved successful in 1913 and they are pinning their faith to it in 1916

As the head of the great manufacturing plant of Colgate & Company, employing over 2,500 hands, Senator Colgate has his business headquarters in Hudson County. His acknowledged popularity there would enable him to hold down the Democratic plurality as no other Republican candidate could.

In Essex, his home county, with the biggest Republican vote in the State, he is assured of an overwhelming plurality.

In these two counties alone is cast about one-third of the total vote of the twenty-one counties of New Jersey. Shall the Republican party repeat the history of 1913 and resign to the Democrats the advantage of having a candidate who represents that section of the State in which the vast preponderous of the population lies?

The Democratic leaders frankly acknowledge they don't want Colgate, because he would be the hardest man to beat.

NOMINATE A SURE WINNER!

Vote for Senator Austen Colgate for the Republican nomination for Governor on Primary Day, September 26.

Raking 'Em Over

SAME APPLIES HERE.

It certainly is a pity that the batting averages of each of the City League teams have not been compiled. But, this city is not the only place wherein cases of this kind exist. The baseball fans of Elizabeth are always lamenting the sad fact that the officials of their Sunday School League did not enforce a law whereby the managers of the various baseball teams in that league would be compelled to compile complete records. Here's what V. Fallon, sporting editor of the Elizabeth Times, has to say about the situation:

"Whether the secretary has kept an account of games and intends to announce the records later is a secret because such a plan has not been made known. If he has, let him come forth now. If he hasn't, it is too late to begin. The standing of the teams seems to be the only feature that can be prepared. In the absence of the individual records we must accept the team standing as the next best. All that is known now is that three teams have lost only one game each. On that basis we must figure the victor on the number of games lost, not won."

INTERESTING CLIPPINGS.

The American League race this season has been full of thrills and sensations, but the biggest one of all is being staged now by the Browns. First it was the spurt of the Cleveland tribe, going out in front and sticking so long, only to be replaced by the Yanks, who held the berth for a long while, even though the accident jinx pounded the crew into a shapeless mass. And all the while the fans were poking fun and ridicule at the St. Louis Browns, ranking them as rivals with the Athletics for the bottom of the league. Then the Brownies cut loose. Yesterday they won their twelfth straight game, breaking their own season record. They walloped the Yankees six consecutive times, and were responsible for pulling the Donovan crowd out of first place. Today finds the St. Louis club with a percentage of .500, and yet ranking seventh in standing. The race is bunching up more than ever with seven teams now to be considered, the Athletics being hopelessly out of the running. The White Sox copped a pair yesterday, while Boston returned a winner and lengthened their margin, but during the past two weeks the Brownies have been playing even more sensational ball than either of these two, as Jones' men were up against the league leaders half the time, while the Sox were pounding away at the poor Macks.

S. P. M'CARTY THINKS SO.

Evidently Jimmy Callahan believes Babe Adams is through. From a reliable source it was learned that nearly all the National League teams have waived on Adams. The asking of waivers was intimated more than a week ago. Time and again this season the Mt. Moriah beauty has been stuck in for a trial and each time he as batted and slammed back to the bench. Adams has pitched but one good game, that against Cincinnati, at the beginning of the season. His loss is a big blow to the Callahan heaving corps, as the dope went to him doing a big portion of the work this season, instead he has been more of a detriment than a help. Of course, when a fellow has lost his ability he is of no value, and Callahan has been sticking to Adams with the hope that he would show a come-back, but the Bue boss wants to use Adams in some kind of a trade and has asked waivers. There is no sentiment in baseball, hence the probable release of Adams, but it will be with a feeling of regret in local fandom to see the big fellow leave Forbes Field.

FRANK SCHULTE'S PAY.

Frank Schulte, the veteran outfielder, brought to the Pirates along with Bill Fischer in exchange for Art Wilson, is a high salaried man For almost eleven years Schulte was a member of the Cub team. During the Federal raid big offers were made to have Schulte make the leap to the independents, but he refused them all, but did not lose sight of the fact that a big chance was offered to improve his salary in the National League. Dreyfuss was a bit slow in making the deal with the Cubs when he learned the size of Schulte's contract, as it is stated on good authority that it still has a year to run, after the present season, and calls for $7,500 a year. If Wildfire can keep hitting .300 like he is at present, he will be worth that figure, but a batting slump will make such a salary look bad. This is the second high-priced player traded by the Cubs to Pittsburgh, as Joe Schultz is probably getting a better salary than any other young fellow in the league, as his salary envelope is larger than any member of the Pittsburgh club with the exception of Hans Wagner and possibly one other player. It is a war-time contract, and Dreyfuss believed he could induce Joe to cancel it when the deal was made, but Joe held on.

HERZOG BOOSTS GIANTS.

Since Buck Herzog joined the Giants the chances of the Polo Grounders have been boosted. Buck has been playing a star game himself, but the life he has put into the outfit has been more valuable than his individual work. Herzog knows a lot about pitching. He has made it a hobby to study the mound fellows, and while in Cincinnati he made the boast that he could take Jeff Tesreau and make a real star out of him. In the game Tesreau pitched against the Pirates it was remarked in the stands at New York, and press comment made, that Tesreau looked to Herzog for instructions more than to either McGraw or Doyle. Buck has jumped into the game with new life and McGraw is giving him a pretty free hand, as the managerial ability and the sharp brain of Buck is worth taking into consideration. Since Herzog donned a Giant uniform the whole team has braced, shown more life, the pitchers have worked better and it looks like McGraw had the right dope when he stated "getting Herzog was one of the greatest deals I ever made."

Games Tomorrow.

Farmers at Dunellen (2 games).
Hope at Baptist.
T. A. B. S. at Netherwood.

The City League baseball matches scheduled for tomorrow are unusually important ones. The game between the Tabs and the Netherwoods is sure to attract considerable attention, as it may prove the decisive game of the season. If the Tabs lose it is all over as far as they are concerned, while if Netherwood loses the Fourth street stock will soar quite a little.

There is no little excitement attached to the game between the Hopes and the Baptists. The Hopes are runners-up in the league race and are anxious to keep up the pace they are now setting. If the Baptists play the kind of baseball that they exhibited against the Tabs last Saturday there is going to be a riot in the Chapel camp. But the Hopes rely on Dick Schott to tame the Firsts, who, by the way, have shown a decided inclination to get somewhere in the league standing. No more "last place" rating for the Baptists.

The Farmers should fare well in Dunellen. The team has been strengthened by the addition of one or two new men and has in Davies, of Roselle, a good pitcher. The club has been having a rough time of it, but the exhibition given at Dunellen last Saturday leads friend fan to believe that he can hope to see a good attraction tomorrow. The teams will indulge in a double bill.

Queries--Comment--Answers

Question—At what time will the special train arranged to accommodate New York entries to the Plainfield Kennel Club Show on September 23, leave Jersey City? J. H. K. Answer—We understand that the train will leave Jersey City at 8:15 on the morning of September 23.

Question—How can I get to the former Federal League park in Harrison? "Real Estate Answer—You can take the Union trolley car or the Central Railroad train to Newark and from there go, either by the Hudson tubes or Harrison trolley direct to the grounds. Of course, you know that the Federal League is no more.

Question—Are visitors allowed at the various motion picture studios? "Movie." Answer—Some studios admit visitors, but the majority of them do not permit outsiders to enter. It is very difficult to gain admittance to studios in the East, and it is almost as hard to get in the studios of the West. If you are anxious to be a "movie" actor or actress your chances of getting into any studio are very slim.

Question—Are the Giants going to win the pennant? "McGraw." Answer—Well, "Mugsy," we would like to see the Giants win, but we fear that the team will have to display a little more ability if it really intends to do something worth while.

Question—A friend of mine states that Jack Warhop, the former Yankee hurler, played under an assumed name. Is that correct? "Constant Reader." Answer—We understand that "Warhop's" correct name is "Flynn." Some Indian, eh?

Question—What team had the greatest number of defeats in any season? "Athletic Rooter." Answer—Washington, of the Americans, League, had the greatest number of defeats in any season. The team was defeated 113 times in 1904.

JAPANESE PLAYERS AT WESTFIELD

Hashishiro Mikami and Ichiya Kumagae to Appear There Tomorrow.

Robert Lindley Murray, formerly of Palo Alto, Cal., but more recently of Bayonne, N. J., gave a demonstration yesterday at the Crescent A. C. of the difference between the top notch tennis of the Orient and the Occident. The lean "native son" had no trouble whatever in disposing of Hashishiro Mikami, the Jap who plays at Westfield tomorrow, in the round before the semi-final. The Yankee boy just walked off with the first set without losing a game. His lightning service and accurate placing had the Japanese player at sea. Mikami, however, showed that he had quite a head on him, for he had learned what was right for Murray in the second set and sent him out to 6—4 before he was vanquished.

Mikami surprised the gallery by some of the remarkable place shots that he made. Time after time he enticed Murray out of the correct position and shot the ball far from his racquet.

SWIMMING EVENTS.

The Amateur Athletic Union's quarter mile swim for the championship of the United States is to be held under the auspices of the New York Athletic Club at Travers Island on Saturday afternoon. Ludy Langer, of the Los Angeles A. C., the champion, has come to defend his title and is in superb condition. His strongest competitors will be Herbert Vollmer and Thedford Cann, both of the New York A. C. and respectively champions at 220 yards and 500 yards. The Amateur Athletic Union has arranged to have Langer, Vollmer and Cann compete in the half mile championship at St. Louis on August 12, the one mile championship on August 20 and the 100 yard championship at Honolulu on September 4. In this race they will compete with Duke Kahanamoku and George Cuhna, the wonderful Hawaiian swimmers.

AMATEUR TRAPSHOOTING PRIZES MONOPOLIZED BY METROPOLIS

In Winning Recent Competition Ralph Spotts Made Good Record—Table of Winners Since Start of Amateur Championship—Other Trapshooting News.

(By Peter P. Carney.)

New York and Philadelphia devotees of the "sport alluring" seem to have acquired a monopoly on the amateur trapshooting championship of America, for the the eleven years' competition the title has been won five times by representatives of the New York Athletic Club and four times by Philadelphians On the two other occasions Boston, Mass, and Wilmington, Del., scatter gun enthusiasts showed the way.

In winning the recent championship competition Ralph L. Spotts, of the New York Athletic Club, recorded the best performance in the eleven years of championship competition, breaking 196 out of 200 targets. Spotts is no flash in the pan. He won the amateur championship in 1914 and was beaten by George L. Lyon in 1915. Spotts broke 188 targets in 1914, and Lyon broke 192 in 1915 to defeat him. Spotts broke 193 targets in the preliminary event this year, which gave the other contestants an idea of what they had in their titular event. There were 27 squads at the traps—135 contestants—and they were the best in the country. All but one of the participants were of the former sex. The lone woman shooter was Mr. A. G. Wilkes, of San Francisco.

Spotts ran off the strings in the following manner: 24, 25, 25, 25, 25, 24 23, 25, having a high run of 117. Trapshooters are inclined to the opinion that Spotts is about the best amateur trapshot in the country. He has been high gun in every tournament he has participated in this season.

The following table gives the record of the winners and who they are since the beginning of the amateur championship tournament by the New York Athletic Club:

1905—J. H. Hendrickson, N.Y.A.C	94
1906—W. M. Foord, Wilmington	94
1907—E. F. Gleason, Boston	95
1908—G. S. McCarty, Philadelphia	96
1909—G. S. McCarty, Philadelphia	98
1910—No competition.
1911—H. Kahler, Philadelphia	173
1912—B. M. Higginson, N.Y.A.C.	185
1913—C. H. Newcomb, Philadelphia	179
1914—R. L. Spotts, N.Y.A.C.	188
1915—G. L. Lyon, N.Y.A.C.	192
1916—R. L. Spotts, N.Y.A.C.	196

ASSESSORS FAIL TO FILE ALL TAX BOOKS

At the meeting of the Middlesex County Board of Equalization of Taxes on Tuesday, several assessors were handed back their tax duplicates, with the instruction to reassess their district. W. T. Woerner, the assessor of Raritan Township, was instructed to make a general raise of 20 per cent. on all properties; also to assess all acreage on trolley line at $200 per acre, it having been learned by the Board that these lands are being held at upwards of $1,000 per acre, hence the increase.

Several weeks ago the board, in company with the assessor went over the ground and advised an assessment of $400 per acre. This rate the assessor deemed too high.

JUDGES ANNOUNCED FOR COMING SHOW

Plans For Fifth Annual Show of Kennel Club Rapidly Nearing Completion.

Plans for the fifth annual show of the Plainfield Kennel Club are being rapidly completed and it is expected that at the meeting on Monday evening the Bench Show Committee will take up many more important matters. The announcement that the list of premiums would be announced on August 22 was made some time ago and it is predicted that this premium list will eclipse any offered by A. K. C. shows held yet this season. Those dog fanciers who wish to procure copies of the list can do so by writing to John J. O'Donohue, who is secretary of the club, and who resides on Tompkins avenue, this city, or by addressing Wilbur Purcell, of 29 Broadway, New York. Mr. Purcell is the manager of the show. John Conway, of 920 West Seventh street, is treasurer of the club, and will also dispose of copies of the premium list.

According to information given out by Superintendent Wilbur Purcell, over 700 entries for the show are expected. At the present time, in the neighborhood of 600 trophies have been donated, the aggregate value of the prizes being about $800. As was announced previously a portion of the proceeds of this show will be given to the Volunteers' Auxiliary, a worthy local organization. Advance information states that exhibitors from as far north as Canada will enter their dogs here and that many New York entries will be received. An accommodation train will be run from Jersey City on the day of the show. Everything points to a successful exhibition at the Horse Show Grounds on September 23.

Nine of the judges chosen have accepted the invitation to officiate here and have been assigned to the various classes. It is expected that the other judges will be made known in the near future. The present list includes the following: Mrs. Abbie Rubino, of Bergenfield, N. J., who will judge Belgian and German sheep dogs; Fred Hill, of Valley Cottage, N. J., will judge Great Danes, while George Greer, of Rye, N. Y., will officiate in the Sporting Spaniels class. James E. Meada of Brooklyn, N. Y., will be the judge of Boston Terriers, while C. N. Denault, of Pittsfield, Mass., will do the deciding in the French Bulldog class. The other judges and the classes in which they will officiate are as follows: Udo M. Fleischman, of New York city, Pointers, Setters; Dr. J. E. De Mund, of Brooklyn, Irish Wolfhounds, Scotch Wolfhounds, Daschunds, Scotch Deerhounds, Whippets, Boxers, Doberman Pinshers, Dalmatians, Vest Highland, White Terriers, Maltese Terriers, and Italian Greyhounds; Vinton P. The next meeting of the Bench Show Committee will be held in the Queen City Hotel on Monday evening.

CHELSEAS TO PERFORM.

On Sunday afternoon the South Plainfield team will engage the Chelsea Park team, of this city. This team is composed of many Netherwood stars and a hard fight for the Suburbans is anticipated. The Chelseas and South Plainfields were to meet two weeks ago, but owing to wet grounds the game was cancelled. It is expected that Velard will do the hurling for the Suburbans.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? PLAINFELD WOMAN FINDS MEANING AND LUCRATIVE VOCATION

"What's in a name?" When we quote the old phrase ourselves, we usaully mean: Is there significance, appropriateness and beauty in it? When advertisers choose a name they demand that it shall have catchiness and simplicity. Recently, however, a woman living in this city, has found that there is not only meaning and euphony, but a lucrative vocation, in names.

Naming things is Miss Laura Lee Rogers' business. On her stationery is engraved in small blue letters, "The Nomenclator." She names country estates and seaside cottages, poultry farms and city luncheon rooms, parks and streets, commercial products and even aristocratic dogs, cats and horses. From all over the United States come resuests for her advice as to the most appropriate names for homes, camps, clubs, and the like; and, lest it be thought that this service is not remunerative, be it known that a generous fee is asked, and gladly paid, for every name accepted by her patrons.

"What? As much as that just for thinking up a name?" exclaims the average person, upon hearing of her success in this new and interesting vocation. But, when a person learns of all that goes into this business of finding out "what's in a name," the charge seems very modest, after all.

To begin with, "the Nomenclator" sends, to every prospective purchaser of a name, a series of searching questions. Suppose the name is desired for a country estate—as most of them are, in fact. The client is asked for information as to the location, contour, and natural features of the land, whether it is level or hilly, wooded or open, in the mountains or near the sea—if there is a lake on the grounds or near them, if beech trees or elms prevail, if the house affords an extensive view. These facts are noted and taken into consideration. Next the nationality of the family or group of persons is considered, if the family name was derived from the Welsh or French, Gaelic or Russian, this helps to decide choosing a name. The proper names of the members of the family are asked, as often from these names or their initials a pretty and significant name may be concocted. Every point that might contribute an idea toward the naming of the place is carefully worked out.

"My idea is, you see, that each name should be peculiarly applicable to that particular place or group of people. It should express them, their interests, their surroundings. The ideal name is one that would be appropriate to that particular case and to no other. So I make every effort to find the special feature or quality or interest that they wish to bring out in their abiding place, and then subject it to the laws of euphony, practicability, and originality. In some cases, it seems best to symbolize the beauty of the natural surroundings in a name; in others, the principal activity or interest should be expressed. For example, of the family is musical, or interested in any particular sport; if the camp of girls desiring a name is trying to work out some special cultural idea; if trees are the glory of the spot, or if the sea crashes on the nearby rocks—the desired idea is embodied in the name as consistently as possible with beauty and simplicity. Far-fetched, unpronouncable names are never attractive, no matter what hidden significance they carry.

"In order to have available sources for names of every sort, I have made my own dictionary or glossary. I have collected an enormous number of Indian words and syllables, which may combine into beautiful names. A study of old Gaelic, Welsh, and Scotch words reveals rich possibilities in the way of lovely suffixes, prefixes, and root syllables, which afford numberless combinations. Old French gives much to draw from, and so does old English. Arabic words give many ideas, and I choose freely from Spanish, Greek and Latin. Old Saxon words, too, furnish good material for combinations. You have no idea what a satisfaction it is to take several old English syllables, running into a rhythmis word, and then find them signifying some comforting, beautiful thought.

"Of course, I have many odd and unusual names, besides those for private estates and homes. For example, a man who was establishing a stock farm for horses, wanted a name for the place; and a difficult thing it was to find, too, as 'horse' is not a specially beautiful word in any language, so far is I could find. We were successful, however. A young woman who wished to open an inviting little roadhouse on Cape Cod appealed to me, and we worked out a title which drew smiling tourists in droves under the swinging sign. A great quarry wrote for names by which to designate various kind of marble intended for interior decoration. Arichitects often come to me for names for private estates and institutions.

"After I have worked out all the possibilities connected with any one place, I submit to the client a list of 20 names, with a full explanation as to how each is made up, its derivation, and what it signifies. If a name is chosen from the list, the fee is charged, but the list is submitted gratuitously. Of course, I have to trust to the good faith of the person to whom I send the list, but I find that people who would be interested in such things would not be the ones to take advantage of another's work.

"I feel very strongly that not only private homes, but our streets, our cities and towns should be given appropriate and euphonious names. We should have learned much more than we have from the Indians whose lands we have taken. England abounds in charming names, infused with meaning, rhythm, and quaintness. The prosaic titles of a great many American country towns, and, above all, the absolute lack of originality in the naming of our streets, seems deplorable to me.

"In fact, I long to fulfill so far as I can, the meaning of the motto I have adopted:

"'A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in baskets of silver.'"

Platinum dress accessories promise to be much used this summer. Gate tops of platinum have superseded gold on bead bags and the bags of lace and silk to be worn with the picturesquely full frocks. The 1830 costume positively demands a bag. In old days it was a reticule, of black silk or lace, home made and finished with a tassel, but nowadays the bag is a dainty, fragile affair, with its platinum clasp, its brocaded and beaded surface, and its pretty fittings.

"You ask how I first thought of nomenclature as a vocation. Well, I am a Virginian, and in Virginia all of the old homes were named, you know. My grandfather was especially happy at finding names for his own and his neighbors' estates, and in turn my father was asked to name country pleaes near by. I began performing this pleasant service for my friends. Finally, some one asked me why I did not develop this talent and make it more widely available. I then began a thorough study of words and names in different languages. Now I am naming places all over the United States and even in South America, so you see there was a good field for this work.

DECISION RESERVED IN JUMPER APPEAL

Judge Connolly Presented With Facts By G. W. V. Moy As Counsellor.

Appearing before Judge Connolly this morning in Elizabeth, former Mayor G. W. V. Moy, of this city, counsel for Laura Wilson and Lavinia Leach, members of the Pillars of Fire, arrested and sentenced to jail by the local authorities two weeks ago, made application to have the ordinance prohibiting that sect from conducting street meetings in this city set aside. Decision was reserved by the court.

Counsellor Moy was accompanied to court by the two women members of the sect who served jail sentences following arrest here. He claimed during the course of the argument that the ordinance under which they were prosecuted was unconstitutional and deprived them of their right of religious freedom of speech. He also claimed that the law invested in the Mayor a power to which he was not entitled.

CHAMBERS SEES WILSON.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Judge W. L. Chambers, of the Board of Mediation and Conciliation, conferred with President Wilson today on the railroad strike situation.

RAILROAD WAGES

Shall they be determined by Industrial Warfare or Federal Inquiry?

To the American Public:

Do you believe in arbitration or industrial warfare?

The train employes on all the railroads have voted whether they will give their leaders authority to tie up the commerce of the country to enforce their demands for a 100 million dollar wage increase.

The railroads are in the public service—your service. This army of employes is in the public service—your service.

You pay for rail transportation 3 billion dollars a year, and 44 cents out of every dollar from you goes to the employes.

On all the Eastern Railroads in 1915, seventy-five per cent of the train employes earned these wages (lowest, highest, and average of all) as shown by the payrolls—

	Passenger		Freight		Yard
	Range	Average	Range	Average	Range	Average
Engineers	$1641 3224	$1931	$1585 2992	$1783	$1303 2178	$1543
Conductors	1553 3004	1831	1552 2901	1642	1145 1991	1315
Firemen	951 1704	1128	933 1762	1109	752 1633	935
Brakemen	957 1707	1141	862 1521	973	834 1635	1085

The average yearly wage payments to all Eastern train employes (including those who worked only part of the year) as shown by the 1915 payrolls were—

	Passenger	Freight	Yard
Engineers	$1796	$1546	$1384
Conductors	1724	1404	1238
Firemen	1033	903	844
Brakemen	1018	858	990

A 100 million dollar wage increase for men in freight and yard service (less than one-fifth of all employes) is equal to a 5 per cent advance in all freight rates.

The managers of the railroads, as trustees for the public, have no right to place this burden on the cost of transportation to you without a clear mandate from a public tribunal speaking for you.

The railroads have proposed the settlement of this controversy either under the existing national arbitration law, or by reference to the Interstate Commerce Commission. This offer has been refused by the employes' representatives.

Shall a nation-wide strike or an investigation under the Government determine this issue?

STALLINGS SUSPENDED.

George T. Stallings, manager of the Boston Nationals, today received notification of his suspension for three days by President Tener of the league for words addressed to Umpire Rigler after yesterday's game. The Braves' leader left the bench during the first game of a double header with Cincinnati, Fred Mitchell succeeding him in charge.

The suspension of the Boston leader followed a series of altercations between members of the Braves' team and the league umpires during the past two months. These differences and more especially Umpire Rigler's attitude and decisions in yesterday's game were the subject of a protest made to the league president in New York today by President Haughton of the Boston team.

Manager Stallings said after he left the field that his only remarks to Umpire Rigler yesterday were made after he left the game.

Ribbon the Mainstay of Fall Hats -- A New Gray Is Smart With Navy -- The Puritan Sailor As Demure As It Sounds -- Much Feather Trimming In New and Fanciful Forms.

AND now the hats for fall! To be sure, one expects them these days, with the coming of midsummer. Whether or not one cares to don an autumn hat in July or August, it is certainly a comfort to know it is there to be purchased—when the fancy strikes one.

By Its Crown Is The Fall Hat Known.

Crowns are the thing in the new hats for autumn. Paris has evidently resolved to make this season's hat crowns something to remember. The balloon crown is perhaps the most striking. This crown bells up from the hat as though inflated with air (in reality there is a stiffening material, crinoline, or something of the sort, under the velvet or silk that forms the balloon). Caroline Reboux has brought out a very striking model of this type, the hat of changeable green taffeta, with a trimming band of little green wings entirely around the crown. The brim, which tilts coquettishly up at one side and down at the other, is covered with the green taffeta; then comes a straight, sailor-like crown about three inches high, covered with tucked green taffeta. Instead of being flat across the top, this crown bulges (or "bells") up to form the balloon effect, and the band of little green wings is set at the joining line of straight crown and balloon top.

The balloon crown is shown in another guise—a turban called the artist's cap—pictured on today's page. The balloon in this case is draped a little, or rather dented in here and there to suggest drapery; and it is made of biscuit tinted felt over a sustaining stiffening fabric. A smartly tied bow of the felt, with pointed ends, is tucked under the crown in front, above the narrow, mushroom brim of black velvet.

Pontine, The Novelty Fabric For Fall.

Lyons velvet, black, lustrous and silky, is the favored material for draped toques, turbans and crowns, it seems; and of course, Lyons velvet is an exclusive stuff just now, difficult to get in quantity and therefore high-priced; so for the general run of millinery substitutes have had to be resorted to. These include various pile fabrics, plushes, silks and ribbons. An angora cloth with a texture like beaver felt is popular also. Quite new and therefore most interesting is a material called pontine, which does not confine its service to millinery by any means, for it is found in smart motor and sport coats, in collars, scarves and various other details of the costume; but for fall and winter hats this pontine is matchless. On one side the material has a smooth, waxed surface, supple and flexible and very lustrous; the reverse side is velvet, satin or cloth, and the range of colors and color combinations is astonishing. Some exceedingly smart French hats are of pontine in contrasted color effect, the waxed side of the fabric being used in combination with the velvet, or satin side with extremely good effect. A handsome model of this sort, from Leontine, is of black and white pontine, the velvet side in black. This hat is in the high-crowned, drooping brim shape called the Puritan sailor—a very fashionable new shape for autumn. The brim and crown band are of pontine with the black velvet side out; the waxed side is exposed on top of the crown and around the brim goes a band of the white, with lacings of cord at front and back. This hat, a most effective item in a trousseau ordered for early autumn, will accompany a tailored frock of black broadcloth, stitched with rows and rows of white silk in the new fashion, and having a roll collar and cuffs of white soiree silk.

Continentals For Fall.

Women who look their best in saucy tricorne shapes will be glad to know these hats are to be very good next season. Some of the most attractive new Paris shapes are continentals—tricornes and bicornes, chiefly with the outline not too pronounced but with that fascinating irregularity that makes the continental so becoming since it may be adjusted to suit the face. From Lewis is a new continental in faille silk; navy and the new soft gray which harmonizes with navy particularly well. The crown and upper brim are of gray faille and the under brim, rising abruptly all around from an inch-wide band, is of navy velvet. The narrow band sets well over the forehead, touching the eyebrows, as most of the new hats are worn. Hair-dressings grow higher and higher, the locks being built on top of the head in big, soft puffs; so hats tilt forward rather than back and hide the forehead almost completely, exposing the waves of coiffure at back and sides. This effect is very pronounced in two of the French hats pictured. One of these hats, from Virot, is of black velvet with a narrow black lace veil draped from the brim and made into a wired bow across the back; the other model, from Talbot, is of black velvet and white coque, with a touch of jet at one side. The Virot hat is striking because of its mammoth crown and the peculiar adjustment of the lace veil. In reality, the hat is not as small as the big crown makes it appear; without the crown, the shape would appear as a broad-brim sailor of average dimensions but of course the large crown throws the brim into insignificance. The low set of the hat on the head, with the eyes peering out from under the deep brim and narrow curtain of lace, gives an effect of mystery that is rather captivating.

A Sailor From Georgette.

Autumn would scarcely be autumn without a new velvet sailor from Georgette, and a very stunning one indeed has been photographed for you in connection with this chat about the coming millinery. The pose of this big sailor is very graceful, the brim rising in a curling sweep on one side and swooping down over the eye and cheek on the opposite side. The sailor is made of black velvet and a new note is added in the trimming of jet sequins which overlap each other all around the edge of the brim and form a double cocade at the front of the crown. The neckscarf of snowy white fox fur adds to the suggestion of chic in the poise of this big sailor.

Still another sailor, this one from a Fifth avenue milliner, shows the new upcurled brim in which rests a trimming of hedgelike striped ostrich. Though rather stiff and uncompromising in line for any but a youthful wearer, this hat is distinctly smart and predicts a favored mode for fall. The hedge of ostrich is a much sought after trimming and indeed all wings and feather ornaments have a spiky tendency. Across a small toque of black velvet from Louison are poised sharp-pointed swallow's pinions, the thicker ends of the wings overlapping at the center while the long points sweep outward and upward. As though the pointed effect was not definite enough, a tuft of long spiky aigrettes rises from the center of the arrangement.

Metal Ornaments And Ribbons.

Probably because of military influence on millinery, glittering ornaments are in great favor just now. Even ribbons have a picot edge or border in silver or gold thread, and wide black ribbons polka dotted in gold and silver are made into huge pompons which are poised at the side-front of low-crowned velvet sailors. The ornament of metal chains and buttons, shown on a velvet toque, is distinctly military and gives youthful style to the somewhat overly impressive toque whose crown is draped upward and backward in wing-like effect. Note how this hat is drawn down on the head, entirely covering the eyebrows and resting over the ears, also—though to be sure the latter hide themselves like all good little fashionable ears nowadays under waves of hair. Another impressive velvet toque comes from Lewis—a toque in the new gray shade, combined with taupe in rather unusual effect. The very steep, high brim is of taupe velvet, the gathered ruche and rosette which together form an enormous crown, are of gray velvet. The hat accompanies a smart topcoat of taupe velvet with a vest and high collar of gray velvet.

Perhaps the most charming of the new hats are the flexible brim sailors with crowns swirled round with curled ostrich. Such a hat could not fail to be becoming to any woman under fifty. The ostrich tips overlap each other closely all around a rather small crown and the symmetry of the hat is perfect. Such a hat, of steel blue panne velvet, with ostrich in smoked gray, was worn by a well-known actress just returning from England a week or so ago, and matched a smart frock of steel blue silk with a gray feather ruff at the throat and adorable boots of blue glazed kid with buttoned tops in the gray tone. Another of these feather trimmed sailors is in a combination of gray and the deep burgundy shade just coming into fashion. By the way, all the millinery shades for autumn are soft and subdued, black leading in favor as it always does after the gaiety of summer hues has palled on feminine fancy. Chocolate brown is the Paris brown just now; navy and slate blues, the new gray, alone or with navy, and the deep, beautiful burgundy above referred to, will be the favorites from present indications. All of these millinery colors are being matched in glazed kid for the autumn footwear.

How to Make the Eyes More Beautiful

EYES in themselves, aside from their color and the luster of health, have no beauty. Bereft of their lids and lashes, without the shadows cast over them by the brows, they would be glassy looking balls without charm or expression. Several things make the eyes beautiful; the size of the eyesocket, the shape and length of the lids, the thickness of the lids, the height of the cheekbones, the thickness of the lashes and the sweep of the eyebrows. Some of these things we cannot change, whatever our will to do so, but there are many things that can be done to give greater beauty to the eyes.

The first improvement that occurs to the average woman is thicker eyelashes. Few individuals have beautiful lashes. If they are long enough they are apt to be spindling; if thick enough they are apt to be short and scrubby. Health has a decided effect on the lashes which are apt to fall out, as the hair does, if the general health is below par. Weakness of the eyes directly affects the lashes which will never grow and flourish in red-rimmed lids. The constant wearing of glasses keeps the eyelashes from growing long, and the woman who has naturally long, curled-up lashes should see to it that her glasses—if glasses she must wear—are so adjusted that they do not interfere with the sweep of her lashes. If there is one vanity that may be forgiven, it is the vanity of darkening pale blond brows and lashes. A face without eyebrows is utterly lacking in expressiveness and when eyebrows are so pale in color that they cannot be seen except on close examination their possessor may surely be pardoned for darkening them a wee bit. The trouble is, that sooner or later, in a hurried or careless moment, the darkening process is too hastily applied and someone discovers the little artifice. Then alas! "She makes up her eyes," is the whisper that flies about. So if you must touch up brows and lashes in behalf of expression, be very, very careful to do the touching up with utmost care, no matter how hurriedly you are dressing. And always do it in a very strong light.

Burnt cork and glycerine is the safest cosmetic to use in this connection. Blacken the cork but do not apply it directly to the eyebrows or you may have a bad smudge to get off. Dip a tiny eyebrow brush in glycerine and then touch it to the burnt cork. With the brush go very delicately over the eyebrows. Some women can use an eyebrow pencil very cleverly; others make bunglesome work of it. In any case, never use a perfectly black pencil; a very dark brown gives a more natural look, even when the hair is decidedly brunette.

Eyebrows That Meet Give A Hard, Unfeminine Expression; The Superfluous Hairs May Be Removed With Tweezers.

If a shadow is desired under the eyes—and there is no doubt that a delicate shadow there does make the eyes look larger and softer—powder a little charcoal and keep it in a small jeweler's box. Buy some of the wrapped paper shading pencils which artists use when drawing with charcoal or crayon, and apply a tiny line of the powdered charcoal with one of these—just beneath the lashes. Then with the fingertip blend the line along the eyelid. This also, should be done in a strong light.

The curve of the eyebrow has much to do with the beauty of the eye. Too curved eyebrows give a stupid expression to the face; too straight brows give a determined, masculine look. The prettiest eyebrows arch slightly, just enough to give an arch, wideawake expression to the eyes. If too heavy, or too straight, the eyebrows can be kept shaved to represent just the desired arch. This will be done in almost any beauty shop for a small sum. If eyebrows meet over the nose, the hairs should be plucked out with tweezers. Nothing gives a feminine face a more unpleasant expression than strong, meeting eyebrows; the effect is as masculine in suggestion as down on the upper lip.

If the eyes are not clear, limpid and lustrous, look to your diet. Nothing gives dull, opaque looking eyes like too rich a diet. Pies, pastry and strong coffee all rob the eyes of their beauty in time, if over indulged in. Drink plenty of water if you want clear, bright eyes. Never read in a fading light; or by a light that is flickering or uncertain. Never sit facing the light when reading, writing or sewing and when talking, or playing cards, seat yourself, if possible, so that a lamp will not be directly in front of you all the evening.

Wear glasses while reading, writing or sewing, to save the eyes against that future, dreaded day when "sight glasses" will be necessary. There are "rest" glasses—not necessary for the vision at all, but the greatest help to the eye muscles and nerves. "Rest glasses" keep the eyes from getting tired or strained over fine work, even though the fine print or stitches could be seen perfectly well without the glasses. And these good friends of the eyes also keep the lids from becoming red from overuse of the orbs themselves.

Beware of blazing summer sunlight and sparkling sands if you would not have your eyes fade. Blue eyes should be specially guarded; if the eyes shrink from brilliant sunlight, dark glasses should be worn. These may be discarded after a little, as the eyes become accustomed to the intense light of out-of-doors.

Nothing can be done to make the eyes larger than nature made them; but much can be done to improve their expression. A frank, happy, generous expression of face gives the eyes a lovely look; an envious, resentful, selfish expression gives them a hateful look. Between these two extremes there are many grades of expression. Sit before your mirror sometime and conjure up various expressions on your own face—and note their effect on your eyes. Try looking, happy and pleased, then sulky and discontented, helpful and sympathetic, then cold and indifferent; generous and open-natured, then mean and suspicious (if you are actress enough to reproduce these feelings in your own face), and I venture to predict that it will be the pleasanter expressions that look out of your own eyes thereafter.

Bathe the eyes every night in a solution of boric acid—a teaspoonful to a glass of warm water, to keep them fresh and unwearied in expression. And with a fine camelshair brush apply a little vaseline, every night, to the roots of the lashes—above the lashes on the upper lid, and below on the lower lid. (This will positively make the lashes grow thicker. Even a week should show an improvement if the treatment is followed regularly.

The last thing, after powdering the face, when dressing, wet a fingertip and draw it over the eyebrows to define their curve and remove all traces of powder.

Eyebrows That Are Unbecomingly Pale May Be Darked With Burnt Cork And Glycerine.

Notes and Novelties.

BLUE AND WHITE IN MOHAIR.

MOHAIRS are being much used this summer for yachting and country club dresses, more formal in type than the sport frock, and navy and white mohair is an exceedingly pleasing summer combination. The two colors are effectively blended in an afternoon costume for yacht club wear, navy being massed below the hip and appearing in hat and parasol, while the rest of the costume is white. There is a redingote tunic of white mohair, with deep sailor collar and belt, both of these stitched in blue silk. The belt has oolong coattails at the back, also stitched in blue silk. This white tunic is bordered with a twelve-inch hem of navy mohair, and the skirt beneath (a drop of white silk), has also a twelve-inch hem of navy, the tunic overlapping this dark hem. White silk stockings with blue clocks and pumps of white washable kid accompany the frock; the parasol is navy blue taffeta; the hat, navy blue straw and ribbon—an altogether chic and fetching little costume for an afternoon at Bar Harbor, Newport or Southampton.

MILITARY SWORD KNOTS ON UMBRELLAS.

THE really smart umbrella now has a leather "dragonne" patterned after the soldier's sword knot; and one carries the umbrella by a hand slipped through the dragonne instead of grasping the handle in the ordinary way. Very slim and elegant is the distinguished umbrella and the handle is daintily finished with a knob of carved ivory or imitation amethyst.

IN LIEU OF BUTTONS.

THE woman who cannot make buttonholes and who finds that made-to-order ones cost more than she cares to pay, can fasten her summer blouses with the little round pearl pins that resemble buttons very closely. Three of these little clasp-pins—enough to fasten a blouse with open V-neck—may be had, mounted on a card, for about twenty-five cents.

Little Things of Feminine Interest.

SUMMER BEDSPREADS.

VERY charming for the summer bedroom is the bedspread of hemstitched mull, embroidered in one corner with a large monogram of the modern type—three letters geometrically arranged to form a diamond-shaped or octagonal figure. These spreads are very easily laundered and when placed over a lining of colored sateen or even cambric in a tint matching the room hangings, are dainty and fresh in appearance. The printed cotton bedspreads in conventionalized border designs cost a trifle more than plain white spreads but are very attractive in summer bedrooms where more gaiety of color and less dignity and elegance than the winter bedroom demands, are desirable. A really good white Marseilles bedspread costs several dollars, and the cheap dimity and cotton spreads are so thin and easily rumpled that constant smoothing out is necessary to keep a bed looking neat—if any article is tossed upon it, or one sits upon it for a moment.

SCOOP THE CUB REPORTER — A NEW BIRD IN CAMP — BY "HOP"

Dear Boss -
A funny old Bird flew into camp yesterday a Widower with three offsprings - He seems to be scouting for a wife so travells with out his children - The older girls are all shying because its too hot now to think of herding a second hand flock - The younger ones the are pretty nice to him - because any kind of a romance counts in the total score for the season - He can't swim but is a good dry land farmer - This afternoon he climbed out on the end of a spring board to teach one of our Hippo clads to dive - My kodak wasn't fast enough to get any more than the floating piece of broken board - Swimming gets better everyday - Unquestionably this is the life — Yours Scoop -

HAND'S EXPRESS CO.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

PLAINFIELD CHECKS

Many New York business men have formed the habit of using New York checks. There was a good reason for this when checks on Plainfield banks were subject to an exchange charge in that city, but this is no longer the case.

Checks on The Plainfield Trust Company are now collectible through the New York Clearing House and commuters are beginning to realize that it is to their advantage to keep their accounts with us and receive

WHY BURDEN A FRIEND?

SERVICE

Capital, $100,000

The average individual is no more fitted to handle an estate than he is to conduct a law suit or cure a disease. You hire a lawyer to do the one and a doctor to do the other.

Then why burden a friend, a business associate or a member of your family, with the responsibility of being your executor and trustee? Few men are familiar with the duties of trusteeship or with the investment of trust funds.

Name this responsible trust company instead; it is organized for the purpose; equipped to meet every emergency; to transact any business which may arise in connection with trust service; and it is permanent; unaffected by the hazards of human life.

UNITED PARTY MEANS SUCCESS

Frelinghuysen Favors Selection of Candidate Free from Boss Dictation.

"LET PEOPLE DECIDE"

Senatorial Candidate Outlines Program For Preparedness and Gives His Views On the Tariff Question.

Rahway, August 5.—While he made no personal reference to any other candidate, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who is a candidate for the nomination of United States Senator on the Republican ticket at the primary election, September 26, at a meeting which he addressed here last evening, made it clear that he did not propose to have the primary election law made ineffective in this campaign if it were in his power to prevent it, from being nullified.

The Republican party, he said, had been travelling two parallel roads since 1909, with separate organizations, but the same purpose. These two separate organizations had come together at the cross roads, and they were united. "The Progressive organization," said he, "has been dissolved, but it must be remembered that Progressive principles continue to exist. The time is past when a party can listen to the 'interests' and be governed by a small coterie of men. It must take in the young men with their progressive ideas and encourage them."

Senator Frelinghuysen spoke of one of the progressive principles being the direct primary with its purpose of affording to the voters a chance to make the selection of a candidate free from the dictation of any bosses. "That is all I am asking in this contest," said the Senator, "that the 'people may decide' and the spirit of this law shall not be violated in the elimination of candidates before the voters who have a chance to make a choice. There is nothing unreasonable in this, and it is in accord with the spirit of the law."

Senator Frelinghuysen outlined a program for preparedness for war by a co-operative plan of all the industrial and military resources of the government. He said it would insure the nation from attack by other nations. He gave his views on the tariff question, and showed what the country must expect when the terrible conflict in Europe is over; and he touched upon State issues.

Dr. Frank MacDaniel, of Pennington Seminary, a speaker of marked ability as a campaign orator, also delivered an address which was greatly appreciated.

Senator Frelinghuysen spent the greater part of the day in the vicinity of Rahawy, and was the guest of Peter R. Tillman. He met many of the Republicans of that part of Union county, and they promised to support him at the polls. Many Democrats who were interested in his candidacy, said they were very sorry they could not vote for him on September 26th, but they all promised to vote for him on election day, as they believe he will be successful at the primary.

AN EXCITING GOLF GAME AT PARK CLUB

Judge De Meza and Walter Hetfield Will Clash Tuesday.

This is a story about a golf game that does not belong on the sport page. On Tuesday of next week the golf links of the Park Club are to be the scene of the most exciting contest staged in the history of that organization when City Judge William G. DeMeza and Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., play for the police court championship. Odds should favor Judge DeMeza. He has been playing several days now, while Hetfield drove his first iron into the carefully rolled green Friday. He had a good day for a beginner, though, only breaking one club and losing two balls. Mayor W. L. Smalley, of the borough, is going to be judge of the course and he has appointed Councilman Wilson score keeper, but both men insist they are capable of keeping their own score. Dr. Hillman has consented to accept the honor of carrying Judge DeMeza's clubs, and Alexander Milne will perform this service for Mr. Hetfield. The match will start promptly at 2 p. m., and the contestants have agreed to quit at dark, whether they have gone nine holes or not.

HARVEY ROTHBERG WILL LOCATE HERE

Accepts Position of Managing Clerk In Office of Judge Newcorn.

Harvey I. Rothberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kalmen Rothberg, 410 Madison avenue, who has been practicing law in the Potter Building, 38 Park Row, New York city, for several months past, has returned to this city, where he has lived all his life, to accept the position of managing clerk in the office of Judge William Newcorn at 119 West Front street. Mr. Rothberg took the New Jersey Bar examination in June of this year and was sworn in last month at Trenton. He is a graduate of Plainfield High School, '08; Amherst College, degree A. B., in 1912; Columbia University (A. M.), in February, 1915, and Columbia Law School, with degee of L. L. B., in June, 1912. Before entering college he worked in Representative Sumers' office as a clerk and student, in the office of Judge Newcorn, and while at the local High School as a newsboy for Laing & Stout. Mr. Rothberg is a member of the Amherst College Alumni Association, Columbia Law Association, Independent Order B'nai Brith, the Sally Beeber Educational League and the Young Folks' League of the New Synagogue in New York city. His brother is Samuel Rothberg, the West Front street clothier. All of his many friends are glad to see him settle in Plainfield and look forward to his making good in his home city.

F. S. LYNN WILL SPEAK AT FRESH AIR HOME

The regular service of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home will be held at the home tomorrow afternoon at 3:45. The speaker will be Mr. Lynn, secretary to the boys of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Lynn spoke to the little people at the home last week and the mothers and children have asked him to speak to them again. The services will be held during the week and the evening services will be in charge of the Young People's societies of the city.

The little people at the home show a great improvement in health and Miss Curry feels that even though she has not been able to bring the usually large number to the home that it has been a great blessing to have saved these little ones from the possible contact with the epidemic that is prevalent in New York.

REV. ST. JOHN FITCH AT PARK AVENUE CHURCH

BORO EXPENSES ARE CUT DOWN

Budget Calls For More Money, But Not For Running Government.

TOTAL IS $49,849.69

Interest On Sewer Bonds Makes Big Hole In Year's Receipts—Only Three Councilmen Attended Last Night's Meeting.

While the total to be raised by taxes this year in the Borough of Nortn Plainfield is larger than last year, according to the budget adopted by members of the Council last night, the actual cost of operating the borough government is less. More money is needed by the municipality because of the large amount to be paid out as interest on joint sewer and collecting system bonds, and to retire bonds coming due this year. The budget for this year calls for $55,449.69, less $5,600 to be received from licenses, so that $49,849.69 must be collected in taxes. Last year the total was $47,677, less license collections of $6,000, or $41,677.

Only three members of the Council attended last night's meeting, and for this reason many important matters went over. Mayor Smalley yesterday afternoon called representatives of the Public Service and street railway company and asked them not to report on Somerset street until a full meeting of the Council.

Councilmen Wilson, Mobus and Stahl were present when Mayor Smalley called the meeting to order.

A petition from W. J. Butfield, calling attention to the fact that the borough had failed to live up to its contract signed in securing rights of way for a sewer on West End avenue and Greenbrook road, was referred to the sewer committee. A petition for a light on Summit avenue, near No. 35, was referred to the lights committee.

A resolution endorsing the Penrose-Griffin bill now pending in Congress, which is the pension bill for letter carriers, was read, but because of the absence of the chairman of the committee on public affairs it was allowed to go over.

The report of the treasurer showed expenditures during last month of $8,569.46. The report of the recorder showed that 37 arrests had been made and $85 collected in fines.

The borough's portion of the joint sewer fund last month was $4,062.97. Expenses of the street department were $1,322.78, outside of Somerset

Another feat of the Fergus car that will interest local people that are trying to get the company to locate here was performed last week when Mr. Fergus drove one of his cars for 310 miles through the Catskill Mountains. During the entire time an average speed of thirty-three miles and a half an hour was maintained, and twenty-five and a fraction miles was secured from a gallon of gasoline.

Mr. Fergus is anxious to get started on the production of the car that he has constructed after twenty years' experiment and as soon as enough Plainfield men come forward to back the project this city will be the home of another automobile concern.

HOPE FOR NEW STREET CAR LINE

Local Business Men Pleased With Attitude of President McCarter.

MANY MET WITH HIM

No Definite Action, But Plainfield Must Raise $85,000, Which Will be Returned by Public Service Corporation.

A meeting of representative citizens of this city with Thomas McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation, was held in the Queen City Hotel yesterday afternoon, when the proposed extension of the trolley system to South Plainfield was thoroughly discussed. The meeting was originally scheduled for July 21, but owing to the inability of Mr. McCarter to be present on that date, a postponement was necessary.

While no definite action regarding the proposed plan was taken at the meeting yesterday, Mr. McCarter and another representative of the Public Service submitted much data on the subject, stating that the high cost of material and labor might necessitate an unusually large expenditure to complete the plan. They were of the opinion that in a year the idea would be more feasible and could be taken up much more satisfactorily by both parties concerned. However, Mr. McCarter stated that if the citizens of Plainfield were willing to furnish $80,000 toward the completion of the project, the Public Service would do its share and would pay the money back in bonds. The Arlington Avenue line was the line referred to in the discussion regarding the extension. Although the representatives of the Public Service gave them no definite assurance that the line would be a certainty, the local business men who were present at the meeting, were pleased with the result and believe that the project will eventually meet with success. It is said that a meeting of local citizens, presumably for the purpose of discussing the raising of the $80,000, will be held in the near future.

After his conference with the local men at the Queen City, Mr. McCarter made a visit to South Plainfield, going over the route that would be taken by the proposed line. In South Plainfield the Public Service head was met by a committee of representative citizens. A plan, identical with that submitted to the local men, was made known to the South Plainfield citizens.

Among those present at the local gathering was Mayor Leighton Calkins, who spoke very favorably of the plan. Charles Dana, head of the Spicer Manufacturing Company, was also one of the speakers. Mr. Dana is one of the most enthusiastic backers of the project and sees in it a wonderful improvement over the nondescript means of conveyance now employed to bring people to South Plainfield. Other representative citizens who attended the meeting were Herman Schwed, president of the Business Men's Association; Judge William Newcorn, president of the Board of Trade; Edward F. Feickert, J. J. Van Arsdale, J. J. Varley, Morris Van Arsdale, Peter McDonough, A. E. Force, Peter Floeresch and Edward Vail, superintendent of the Spicer plant.

EMPTY HOUSE ENTERED.

Jacob Sacher reported to the police last night that a vacant house at 612 West Front street that is owned by him had been broken into some time Thursday night and six water faucets were taken. Entrance was made by a side window, and the police have no clue.

FUNERAL OF MRS. KANE.

The funeral of Mrs. Martin Kane, who died yesterday morning at her home, 509 West Third street, will be held from her late home Monday morning at 8:30 and in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., the arrival of all persons from out of town, INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

N. J. R. CHANDLER,
Health Officer.

CANDIDATES HOLD CONFAB AT SHORE

Confidence Reigns Supreme In Wittpenn Camp For Governor Honor.

MEN OF NOTE PRESENT

Governor's Day Event Took Form of a "Feeler" Gathering—Interest Centered Around Gubernatorial Candidates.

By Telegraph to the DAILY PRESS

Sea Girt, Aug. 5.—Gubernatorial and United States Senatorial ambitions were thoroughly discussed at the Governor's Day gathering here yesterday, but the South Jersey politicians had little or nothing to say about the legislative fights in their resepective counties. Everyone seemed to be intent on finding out how things stood between Senator Walter E. Edge and Colonel Austen Colgate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, and between Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Franklin Murphy on the senatorship. H. Otto Wittpenn, Democratic candidate for gubernatorial honors, was on hand, but things are apparently so rosy for him that his friends are discussing the fight for election, rather than for the nomintaion. Attorney General John W. Wescott was also here, and had a busy time shaking hands with friends who greeted him as United States Senator.

Most of the interest centered in the two Republican gubernatorial candidates. Southern New Jersey has been supposed to be an Edge stronghold, and Colonel Colgate at the end of the day expressed himself as being more than pleased with the way things were looking up for him in the southern end of the State. "It is true," said the Colonel in talking with the Press representative after the day was over, "that most of the organization Republicans seem to be against me, but I have received assurances, especially from Burlington, Ocean, Cape May and Atlantic counties, which lead me to believe that I will carry those counties. The reports from Burlington are especially bright, and even in Camden a number of my friends think we have a chance of polling a good vote."

David Baird, the Camden leader, was one of the early arrivals, and he set up headquarters under the fly

SWEDISH LUTHERAN TO HOLD SERVICE OUTDOORS

Owing to extensive repairs going on in the Swedish Lutheran church, the services for the first three Sundays of August have been discontinued in the church. The services tomorrow at 6:30 p. m. will be held out of doors in the Hyde orchard on Manning avenue, near Richmond street. Should the weather be stormy, the services will be held across the street, at the home of Mr. Olson. On Sunday, August 13, the service will be held at 8:30 at Stendir Hieht, near Westfield. Members who wish to go should take the Union car to the Chinly path, near Westfield, which will lead them to the place. On August 20 the service will be held at 6:30, on Manning avenue and on August 27, the church will be opened.

MISS RAYBERT SOLOIST AT SUNDAY MUSICALE

The Public Recreation Committee announce another Sunday afternoon musicale in the City Park tomorrow afternoon at 5:15. These musicales are largely attended and are proving a source of great pleasure to those who attend. The soloist tomorrow afternoon will be Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano soloist of the Trinity church. Her singing is always enjoyed, and during the recent campaign she was one of the most popular soloists at the tabernacle.

While the committee is gratified with the response that the Plainfield people are making to their appeal for a better community spirit still it hopes that there may ever be an increasing number present at these afternoon musicales. Every one is welcome to use the seats provided on the platform and to unite in the singing. Remember the hour is 5:15 and the music lasts one-half hour.

GOSPEL TENT MEETINGS.

Evangelistic services are in progress every evening, except Monday, at the Gospel tent of the Christian and Missionary Alliance located on Watchung avenue, between Front and Pearl streets, near the Y. M. C. A.

Evening services begin promptly at 8 o'clock. Service every Sunday morning at 10:30 W. C. Hart, of Westfield, will preach tomorrow morning.

On Tuesday evening, August 8, the first of a series of sermons on the "Second Premillenial Coming of Christ" will be given. One evening of each succeeding week will be devoted to some phase of this truth.

A cordial invitation is extended to all.

MAN KILLED HAD KIN IN DUNELLEN

Seek Brother of Stranger Who Met Death On Railroad Tracks.

The body of the unidentified white man who was killed near South Plainfield by a Lehigh Valley train yesterday morning is still at the undertaking parlors of Casey & Son. It is now believed that the man was from Pennsylvania, on his way to visit a brother in Dunellen. Three boys came to the Casey parlors this morning and identified the body as that of a man they talked with early yesterday. They were in swimming near New Market when a well dressed stranger came up. He talked with them for some time, saying he was a mechanic from Pennsylvania, on his way to visit a brother in Dunellen. Detectives are now seeking the Dunellen brother.

TALENTED WRITER PARALYSIS VICTIM

Young Woman Stricken Ill Thursday Night at Parents' Summer Home.

Miss Prudence Kelsey Jamison, the 22-year-old daughter of Senior Master and Mrs. Alexander Jamison, of the Lawrenceville Academy, died this morning at 5 o'clock at her parents' summer home at Spring Lake. She was taken ill a month ago with tonsilitis and was well on the road to recovery when she was attacked by infantile paralysis Thursday night.

The young woman was graduated from the Trenton State Normal School in June, 1915, and was the speaker at the annual dinner given by her class last June. She was one of the brightest girls in the class and highly popular among her schoolmates, all of whom will be shocked to hear of her sudden demise. Miss Jamison was a poet, newspaer and magazine writer of ability, and only last month received an offer to write a musical comedy. Her poems have occasionally appeared in the columns of the Daily Press.

On her twenty-first birthday she joined the Trenton chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and recently became a member of the Colonial Dames. She was the granddaughter of the late Judge Edward Scudder, for thirty years presiding in the Circuit Court. She was also a niece of Wallace Scudder, owner of the Newark News. The mother of the young woman is the State president of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, and is well known in this city, where she organized the local branch of the association. Beside her parents she is survived by two brothers, Professor Edward S. Jamison, of the Chesterhill Academy, of Philadelphia, and A. D. Jamison, electrical engineer, formerly with the International Motor Company in this city.

FIERCE FIGHTING RAGES AT VERDUN

Germans Make Tremendous Efforts to Regain Lost Ground.

TURKS BEGIN ASSAULT

Seek to Cut Through to Suez Canal—Russians Admit Kovel Battle May Be Lost—Somme Struggle Unabated.

Paris, Aug. 5.—All night long the great engagement northeast of Verdun raged in the darkness, with the Germans assaulting in a tremendous effort to recapture Thiaumont Work and Fueury, both of which they lost to the French troops of General Nivelle on Friday. In spite of the fury of the attacks and the repeated efforts, all the German drives were repulsed, the War Office announced today. The situation in the region of the River Somme is quiet. Four German aeroplanes were brought down by the French on Friday.

Turks Start For Suez Canal.

London, Aug. 5.—Turkish forces on Sinai Peninsula have assumed the offensive an are trying to cut through to the Suez Canal. A battle has developed at El Ruman, where 14,000 Turks attacked the British troops, but according to an official statement issued by the War Office today, the fighting is proceeding favorably for the British. Five hundred Turkish prisoners were taken.

Kovel Fight Is Critical.

With the battle which will decide the fate of Kovel still at a critical stage today, the Russians admit they have been driven out of Rudka-Miryanskaia and forced to retire about a quarter of a mile to the east.

Somme Struggle Undecided.

With the Allies firing three shots to the Germans one, and hand-to-hand fighting in progress, a desperate battle along the Somme front continued today.

While the Somme offensive was largely undertaken to relieve the pressure at Verdun, many high French staff officials hold the belief that the Germans had not scattered the men and guns massed at Verdun.

In the last forty-eight hours' fighting the only change in position is a gain for the British in pushing their lines westward from Pozieres along the Albert Ridge, where they expect soon to take in the rear the trenches which the Germans still hold on its crest.

British Losses at Somme.

The allied offensive on the Somme from July 1 to 15 cost the British army 580 officers killed, 1,764 wounded and 290 missing ,a total of 2,634. The total officers' casualties for the whole war up to July 15 is 32,058.

Refuse to Pay German Fine.

The city of Brussels has refused to pay the fine of 5,000,000 marks (about $1,250,000) imposed by the Germans in consequence of the demonstration which took place at the Belgian capital on July 21, the national fete day, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company today. A serious crisis is expected.

Acting Burgomaster Lemonnier, the dispatch adds has sent a letter to general von Bissing ,the German Governor of Belgium, declining to pay the fine. He says it was imposed on the public because of its patriotic sentiment and therefore is illegal and inadmissable.

ALL N. Y. CAR LINES ARE HIT BY STRIKE

Rioting Follows General Walk Out Order—Policemen Called In.

New York, August 5.—New York city faces today the most serious traffic disturbance in its history and one of the bitterest labor battles the country has ever seen.

Strike has been ordered on every surface car line in Manhattan and Queens with the single exception of the Second avenue route.

Many of the conductors and motormen have already deserted their cars, and determined efforts are being made to persuade the entire force of the thirty lines affected to leave their posts.

Trouble commenced as soon as the strike order was issued, sticks and stones being hurled through car windows and the safety of passengers endangered. Nine arrests were made and as a result of the rioting a policeman was placed on the front platform of every car running.

REASONS CITED FOR "JUMPERS'" APPEAL

Former Mayor Moy Appears In Behalf of Religious Sect.

In the Court of Appeals at Elizabeth yesterday, Attorney George V. W. Moy, of this city, representing Mrs. Laura Wilson and Miss Lavina Leach, members of the Pillar of Fire sect, who were arrested here on June 30 for violating a city ordinance prohibiting street meetings without a permit, attacked the validity of the ordinance and made application to have it set aside. Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, appearing in behalf of Corporation Counsel Charles Reed, defended the ordinance and the conviction.

The women were sentenced to serve seven days in jail and to pay a fine of $20. They served part of the sentence, but were released when their attorney paid the fines under protest. Mr. Moy claimed that the ordinance had never been legally adopted by the Common Council. The enactment was made in October. It is also held, in the brief filed by Attorney Moy, that the ordinance, if it was legally enacted, is not in accord with the constitutional rights of the two women as American citizens. He cites the fact that "every person may freely speak, write or publish his own sentiments, being responsible for the abuse of that right. No law shall be passed to restrain or abridge the liberty of speech or of the press." A fourth cause for invalidity, as shown by the counsel for the two women, is the fact that the ordinance extends undue power to the Mayor. It is maintained that the Common Council cannot delegate power to the Mayor or anyone else. According to the brief, the minutes of the Council meeting fail to show that the ordinance was legally adopted. It is necessary that six members of the Common Council concur on an ordinance before it is legally adopted. Mr. Moy's contention is that there is nothing in the minutes to show that there were six councilmen present at the final reading of the ordinance. In his summary the Pillar of Fire counsel holds that there is not any record that shows that the ordinance received the vote of the majority of the whole Council and states that there is no legal presumption that the ordinance received the requisite number of votes. Mr. Moy's brief was submitted to Judge Connolly.

In defense of the ordinance Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, in filing his brief, made known these facts: First, that a meeting was held; second, that there were citizens present at the time; third, that the defendants had no permit, and fourth, that they refused to discontinue the meeting when told to do so by a policeman. Lawyer Hetfield did not deny that the constitution allows a person the right to freely speak, write and publish his views, but he contended that there were other rights just as important. He quoted the ordinance passed to more effectively regulate traffic and stated that the City of Plainfield, having its right under the police power of the State, could pass ordinances. Quotations from Mr. Justice Story were also cited. These quotations brought out the fact that there were other rights equally as important as the right to speak freely. The Boston Commons case was the one around which Mr. Hetfield centered much of his argument. In this case permission to hold meetings on the commons in Boston was denied the citizens and the denial was upheld by the legal authority of the nation. It was pointed out that no question of the unconstitutionality of the decision was brought up and that it was proved constitutional. In his summary Mr. Hetfield stated that the ordinance in question was legally adopted by the Common Council, eight members being present at the meeting. It was also held that the same is in accordance with the statutes of the Constitution of the State of New Jersey. The contention that there were not enough members of the Council present at the time of the enactment of the ordinance is the point that Mr. Hetfield seeks to offset in his declaration that there were enough councilmen present. Mr. Moy, in his brief, bases his contention on the fact that the minutes fail to prove that the required number of councilmen were present at the time of the enactment of the ordinance.

Judge Connolly has been supplied with copies of both briefs and it is expected that he will make known his decision in a short time. Mr. Moy threatens to take the matter to the highest court providing no satisfaction is obtained from the Court of Appeals.

DR. COX'S FUNERAL AT 2.30 TODAY

Last Services to Be Held in Grace Episcopal Church, This City.

The officiating clergyman will be Rev. Henry Mesier, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church of Netherwood. Rev. Mr. Mesier will have charge in the absence of Rev. E. V. To Wash Corduroy

Corduroy suits, separate skirts and hats are now so much worn for outing purposes that it is a good idea to learn to launder them well at home.

Make a good suds fo white soap and lukewarm water; dip the garment into it, sousing up and down many times, until the dirt is all removed; hold a skirt by the waistband while doing this, and a coat by the collar band, keeping the corduroy stripes vertical during this, and a coat by the collar band, keeping the corduroy stripes vertical during the process. Next rinse the garment in clear, lukewarm water, sousing it up and down in the same way, until the soap is all removed.

Never wring corduroy. Hang the garment over the line and let it drip dry. When all the water has dripped from it, take it from the line and snap it every once in a while, laying a crash towel over the goods.

Treated in this way, the pile of the goods will come up and the garment will look quite like new.

For An Oily Skin

Powder is often an unsatisfactory way out of the difficulties of an oily skin. Powder will never cover the disagreeable traces of perspiration on the face or excessive oil secretions. Powders are excellent for ordinary purposes, being to a great degree absorbent, but when there is any special inclination to oiliness on the face other measures must be taken. Proper lotions should b applied. Among the best is one made of boracic acid and rose-water and another of the same ingredients with distilled witch hazel added.

Do not use oils or cold creams on the face, but do not be afraid of generous applications of pure toilet waters and colognes.

Abstain from highly spiced and oily foods, also candy and rich sweetmeats.

Novel Table Decorations

A girl known for her clever ideas gave a Pierrot luncheon for a visiting friend that was said to have been very pretty in spite of the fact that all the decorations were in black and white.

She sewed a border of black circles on a white table cover and in the centre of the table she placed a wide, low, black bowl of white carnations. Suspended from the chandelier were several fluffy black and white woollen balls, the sort one makes for the baby.

At each place stood a tiny Pierrot and the place cards were simply white cards with a tiny black sketch of a Pierrot and his Pierrette.

There was no attempt of course to carry out the decorative idea in the menu, but the salad was served from black and white plates and the tiny after dinner coffee cups were all black.

Cooking Vegetables

Green outer leaves of the lettuce should be made up as a vegetable stewed with a dash of butter or a little gravy. Cabbage is improved when cooked with an onion, a few potatoes, the whole being boiled in one pot. Cabbage with rice and cheese cooked in its own juice is also done in one utensil.

A sufficient luncheon consists of spinach with boiled, fried or poached eggs and a slice of coarse bread. Carrots, like new turnips and other vegetables, ought to be cooked in very little moisture, and they are improved by a piece of butter, when all sorts of the mineral properties are retained.

A white sauce with a beaten egg or a few yolks of eggs sprinkled with breadcrumbs or cheese, and lightly baked over a water bath, makes a good supper dish.

White Satin Gowns

Along with the use of point d'esprit and other white nets for evening gowns, Paris is advocating white satin, trimmed simply, if at all. This may be a part of the preparedness for Second Empire gowns, for one usually thinks of them in the terms of lustrous white satin. Again it may be the change in style, which we must expect after such frequent usage of taffeta and dark colors.

If white satin is to be the feature of the summer it will please American women, for lack of color in one's costume is the best tribute one can pay to the heat of August.

The Selection of Lemons

When buying lemons for table use and garnishing dishes, always get the nice bright yellow ones. For making lemonade select the riper ones with shriveled and discolored skins, as their skins are very thin and they have double the quantity of juice.

Make a syrup of one and a half cups of sugar, the same quantity of water, then add the strained juice of one dozen lemons and a few slices of lemon peel. Use a porcelain kettle and let the syrup boil before adding the lemon juice. This syrup should be kept in a glass jar in a cool place, ready for use. This is both convenient and economical.

New Plaid Scarfs

For sports wear or traveling there now comes a new scarf made of brilliantly colored plaid woolens in the nature of the old "golf capes" or lightweight steamer rugs. These scarfs are at least twenty inches long. They are finished with fringe ends.

The girl who can wear one gracefully is fortunate. They are intended to be folded rather tightly around the shoulders in the manner of the stoles of summer fur, or else laid across the back of the shoulders and the ends tucked under the arms in front.

Over a plain colored sp ts suit or motor coat they give an unusual and certainly smart effect.

CANDIDATES HOLD CONFAB

of Colonel Frank M. Taylor's tent, were he was greeted by scores of politicians from the southern end of the State. When Senator Edge returned from a trip to the camp, where he called on a lot of acquaintances in the regiment, he saw Mr. Baird, and the two men immediately retired to the innermost dark recesses of the tent, where they sat with their heads together for over a half hour, and refused themselves to any other callers. Colgate supporters professed to see in this the beginning of an active campaign in South Jersey.

A group of Burlington county men led by former Senator Blanchard H. White, former Clerk in Chancery Samuel K. Robbins, Charles N. Kolwell and former Prosecutor Samuel A. Atkinson were boosting the Colgate candidacy, and declaring that he would surely carry the county, while Edge advocates were County Clerk Knight and former Judge Horner.

Senator George W. F. Gaunt, master of the State Grange, said that Gloucester county would go for Edge and Frelinghuysen. That the Murphy organization has made great efforts to make inroads in that county without success was the Senator's assertion. He felt quite confident that former Governor Stokes' withdrawal had greatly strengthened Mr. Frelinghuysen's chances, and Deputy County Clerk Joseph M. Thompson, who was a Stokes man until the former Governor withdrew, said that the same thing held true in Ocean county.

Congressman William J. Browning will be renominated without opposition, and a group of Camden county Democrats came up with a boom for Charles R. Bacon, New Jersey editor of the Philadelphia Record, as a Democratic candidate against Mr. Browning. Mr. Bacon said that he was seriously considering the matter, and that a meeting will be held in Camden on Monday at which time he will reach a decision, after talking the matter over with friends at home. Bacon was at one time an active Republican, but during President Wilson's term as Governor he cast his lot with the Democrats, and it is thought that he can draw many votes from the Republican independent vote.

In the Second district Congressman Isaac Bacharach will be renominated without opposition, so far as is known now, and he said yesterday that he expected to be re-elected. The only name suggested of a candidate against him was that of former Judge Clarence L. Cole, of Atlantic City.

Prior to the luncheon Governor Fielder made the same appeal for funds for the New Jersey Soldiers' Relief League that has been made at the former Governors' Days. In the course of his remarks he told of the splendid work done in mobilizing the State troops, and let the guests into a bit of inside history, when he said that he had been advised by regular army officers that Batteries A, of East Orange, and B, of Camden, were the best drilled, equipped and disciplined batteries that have been sent to the border by any State. The collection, which was turned over to Mrs. Fielder, amounted to $311.38.

Senator Walter E. Edge had just read the speech made by H. Otto Wittpenn on Thursday night in Englewood, when he arrived at the grounds. In the speech the Democratic gubernatorial candidate criticised the economy and efficency bills which were passed with Mr. Edge as sponsor two years ago. The Senator had the following to say on the subject:

"If Mr. Wittpenn can extract any satisfaction from the Democratic comptroller's report as to increased expenditures by departments consolidated under the economy and efficiency bills, he is indeed welcome to it.

"No real business man wants New Jersey's important departments to stand still. I hope they spend thousands of dollars more if the reorganized departments can show a proper return to the State for such expenditures.

"Most business men agree that it is indeer false economy to reduce activity and activity sosts money.

"I have not analyzed the comptroller's report, but by no arrangement of figures can the fact be eliminated that the economy and efficiency bills cut out the salaries of riparian commissioners, members of the board of health, State water supply commissioners so far as the State expense is concerned, half the membership of the State tax and assessors' boards, etc.

"Whatever rearrangement of the various responsibilities the new boards have worked out I am sure I cannot say. That is entirely up to the boards.

"They were all appointed by Governor Fielder but notwithstanding that I believe they are most representative men, and are working for the best interests of the State. I am sure they are quite ready and willing to stand back of their expenditures and policy.

"I'll be glad to discuss the economy and efficency possibilities after my nomination, and am indeed pleased to have them an issue of the campaign. In fact, I have every intention of making them a very live issue."

THE HEARN AUGUST SALE

The thrifty housekeeper is always glad to see The Hearn (West 14th St.) August sale. It means such a decided saving.

A record breaking selling of blankets on a day of record breaking heat seems remarkable, doesn't it? But that is exactly what happened on Monday, July 31st, the first day of the August Sale. Values such as we had never offered were not to be ignored no matter the heat. A sale for 23 years builds up a reputation of some kind, and we had established such a reputation for values and quality that it was difficult even to think of exceeding our own record. Recently, some months back, some of our buyers made exceedingly successful purchases. Their predictions became facts. Prices did jump, but we had the goods bought and paid for, at original low prices. We were pleased, of course, because, in addition to scarcity of linens, blankets are more difficult to buy now than at any time since the Civil War. Since Hearn has a really unusual record for blankets, the sale offering is most noteworthy. It seems almost incredible, but, in many instances, our former selling prices are below actual wholesale price today—so much has the market advanced, never was buying so difficult, and never were low prices more appreciated.

August is an awfully good time to buy heaps of things to wear, too, isn't it. Summer-clothes are being sold and, really, one often wonders whether there isn't some mistake in price tags, the prices seem so cheap. Dainty summer dresses, either the most fascinating net dress or the simplest of lawns, are being sold at absolutely low prices—from professional shoppers, remember, every August bargains.

And, there is there any woman who ever gets the most out of her many blouses? Just wait until you see the dainty lawn or silk, gingham, linen or voile of Georgette crepe, really, the choice for price of one, there will be many who will say, "Well, I have at last found the one shirtwaist dress."

We suggest a linen domestic daintiness this time, as linen is featured in many dainty fashions.

Hats here in all sorts of different shapes and sizes. But it is only fair to say that most of them are not unlike the black velvet, of course, and possibly with a purple sunshade and finger trucks, a very lovely in August.

Sounds like such a satisfactory time for clothes lovers, and so it is, and in our mind does satisfy bodies white.

Perhaps our shoppers appreciate colors most strongly because it is so pleasant shopping in daylight, as one can do always in our store. There are such registers to make change, courtesy to that our customers do not wait ten minutes for change and a package. Satisfied. You may be sure that, with everything every day to make our store a "home to shoppers' needs," you will find everything very simple and convenient. And if you shouldn't find everything immediately there is always an usher, a helpful lady wearing a red ribbon, who tells you just where to go, what you want and just where to find the very articles you saw advertised. As one customer said, "It's such a relief to have her know everybody." They fairly read your mind.

A Customer's First Policy for 59 years has proved a mighty good idea, at least, if we may judge by our customers, their numbers and their purchases.

Our hats are just as good as our clothes --and that's saying a great deal for our hats.

GUARD CAMP CLOSES AFTER BUSY SEASON

Third Regiment Left For Home This Morning and Grounds Are Deserted.

By Telegraph to the DAILY PRESS

Sea Girt, Aug. 6.—Camp Fielder came to a permanent close here early this afternoon, when the Third regiment, of Camden, marched to the railroad station and departed for home. The big blue and white flag which has done service for three years as a distinguishing mark was hauled down, and turned over to employes of the grounds to be put away in camphor balls for an indefinite period.

The men of the Third regiment were out of their blankets promptly at 5:30, and as soon as they had breakfast started the work of breaking camp. In less than two hours all that remained to indicate that nearly a thousand men had made their home here for a week were the big screened frames that are used to surround the kitchens, and which remain on the ground here. Every bit of canvas was packed in the wagons and hauled to the trains, and every piece of paper and other refuse was burned in the incinerators. Then, when this was completed, details of men put the fires out and leveled up the holes which they occupied. Before noon Colonel Landon gave the command, and the regiment, with the band playing a lively air and the flags flying in the wind to break the monotony of khaki colored uniforms, marched out of camp, past the Governor's cottage, where the executive watched the movement from the porch, and Camp Fielder was a memory.

Members of the Governor's staff, with the exception of Colonel William Libbey, who will remain here on the rifle range all summer, had an equally busy time of it packing up, and soon after the regiment had left they were on their way to their homes in various parts of the State by automobile. Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler will remain in the cottage assigned to him all summer, and Governor and Mrs. James F. Fielder will also stay here until late in September. The Governor plans to spend much of his time on the links of the Spring Lake Golf Club. Next Friday he will hold the last of the Governor's Day gatherings at the cottage here, when his friends from Hudson county will be the guests. Hunterdon county residents are also invited for next week. The members of the staff will return for the day to assist in receiving the guests.

The review of the regiment yesterday by Governor Fielder was much like preceding reviews. It was his last military experience of the three years of his term, and everything passed off without trouble of any kind to mar the day. Big black clouds that had been threatening a thunder shower all day held off until after the review, but they played a part in keeping the crowd to smaller proportions than was the case when the Second reigment was here a week ago. It was estimated by the officers on the field that about 4,000 people witnessed the spectacle, lining both sides of the field. Actual count showed nearly a thousand automobiles with their loads of brightly attired summer girls from resorts all along the shore, and an excursion from South Jersey brought a thousand or more friends of the men in the regiment.

The State is paying money to men who were injured some years ago when a cannon exploded prematurely, and as it was not wished to take any chances this year, because the gun on hand is an old model, the formality of a Governor's salute was dispensed with, and he rode onto the field saluted only by automobile horns and hand-clapping.

Last night the rookies had a hard time of it, as the usual initiations of a Friday night in camp were conducted by the older men. A number of the men were given leaves, and went to nearby resorts, a thing which but few of them have done heretofore, because they have been too tired after the program of work laid out each day.

BRITISH LOOKING TO END OF THE WAR

Press and Public Are Speculating As to Place of Signing Treaties.

London, Aug. 5.—The recent successes of the Allies have set the English people to looking forward to the end of the war. Already the press and public are indulging in speculation as to the probable meeting place of the conference that will arrange the final terms of peace. This conference will be attended by eminent representatives of virtually all the great Powers of Europe, together with Japan. That Canada and Australia also are likely to have a voice in the peace deliberations is considered a possibility in view of the important part they have taken in the conflict and the great interests they have at stake. In the number of Powers represented and the world-wide importance of the issues to be decided the coming peace conference will eclipse all similar gatherings in the world's history, even the famous Congress of Vienna which rearranged the map of Europe after the overthrow of Napoleon. Whether Paris or London, Berlin or Vienna, or a neutral capital will be selected as the meeting place of the conference will become a subject of steadily increasing interest as the war nears its end.

The French capital has been the scene of a number of historic peace conferences. There the agreement which brought the Seven Years' War to a close was signed in 1763—a war in which the English and the French were the chief combatants, and during which England acquired Canada, and by Clive's victory at Plassy established British rule in India.

Twenty years later England signed another treaty in Paris whereby she acknowledged the independece of the United States. Paris was also the scene of the treaty which, in 1856, marked the conclusion of the Crimean War.

A remarkable war palaver was the meeting of Napoleon I and Emperor Alexander of Russia on June 25, 1807, in a pavilion erected on a raft moored in the middle of a stream at Tilsit, a town in East Prussia. It was this conference which ended the war between France on the one hand and Prussia and Russia on the other, France taking half of Prussia's territory.

It was at Frankfort, in 1871, that the treaty which ended the Franco-Prussian War was signed. Seven years later the Russo-Turkish War ended with the treaty of San Stefano, which was followed by the conference at Berlin, in which other Powers had a decided voice. Of later date was the treaty of Portsmouth, N. H., ending the war between Japan and Russia.

Three years ago there was an historic scene when at St. James's Palace representatives of Turkey and the Balkan League, which included Bulgaria, Greece, Serbia and Montenegro, signed a treaty of peace which ended the thirty-two weeks' war between Turkey and the allied States.

The last time the Powers met to settle amicably a division of territory was at the conference of Algeciras, a little town in Spain on the Bay of Gibraltar, in February, 1906. Germany had resented France's proposals in regard to her scheme for the "peaceful penetration" of Morocco, but at the conference in question matters were amicably arranged, France being left a fairly free hand.

MAYOR SMALLEY FAVORS A WHIPPING POST FOR SOME PEOPLE THAT COME BEFORE HIM

"I am sorry that we haven't got a whipping post here for you," Mayor William L. Smalley, of the borough, told Alexander Zalski, aged 24, yesterday afternoon when the young man was brought before him on a charge whipping his wife and non-support. The young wife told of several beatings at the hands of her husband. He works at Scott's, she said, and seldom ever gives her any of his weekly wage, so that she is forced to go out and work for money to buy bread for herself and her eight-months-old baby. The baby's head was abnormal, due, she said, to beatings given her by her husband just before it was born.

"You think you are a fighter," the Mayor said when all this evidence was in. "If the law would let me I'd like to come down there and whip you myself. We ought to have a whipping post for men like you. I wish we had one now. I would take off your coat, and then wear out the rest of your clothing with a good blacksnake whip."

Mayor Smalley ordered Zalski back to jail where he will be held until he makes a bond of $250 to give his wife $8 a week. She was told to report any further unmanly acts on his part to the court at once.

RELIEF WORK FOR HORSES PLANNED BY AMERICAN HUMANE ASSOCIATION

The United States army horse relief work which is being developed by the American Humane Association, with the approval of the War Department, will be known as the American Red Star Animal Relief. It will do for sick and injured horses what the American Red Cross is doing for the soldiers. Field hospitals will be erected, when needed, on sites selected by the military authorities. Veterinary supplies, blankets, horse ambulances, feed cutters, etc., must be made available. Aside from the gathering of supplies, there must be recruited a large force of experienced horsemen and veterinary surgeons.

The name adopted for this relief work is taken from the International Red Star, which was organized last year in Geneva, Switzerland, to systematize the work and bring about the neutralization of those engaged in the work of relieving sick and injured war animals. The American Humane Association was represented at this meeting and is in close touch with its plans. The Blue Cross and the Purple Cross, which have collected large sums of money in this country, combine their activities exclusively to the horses of the French and Italian armies. The English armies are served by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The American Humane Association, with headquarters at Albany, N. Y., is peculiarly well fitted to do the work of the American Red Star Relief because it is the central and official head of the 512 anti-cruelty societies of the United States which are engaged in animal protection. If humane officers of local societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals volunteer for this service in the same proportion as have the agents of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals of England, the American Red Star Animal Relief will be able to offer many score of trained horsemen for service.

The work of the American Red Star Animal Relief will in no way supersede the government veterinary corps, but will supplement it. The European belligerents have found the volunteer service to be unusually valuable because of the throrough training which the members of the corps had previously received.

What is needed for successful development of such work is pointed out in the following extracts taken from a letter written by Dr. R. Vans Agnew, veterinarian of the United States cavalry.

"We shall need somewhere down near the border a large convalescent farm, possibly two of them. You might be able to get some large land owner to rent us several thousand acres of good pasture land where we could turn these run-down and exhausted animals out to graze and recuperate. You could also build and provide hospitals for sick and wounded horses."

The hospitals must be of three kinds, i. e., field hospitals, base hospitals and convalescent depots.

To quote Dr. Vans Agnew further: "The field hospitals would be simply temporary structures where less severely injured animals would be treated. The base hospitals, capable of holding a thousand animals, must be properly staffed and substantially built, composed of beds holding about fifty animals in each. Then comes the large convalescent depot or depots," where the sick and those recuperating from wounds could be handled.

Dr. Vans Agnew also suggests: "You could supply horse ambulances, motor dories for carrying horse stores and forage, machines for chopping hay and grinding grain, rugs, horse covers, bandages, tarpauling, galvanized roofings, uprights, etc., for overhead shelters, nosebags, halters, comforts for men employed with horses, and other equipment."

In a recent interview, Dr. William O. Stillman, president of the American Humane Association, of Albany, N. Y., said: "The American Red Star Animal Relief must be organized promptly in order that it may be ready at the first call of the War Department. Some time must necessarily elapse before an effective corps can be trained. For that reason it is imperative that those willing to help this important and patriotic work do so at once."

EDMUND SHEELEN DIES OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Twenty-four hours after the case had been diagnosed as infantile paralysis, Edmund Sheelen, the 3-year-old son of Ferdinand Sheelen, of Manning avenue, died last night at 8:30. The child had been ill only a few days, but up to Thursday afternoon the case was not decided upon.

Besides his parents, the boy is survived by seven brothers and sisters. The North Plainfield Board of Health has taken all precautions and the family has been under strict quanantine ever since the case, the first in North Plainfield, was discovered.

Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

Evaporated Liquids.

Steam emanating from boiling milk if condensed would become water. This may be seen in the manufacture of condensed milk, which is only ordinary milk boiled down until the water is out of it. If a liquid which contains solid bodies in solution be evaporated the solids are left behind. That this is so may be shown by adding to water that is to be distilled a trace of magenta and a little salt. The distilled water has no taste and is colorless. The magenta is generally deposited upon the sides of the boiling vessel.

Original "Annie Laurie."

"Annie Laurie," as written and sung by William Douglas, differed greatly from the version familiar today. It had only two verses, and the second ran:

Shs's backit like the peacock,
She's breastit like the swan,
She's jinp around the middle,
Her waist ye weel micht span,
Her waist ye weel micht span,
An' she has a rolling 'ee,
And for bonnie Annie Laurie
I'd lay me doun and dee.

It was Lady John Scott who wrongly attributed the original to Allan Cunningham, who made the rough smooth in the existing verse, added a third and wrote the familiar tune. "Annie Laurie," by the way, was a great favorite with the English soldiers in the Crimea.

When Is a Bath Not a Bath?

Sometimes I lived with my grandmother. She always bathed me herself before she put me to bed. The bathtub was very long and deep. Grandmother stood on the step which ran beside it with a big towel pinned about her. She held my neck tightly between her thumb and second finger, scrubbing me with her other hand. I slipped and fell from one side to the other, splashing the water high over the edges, so that when she finally lifted me to the floor the towel and her dress were drenched.

"There," she would say, "that is hardly better than a sponging off. You won't sit still while I give you a real bath."

I used to go to sleep wondering how she would give me a real bath.—Katherine Keith in Atlantic.

It will be three stories in height, have an 188-foot front and 7-foot depth, and be of concrete and brick. Richard Walters, who filed the permit, names Joseph Brandt as mason and A. R. Smalley as carpenter.

The plans filed by Julius H. Borman, of 309 West Fourth street, for the building of an addition to the rear of the house at that address at a cost of $100 was approved by the inspector. It will be of one story in height and measure 20x20x12. Mr. Borman will do the work himself.

VALUE OF THE BRICK AND TILE PRODUCTS

Industry During Past Year Indicates Prosperity For Makers.

The value of the brick and tile products of the United States in 1915, according to the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, was $125,794,844. Three varieties of brick and tile and miscellaneous products increased in value in 1915 compared with 1914. Front brick, valued at $9,535,536, increased $245,913, or nearly 3 per cent. over 1914; drain tile, valued at $8,879,264, increased $357,225, or 4 per cent.; fire brick, valued at $18,839,931, increased $2,412,384, or nearly 15 per cent.; and miscellaneous products, valued at $3,716,944, increased $551,130, or 17 per cent. There was a decrease of the total product of about 3 per cent.

The product that showed the greatest decline was sewer pipe. Common brick and terra cotta also showed decreases compared with 1914. The decrease in these industries occurred during the early months of the year, but the conditions improved during the last three or four months of the year, the year closing with bright prospects for 1916.

BUILDING PAGE

BUILDING NOTES

The foundation has been laid and the work is otherwise satisfactorily progressing on the double house which Michael Watson, of Grant avenue, is building on South Second street. The home is being built on the same architectural lines as his surrounding dwellings, and when finished will enhance the beauty of the neighborhood. A number of other homes in that vicinity belong to Mr. Watson and all are commodiously built with plenty of surrounding lawns.

Workmen are busy making repairs to the Friends' meeting house on Watchung avenue. The interior is being refinished and the doors, windows and roof are being fixed where needed.

As soon as the plans are approved by the building inspector, the contractors will start work on the construction of two buildings at the Bosch Magneto plant on South avenue. All that is holding them up now is because the cost was not named in the permits.

Although the ground has been staked out, work has not yet been started on the building of the addition to the Standard Aero Corporation on North avenue.

AN UP-TO-DATE COTTAGE

DESIGNED BY CHAS S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT.

AN "Up-to-Date" cottage with one bed room on the first floor and two bed rooms on the second floor, such is the design submitted in this issue. The size is 26 feet in width and 50 feet total depth, over sun room in front and porch in rear. It is estimated to cost from $3,500 to $4,300 exclusive of heating and plumbing. It is frame construction with cement stucco in the first story and above shingled. The general style is low and pleasing, well built, with a full basement and well finished inside. The stucco to be a cream white tint and the trimmings white or may be stained brown to suit and the shingles stained with creosote, a pleasing moss green or dark redish brown. The arrangement of rooms is well suited to a south and west front, with a pretty glazed sun room on the southwest corner and wide French windows opening into the living room, a pretty open porch at the entrance. The dining room opens with the living room on the east side and in the rear a well-arranged kitchen. A good bed room back of living room on the west side, provided with good closets and bath room. The main furnace chimney in the center also provides for a wide fireplace and a separate chimney for the kitchen. This main floor is finished in oak and the second story with two chambers and sleeping porch is finished in birch, the floors are of hardwood, everything about the cottage is strictly first class, nothing lacking to make a complete cottage home.

LOCAL CONTRACTORS BID AT SCOTCH PLAINS

Secure Contracts For Building Eight-Room, Two-Story School Addition.

A special meeting of the Fanwood Township Board of Education was held last night for the purpose of awarding contracts for the erection of an eight room, two story addition to School No. 1. All of the successful bidders were local men, although Scotch Plains and Westfield contractors submitted bids, too.

The building of the entire structure will cost $43,650. William Pangborn was awarded the general contract, George Tobin the heating and ventilating contract, Allen B. Laing the electrical contract, and Den Galbraith the plumbing contract.

The contractors will get together within the next few days and file their bonds, and work will be started in two weeks, and although it is hoped that the new building will be completed by cold weather the work will be slightly hindered because the alterations to the main building will have to be done at the same time. The main stairway in the building will be torn out and one that is fireproof will be put in its place. The alteration work is included in the general contract.

M'MAHON'S STARS TRIM EAGLE TEAM

Dunellen Youths In Great "Come-Back" Stunt.

McMahon's All-Stars turned the tables on the Eagle A. C. at Dunellen yesterday afternoon, when they defeated that team by the score of 9 to 7, in a most interesting and exciting game. Joe Maiers and F. Schneiderwind were the opposing pitchers and both twirled good ball. Maier allowed two more hits than Schneiderwind but did not walk a man, while Schneiderwind walked seven. Maier, in fact, deserved to be the victor, but seven errors in fact and several in judgment by his team mates spilled the beans.

The "rubber" game will be played Monday afternoon.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, AUGUST 5, 1916.

On Saturdays the editorial column of the Daily Press is conducted, at our request, by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is Captain Charles A. Peterson of Company K.

WHY NOT APPROPRIATE THAT $15,000?

Whether or not the proposed new National Guard armory for Plainfield will be a credit to the city rests with the action of the Common Council on an application for a municipal appropriation to swell the present fund available from the State and county. It is the earnest hope of all interested that the council will dispose of this matter at its August session Monday night and dispose of it in a favorable manner. Citizens interested in the welfare of the National Guard know the handicap under which Company K, of this city, has been working, and now a big chance presents itself to overcome this impediment and start the company on the road to success.

What should the city of Plainfield do as its share in providing Company K with an armory adequate to meet the demands of the time? Is the city going to appropriate the necessary $15,000 to erect an armory that it will be proud of or is it going to take a chance on the meager fund now at hand and be ashamed to point out the new structure to visitors when it is finished?

The State of New Jersey thought so well of Company K that it authorized an appropriation of $25,000 for a new drill shed. Union county decided Plainfield deserved an additional $20,000 to construct a representative building. Is the city of Plainfield going to balk at supplying a mere $15,000 as its share? We have no reason to believe that the city fathers will turn down the request and are hoping that they will not disappoint us.

We now have on hand $45,000. About $20,000 of this will be needed to purchase a suitable plot of ground, leaving $25,000 for structural purposes. Engineers and building experts tell us that $25,000 will go only a short way in purchasing material and supplying labor for an armory, and should we proceed with this sum we would have no reason to feel proud of the outcome.

Diligence and hard work has placed Company K on a plane of excellence that rivals that of any other company in the State. The boys of Plainfield have drilled and mastered National Guard tactics under adverse circumstances. They have put up with every known inconvenience for years past and waited until they had made a name for themselves before they demanded recognition and adequate quarters. Federal inspectors class Company K and the Second Regiment, of which it is a prominent part, with the best in the State and no one will venture to belittle the reasons the Company K men have to forward for their armory request. The legislature conducted an exhaustive investigation into the demand for a Plainfield armory, and awarded the appropriation on merit alone.

The $15,000 could be provided by the Common Council through the issuance of small term notes and the councilmen should take it upon themselves to see that Company K gets the money no matter how it is raised. We have received numerous offers of financial support from individuals, but recognize the fact that an armory is a municipal factor and believe that the city should take upon itself the responsibility of furnishing adequate funds.

Sixty-nine of the city's best citizens are now enrolled on the Company K roster. We will have little trouble in recruiting this number up to 100, but we must have a better place in which to conduct our drills and give military instruction in the way demanded by the State and Federal authorities. The present armory does not approach a standard; it is not a fit place for National Guard members to meet and drill.

The $20,000 provided by the county is to be used for furnishing, grading, exterior finishing, etc., and when this amount is deducted from the $45,000, even though the committee might stretch a point and use it for construction work, one can see that little enough will remain for the purchase of land and for building contracts. Engineers tell us that $25,000 would have provided an adequate building for us three or four years ago, but the same model structure today would cost us $40,000 to erect.

This means that we will have to secure that extra $15,000 before we can go ahead with building operations. The State appropriation will be available in November, and it is absolutely essential that the Common Council render a final decision at Monday night's session, so that we may know just where we stand.

Captain Company K.

FINE ATTRACTIONS FOR MONMOUTH FAIR

Exhibits Will Be Larger and Better Than Ever—Opening Day August 31.

Red Bank, August 5.—In less than six weeks—Thursday, August 31—the gates will be opened to the Monmouth County Fair grounds near Red Bank, where for four days the crowds will be better entertained with more attractions and larger exhibits than ever before.

The daily attractions for the fair crowds will include thrilling aeroplane flights and seven big outdoor acts, harness racing between some of the fastest horses in this section of the country, a cattle exhibit in which some of the best herds to be found anywhere will be shown, a poultry show by the Monmouth Poultry Club, fruit, vegetable and domestic science exhibits. A horse show and an English sporting dog show, in charge of G. Jason Waters, will be the feature.

The first day will be Children's Day with a program in which Boy Scouts and Sunday school children will compete. All children under 14 will be admitted free that day. The second day, Friday, September 1st, will be Farmers' and Politicians' Day, when President Wilson is expected to attend. Saturday will be Everybody's Day and Monday, Labor Day, will be the closing day, on which firemen's contests will be the usual feature of the morning, with harness and running races in the afternoon.

There will be no bar on the fair grounds this year and nothing allowed that will detract from a clean exhibition.

Preliminary work is being rapidly pushed forward by the new manager and secretary, Lewis P. Randall, who for sixteen years handled the detail work of the Trenton fair. The premium list will be issued this week. William T. Taylor, also connected with the Trenton fair, will look after attractions, nad Horace P. Murphy, of Syracuse, the well known racing secretary, will have charge of the racing.

PREPARES FOR "BILLY" SUNDAY

Boston, Mass., Aug. 5.—When "Billy" Sunday comes to Boston in November to begin his first invasion of New England he will find completed and in readiness for his meetings the largest and finest tabernacle in which he has yet invited his hearers to hit the sawdust trail. Owing to Boston's stringent building laws the plan for the customary wooden tabernacle was vetoed and in its place will be erected a substantial, though temporary, edifice of concrete and brick. The cost will be in the neighborhood of $40,000. The Huntington avenue baseball grounds, former home of the Boston Red Sox, has been selected as the site for the tabernacle. The work of excavating for the brick walls will commence next week and it is expected to have the building entirely completed before the evangelist concludes his Detroit campaign at the end of October.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

That Vacation.

Unto the mountains I would hie,
And have a swell time, wife and I,
At some resort hotel up nigh
The summit.
I'd have the finest time, you know;
There's just one reason I don't go:
I can't accumulate the dough—
Gol durn it.

I've often planned a gay career
Of life at Narragansett Pier;
I've thought that almost every year
Would bring it.

It seems that it would be a slice
Of purest joy right off the ice.
But I have never had the price—
Gol ding it.

This year I swore that I would go
To Coney for a day, you know,
And take a dollar bill or so,
And burn it.
But I've quit dopin' it that way;
There's nothin' doin' but to stay
And hustle for my weekly pay—
Gol durn it.

Thermometers.

Thermometers have caused more suffering and unhappiness in hot weather than the heat itself.

Not one man in five who goes and rubbers at a thermometer every twenty minutes believes in it, but it has its psychological effect upon him just the same.

He will look at the thermometer and then he will turn away disgusted and mutter: "I know it is a blamed sight hotter than that."

"It is 98," says the thermometer.

"You're a liar," says the man. "It is 115 and I know it."

But a few moments afterwards he is back staring at the thermometer.

An interesting experiment in thermometers may be had in a drug store where there are forty or fifty of them arranged on a board for advertising purposes, thermometers that are for sale.

Says the druggist: "These thermometers are the best money can buy. They are absolutely correct."

You look at the board more closely and you will find that the first thermometer registers 86, and the next one 93, the next one 80. Possibly the fourth registers 78 and there may be two or three in the bunch that will register above the hundred mark. It is a safe bet that no two of them will register quite the same.

You naturally buy the thermometer that registers lowest. If you are going to order your life by a thermometer all summer, you want one that will keep you as cool as possible. You don't expect to believe in it very much when you buy it, but a thermometer has come to be a necessity in the home, like a jar of goldfish or a patent mop wringer that won't work.

One of the best things to do with a thermometer in hot weather is to hit it in the face with a brick, not peevishly, but firmly, or else hang it down in the well or in the cellar, where it will keep nice and cool. Or hang it in the ice box and go and look at it once in a while.

A Congressman's Life.

The life of a congressman is not all duck soup and lilies of the valley. The people at home may think so, but the people at home are laboring under a delusion. The following was the time table of one of the congressmen along about the last of July:

7 a. m.—Breakfast.

7:15 to 9—Reading letters from constituents who wanted something for nothing.

9 to 11:30—Dictating diplomatic replies and regrets.

11:30 to 12—Conferences with twenty district political leaders, all of whom have journeyed to Washington to land one job for twenty different men.

12 to 12:02—Attends Congress.

12:02 to 12:07—Luncheon in the House restaurant with said district leaders.

12:07 to 3—Showing folks from home about the capitol and trying to make engagements for them to see the President.

3 to 5:30—Listening to claims of 147 candidates for the postmasterships.

5:30 to 6—Trying to send all of contestants away satisfied.

6 to 6:15—Dinner at home.

6:15 to 7:30—Arguing with man from home who wants to be consul at the Fiji Islands.

7:30 to 12:30—Listening to punk speeches at a banquet.

1 a. m.—Lights out.

- Proctor's Theatre -

At Proctor's Monday.

In "A Million a Minute," the headline photoplay feature at Proctor's today, Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, who are counted the strongest stellar combination in motion pictures, have achieved a real triumph of artistic endeavor. In the first place the story is one of intense interest, containing every important dramatic requisite for the successful photo-drama—romance, adventure, intrigue, mystery, comedy and pathos. The action of the story covers two continents and there are scores of interesting scenes of New York and its surroundings, and much of Paris, with its wonderful cafes and notorious underworld. In addition today Vivian Rich and Alfred Vosburgh appear in a pleasing comedy dramatic feature entitled "The Dancer," and a special comedy creation and educational film is also provided on today's program.

On Monday a story of the fight of labor to gain its rights from capital, "Those Who Toil," is strong in human and heart interest and offers Nance O'Neil in one of her typical emotional roles. It was directed by Edgar Lewis, one of the most careful and competent of producers, a fact which enables us to see that it is above reproach. The action is thrown against a realistic background—the Pennsylvania petroleum regions, but instead of emphasizing the spectacular side, Mr. Lewis, working from a script by Daniel Carson Goodman, sticks pretty closely to the main emotional theme—Jane Brett's leader*ship of the strikers as the result of* wrongs she has suffered at the hands of the oil owners. On Monday, in addition, the fourteenth episode of "The Mysteries of Myra" is shown, and special comedy features are also on the program.

On Tuesday Douglas Fairbanks appears in his latest Triangle success, "Flirting with Fate," which scored a big hit at the Rialto Theatre recently. On Friday and Saturday Charlie Chaplin will be seen in his latest comedy, entitled "One A. M."

"DARING" MODELS IN SHOW.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 5.—All Chicagoans, or at least a great big proportion of the male element of the Windy City's population, are waiting impatiently for the doors of the Bismarck Garden to swing open Monday for the opening of the fashion show, which is to be held in conjunction with Chicago's annual Market Week celebration. Ordinarily the men are not sufficiently interested in the styles of women's dress to be enticed away from the loop district to the far North Side. But in this particular case "there's a reason." Which is to be found in the following announcement by the promoters of the exhibition:

"Enticing models, garbed in daring bathing suits, will be exhibited arising out of a fountain built for this particular stunt."

COLORED WOMEN IN SESSION.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 5.—Negro women from all over the United States are gathering in Baltimore to take part in the tenth biennial convention of the National Association of Colored Women. Washington, widow of the founder of Tuskegee Institute, will preside.

COUNTRY CHILDREN HAVE SHORTER TERM

They Go to School 46.6 Days Less Than the City Cousins

One thing to be remembered in connection with the rural school term, as concerns the country at large, is that farm boys and farm girls have a school term 46.6 days shorter than that of their city cousins. In every section of the United States there is a discrimination in our public school policy against farm boys and farm girls. For example, this discrimination costs the country pupils of the South Atlantic States 59.2 days, of the South Central States 56.4, of the North Central States 31.4, of the Western States 35.7, and of the North Atlantic Division 28.8 days. In the language of O. W. Neale, professor of rural education, State Normal School, Stevens Point, Wis., "The further we go into the study of the rural school term the more evident it becomes that the country pupils are not given a square deal in free school privileges."

In effect and for the country at large the rural school term may be increased without voting another day of school or levying another mill of school tax. How can this be done? Improve the average daily attendance of the pupils actually enrolled in school by a better enforcement of the compulsory attendance laws at the next session of the Legislature in those States without such statutes and by arousing public sentiment throughou the country for a better average daily attendance in our rural schools. The enrollment of pupils in the rural schools, according to the latest available data (1910) on rural school enrollment, was 11,100,553, with an average daily attendance therein of 7,509,995, making the average daily absences in the rural schools alone 3,590,995. These figures are appalling. The average daily attendance in rural schools for the country at large is only 67.6 per cent—an average daily attendance of 11.7 per cent. lower than that in urban schools. It is evident that rural pupils are penalized in this matter of free school privileges not only by the general policy of the various States but also by indifferent, ignorant or selfish parents who fail to do their duty by their own children in allowing them to remain out of school while school is in session.

LEG STROKE EXPLAINED BY MISS KELLERMANN

Second Lesson For the Pupils Of the "Dry Land Swimming Class" Paves the Way For Your First Work In Water In a Few Days.

Article No. 5.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

Assume the same position as that outlined by me yesterday in teaching you the breast stroke. You have your box or piano stool and the identical chair, but before beginning remove the chair on which your legs have been resting.

Grip the side of the stool or box you are lying on and obtain a perfect balance.

Then stretch your legs as though about to dive. Keep them as straight as an arrow and try to point the toes and keep them pointed, otherwise they will retard your movements when you are in the water.

Now bring your legs up towards the body. Keep your feet together while at the same time opening the legs at the knees. Bring your feet up in this manner as far as you can and then kick out straight in a line with the knees. Then bring the feet together and kick out again.

Continue this movement until you understand it perfectly and meanwhile try to picture this movement in your mind. Understand it by watching this motion through your mind.

Become acquainted with the fact that when your feet are coming back and upwards, then back that you are kicking yourself forward.

I will not ask you to do more for the present. Keep at these two exercises—the breast stroke and the leg stroke—until you have mastered them perfectly. Repeat your breathing exercises often. Try to become as familiar with the first two strokes as you are with walking.

When you know these movements as you know the movements in walking you are more than half through your lessons and now almost ready to swim. In addition, you are on the road to perfection in swimming.

Do not try to master these movements in a few minutes, but practice them many times at intervals.

I will not force you through this course. On the contrary, I will work slowly and patiently so as to make you proficient in the art of swimming. The best and only method is to work slowly, but surely.

Monday—The combined movement of breast stroke and leg stroke. Pupils in the Plainfield Daily Press Dry-Land swimming classes will very soon be ready to enter the water and prove the value of these lessons. Read Monday's article.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

What Hansel and Grethel Did With A Fairy's Wand.

Who Ever Heard It Had to Dance.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

BREAD and jam finished, daddy began the bedtime story: "Soon as Hansel and Grethel found the fairy whose hut they were in was a bad fairy they decided to steal her wand and run away. So Grethel ran to fetch the wand and also the old fairy's fife. Then away they scampered into the woods.

"When the old fairy came back she found no one in her cake hut. In a great rage she sprang to the window and looked out across the wide world, for fairies, you children know, can see far and wide, and there a long way off she espied Hansel and Grethel running like anything. She shook her knobby old fist at them and cried, 'You will still fall into my hands!'

"Then she put on her boots, which walked seven miles to a step. Two steps brought her right up to the children. But Grethel had seen her coming and by the help of the wand had turned Hansel into a lake and herself a swan swimming around on the middle of the lake."

"Will they get drowned?" cried Jack.

"So the old fairy sat down on the edge of the water and spent much time trying to coax the swan. She threw crumbs of bread to it. But the swan would not come near her, and at night she was obliged to go home without taking any revenge upon the children.

"Then Grethel waved the wand and changed themselves back into children again, and all that night they went journeying on until the dawn of the next day. Then the maiden changed herself into a beautiful rose in the midst of a thick set hedge, and Hansel sat beside her.

"Soon the fairy came striding along in her seven mile boots. 'Good piper,' said she, 'may I pluck yon beautiful rose for myself?'

"'Oh, yes!' said Hansel. Then to himself he said, 'I will play you a tune while you pick roses.'

"The old fairy crept up to the hedge hurriedly, for well she knew what the rose was, and Hansel pulled out of his pocket the fife which his sister had stolen when she took the wand from the fairy's hut. He played like anything, and the fife being a fiary one, whoever heard it had to dance, whether he liked it or not," daddy ended.

"We love that story, daddy!" cried the children.

"So do I!" said daddy, kissing them.

"Come on, Jack!" said Evelyn.

"Thank you, daddy!" they called back.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

MINOR LEAGUES' POOR SEASON.

The majority of the minor leagues are nearing the end of their season, the closing date for most of the little circuits being set for Labor Day. As the season has been one of the "bloomer" variety there is likely to be few tears shed by the "bush" magnates when the final curtain is rung down.

A few of the minor league clubs will be able to show a profit and some of the others may manage to break even, but it is safe to predict that a large majority will close up show owing themselves money. Unusually bad weather conditions and lack of public interest have combined to put the skids under the pastime.

Two years ago the now defunct Federal League started the minors down the toboggan by grabbing the "bush" stars and neglecting the formality of slipping a little change in return. When the Feds died last winter the minors breathed a sigh of relief and started forthwith to prepare for what they figured would be a soft and soothing 1916 season. In nearly all sections J. Pluvius has been on the job early and late, with the result that the season now nearing its close must be added to the two previous disastrous years, making three "flivs" in a row.

The only bright spots in the picture of gloom are found among the few top-liners in the larger minor leagues, the American Association and the International, Western, Southern and Pacific Coast Leagues. Pennant contenders in these leagues will come through right side up. But outside the Class AA and Class A leagues, minor league baseball at a profit is likely to be unknown this year. The one remaining chance for the little clubs to gather in some coin is the unloading of some of their players to clubs of higher classification, either through sale or draft.

The rough going naturally has resulted in many break-downs and changes in circuits among the minors this season. The Atlantic League, a newcomer, was forced to "blow" after only a few weeks of pastiming, while the Ohio State League, an old organization, has been shot to pieces. Burlington has dropped out of the Central Association, and the Virginia League has been obliged to can Hopewell because it takes more than optimism to run a ball team.

Albany's flop in the South Atlantic League also carried down Montgomery, which city it was found necessary to drop in order to balance the circuit. In the New York State League Troy proved to be a "lil" and that team, bat, bag and valise, was transferred to Harrisburg. The Northern League will endeavor to worry through the remainder of the season minus the Fort William and Virginia teams.

Two small circuits, the Dixie and the Georgia-Alabama Leagues, seem to have hit upon the right idea. Both outfits framed short schedules to close the third week in July. Both came through and finished the season, even if they didn't clean up a bundle of goof.

JOE TINKER MAY RETIRE.

The retire stuff is being pulled by several players, but it is possible this season will wind up the career of Joe Tinker. The Cub pilot has a lot of business interests that need more attention; then he is through as an active player, and, although his contract covers next season, it is learned from a reliable source that Weeghman is casting about for someone to take hold of the team and that Tinker is offering advice in this respect. The Cub management is not dissatisfied with Tinker, and if he quits it will be of his own volition. Chicago's Cubs have never changed a manager in mid-season since the club was entered in the National League—back in 1876. The Cubs are the only National League club holding this record. All the rest have switched managers at one time or another during the season. A. G. Spalding, Cap Anson, Tommy Burns, Thomas J. Loftus, Frank G. Selee, Frank L. Chance, Johnny Evers, Hank O'Day, Roger Bresnahan and now Joe Tinker were appointed before the season started. They have all held jobs at least until the schedule was completed. This is an interesting sidelight on the National League. It shows that the Cubs have let a manager finish what he has started—no matter how the club might have gone during his regime. Of late years there have been more switches than in the old days—Cap Anson, for example, holding on for decades. But the club still holds its record of dodging any effort to swap while in the midde of the stream.

BASEBALL INTEREST SHIFTS.

Real baseball interest shifts to the American League today. For more than a week the Boston Red Sox, Chicago White Hose and the Brownies have been cutting a wide pathway, while the Yankees were jerked out of first place and sent staggering back toward the second division. The White Sox have won eight consecutive games. Fielder Jones' team has won the last dozen contests played. Today, however, the Chicago club does not have a weak team like the Athletics to meet, but stack up against the Washington club, and if there is one team in the league circuit Clarke Griffith would like to beat it is the Windy City aggregation. There seems to be a sort of personal feeling between the two clubs. Meanwhile, the Red Sox and Brownies are booked up This is the most important game. If Jones can keep on with his dizzy pace maybe he will repeat on the Sox what he did on the Yankees. On dope, the Dodgers should have an easy time with the Pirates, and no immediate shift is expected in the leadershp of the National League, giving the Johnson circuit full benefit of the limelight.

ROBERTSON ALWAYS THERE.

Even when the Giants were down in a slump, when the pitchers were being pounded, when the hitters were not hitting, Dave Robertson never lost nerve, but kept his big war club busy, and he has been to New York in time of stress what Jake Daubert has been to the Dodgers. To Robertson, more than any other man on the team, must go the credit of getting the tottering Muggsies on the upward trend. Buck Herzog has strengthened the club materially and mentally, but it takes fielding for defense and hitting for offense to back up the Herzog stuff, and Robertson is coming through in a consistent manner. Benny Kauff is being reconstructed. He is being taught a different style of batting by McGraw, and while his figures are suffering just now they will improve. Burns is playing fairly well, but it has been Robertson that covered the defects of his two partners in the outfield. This is the same Robertson Pittsburgh could have had, but he was suffering from a badly injured leg, before the season started, and it was not until the second month of play that he began to shine. In the series with the Pirates, just closed, it was Robertson who held the limelight more than any other player, on either team.

GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP IS AMONG GREATEST OF COMING SPORT EVENTS

More Than 1,000 Trapshooters Will Participate In Event, Which Will Be Witnessed By Thousands—Peter P. Carney Gives Exclusive Interview—Notes of Traps.

(By Peter P. Carney.)

Baseball has its "world's series," tennis its Davis Cup competition, and golf its international matches, but not one of these titular contests is to be compared with the blue ribbon event of the trapshooting season—the Grand American Handicap.

We are aware of the broadness of this assertion and fully realize that there will be many doubting Thomases, but we can prove our assertion to any and every one who cares to journey to Sportsman's Park, in St. Louis, Mo., during the week beginning Monday, August 21, for on that day the Grand American Handicap gets going and continues with unabated enthusiasm for five days. Any sporting event that will take hundreds of men away from their business for a week or more, and take several hundred women away from their homes for the same period of time, is a real sporting event. That is just what the Grand American Handicap is.

Last year the tournament was held in Grant Park, Chicago, Ill., and was witnessed by some 25,000 persons—not one paying an admission fee. In the various trapshooting events nearly 2,000 persons participated, and in the Grand American Handicap there were 839 shooters out of 884 entrants. Have you ever witnessed a sporting event in which there were 839 active participants? You have not—unless it was the Grand American Handicap last August. Trapshooting is not a proxy sport. It is something you can do yourself; something you enjoy because you can do it yourself.

Big as last year's tournament was, all indications are that the St. Louis tournament will be the greatest ever. While the official list of entries is still far from being complete, it is expected that the entry list will total more than 1,000 trapshooters. Think of it—1,000 shooters in one event. Sort o' puts the other sport classics in the shade.

It has taken the Grand American Handicap sixteen years to arrive at its present stage of development. There were but 74 entrants in the first championship tournament, held in 1900. Little by little the tournament grew for a number of years, but in the past five seasons the handicap has made great leaps forward. Two years ago, in Dayton, O., when the handicap had a few more than 500 entrants, the feeling prevailed that trapshooting was at its height, but last year in Chicago the entrants neared the 900 mark—and every one is pulling for a 1,000 or more this time.

There was a time when two traps was a great sufficiency for the "G. A. H.," as it is known to trapshooters—now ten are in use. There was a time when a Grand American Handicap resembled a mammoth circus, with all its tents, but there will be no tents in St. Louis. The buildings are permanent. There will be locker rooms, restaurant, pavilion for men and a ladies' rest room. The equipment will be modern. There will be a grandstand behind the professional trap, on which all the special events will take place. Sportsman's Park is the finest trapshooting park in the United States—which, in broader words, means the world.

The "G. A. H." is being conducted this year by the St. Louis Trapshooting Association, which is comprised of nearly all of the trapshooting clubs in and about St. Louis. The association is operated solely in the interest of trapshooting.

The tournament opens on Monday, the 21st, at 11 o'clock, with the St. Louis introductory, an event at 200 targets, 18 yards' rise. This, as well as all other scheduled events that follow, are open only to amateurs. Beginning Tuesday, the trapshooting will begin at 8:30 A. M. The first event on Tuesday will be the Mound City overture at 100 targets, 16 yards. Prize winners in the St. Louis introductory are not eligible for this event. At 11 o'clock the national amateur championship at doubles will be shot. Fifty pairs of doubles will be thrown. At 3 o'clock the national amateur singles championship will begin. This event will be 100 targets, 16 yards' rise. This event is for the winners of the different State championships. In case the champion cannot attend, the runner-up is allowed to take his place. At 4 o'clock this afternoon and on the following two afternoons there will be a 50-bird event for the fair Dianas who are in attendance. There will also be two prizes in the "G. A. H." for the fair shots who make the highest scores.

On the 23d the preliminary handicap, at 100 targets, 16 to 23 yards, will be shot. The same handicaps as in the "G. A. H." will prevail. The handicap committee, comprised of J. W. Bell, chairman; R. E. Loring, G. K. Mackie, G. V. Dering and J. H. Noel, will convene on the 18th and announce the handicaps on the 20th. The Garnd American Handicap will be shot on the 24th. This will be at 100 targets, 16 to 23 yards. On the 25th there will be a consolation handicap, 100 targets, 16 to 23 yards. No prize winner is eligible in this event.

There will be special matches between professionals, and a 100-target match open to all professionals for the Dunspaugh trophy, during the tournament. These matches will take place at 3 every afternoon. Trophies will be awarded the shooters who make the best score from 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22 and 23 yards in the Grand American Handicap.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

One of the most difficult tasks we ever undertook was that of correctly spelling the names of the two Japanese tennis players who are scheduled to perform at Westfield this evening. But, we believe that we completed the task in a satisfactory manner.

Wonder who the "Davy Robertson" of the City League is? There are several hitters of note on the local circuit, but it is a matter of opinion as to which one of the many is the most timely clouter. A glance at the league records would very easily establish the fact. But, then again, there are no league records.

If the Athletics keep up their present "world beating" pace, they will be refused a franchise in the City League. Connie Mack, according to a rumor, has had his scouts on the lookout for any kind of material. Perhaps, one of Connie's "bush" combers will appear in this vicinity shortly.

According to the newspapers the inmates of the Caldwell prison have organized a baseball team and are going to play the national game to their hearts' content. The team is to be ranked highly and one has to show good "reason" why he is capable enough to belong to the squad. To break into the game at Caldwell, necessitates a "breaking-in" somewhere else first.

Peter P. Carney, a Philadelphia authority on trapshooting, has been added to our list of contributors. The "Sport Topics" will contain regular features from the efficient pen of Mr. Carney and should appeal to all followers of the traps. Watch for this feature. It will be exclusive.

That Farmer-Dunellen double bill, arranged for this afternoon, will undoubtedly attract considerable attention. If it attracts a little "dough" it will be a satisfactory day's work for Manager Apgar's men.

The fact that the Dunellen manager is eager to get his City League games over with, goes to show that he has arranged a fine set of independent attractions. It is said that the Knights of St. Peter, one of New Brunswick's premier outfits, will make one or more visits to Maurer Oval. It is also reported that the Dunellen team will make another Sunday trip to the Middlesex city. Whenever a local team visits New Brunswick the fans of that city see real baseball.

Who is the George Stallings of the City League? We will accept answers to this question, but we may not publish the answers.

JAPANESE EXPERT ON WESTFIELD COURT

Kumagae and Mikami to Play Whitney and Throckmorton.

The Westfield Golf Club promises to be the scene of some exceptional tennis playing under electric lights when Itchiya Kumagae and Hashishiro Mikami, the Japanese tennis experts will play an exhibition match against Harold Throckmorton and E. H. Whitney, the Harvard champion and Southern States champion.

The Japanese players have been touring the country and have defeated some of the best tennis players. Throckmorton and Whitney both have excellent records, the latter in addition to being the champion, having defeated J. Griffin and Roland Roberts, who are both crack players.

The Westfield Golf Club is indebted to M. Yanawaki, a member of the club, through whose efforts the Japanese players are to come here.

It is expected that there will be a record gallery on the courts to witness the matches, as some exceptional tennis is assured.

"TYPO" UNION BASEBALL

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 5.—The annual series of games to determine supremacy in the International Typographical Union baseball league will be played the coming week on the Indianapolis baseball grounds. Among the contestants will be teams representing the local typographical unions in New York, Chicago, St. Paul, Detroit, Washington, Boston, Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Pittsburg, Cleveland and Cincinnati. The winning team will have the custody for one year of the August Herrmann Cup, now held by the Indianapolis team.

RACE TRACK UNDER HAMMER.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 5.—The race track property at Readville, which for many years formed the far-eastern link in the Grand Circuit, will be offered for sale at auction on Monday. The sale is the result of foreclosure proceedings. No "big line" racing has been conducted at Readville since the law against betting made the big meetings unprofitable. Several attempts to revive the sport have been made in late years, but without success. It is expected that the sale of the property will mark the final passing of the once-famous trotting park.

LOCAL HORSEMEN MUST BE RIVALS

Adam C. Blair, Driving "Reuben Hal," to Rival "Owyhomac," In Matinee.

It is expected that about sixty horses, including colts, which will start in a special colt event, will participate today in the fifth matinee of the Road Horse Association of New Jersey at Weequahic Park. Including the colt race, there are seven events on the program, and post entries will be accepted in the free-for-all trot and pace and in the colt event.

The races for the young horses were agreed upon by the race committee which also took action to allow any professional member of the association to handle the reins. There are several young colts at the track and as the race will be only for trotters it is expected that about seven will be ready when called to the post.

There is much speculation over the probable outcome of the 2:15 trot and pace. In this race Reuben Hal, the undefeated chestnut gelding, owned by Arthur C. Hensler and driven by Adam C. Blair, is a starter, along with Owyhomac, Dr. H. E. Winter's horse, and Justabelle. Some believe both of these horses will take the measure of Reuben Hal. Bangala is regarded as a likely winner in the 2.28 class, provided she goes as well in the race as she did in the work-out Wednesday, when she trotted the twice around in 2.21. Vera D., owned by Kimball C. Atwood, is also fast.

EVERS APOLOGIZES.

"Johnny" Evers, captain of the Boston National League baseball club, has issued a formal statement expressing his "sincerest regrets" over the incident Thursday afternoon when he had an altercation with "Red" Smith, third baseman of the Boston club and was ordered off the field by the umpire.

"I am perfectly willing to admit I lost my head," the statement says. "It will be a day or two before I am able to get back into the game because of my back and neck, but I can promise that when I do return the Boston club shall have my best and most effective services every moment I am upon the field. That is no more than the club is entitled to.

"As for any feeling between 'Red' Smith and myself, let me say that we shook hands in the clubhouse of our own volition, and I am quite sure that from now on we will be the best of friends."

A. A. U. MEET AT NEWARK.

Although it is quite a time yet until September 8, the committee in charge of the A. A. U. national track and field championships is letting no grass grow under its feet. Most of the leading athletes of the country from as far west as the Pacific coast have promised to help make this event the best on record. There will be a two day carnival at Weequahic Park, Newark, which will be a sort of climax to the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary celebration of the founding of the city. On Friday the junior contests will be staged and the senior competitions will be put on the following day.

The Tabs will play the Belleville Knights of Columbus at Avon Oval tomorrow. The Knights come highly recommended.

"FINISH" IS WRITTEN FOR PENN-JERSEY

"Nibs" Hand Will Not Be Without Position, However.

The curtain was officially rung down yesterday afternoon on the Penn-Jersey League, when the withdrawal of the Washington club was received and accepted and the representatives of the other four teams—Bangor, Northampton, Bethlehem Steel and Phillipsburg—deemed it no longer advisable to continue under present conditions.

It is quite possible that the league might have continued, for a few weeks at least as a four-club affair, had the Phillipsburg club been willing to cancel the game scheduled for Washington tomorrow and played Bethlehem Steel at Bethlehem instead. M. O. J. Heil, who represented Phillipsburg, refused to do this and then Bethlehem refused to remain in the league.

The Phillipsburg team was originally scheduled to play the Stroudsburg team at Stroudsburg tomorrow, but Stroudsburg's withdrawal from the league last week put a damper on these arrangements and, following the fifteen-inning 1-1 tie Saturday with Washington, negotiations were opened for a game at the organ town tomorrow afternoon.

NEW BRUNSWICK THINKS RUNYON WILL COMPETE

The following is a clipping from the Home News:

"Ralph Runyon, of Plainfield, the pole vaulter, will soon join the New York A. C. Recently Runyon severed his connections with the Pastime A. C. Runyon is in Plainfield, devoting all his attention to practical work, having decided not to engage in competition this summer. He is a sophomore in Pennsylvania State College, and expects to again take up intercollegiate activity in the fall. Runyon may change his mind, however, and compete in the Michelin meet, Labor Day."

EAST VS. WEST.

One of the biggest surprises in the sporting world in many a day was seen yesterday on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, at Forest Hills, when the pick of the Eastern lawn tennis experts made a clean sweep of the stars of the West. The men from California were the favorites and most of the enthusiasts thought that the Easterners would be doing well if they should break even in the first four singles matches which were staged yesterday.

To begin with, Charles M. Church simply ran away with Clarence J. Griffin, who with William M. Johnston, holds the national championship in doubles. Straight sets ruled in this, the score being 6—3, 6—4, 6—1.

TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 5.—Preliminary play in the annual Western championship tennis tournament on the courts of the Onwentsia Club called out a large crowd of enthusiasts this afternoon, as the tournament promised to be one of the most important of the year. The tournament will continue through next week.

The New Detroiter

Have you seen anything at any price more thoroughly distinctive and full of character?

Have you seen anything more definitely in the very foremost rank of automobile designing?

In the charm of its outward appearance—in beauty of finish and equipment—this new Detroiter Six is a full year ahead of competition in its price field.

And outward appearance is simply the sign and symbol of operative qualities that will fill you with amazement when you come to test them in the actual use and in comparison with other cars.

When Walter Bamford was placed in charge of engineering and production in the Detroiter organization, it was with the understanding that he was to create a car that would stand supreme in the moderate price field.

We believe that when you see this car and examine it you will say as we said before—"Unquestionably Bamford has made good."

The new Detroiter looks like a thousand dollars more money—and in operation it gives you the sensation of luxury and completeness of power and flexibility that you don't expect to find in any but the highest priced cars.

Note the mechanical excellence of everything that goes into this new Detroiter Six.

Note the Continental motor—the multiple disc clutch—the long, flexible under slung springs—the vacuum gasoline feed—and the genuine leather upholstery. Surely these are the specifications of a strictly quality car.

The wheelbase—118 inches—is the ideal length for general use—long enough for the development of perfect riding qualities—not too long for economy in construction and operation.

The new Detroiter Six does not claim to be the biggest car in its price class—it does claim to be the best car in its price class—the most impressive—the most luxurious—the most thoroughly standard in quality—a car that we can be proud to refer to next year and the following years.

DO NOT FAIL TO SEE THIS CAR NOW ON EXHIBITION AT OUR SALESROOM—AND BE SURE TO SECURE A REAL CONVINCING DEMONSTRATION—IT IS THE EASIEST RIDING AND SWEETEST RUNNING CAR YOU EVER RODE IN.

Germans Resume Bloody Assaults Against French Forts.

MEET WITH REPULSES

British Make Progress In Africa, and Stop Turk Drive on Suez Canal—Petrograd Claims Victory In Galacia.

Paris, Aug. 7.—German assaults at Thiamount and in the Vaux and Chapitre Woods in the Verdun sector were repulsed, according to today's communique issued by the French War Office. There was violent artillery firing north of the Somme and in the region of Chaulnes French curtains of fire checked the Germans at Thiamont in the Vaux-Chapitre Woods. The Teutons preceded their attack by a vigorous bombardment but their attempts to move forward were frustrated by the machine gun and rifle fire of the French. Three Germans aeroplanes were brought down on the Somme front and two captive baloons destroyed.

A Zeppelin Is Crippled.

Amsterdam, Aug. 7.—One of the Zeppelins, which recently raided the eastern counties of England, was forced to descend at Hanover. The aircraft appeared to be badly damaged and was unable to proceed further.

Turks Fall Back 18 Miles.

London, Aug. 7.—The Turkish force routed by the British east of the Suez Canal has been driven back a distance of eighteen miles, it was officially announced today. The fleeing Turks have now been entirely cleared from the Katia-Umaisha Basin.

Thus far 45 officers and 3,100 men have been captured. The official despatches characterize the prisoners as "a very fine body of men," indicating that the Turkish attack was by no means a raiding venture of irregulars.

British artillery and rifle fire was very effective, the Turks suffering heavily in killed and wounded in the fighting near Katia. Territorials carried a strong Turkish rearguard position on Saturday.

British Win In Africa.

A statement issued by the War Office today tells of good progress for the British in their drive southward through German East Africa. The Germans have been forced from the line of the Central Railway at Kilimatinde and other points. According to the report from General Smuts, commanding the British expedition, and are being pursued by the British troops.

Russians Claim Successes.

A despatch from Petrograd says that a bulletin issued by the War Office here today announced further successes for the Russians along the Sereth and Gaberka Rivers in northern Galicia, south of Brody.

SEE NO RELIEF FROM EXTREME HOT WEATHER

"No relief in sight," is the gloomy prophecy of the weather man regarding the present hot weather. A few days ago the department at Washington told of a heat wave through the Middle West and predicted that it would reach the east coast. Now forecasters over the country are proudly saying, "I told you so."

The temperature in Plainfield at 9 a. m., as registered by the thermometer at the State Trust Company, was 80 degrees. At 11 a. m. it was 86, and despite the rain shortly before noon it was 90 at 1 p. m.

One prostration was reported Saturday night in the city, but none yesterday, when suffering from the humidity was even worse. Old Man Humidity is still inflicting punishment.

MATTHEW De MATTHEWS.

Matthew De Matthews, the five-months and twelve-day-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph De Matthews, died yesterday in Muhlenberg Hospital, following an operation. The funeral was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the parents' home and interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

MARGUERITE NEAL WEDS W. F. MOORE

Popoular Young Lady Married at Home of Parents Saturday Night.

Miss Marguerite N. Neal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. James Neal, of West Front street, became the bride of William F. Moore, also of West Front street, at a wedding solemnized Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, in the presence of about fifty guests.

The home was beautifully decorated for the affair, asters, golden glow and palms being used in profusion. The bridal party stood under a bower of asters and ferns.

The bride wore a charming gown of tulle over white satin, a veil and carried a shower bouquet of white bridal roses and lilies of the valley. She entered the parlor with her father, R. James Neal, who gave her in marriage. As the party entered the room the Lohengrin wedding march was played by Mrs. John F. Parry, sister of the bride, and Howard Parry sang a solo. The bridesmaid was Miss Maude Pearl McAfee. She wore a gown of tulle over pink satin and carried a bouquet of pink roses. John F. Parry, of Brooklyn, acted as best man. The guests included relatives and friends from Brooklyn, Whitehouse, Lebanon and this city. Following the ceremony a reception was held. The bride was the recipient of numerous handsome gifts, among which were china, linen, cut glass and pieces of silver. The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond lavalliere.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Moore are well known in this city, where they hold a large circle of friends. The bride was graduated from the Plainfield High School with the class of 1913. Mr. Moore is a Wall street bank official. After a honeymoon spent at Lake George, Mr. and Mrs. Moore will make their home in this city.

He is five feet six inches tall, weighs one hundred and twenty pounds, has gray hair and mustache, and when he left home wore a straw hat and a dark suit of clothes.

DEMOCRATS SOON TO GO TO WITZEL'S GROVE

In a little more than two weeks, the hosts of Democracy in Union county will cast aside business cares and worries and set sail on the twenty-first annual outing of the Democratic City Executive Committee. The arrangements are progressing and the committee has given its assurance that both candidates for the United States Senatorship, Senator James E. Martine and Attorney General John W. Wescott, the candidate for Governor, H. Otto Wittpenn; Governor Fielder, the unopposed candidate for Congress man from this district, William E. Tuttle, and many other candidates will be present. An effort is being made now to secure the presence of Henry S. Chatfield on the outing, as the party's standard bearer for the mayorality. The excursion will take place Wednesday, August 23, and the steamer Sirius will take the hosts to Witzel's Grove, Long Island Sound.

La Rock, Mrs. Hanrahan and Miss Hanrahan returned Saturday from a week's motor trip, during which they covered more than 1,200 miles in New York, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont and New Jersey. They left Plainfield a week ago Saturday, visiting New York and going from there to Providence. Several side trips from Providence were enjoyed, including Newport, after which they rode to Boston, thence to Worcester, Springfield, and along the famous Mohawk trail to North Adams, Vermont. They returned by way of Troy and Albany, and motored down the Hudson on the New Jersey side.

MURPHY HEARD ON THE TARIFF LAWS

Candidate Speaks to Thousands at Palisades Park.

In the presence of thousands of persons at the Palisades Amusement Park last Sunday night former Governor Franklin Murphy delivered an address, during which he made reference to the tariff as an issue in the campaign. The occasion was the annual outing of the Bergen County Republican Committee, and it seemed that everybody who has taken any active interest in county politics during the last few years was there. All shades of political belief were represented. Mr. Murphy, as a candidate for the United States Senatorship, was a guest of honor, and attracted much attention, although a host of candidates for other positions were in the throng, and each came in for his share of notice.

After referring briefly to the history world why questions that affects the prosperity of all the nation should be a partisan question any more than the question of food supply, or heat, or light, should be regarded as partisan, Mr. Murphy said:

"If the history of the country shows anything, it shows that when the protective tariff had been in force, the country had prospered, workmen had been employed, wages have been good and comfort abundant. When the protective tariff has been supplemented by a tariff for revenue only, shops have been closed, workmen have been discharged, hard times have been seen everywhere.

"The present tariff forms no exception to the rule. If it had not been for the altogether unexpected business coming from the war in Europe, we should probably by this time be in the midst of as hard times as this country has ever seen."

PEDEFLOUS HOTEL IS RUNNING, AS USUAL

Erroneous reports have been circulated that the Pedeflous Hotel, in North Plainfield township, has been closed because of the infantile paralysis epidemic in this vicinity. There is no truth in the rumor and the hotel is open as it has been right along. The two Watchung children, who have been suffering with the disease, are reported as getting along very nicely.

REPUBLICANS TO HAVE ANNUAL OUTING AUGUST 26

The annual outing of the Union County Republican Committee will be held August 26, when a special train will carry its members to Wardell's, Pleasure Bay, Port-au-Peck. Announcement was made in Elizabeth this morning that a clam bake would be held promptly at noon. Many prominent speakers will be secured for the outing. The special train will leave Plainfield at 8:36 on the morning of the 26th. It will leave Fanwood at 8:38, Westfield at 8:43, Garwood at 8:45, Cranford at 8:49; Roselle at 8:59, and Elizabeth at 9:02. On the return trip the train will leave East Long Branch at 7 p. m., making all the stops.

TO SETTLE ESTATE.

Application has been made at the surrogate's office in Elizabeth for the administration of the estate of Sylvenia J. Doty, who died in this city on October 22, 1914. Her heirs are as follows: Her husband, George B.; four daughters, Florence King, of Irvington; Frances Allan, of Plainfield; Mayble Sandford, of Newark, and Grace E. Doty, of Plainfield; and three sons, Nelson M., of Chicago, Ill.; Willington B., of Plainfield, and Percy, of Plainfield.

TWO NEW CASES IN THE PLAINFIELDS

City and Borough Authorities Each Find One During the Week End.

BOTH ARE QUARANTINED

No Help Is Needed From State or National Authorities, Say Local Officials, But Advice Will Be Cheerfully Accepted.

Two new cases of infantile paralysis, one in Plainfield and one in North Plainfield, developed here over the week-end. Gerald Van Horn, the 5-year-old son of Charles Van Horn, of 801 South avenue, was quarantined Saturday afternoon after Dr. J. H. Buchanan had decided that the child had infantile paralysis. The case was discovered in its early stages and is a light one, being confined to the lower part of the legs. A strict quarantine is being maintained.

North Plainfield now has its second case, Matilda Leach, the 22-months-old daughter of Harold Leach, of 97 Manning avenue, having a slight attack. Dr. Thomas Blair first suspected the case on Friday night and on Saturday definitely decided to. The North Plainfield authorities are also maintaining a strict quarantine.

Up to the present time Plainfield has had five cases and North Plainfield two. Mary Pinn, the daughter of Thomas Pinn, of West Third street, was the only child in the city to succumb to the disease, while Edmund Sheelen, the son of Fred Sheelen, of Manning avenue, is the only one to die in the borough. All the other children having paralysis are improving and will probably recover.

Plainfield has not yet asked for help from State or national authorities, because its health authorities have been able to handle the local situation, but many other cities in the State are admitting their own helplessness.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo has instructed the federal health authorities to lend aid in New Jersey, as is reported in a special from a Daily Press correspondent at Spring Lake today. Of course, any advice or assistance offered by national experts will be cheerfully accepted by those fighting against the disease in Plainfield, but local health authorities feel fully confident to protect the children here.

The following statement was given out by the State Health Department in Trenton this morning:

"So many demands are being made upon the State Department of Health to assist local authorities in handling the infantile paralysis situation, that the department has found it necessary to suspend certain other activities temporarily in order to utilize every available employe in this work. Beginning today the force employed in handling the infantile paralysis situation will be augmented so as to handle the work more expediently.

"This adjustment has been made in order that the department may render every possible assistance to local boards of health in their efforts to combat infantile paralysis. The shifting of the present force is necessary because it is impracticable to use persons temporarily for this work who are not familiar with public methods.

"The present outbreak illustrates very forcibly the general lack of preparedness for defence against disease. Trained health officers are employed in comparatively few of the 500 sanitary districts in the State. Special training is just as necessary in health defence as in military defence. The communities that have not availed themselves of the services of a trained health officer are not in a position to combat an epidemic effectively.

LEFT ON RETREAT.

The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

BOY HIT BY AUTO EXPECTED TO DIE

John Good Has Fractured Skull As Result of Saturday Accident.

John Good, aged nine years, of Exchange alley, is in Muhlenberg Hospital today with a probable fracture of the skull and numerous cuts and bruises about the head and shoulders as a result of an accident Saturday afternoon when an automobile owned and driven by Edwin Mobus, of 292 Watchung avenue, struck him as he darted from behind a wagon on West Front street. It was said at the hospital this morning that the youngster has an even chance for recovery. Mobus was not arrested by the police as it was held that the accident was unavoidable.

Mobus was driving his car slowly through the heavy traffic when Good ran out from behind a wagon directly into the path of the automobile. The front mudguard struck him on the head, knocking him to the roadway. Mobus took the youth to the office of Dr. Pittis and from there to the hospital.

JAPANESE STARS FAILED TO SHINE

Rather Unprofitable Evening Spent At Westfield Golf Club.

Those whirlwind Japanese tennis marvels spent a rather unprofitable evening on the courts of the Westfield Golf Club Saturday night. The fact that the evening was not as profitable as it should have been was due to the fact that Ichiya Kumagae, the more accomplished of the two Japs, was affected by the glare of the lights and had to retire. This was in the doubles event, in which he and his partner, Hachishiro Mikami, had already won one set.

In the singles event Harold Throckmorton, who with E. H. Whitney, faced the Japs in the curtailed doubles, took the measure of Hachishiro Mikami, in one set 6 to 1. This match consisted of that set only. After its completion, there was a singles contest between E. H. Whitney and Harold Throckmorton, the former winning the two sets played, 6-4, 6-4.

NEW JERSEY MILITIAMEN ARE BRAVE, BUT PEOPLE BACK HOME ARE SHOWING A YELLOW STREAK

DAILY PRESS CORRESPONDENT TELLS OF NEED OF TRAINING BEFORE MEN ARE TO BECOME REAL SOLDIERS.

"SPLENDID DUTY" ON BORDER MUST BE DONE

Added to the Hardship of Trying Labor In the Heat of a Texas Sun, and Danger From Bullets of Mexican Snipers, There Is "Meddling" of Politicians and Others Not In Service.

(By H. H. Kroh)

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 7.—How long will it be before the New Jersey public will quit dabbling in the military situation on the Mexican border and permit the guardsmen who are down here from that State get the training which is fitting them for adequate work should a real call come? How soon can the troops be unhampered by the almost incessant series of appeals, political moves and what not that are being brought to play in the efforts to bring to an end the most useful tour of duty that the National Guard of the State has ever experienced and one that will fit them to protect the country and conserve themselves in the event of actual hostilities at any time?

The millions that have been spent by generous and drudging Legislatures alike are to avail nothing in the long run if the men are not permitted to make the most of a favorable situation and secure training that makes soldiers. When the handicaps under which the National Guard is doing a splendid duty here are taken into consideration it is a wonder that the officers who are giving of their time and energies don't throw up their hands in justified disgust and let the whole New Jersey fighting machine go to the board.

The thousands of people back home who are clamoring for the return of the New Jersey boys; the handful of politicians who are using the matter for campaign purposes; the few employers who now feel inclined to go back on their agreements to pay the wages of their employes just the same, fail to realize that the men are getting now exactly what they would need and would have to go through even though the hottest kind of fighting was going on across the border.

Standing out glaringly in the present controversy over the return of the troops and the many side issues which have that one object in view but which are cloaked in various guises, is the plain-spoken truth that the New Jersey National Guard is neither fit nor equipped for actual duty. Had the international situation led into actual work rather than into the happier solution which seems now possible for a short time anyhow, the men would have been centered here or at some other point going through exactly the same routine of drill.

It would be suicidal to send green troops such as the New Jerseymen into actual warfare. People back home seem to overlook the fact that when New Jersey's outfits left Sea Girt for the front here they did so with their ranks more than half filled with raw recruits. Not only have those men cut down the efficiency of the old forces but the old forces themselves were totally unfit for duty as such as will be required of them should actual hostilities develop at any time.

Long weeks of hard drill and study are necessary before the troops that have come down here will be fit for duty. Perhaps, if at that time, when men and officers have reached proficiency in soldiering and are fitted to undertake defensive and offensive work in the actualities of modern warfare, the people of New Jersey will have a legitimate complaint if the men are kept here irrespective of conditions back home.

But just now there is the most imperative need of their presence here. It is not a mere tour for pleasure nor are the officers keeping the men here just to be contrary. These men are here to learn the soldiering game and learn it as thoroughly as possible. They are here for a long tour of duty also, if indications go for anything, and it is the iron-bound duty of every man back home to encourage the men down here to learn all they can learn for their own good. It is the trained men who will survive the horrors of warfare if such ever ensues. It is the untrained man that will experience the terrors and succumb to the rigors of the hardship.

Home interference can exercise a mighty influence for good or bad over a force of 4,000 men at the front. Encouragement will make soldiers of them; complaints, appeals to return and the constant haggling on the part of employers and politicians can have only a deleterious effect upon the men. What the people of New Jersey should do if they actually wish to aid the soldiers and if they actually have the welfare of the khaki-clad boys at heart, is to encourage them to bear up under the hardships that seem at times heavy down here but which are designed with a complete knowledge that they are fitting them for self-preservation and the maintenance of lasting independ-

NOT GUILTY OF TAKING WATCH AND MONEY

Because there was lack of evidence to hold him for the grand jury, Louis Cramtrilico, a Greek, was released from the charge of larceny preferred against him by Soritors Cocalis when he was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in city court this morning.

PARALYSIS CASE IS FOUND IN BOROUGH

Health Authorities Immediately Take Steps to Prevent Spread.

The first case of infantile paralysis to develop in this borough was reported to Health Inspector G. Sumner Smith by Dr. Roger L. Cooley, shortly before noon, Saturday, the patient being Anna, the 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Hubenskie, of South avenue. The child was stricken about a week ago and a little brother was taken ill about the same time. Both developed the same symptoms and they were accordingly given similar treatment, but Anna grew worse while her brother rapidly improved and is perfectly well at present. In face of the recovery of the boy it is apparent that the attending physician had little reason to suspect the true nature of the girl's illness until she suddenly became paralyzed on Saturday. It as said this morning that the case was a mild one and that the child will live.

It is believed that negligence on the part of the parents who permitted a family with seven children from an infected district in Brooklyn to visit them over Sunday a week ago is responsible for the case.

The infected home was immediately quarantined by Inspector Smith, and early Saturday afternoon the Board of Health held a special session. Following the meeting Secretary Wilson G. Frederick issued the following for publication:

"In view of the fact that a case of infantile paralysis has developed here the residents are asked to heed the following:

Must Not Visit in Infected District.

"(1) All persons are refrained from visiting in the vicinity of South avenue and Chestnut street, which has been designated as an infected district by the Board of Health, and has been placed under a semi-quarantine. All children residing therein under 16 years of age must remain in their own yards or homes. The section is being rigidly patrolled by the health inspectors to see that the quarantine is not broken.

All Cats and Dogs Must Be Kept Off Streets.

"(2) All cats and dogs must be kept off the streets. As an added measure of precaution the Board of Health recommends that they be destroyed at once by their owners. Such cats and dogs as are found at large following the publication of this decree, will be destroyed at once by those in authority and the owner or owners, if ascertained, be arraigned before a magistrate to suffer the penalty provided by the health code, which is a fine of from $2 to $100.

Attention Called to "Warning" Pamphlets.

"(3) As stated in the Board of Health's 'warning' pamphlet of July 11th, parents will be held responsible if a physician is not summoned immediately upon the first appearance of illness. Attention is again directed to this pamphlet as a whole.

Must Have Washing Done at Home.

"(4) People who have been in the habit of having their washing done away from home must temporarily discontinue the practice.

Parents Advised to Keep Children at Home; No Mail to Be Delivered to Those Under 16.

"(5) Parents are advised to keep their children off the street and especially away from any public building such as the postoffice, the corner grocery, etc. (A sign was posted in the postoffice this morning, stating that no mail will be delivered to any child under 16).

Owners of Property Held Personally Responsible.

"(6) All owners of property will be held personally responsible for the existence of any unsanitary condition about the holdings. Residents are asked not to forget that it is their duty to inform the health inspector of any unsanitary condition that they may detect, no matter if the negligent ones may be their best friends. This is a duty that each owes to his or her family and the community at large. The telephone number of the health inspector is 1255."

SURPRISE LAKE SOLD TO WATER COMPANY

The Commonwealth Adds to Holdings In This Community.

On Wednesday, July 27th Commonwealth Water Company took title from Feltville Water Company for a tract of land in Batusrol Valley, embracing about one hundred and seventy acres in the southwestern section of Summit and of the borough of Mountainside and the township of New Providence. The tract includes Surprise Lake, a remarkably beautiful lake so isolated from the highways as to be little known to the public. The lake is a mile in length with beautiful wooded shores sloping up to Batusrol Mountain on the south and to the Second Mountain on the north. From this lake is visible no sign of habitation and while there it is difficult to realize that one is distant only twenty miles from New York city, and less than two miles from the centre of Summit.

With the acquisition of this tract of land and its water rights the Commonwealth Water Company completes a plan upon which its officers have been steadily working for about twenty years. In 1896 Seeley Paper Mills Company; Harper Hollingsworth & Derby; Union County Investment Company and French's Mill at Plainfield, mill owners in the Green Brook Valley below the pumping plant of the Mountain Water Company (the predecessor in title of the Commonealth Water Company) brought suit against the water company for diversion of water and litigation began in the court of chancery, extended to the supreme court and finally reached the court of errors and appeals in 1904, when Commissioners in Condemnation proceedings awarded damages, and the company acquired from the mill owners the right to divert all water, surface, underground or percolating, flowing from the valley north and east of the Westfield road.

This litigation became something of a classic and decisions rendered during its course were deemed to have established new law in the State.

Later the water company acquired from Watchung Water Company, located at Dunellen, rights similar to those secured from the other mill owners and has now with its purchase from Feltville Water Company acquired the last remaining outstanding riparian rights against the operation of its plant in the hindwaters of the Green Brook Valley.

On the same date Commonwealth Land Company, which is controlled by the owners of the Commonwealth Water Company acquired from the estate of Warren Ackerman seventy-three acres of land on the southerly slope of the Second Mountain, extending from the entrance to Glenside Park on the Murray Hill road easterly to its present large acreage on the mountain. The tract of land adjoins the thirty-two acre tract of the Fresh Air and Convalescent Home which as recently announced is also to be purchased by Commonealth Land Company.

It thus appears that Commonwealth Water Company will have within its reservation in Baltusrol Valley, including its recent purchase, four hundred acres of land comprising valley, lake and forest slopes, while Commonwealth Land Company will hold on the adjacent high lands of the Second Mountain about two hundred and fifty acres of land which it is understood are to be opened and developed for residence sites in the early future. The combination of these interests working in harmony make possible a remarkably interesting development considering the unusual character of topography and the natural beauties embraced within the combined properties.

IDLE MEN.

Complaint comes from South Jersey of a scarcity of farm hands, and there are said to be thousands of idle men in the city of Philadelphia. The munitions plants are "laying off" help, and in a good many instances these men would rather stand around a street corner with their hands in their pockets, depending on free lunches for food, than work at honest labor.

A contractor in Trenton the other day advertised for men to be employed at the work of laying concrete sidewalks. There were plenty of applicants, but when the men were told to get busy with a pick or shovel, they slouched off, mumbling that it was not the kind of work they were looking for.

There are as many men as there are jobs, but the jobs don't suit the men, who are invariably looking for something "soft." Sentimentality in the guise of organized charity has made life altogether too easy for the wage earner who has no driven stakes to which to tie. The system has gradually developed a class of professional loafers, who live on the fat of the land while the deserving poor suffer.—Trenton State Gazette.

GOOD WISHES FOR EDITOR.

With the issue of July 26, 1916, the Hunterdon County Democrat, published at Flemington, entered its ninety-second year. For twenty-two years the present editor, Anthony Killgore, has been at the helm, succeeding the late Robert J. Killgore, who was identified with it for twenty-three years. The Democrat has been a weekly visitor to this office for many years, a neatly printed, progressive sheet. We congratulate Editor Killgore on the success he has made of it for the perusal of his more than 2,000 readers, and hope he may have his wish fulfilled of celebrating its centennial issue.—Monmouth Democrat.

THE THIRTY FAITHFUL.

Thirty unterrified, unreconstructed and uncompromising Progressives met at Indianapolis Thursday, and after relieving their systems of much pentup wrath toward the Judas Iscariots who had betrayed their party, appointed a committee to arrange for its rehabilitation. No one would wish to deny to these earnest and aggrieved gentlemen the satisfaction of exhibiting their sort spots and of denouncing those who had administered the kicks, but really what is the use?

To rehabilitate means to restore or reinstate to a former position. It implies a corpus, since it would be impossible to reinstate something that has no physical existence, and that is just the present condition of the Progressive party. Where once was a party is now a vacuum. It has blown up, dissipated, dissolved and vanished. Evidences of its former existence, such as the faithful few who indignated at Indianapolis, are like the drops of water that remain after the soap bubble has exploded. From them the bubble can never be reconstructed and evaporation speedily dries them up.

To succeed Elon H. Hooker, of New York, J. A. H. Hopkins, of New Jersey, was made treasurer of the national committee. It is unlikely that Mr. Hopkins will become round-shouldered from carrying the party purse. We can imagine no position more purely honorary. There is no danger that as a consequence of his official position Mr. Hopkins will ever incur the pains and penalties provided for violation of the corrupt practices act.

Right on the heels of the conference comes the sad intelligence that even Raymond Robins has yielded to the blandishments of George W. Perkins and enrolled himself in the Hughes camp. Is there nobody that can be trusted? We can imagine even the faithful thirty looking askance at each other and wondering which will be the next to succumb to the smell of the flesh pots.—Newark News.

A HORRIBLE CRIME.

Has Paterson a "Ripper" fiend?

This seems to be the only explanation for the horrible crime which came to light yesterday afternoon when the body of three and a half-year-old Max Goldstein was discovered in the cellar of his home with a slashed throat and other wounds.

It was at first believed that the child might possibly have fallen down stairs Wednesday night and been injured by striking some jagged tin. This theory was rejected when it was learned that the body must have been placed in the cellar some time yesterday morning, as the father of the dead boy declares that it was not in the cellar earlier in the day when he made a search there for his missing child.

Such a crime can only be ascribed to some insane degenerate, and it is to be hoped that the police will soon relieve the community of the menace which such a creature is.—Paterson Call.

THIRD AVENUE DIRECTORS DEFEND WHITRIDGE ABSENCE

New York, Aug. 7.—Vice-President and General Manager M. A. Maher, of the Third Avenue Railway Company, made this statement after a meeting of the directors this afternoon: "I have been appointed by the board of directors with full power to take such action as in my judgment will seem to the best interest of the property and the employes looking to a possible adjustment of the differences between the men and the company."

The following statement was given out by the board of directors after a two hours' session: "The board of directors of the Third Avenue Railway Company feel that they should say that Mr. Mitridge left the city with their full knowledge, and at the time of his leaving had no reason to anticipate trouble on any of the lines of the Third Avenue system. The wages of the men of the Yonkers Railway Company and Westchester Electric Company have been raised twice within the last six months. The leaders of the labor organization for the men of those lines had directed the paymasters not to pay the men the last increase in wages. Notwithstanding this direction all the men of the Yonkers Railway and Westchester Electric took their pay, and it was regarded as an acquiescence in the matter. The men of the Union Railway had made no demands, but, on the contrary, these men and the men of the Third Avenue system in Manhattan, at a conference held with Mr. Whitridge, at which they were fully represented, thanked him and the company for their increase in pay and expressed their satisfaction with the entire situation. As a matter of fact, no demands were made by the employes of the Union Railway until after they had gone on strike, and no demands of any kind had been made by the employes of the Third Avenue system operating in the Borough of Manhattan."

TEXAS BEST GUNNERY SHIP.

Makes All Around Percentage of 93.7 in 1915-16.

The battleship Texas, Captain J. Hood commanding, has won the pennant for the best all around gunnery for 1915-16. Her percentage is 93.7, computed by her scores at battle target practice, elementary gun pointers' practice, torpedo practice and every other form of gunnery.

Following the Texas, the standing of the other ships follows: Virginia, 78.84; Michigan (battle efficiency pennant winner), 78.825; Nebraska, 76.109; New York, 72.594; New Jersey, 62.374; Rhode Island, 62.15; Florida, 61.57; Wyoming, 57.075; San Diego, 54.453; South Carolina, 51.718; Louisiana, 49.406; Delaware, 46.496; Kansas, 40.042; Utah, 37.659; Arkansas, 33.927.

Eggs and Onions.

If less meat, shall we eat superboiled eggs after the manner of the Albanians? It testifies to the strength of their digestions. An equal number of eggs and onions are boiled together for about three hours daily on ten successive days, the eggs being slightly pricked after each boil so that the juice of the onions thoroughly permeates them.

They are naturally as hard as bullets at the end of this treatment, but an Albanian will bolt down a huge plateful, helped down by lashings of olive oil, and then clamor for a second helping.—London Chronicle.

Windward and Leeward Isles.

The Leeward islands are so called because they are less exposed to the prevailing northeast trade wind than the Windward islands near by, while the Windward islands in turn derive their name from the fact that they are the most exposed to these winds of all the Lesser Antilles.

The Sure Tip.

"How did you get that new suit?"

"Had a sure tip on a horse race."

"I never knew one of those sure tips to pan out."

"Neither did I. So I didn't play it. Put the money into this suit instead."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Boost.

"Do you think you can get along on my salary of fourteen a week?"

"Why, certainly, dovey. As an allowance now papa only gives me ten."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Tropical Vegetation.

Freshly cut fenceposts and telegraph poles often start growing again when set up in the tropics, and vine roots often disrupt masonry.

Rice in China.

Many persons fancy that the entire Chinese people depend on rice as the main article of diet, but there are millions in central and north China that have never tasted rice, and to other millions it is more of a luxury than wheat.

Smallest Part First.

"When I ask your age why do you say eight and twenty instead of twenty-eight?"

"I believe in putting the best foot forward."—Exchange.

WHAT DO CONSERVATION PLANKS MEAN? PARTIES ASKED

VANCE McCORMICK — WILLIAM R. WILLCOX — DANIEL KIEFER

Just what is meant in the conservation planks of both Republican and Democratic platforms will be the subject of inquiry at a gathering held in Niagara Falls, August 19, 20 and 21. An invitation has been issued to Chairmen William L. Wilcox and Vance McCormick of the Republican and Democratic national committees, asking each to be represented by a speaker who can reduce the glittering phrases of the platform makers to a cold recital of methods.

The invitation has been issued by Daniel Kiefer of Cincinnati, chairman of the Fels Fund Commission.

Conservation planks of the two party platforms are similar. Republicans declare for "careful husbandry of natural resources, development without waste, use without abuse."

Democrats ask for "conservation and development * * * encouraging their use and preventing both waste and monopoly."

"I concur heartily in both planks," says Kiefer, "but what the conference would like to know is how the successful party proposes to go about its task.

"Our program would be to make the user of natural resources pay the government in full for the value of the opportunity which these resources represent. This would prevent speculative ownership. In lieu of this payment, we would leave untaxed all mine, mill and farm equipment, and all product of labor. This would encourage development."

Kiefer's letter asks each chairman how the objects of his party platform can be accomplished better than by such a course as this.

The Fels Fund Commission was founded by the late Joseph Fels, to work for experimental single tax in America.

HEN STEALS RIDE IN AUTOMOBILE BUT LEAVES AN EGG TO HELP PAY FOR GASOLINE

Even a hen can understand the high cost of keeping up an automobile, and when one of the valuable game ones in the flock of Mrs. D. M. Kellogg, of Oak Tree, stole a ride in the big family Cadillac Saturday morning, she left an egg in the rear seat to help pay for the gasoline.

The pretty little hen flew up into the car sometime Saturday morning, presumably to rest from the heat amid the coolness of its soft cushions. Maybe the hen fell asleep—if hens ever sleep in the daytime—or perhaps she was so busily engaged in laying on the back seat that she did not notice the starting of the car. Anyway Mrs. Kellogg started to Plainfield to do some shopping without even looking on the back seat, and the little game hen was game for the trip. Mrs. Kellogg's first stop was at Smalley's meat market on Park avenue. A few minutes after she stopped the car she was standing inside talking to Mayor Smalley when she saw a chicken fly from her automobile and alight on Park avenue.

Mayor "Bill" saw it too. "It looks like one of Mr. Kellogg's game hens," said Mrs. Kellogg. Mayor Smalley had one of the men in the shop catch the chicken and it was identified as belonging to the Kellogg farm. When they looked into the back seat of the automobile there lay a warm little egg. The hen was taken back to the Kellogg home and the next time she wants to come to town, she knows where to hide.

SPRING LAKE IS FRANK WITH PUBLIC

Gives Out News of Paralysis Cases, While Other Resorts Do Not.

Spring Lake, Aug. 5.—Summer folk here, as well as the borough authorities are beginning to think that a policy of publicity in the infantile paralysis scare, such as being adopted in the big cities is perhaps a wrong one. They point to the fact that other resorts are apparently concealing the cases by false diagnosis, while the local health authorities are keeping nothing from the newspapers, and some of the local physicians do not hesitate to predict that before the epidemic is over there are to be startling disclosures by investigators of the State Board of Health.

The local authorites have not only quarantined known cases of the disease, but in every instance where a child is ill and shows symptoms of any disease, they do not wait for it to develop but immediately placard the house. That was done yesterday in the case of three children in one family named Ludlow, because the family lives in the neighborhood where almost all of the cases have occurred.

Stringent rules have been in force, and no families with children are to be permitted to come here for a while without health certificates. The cases now in town can all be traced to one which came in from New York. Dr. S. R. Knight, the local health officer, called all the physicians in town together yesterday afternoon, and they decided at the conference to report every case of illness of children for the next few days merely as a preventative measure. The summer cottagers have engaged five nurses from New York to be here in case of need, and a Manasquan physician has been employed also at their expense to assist Dr. Knight in his work. They have also hired an automobile which is being used to deliver goods from the various merchants to the houses where the disease has been discovered, or is suspected. Several cases are cured and awaiting the lifting of the quarantine.

William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, was indignant yesterday at the report printed broadcast in the newspapers that because of the disease he and his family had closed their cottage here and gone to Long Branch. He sent for newspaper men and told them that there was not a word of truth in the report, and that he and all of his family with the exception of the baby would remain in Spring Lake, as they considered it fully as safe here as at any other place. They have no intention of having or curtailing their summer activities in the slightest, and under no circumstances will older members go to Long Branch.

"My daughter took her baby, and we sent our baby with the nurse to Shadow Lawn," said Mr. McAdoo to a Plainfield Daily News reporter yesterday afternoon. "This was done because our physician recommended that we be on the safe side and not let our children play anywhere but around home. The grounds here are small, and we thought it best to send them there because of the physician's advice.

"On Friday I ordered Surgeon General Blue, of the Public Health Service, to co-operate with the New Jersey authorities in every way that he can in trying to improve conditions all over the State, as they are already co-operating with the New York authorities. The inspectors are already on the ground, and they will report to the department as to the exact conditions along the shore."

Former Governor Fort, who is chairman of the committee of citizens assisting the local authorities in the fight, said today that the situation in Spring Lake is very satisfactory. "The cases here are all improving," he said, "and the strictest quarantine is enforced; every case is made public and the greatest care taken with them. The cases here are all in one part of the town, and we believe there is no place on the New Jersey coast safer than Spring Lake."

SIGHT SUBMARINE OFF THE COAST OF MAINE

Portland, Me., Aug. 7.—A submarine was sighted five miles off the coast by a lookout at the coast guard station on Cross Island at 11:25 o'clock this forenoon. It was moving west, but the weather was thick and its nationality could not be made out.

HOW THE ARMY SAID GOODBYE TO GEN. DODD

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 2.—There was a demonstration tonight when army officers of all ranks gathered at the Gadsden Hotel to say their farewells to Brigadier General George A. Dodd, who left later in the night for his home in Ithaca, N. Y., he having been retired with the rank of brigadier general.

Gray-haired veterans of the army game holding high rank, active looking men of middle age who wear the insignia of colonels and majors, glowing faced men of younger years who rank as captains, younger and very young men whose single silver stripe denotes their lieutenancies, all faced the hero of the Mexican cavalry drive and said their good-byes much as a man speaks his farewells to a dear friend. Tears shown in the eyes of many a one in the crowd; the words of parting came to their lips with difficulty; some of the handclasps were faltering. Their partings were simple—very simple. General Dodd is a very simple man.

The entrance of the general was signaled by the strains of the First Cavalry band, which rendered a concert as an appropriate part of the ceremonies. He was dressed tonight in a very fastidious suit of gray. He has laid aside his army togs for the first time in forty-four years almost. Yesterday he wore a faded out khaki uniform that had gone through the hot sizzling campaign in Mexico. That is laid away now among the cherished relics of a life spent in the service of the United States, a service that has taken him to practically every station in the world where American cavalry is posted.

There was a lingering note of regret in the wind instruments as the band played their farewell selections. The men hung around their superior, hesitant to leave him. The gallery, thronged with women, watched in almost breathless expectancy for some almost breathless expectancy for some speech from the grizzled leader who dashed into Mexico at the head of the cavalry column and outrode his men in his gallant trip into the wilds of Chihuahua. But no public word came from the sun-parched lips of the retired general. He shook hands and expressed his appreciation of the honor which was being paid him, an honor that has seldom been bestowed upon his kind. Then as the band played "Auld Lang Syne" he waved his farewells and left for the depot, where later he embarked over the El Paso & Southwestern road for his home, leaving behind that border that has been his stamping ground.

BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION OF PLAINFIELD — RELIABILITY SERVICE VALUE QUALITY — MEMBER

The Review of Reviews, of Plainfield and Its Business

The "Loyal" Plainfielder takes pride in the city's progress.

"Where do you live?" is frequently asked of travelers, and those travelers take pride, if they're loyal, in naming the city or town from which they came.

Plainfield "is" progressive; she's reached a period of decided progressiveness, preparedness.

The government of our city is doing wonders, the marks of progressiveness of our Council stand out in bold relief. As a mark of efficiency, national attention is attracted here to our automobile manufacturing, machine shops and printing press works, and other great plants.

And they're not over-night promotions, either, these industries, but, they're substantial institutions that have been tried and found true, by many long years of successes, through good, bad and indifferent times, and again, results, Plainfield stands on the brink of a still greater prosperity, so prosperous that not a hint of its inefficiency in any direction can be pointed to by the most jealous rival of our city's progress.

Our city has been most fortunate in avoiding ever, serious labor troubles, serious business failures, serious calamities of any kind that have been noted so frequently in many directions throughout the land —well, all things to Plainfield, "Plainfield Right or Wrong," but, Plainfield's right.

Our Plainfield retail mercantile establishments, what of them? Barring a very few, they have been successful to an extent made possible by a combination of the conservative and the progressive; both must go hand in hand to bring about successful results, and so Plainfield can point with pride to her retail mercantile establishments.

May we especially point out the stores of the members of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield? Stores that have had uninterrupted growth for as long as the oldest inhabitant can remember. But, in all their growth, nothing has equaled that of the past year; and incidentally, nothing has equaled that of the present spring season.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Much Trimming on FALL TAILLEURS

by Hester Winthop

Many Seams Fit the New Coats To the Waistline—Skirts Remain Short Enough To Show the Boot -- Fur Wherever Fur Can Be Placed.

An Autumn Sport Suit of Velfur with Shirring at the Waistline

French Suit of Green Cloth with Bands of Seal

Velvet Skunk Fur and a New Frilled Collar Trim this Autumn Suit of Brown Cloth

This Model of Dark Blue Serge with Blue and Buff Velvet Trimming

A Smart Suit of Luster Broadtail with Trimming of Shelton Nutria

LAST spring there was a whisper that skirts were going to be longer, much longer; and women sighed disconsolately at the prospect of holding up their petticoats again when crossing the street, and of using the whisk-broom strenuously to remove mud traces from skirt-hems. And what a pity that the pretty boots which everyone adores, should have to be hidden from sight! All of these worries, however—like many other worries—need never have been. Skirts are still short—almost as short as last year; they still swing comfortably clear of muddy streets, and—what is more—they continue to show off a well turned ankle and tricksy buttoned boot of tinted glazed kid to good advantage.

As for coats, they are distinctly longer. A three-quarter length is the favored style, though longer coats are noted in extreme models. A broken line at the edge often makes the coat look shorter; as in two of the models pictured—the navy blue serge suit with a panel-fronted coat which is from Bernard; and the gay little suit of green cloth with seal trimming, from Paquin.

Fitted Waistlines In New Tailleurs.

Paquin, who believes in showing off a good figure whenever possible, adheres to the trim-waisted coat. Most of her models are fitted in at the waistline with a number of seams and darts—rather than in belted effect. The prevalence of seams is notable in all the new French suits. Some coats have as many as six seams down the back, all conspicuously stitched, corded or overlapped, that no one may overlook their presence. The Paquin suit pictured, has many seams in the coat, the peplums rippling out below the waistline where an embroidered arrow ends the seam. These arrows are embroidered with silk to match the material and the silk which is used to stitch the seams. No couturier would dream of using cotton thread for these important finishing details. A French tailleur is always silk-stitched within and without, just as it is always built of admirable material. One gets what one pays for when buying a French model—and one expects to pay a substantial bonus for style and chic.

In a charming shade of sage green is this Paquin suit and the narrow bands of seal harmonize well with the shade of green. The collar is convertible and the coat is lined with buff soirree silk, the dainty shade showing in the ripples of the coat edge.

Fur Trimming Very Fashionable.

It seemed, last winter, as though Fashion could no farther go in the use of fur; but this season she has discovered new ways of using peltry and it is an exceptional suit which is not touched magically with fur somewhere. Cheruit is contented with a collar of fur and one of the most attractive tailleurs of the season is a suit of smoke gray broadcloth with a youthful, belted coat having a collarette of smoked gray fox. This little tailleur is full of grace and charm and it is safe to say that the model will be enthusiastically taken up by the debutantes and by all slender young women who like jaunty, dainty style.

The favored trimming furs are seal, mole, beaver and skunk. Narrow bands of caracul are used on handsome suits for elderly women, but the lighter furs are more youthful. A very clever imitation beaver has been brought out. This fur-fabric is effective on blue, green and tan broadcloth and will be much used, no doubt, for trimming children's coats. Pictured is a new tailleur of Luster Broadtail with bands of Shelton Nutria, a very attractive suit for a young woman.

This suit is thoroughly good style and represents the autumn mode, conservatively expressed. The skirt falls just over the top of a dainty walking boot in two shades of colored glazed kid. The coat is in three-quarter length, drawn in at the natural waistline under a loose belt. The front-closing extends to the throat and there is a very smart collar which rises over the tip of the chin. The same lines are suggested in the autumn town and country suit of new Velfur material. Here is the skirt revealing dainty boots; the three-quarter coat drawn in at the waist. The fronts may be lapped across to form a high neck closing and the collar buttoned around the throat in choker style.

Reversible Materials For Sport Suits.

There are some new reversible fabrics which are much in demand for town and country suits—the sort of costume that will look just right on the golf course against an out-door background, and equally just right in a smart town restaurant, if one chooses to lunch on the way out to the golf club. Obviously, a special sort of tailleur is required for this dual duty. The dainty suit, fur-trimmed and cut into points and fanciful lines would look grotesque on the club links; a rough and ready sport skirt and sweater would look equally out of place at—say Delmonico's. Therefore there is a clever compromise; the town and country suit, and the model pictured is a good example thereof.

Pontine is a new material much in demand for such costumes. On the outer side this material has a waxed surface, smooth and flexible and entirely waterproof. On the inner side, pontine is cloth, or silk—or even velvet if you prefer. Light as angora itself, pontine is even warmer, so will make delightful winter suits for golf, skating or motoring. By turning back collar and cuff and pocket sections to show the contrasting reverse side a very smart effect is produced, and this reverse side may be had in self-color or in a strongly contrasting shade.

Buff Velvet With Blue Suits.

The woman who values little hints of Paris newness in order to keep her raiment in the van of the mode; should take note that buff velvet is exceedingly smart as a trimming on navy blue tailleurs. Martial et Armand brought out the first model of this sort; a dark blue broadcloth coat and skirt trimmed with narrow bands of seal and strappings of buff velvet chainstitched in rows with silk to match. En passant, also rows and rows of silk stitching formed into all sorts of geometrical figures, form a particularly effective trimming on many of the new Paris tailleurs. This Martial et Armand model showed how delightful buff and navy could be together—a discovery made years and years ago by the pretty maids who had lovers in General Washington's continental army—and some of the manufactured, ready-made models have copied the effect. Such a suit is pictured today.

This good looking suit is of navy blue serge—a very dark shade, almost crowswing blue in tone—with facings of buff velvet on collar and cuff. The skirt is pleated at the sides and is short enough to reveal very fetching walking boots of dark blue glazed kid to match the costume. The three-quarter coat is slashed upward toward the back and bound with black braid. A flat panel-front over which is buttoned a novel, three-strap belt, is an interesting feature of this tailored model. A moment's attention should be given also, to the hat. These right-angled brim hats are much the vogue in Paris and are very dashing on pretty women.

Chocolate Suits For Fall.

Good to look at—though not to eat—are the chocolate-colored tailleurs. This very dark, reddish brown shade is extremely fashionable and skunk fur is particularly pleasing with the shade. The pictured suit of chocolate brown broadcloth is trimmed with matching velvet and bands of skunk. The belt appears to have been left unfastened but this is the last note of smartness. The belt is faced with velvet and fancy buttons are set on the inner side, so that the left-unfastened-on-purpose intent is obvious. A novel touch is the frill of broadcloth set at the edge of the velvet collar. Surprisingly enough, this cloth ruffle is not at all clumsy, nor does it interfere with the graceful line of the back. The slightly raised waistline is to be noted in many new models. Other suits have a belt defining the natural waistline; both styles appear to be correct and one may choose the type most becoming to one's figure. As a rule, the rather loose belt, placed low is most becoming to the stout woman, giving her desirable long lines from shoulder to hip.

In a Martial et Armand tailleur, called the "Russian" suit, there is a very clearly defined effect to give a trim waist with much flare below. The coat is rather long, falling below the knee and flaring in many ripples over a skirt, also in ripple effect and just covering the buttoned boot-top. This skirt has a cascade overskirt, also rippled, so that the effect is that of much flare below the waistline and hip. At the back of the coat there is no belt, the back breadth overlapping the armohle in a deep pleat. From this pleat a narrow velvet belt goes around the waist, fastening at the front quite closely to the figure. It passes under four long straps of velvet chainstitched with silk in ornamental effect. These straps are at least eighteen inches long, two at the neck and two at the front, and they give a very graceful line above and below the belt. The upstanding velvet collar (also elaborately silk-stitched) and wide, turned back revers, are of white pontine, the new fabric previously described on today's page, and buttonholes are worked through the white pontine in a shade matching the suit, on the revers. This smart suit, ordered for an autumn trousseau will be matched by buttoned boots in two shades of tan glazed kid; the suit being in a dark caster tone.

A caster brown tailored frock for street wear, by Lanvin, is trimmed with beaver and ecru Renassaince lace.

ELECTRIC MASSAGE WITHOUT ELECTRICITY.

THERE is a new massaging device upon the market which for operation needs merely a stream of running water such as comes from a faucet. It is a cup-shaped instrument, made of rubber, and is supposed to iron out wrinkles at a great rate so that doubtless the new invention will be eagerly sought by both men and women, for the former are as keen as the latter now to retain their youth.

A PORCH BED FOR THE WEEK-END GUEST

THE extra man who does not mind "bunking in anywhere" over the week-end, will enjoy a sleeping porch all to himself better than an improvised bed made up on the lumpy living room divan. Canvas beds for porch use come with a canvas cover mounted on a strong frame and at each end is a ventilating window covered with netting over which is a canvas rain flap. In one of these cozy nooks, provided with plenty of blankets, one can be as comfortable and as private as in a Pullman berth. There is no danger of draughts and mosquitoes cannot get in at any crevice. Such a bed costs about $9, and will be an appreciated, adjunct of the summer bungalow that has not many bed rooms. A whole canvas house with screened doors and windows costs about $50. Set up on a board flooring, this will make a pleasant out-of-door guest room, comfortable all summer in rain or shine.

OUT-OF-DOOR CANDLES.

SUPPER out on the piazza is so delightful in summer time—and even the luxury of candles may be enjoyed at the al fresco repast if one has a set of the windshield candlesticks with a glass chimney which keeps the flame quite steady. Even the flimsiest of tinted paper shades may be used without danger over these patent candle holders with their protecting glass chimneys.

The Correctly Uniformed Maid

NOT the silver service on the sideboard; not the display of cut glass in the china closet; not even the automobile that issues from its knowing garage, speak as conclusively in regard to the breeding and knowledge of less conveniences possessed by a family, as does the appearance and manner of the little maid who opens the front door to visitors.

In these days of monstrously high wages, of independent and impertinent Abagails, it is exceptional to find a thoroughly well trained and perfectly uniformed maid outside of the large houses where a corps of competent servants is overlooked by an experienced housekeeper. The average woman is too thankful to have "a girl in the kitchen" at all, to be finicky about starched cuffs and neat boots; and many inexcusable things are overlooked in the ever present dread that Maggie will give notice and go across the street to Mrs. Jones who has been trying to get a maid for a month.

When there is only one general housework maid kept in the home; it is too much to expect that she should do hard labor about the house and also look immaculate to open the door. The work should be so arranged that she may have an hour of rest and leisure after the mid-day meal is over and the dishes put away.

In Good Taste Is This Maid's Uniform —Of Black Sateen With Apron, Cuffs And Collar Of Hemstitched Linen.

After that, she may don her black dress and white accessories and be ready to admit callers and serve tea in the drawing room. This means that the work of the home must be carefully systematized and be gotten through with in the morning hours. Sweeping days should be regularly adhered to—there must be no heavy work done in the afternoon. It is always the best plan, when only one maid is kept to have a day-at-home once a week when callers will be given their cup of tea in the drawing room. No maid will accept graciously the duty of opening the door, daintily dressed, if between-while she must clean the silver of a Friday afternoon in the kitchen.

When two maids are kept there is no excuse for unreadiness to attend the door, and the parlor maid is expected to be properly dressed for this duty at all times, except during the early morning hours when, in print gown and apron, she is doing her "upstairs work." When three maids are kept, the arrangement is usually that of cook, parlor maid and laundress; the laundress doing the chamber-work every day except laundry days when the parlor maid lends her a hand upstairs.

The parlor maid is dressed very daintily and rather picturesquely. She wears a pretty little apron and immaculate collar and cuffs—and a cap if her mistress desires. A cap is by no means essential, however; but the maid's hair should be dressed with extreme simplicity and on no account will she be permitted earrings, a fancy brooch—or a wristwatch, one of the conspicuous ornaments of an otherwise well dressed maid in a certain New York home. Black mohair, poplin or sateen may be used for the maid's afternoon uniform. Some mistresses provide simple dresses of thin black china silk; others prefer cashmere or albatross. The skirt should hang well and fall to the ankle over neatly buttoned boots with low heels. Slippers or fancy laced boots should never be tolerated by any mistress. The scalloped and hand embroidered apron with its dainty bib and shoulder straps, is worn over a neat black mohair gown. Collar and cuffs are bands of the white linen scalloped to match the apron. The maid's hair is properly arranged and the little cap is in good taste. Another apron is of hemstitched linen, a large square with one corner cut off by the belt and strings. Collar and cuffs are of hemstitched linen and the dress is of black sateen. A band and bow of black taffeta ribbon adds a finish at the throat below the turnover collar, for the maid with a long, slender neck. A smart set for at-home days includes, apron, collar and cuffs of deeply hemmed white net of rather coarse, open quality. Much machine embroidery on a parlor maid's apron is now considered in bad taste, and lace of any kind is in worst possible taste.

In some of the large houses the maids are dressed in a particular color, rather than black. Maroon, poplin, dark gray mohair, or certain shades of blue are worn by all the maids. One artistic woman dresses her maid in dark olive with cream linen aprons; but this is rather suggestive of a tea room.

The Parlor Maid Wears An Ornament Apron And Cap—Over A Dress Of Maroon Mohair—This Hand Embroidered Apron Is Very Dainty.

Decorative Dish Towels

WO in the world but a bride-to-be would take the trouble to embroider delectable little cross-stitch teacups on checked kitchen dish towels, and stem-stitch the inscription "Glass" on towels for polishing tumblers? This is the very latest summer needlework fad however, and if you have an autumn bride to remember in a "shower," an acceptable gift will be a dozen kitchen towels appropriately embroidered. The blue-checked dish towels do look delightful, to be sure, marked with a little blue, cross-stitch teacup in the corner of each, and with half a dozen towels exquisitely ironed and folded in a flat gift box. A bag for soiled dish towels is another kitchen convenience the dainty bride-housekeeper will appreciate. Dish towels should never be thrown into the general clothes hamper; there should be a separate bag for them, hanging conveniently in the kitchen. Such a bag may be made of washable crash bound with cotton braid; and should have a long slit down the front so that the soiled towels may be slipped in easily. The word "Towels" may be embroidered under the opening.

THE PEOPLE WHO PAY.

Thousands of New York street car men have quit work in emphasis of their right to organize without the consent of their employers, and to force a few cents increase in pay. They are entirely within their rights so long as the strike is not attended by violence, and none but those heading the employing corporations would deny these workmen the privilege of forming a union that they may collectively demand individual rights. The strike is the poor man's club, to which he must often resort if he is not to be trampled under the feet of capital, and yet, as Elbert Hubbard once said of the saloon, its direct result is to make the poor man poorer. Stockholders in the big street railway corporations will lose a few dollars as a result of the strike, but these will come from their store of plenty. The people who must really pay are those who are dependent upon the small wage of the motorman, conductor and guard, and the clerks and stenographers who live long miles from their offices who must suffer hardships while cheap transportation is denied them. Perhaps women will faint from exhaustion and babies will starve before the strike is ended, and all because a few pig-headed men refuse to arbitrate a matter that must finally be settled by arbitration, no matter what the outcome of the strike.

Most of the complaints coming from militamen on the border are magnified a hundredforld before they reach here, and are then made real by the fancy of lonely loved ones at home. The men are comfortable, healthy and as near content as could be possible, and as the Daily Press correspondent points out in a despatch printed today, they have a duty to perform. Whatever may be conditions on the border they are not unbearable, as is evidenced by the low death rate and the small amount of sickness. The men are there for a stay of at least three or four months. This cannot be helped by any amount of criticism back home, and the duty of those who did not enlist is to make it as pleasant as possible for the men who did. Flies, tarantulas, scorpions, rattlesnakes and Mexicans are now joined in a great attack against the content of the boys on the border. Their friends at home should help in the struggle, not add to the force of the enemy.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Miss Gertrude Hornidge is a great favorite among local amusement seekers, and has been retained by the management of Proctor's for an indefinite period. Starting today she will introduce a new repertoire of film song successes.

Today the feature photoplay attraction is a Lubin production entitled "Those Who Toil," starring Nance O'Neil, one of the most capable emotional and stage screen stars before the public today. In order to film this story in appropriate surroundings, a better region than that used would have been hard to find. Most of the action transpires in an immense oil refinery in the Pennsylvania petroleum district. With the great oil tanks and the dwellings of the laborers as a background, the story, dealing with inhuman labor conditions, has the needed atmosphere. The mob and strike scenes are handled on a large and very effective scale, and the burning of an oil tank lends is fury to that long pent up in the minds of the workmen. A number of big situations, fine acting and competent direction dominate this subject, and Miss O'Neill as Jane Brett, the daughter of and unjustly treated oil worker, is effective and strong in her characterization at all times. The 14th episode of "The Mysteries of Myra" is also shown today, and the program is completed and enhanced by the addition of some funny comedy creations.

Tomorrow Douglas Fairbanks' rollicking new comedy, entitled "Flirting with Fate," comes to Proctor's after making a smashing big hit at the Rialto Theatre, New York. It is a real love story with one of the prettiest weddings ever done in a picture—it is a laugh storm, with a wealth of novel acrobatic achievements for the athletic star, that prove him again the most agile young person in pictures.

On Wednesday William Fox will introuce Jane Caprice, the little Boston school girl whom Mr. Fox claims will be the most widely known and popular screen star within a year, who, supported by Harry Hilliard, will be seen in "Caprice of the Mountains." On Friday and Saturday of next week funny Charlie Chaplin will be featured in his latest comedy, entitled "One A. M."

CITIZENS ARE INVITED TO ATTEND ROAD MEETING

To obtain the views of the public with regard to New Jersey roads, the Commission on Road Legislation will hold a meeting in the Board of Trade Rooms, 800 Broad street, Newark, on Tuesday, August 15, at 2:00 p. m. All citizens are invited to be present and participate in the discussion. The Commission on Road Legislation was appointed for the purpose of studying the conditions affecting the roads in the State and recommeding to the Governor, before the next session of the Legislature convenes, such amendments or revision of the law as will secure for New Jersey a better and more economical system of road construction, maintenance and administration.

COUNCIL TO MEET IN BUSY SESSION TONIGHT

A busy session of the Plainfield Common Council will be held tonight when the city fathers meet in the regular monthly meeting. City Hall plans are to be submitted to the Council as a whole, by its building committee with the recommendation that bids be asked for at once. A date early in September will be fixed for the receiving of the competitive bids for erecting the new muncipal building.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

Contented.

I'm glad I'm not in politics;
Nobody heaves the festive bricks
At me.
I go where'er I want to go;
Nobody seems to want to know
Or see.
I say whatever I may like—
That's what I do, so help me, Mike.
And no one seems to give a hang.
Nobody seems to care a dang.
They do not twist what I may say
Until it reads the other way.
My past life is an open book,
But no one takes the time to look
And see what they can find.
I am not held up to rebuke;
I can make good, or I can fluke,
Just as I have a mind.
I've got a job that is immense,
I am not burdened with expense
Upon election days.
Folks do not yell, "I knew him when——"
I am a private citizen,

The Family Picnic.

There are other ways of finding trouble than by being president of Mexico, believes your Uncle Dudley, who knows. One of the best ways is by getting up a family picnic. We got one up this year. We were the angora of the occasion.

It was an experiment in the first place. We wanted to see just how many of the relatives would speak to one another. We found out.

Never again.

The next time we want to spend a pleasant day we are going to go and hunt up some nice quiet boiler shop where the hammering is not so loud as it is at a family picnic. If we can't find a boiler shop, we are going to hunt up a nice choice Central American revolution and spend the day on the battle field. On a battle field they don't shoot everything at you but bullets.

Relatives who don't like one another are always nasty nice.

That's the way our picnic started out. They were all so nice to one another that they didn't act natural and a cloud about the size of a woman's tongue appeared on the horizon. On the way out it was the calm before the storm and everybody made such a point of being polite that they made it absolutely offensive. Every good word that was said contained 10 per cent of sincerity and 90 per cent of sarcasm and by the time we got to the picnic grounds the cloud that had appeared on the horizon in the early morning enveloped the entire heaven and there wasn't a bright spot anywhere in the picnic party.

Every branch of our more or less illustrious family brought its own lunch basket and ate out of it, drawing itself away from all of the other branches of the family. Thus when we sat down to dinner our family was scattered until it covered fifteen acres of ground.

The relatives who were remembered in grandfather's will went out to the picnic grounds in their 80-candle power, seven-passenger Jabberwockoshkosh and the poor relations went out on the street car. Can anyone in his wildest dreams imagine these two factions getting together and having a good time at a picnic?

The situation became so strained at 3 o'clock in the afternoon that two old maid aunts who had lived together in harmony for forty years had a quarrel between themselves and decided to build a two-foot partition in their house.

Personally, a pleasant time was had. We pulled nine kids out of the river, sat down in a custard pie, accumulated a large population of chiggers and walked four miles for water which the relatives didn't dare drink for fear it was poisoned.

By five o'clock in the afternoon every member of the party hated us with an undying antagonism for having organized the picnic.

Never again. We are going to bury these clothes and forget the incident, if we can.

Relatives will happen in the best of families, but if you meet them in a social way, it is your own fault.

Very Good, Andy.

Notice—Mrs. Mehlek, my wife, left me and I don't stand for no credit. If anybody sees her, please let me know.—Mr. Andy Mehlek.—Pueblo (Col.) Star-Journal.

LISTENING FOR THE RESULTS

N. J. MILITIAMEN ARE BRAVE

ence for their country.

Patriotism is not lacking in the ranks of the New Jersey National Guard. But the yellow streak is being displayed with a vengeance back home in New Jersey. The men here are safe—just as safe as at home. Two deaths in five weeks is a pretty good record for a city of 4,200 people. Compare this with the mortality rate in any town of a similar size in New Jersey. They are getting the experience and the training that they need for their future as soldiers. The nation is doing its part toward them as efficiently and as rapidly as is possible. The citizens of New Jersey need to reconsider their attitudes and help along rather than handicap the men.

Irrespective of the activities of one man, Lieutenant Charles Hild, who, according to the latest word received here, has launched another high-flying campaign to get reinstated as the lieutenat of Company M of Rutherford, in the Fifth Regiment, the company has gone ahead and elected new officers to fill the vacancies. Hild is believed to be out of the running permanently, but news of his success in the latest attempt of politics to save him from the oblivion of military objections will be watched with no little interest.

Lieutenant Hild Discredited.

What form the rejected officer's latest attack upon officers of high and low rank will take is not known. In fact, there are not many who put much stock in the reports that he intends to continue his fight for the commission, despite the fact that he has been ousted, reinstated, retired and displaced in the sentiments of his company. Official orders for his retirement were received from the Department of the East by Colonel Albert A. Van Valraven yesterday, and immediately upon their receipt he confirmed the election of Douglas C. Mead to the first lieutenant and Sergeant Block to be the second lieutenant, the selections made by the company at the election held to fill the vacancies.

The men also elected Captain Lawrence C. Bohn, one of the most popular members of the New Jersey National Guard, to the command of the company, but he cannot assume the command permanently until disposition is made of the resignation of Captain Van Roden, who still has a property account to settle with the government. Colonel Van Valraven pleased at the action of the company in selecting Bohn to the command of the badly disorganized outfit, issued an order detailing Bohn as the temporary captain, his official installation pending only a settlement of the Van Roden matter.

Bohn yesterday took active charge of the company and started in with an effort to work it out of the rut. In this work he is going to have the support of every officer in the camp because of his own popularity and the good wishes for the company which had, in the long run, been made the goat of the controversy of Hild's status. He will have an able, though somewhat inexeprienced fellow officer in Mead, and Black, who is the new second lieutenant, is as good a duty sergeant as ever wore the sleeve bands.

Pay Day Coming Again.

Musters in the various organizations indicate the near approach of pay day again. The last pay day two weeks ago covered the services of the men from the time of the mobilization ordr on June 19 to the end of that month. Of course, this pay was somewhat light. The next contributions from the paymaster will cover an entire month's work and the town will be set on fire again with the wealth of the New Jerseymen. Musters for pay and vaccinations seem to go hand in hand out here, but it is happily a fact that the ill effects of the vaccinations have nearly worn off before the paymaster gets around with the army pay bag.

The fact that the War Department will not permit Captain Walter S. Read and Charles A. Elliott to assume the major's commissions which were tendered them by the elections in the Fifth and Fourth regiments respectively, caused disappointment generally through the two regiments when it became known. The Fifth Regiment lost no time, however, in filling the vacancy. Brigadier General Edwin W. Hine ordered an election and presided when it was held on Monday night.

Captain John C. Taylor, of Company M, of Paterson, the senior captain, was elected without opposition. Early afternoon rumors of a contest seemed without foundation because no other contender for the majorship put in an appearance. Captain Taylor, through his long and efficient service, was deserving of the job in the minds of all the officers, and they voted for his elevation with unanimity.

Interest in the movement to allow the troops on the border foreign pay for their duty, is running high here. It is especially noticeable among the regulars, where it is hoped that the provision will be made retrospective. If this provision is included in the arrangement many officers who have been on duty here will receive quite an additional stipend. The enlisted men would also benefit greatly.

Douglas a Permanent Camp.

From present indications the War Department is ultimately going to make Douglas a permanet army post. They seem to be building up its military importance with this end in view. The townspeople, who have never been so jolly and lively as they have been since the troops got here; the tradespeople, who have never done so much business before; and the social leaders, who have never had such gay social leading to do before, were all tickled to death with the prospect. An army post is always a gay spot socially, and Douglas is rapidly forging to the head as a leader so far as that seemingly necessary requisite is concerned.

Chaplains of the various outfits here are said to be ready to make a protest to the municipal authorities against the further extension of the restricted vice district in Douglas. The district is at present confined to two blocks in Sixth street, and is constantly under guard of a provost guard. Applications have been made to the Mayor and Common Council of the city to grant an extension of this district to embrace about two more blocks in side streets running off from the present area. While the conduct of the section is as good as can be possible in a situation of this kind, any effort to further widen the scope of vicious activities will be met by strenuous objections by the townspeople and the army chaplains as well.

To date there has been very little trouble in controlling the actions of the New Jerseymen, and it is not believed that the situation will become serious so far as they are concerned.

RECORD FAVORS A LARGER UTILITY TAX

Candidate For Governor Says Corporations Should Pay More Money.

George L. Record, candidate for Republican nomination for Governor has addressed Senators Edge and Colgate, his rivals for the nomination, a second letter, putting up to them questions. In his first letter he asked them whether they believed the Gaunt local option measure was wise legislation, and whether they would support it.

Mr. Record now asks them whether they favor increasing from two to five per cent. the gross receipts franchise tax upon gas, electric light, water and telephone companies. The letter is as follows:

"My dear Sir—For the further information of the party voters I write to ask you to declare your position upon the subject of franchise taxation of public utility corporations. This tax was some ten or twelve years ago fixed at two per cent. upon gross receipts. As a result of an agitation to increase this tax on all public utility companies (which I did what I could to advance) this tax was increased from two to five per cent. upon the gross receipts of trolley companies. Even this increase brought to the different municipalities of the State a $500,000 increase in revenue.

"I favor increasing this tax from two to five per cent. also upon the telephone, the telegraph, the gas, the electric light and the water companies. I have examined the last reports of gross receipts rendered by these companies to the State, and I find that such an increase will bring to the different municipalities of the State $1,000,000 increase in revenue annually.

"You voted for the Jitney bill imposing a five per cent. tax upon the gross receipts of the Jitney operators. These men have no privilege of any kind, and work long hours for a mere living wage. The Public Utility corporations are heavily over-capitalized, charge excessive prices, and have extremely valuable privileges in our streets and public places. It seems to me that the rule applied to the Jitney and also to the trolleys should be applied to these other monopolies, and that they should be made to pay their proper share of taxation like all other taxpayers. Any plan to conduct the State affairs on business principles ought to include the collection from these monopolies of this great sum annually, which is so plainly due to the different municipalities of the State.

"In order that the voters may know your position upon this very important subject, I ask you to publicly answer the following questions:

"1. Do you favor increasing from two to five per cent. the gross receipt franchise tax upon the telephone, telegraph, gas, electric light and water companies of this State? If not, why not?

"2. Will you, if nominated, vote in favor of a pledge for such increase to be inserted in the party platform?

"3. If elected, will you recommend this increased tax in your message to the Legislature?

"In your reply to these questions it would aid the voters if you would state each question as I have put it, and add your answer thereto.

"Very truly yours,

DRINK WATER TO AVOID SICKNESS SAYS AUTHORITY

Glass of hot water before breakfast daily keeps the doctor away.

Sanitary science has of late made rapid strides, with results that are of untold blessings to humanity. The latest application of its untiring research is the recommendation that it is as necessary to attend to internal sanitation of the drainage system of the human body as it is to the drains of the house.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the phosphated hot water is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatic stiffness; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN TELLS YOU HOW TO COMBINE THE BREAST AND THE LEG STROKES

She Begins to Lay Plans for the First In-the-Water Try-out of the Plainfield Daily Press Dry Land Swimming Class and Hopes to Be Able to Come and See You Put Her Instruction Into Practice.

Article No. 6.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

You have learned through my two previous lessons the breast stroke and leg stroke—the two first essentials in swimming.

With today's lesson I will teach you how to combine the two movements.

This does not mean that you must start today. You must, first of all, have become proficient at the two strokes before you try to combine them. So, for those who wish to wait a day or so it would be far better if they would defer this lesson until they feel they are ready for it.

It is not a stroke that I use to any great extent myself, but it is the stroke that all beginners should use and master. After the breast stroke has once been learned correctly, the other strokes will come with ease.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN,
GREATEST WOMAN SWIMMER AND STAR OF WILLIAM FOX $1,000,000 PICTURE

In the combined stroke you must omit the chair and use only the stool or box.

It will be very easy for you to combine the movements if you will remember that as the hands shoot out straight ahead simultaneously with this movement the legs are drawn upwards and as the hands turn and plow the water the legs are kicked away from the body.

Now that you have been told the movements of the breast stroke, I look to you to make them perfect. Remember, you are a member of the Annette Kellerman Plainfield Daily Press Swimming Association, and as such under my instruction you will be expected to know the correct movement.

Please practice hard and become proficient so that when in my travels I see you I will be proud of you as a member of our organization. I want you to work very hard so that I can continue the course.

Do not enter the water until I tell you to do so, for if you are to become an adept you must follo directions faithfully. Then success will surely come to you.

Several of the editors of the Plainfield Daily Press are thoroughly familiar with my method of swimming. They are going to call meetings of all my pupils in some public place—but on dry land, still—and inspect the work of all enrolled pupils. As I have played in your city and have many friends, among whom are such inspectors they will see whether you are working as I would have you work. After this all of you will journey to the nearest and best bathing spot with a sloping beach, and there put into practice all of my swimming instructions. I am so sure of the correctness of this instruction, provided you follow it, that I will wager a beautiful one-piece bathing suit that nine out of every ten of my pupils will be swimming within ten minutes after they touch the water and many of them will swim at once.

I do not wish you yet to take this as a definite and final promise, but I am going to try hard to come to Plainfield to join the Plainfield Daily Press editors when you hold your first practice swim. I could then correct in a few minutes any defects in your performance of my instruction fine swimmers as can be found anywhere. I am sure that they are going to be interested in the Plainfield swimming class and be present at your try-outs.

And, if possible, I am coming myself to see you work. I shall be very proud of your success.

Next Lesson—Miss Kellermann will next tell you how to untilize these and other movements so that you may swim with a very minimum of effort. When you have learned to swim as she does you will haxe expended no waste energy and will not be fatigued. Clip out and save these articles each day.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—How Hansel And Grethel Met a Fairy.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

WHEN Jack and Evelyn wanted a story daddy told them how Hansel and Grethel, left alone in some woods, came to a little bread and sugar hut from which came a voice, saying:

"Tip tap! Who goes there?"

"Then the children answered," daddy went on:

"'The wind, the wind, that blows through the air!' and went on eating away the cake roof of the hut. When Grethel had broken out a round sugar window and Hansel had torn off a big piece of the roof the door opened, and a little old fairy came gilding out.

"Hansel and Grethel were so frightened that they let fall what they had in their hands. But the old fairy nodded and said: 'Dear children, where have you been wandering about? Come in with me and you shall have something good.'

"Is she going to be a kind fairy?" asked Evelyn, but daddy went on:

"So she took them both by their hand and led them inside her hut. She gave them plenty to eat—milk and pancakes, with sugar and apples and nuts. Then she got two little beds ready, and Hansel and Grethel, very tired from wandering about the woods, lay down as though they were in heaven.

"But the old fairy was a spiteful one and had made the sweetmeat house to entrap the hungry children. Early the next morning, before they were awake, she went to their little beds, and, though they were sleeping so sweetly, she had no mercy on them, but was glad they were in her power.

"Then she shook Hansel till he half woke. She shut him up in a coop. When he fully woke he found himself behind bars, just as chickens are. She next shook Grethel and called out: 'Get up, you lazy little thing, and bring some water! Go into the kitchen and cook something to eat. Your nice brother is shut up yonder in that coop. I shall first fatten him, and when he is fat I think I shall eat him.'

"When the fairy was gone Grethel jumped up and ran to Hansel and told him what the fairy had said. 'We must run away quickly, Hansel, for the old woman is a bad fairy and will surely kill us.'

"'You must first steal her fairy wand,' said Hansel, 'so we can save ourselves if she follows, and bring the fife that hangs in her room too.'"

Then daddy hugged the children good night, and off they ran.

"Did the fairy smoke a pipe?" Jack wondered.

And Evelyn shook her head at him.

Today the Wanamaker Store has the largest stock of blankets in New York. Almost 2,500 pairs are at the old low rates of one and two years ago.

$18.75 pair for the soft, silky, double plain velours portieres and $27.50 for velours portieres trimmed with silver galon and illuminated leather applique; 8 ft. long when finished.

Only fifty pairs at $27.50—all we can get: Red, green, brown, rose, blue, lined with self or contrasting colors.

200 pairs at $18.75—gold, green, red, brown, rose, blue, lined with self or contrasting color.

The Portieres at $27.50 and $18.75

The velours, chosen in competition from the best mills in America, was ordered two years ago, otherwise it would have been impossible to secure it at the price. Colors are better than we have ever offered because they are copied from the shades of the finest stuffs in the store. They were made by the same needle people who work on our hundred dollar portieres—but sewn at odd moments when the workroom was not busy. To buy the material and have them made in the regular way, the price for the $27.50 quality would be at least $50.

Hopes vs. Netherwood.
T. A. B. S. vs. Dunellen.
Baptists vs. Farmers.

The Netherwood team spent a profitable week-end on the South Avenue Field. The Dunellen boys enjoyed themselves immensly on Maurer Oval and the Hope Chapel lads were successful on West End Field. But the Tabs, Baptists and Farmers are sad. There's a reason in each case.

The "big" game at Netherwood proved a farce. The East Enders were the "real" thing from the start to the finish of the conflict. The Tabs never had a chance during the entire contest. By ragged playing and utter inability to hit the Fourth street team forfeited a slim chance to become threatening pennant possibilities. The Netherwood team played like champions and were encouraged at all stages of the game by the clever pitching ability exhibited by Russ Stewart.

The Dunellen team is now in the "real battle" for second place, having twice taken the measure of the Farmers. The Hopes, by virtue of a splendid victory over the Baptist squad, are in second place, with the Maurer Oval troop close behind. The Tabs dropped back to fourth place, although the margin between them and the Hopes is not a very large one.

With the first place honors about "cinched" by Netherwood, the Tabs, Hopes and Dunellens are entering upon a notable fight for second place, and the honors that go with it.

HOPES VICTORIOUS IN LIVELY CONTEST

Baptists Bow Before Chapel Team, Losing In Close and Exciting Game.

The Hope Chapel baseball team is now in second place, getting there by virtue of a 4 to 3 victory over the First Baptist squad on West End Field Saturday afternoon. The Hopes won the game minus the services of Dick Schott, their premier slabman. Dick took a day off and watched Jimmy Montross work in grand style.

The game was won by the Hopes in the first three innings, when they found things to their liking. Mills had not quieted down at the time and the Chapelites made the most of their many opportunities. Hits came in bunches and runs dented the pan successively enough to insure victory. After the third frame, however, Mills settled down and the Hopes were unable to solve his delivery, scoring no runs. The Baptists got off to a late start and were unable to dent the pan until the fourth frame, pushing over one run at that time. Another tally was registered in the seventh. The third and last run came over in the ninth inning.

The most striking feature of the game was the able manner in which the "vet," Jimmy Montross, fanned two men with the bases full in the seventh inning.

NETHERWOOD DEFEATS ABSTAINER TEAM

Tabs Entirely at Mercy of Russ Stewart and Netherwood Hitting Corps.

Russ Stewart and several Netherwood "Louisville sluggers" defeated the Tabs on South Avenue Field Saturday. The score of the game was 11 to 0. The contest was booked as a "league" attraction, but was far from "professional" in its aspect. The Netherwood team played great baseball on a diamond of which they should be ashamed. Russ Stewart hurled the game of his career and the Tabs were lost at sea. These few sentences sum up the whole sad situation.

Entering the fray with a crippled team and playing on the poorest baseball diamond in the league, the Abstainers could do nothing. They were weak with the stick and got all of the "bad" breaks. Even luck was against them. They made a game fight, but lost. The East End clan battled along on even terms with the Tabs for the first two innings, but assumed a one run lead in the third. This they retained until the seventh frame, when they tallied four more runs, following with one tally in the seventh and five in the eighth. The Tabs had the bags loaded on one occasion, but Stewart tightened up and that was all there was to it.

A circus catch by Earl Moran was the main feature of the attraction. Earl made a great catch on the South avenue thoroughfare. His familiarity with the territory he was covering made this catch possible. Several clouts that would ordinarily have gone down on the records as "flies" were stretched into hits owing to the poor condition of the field.

MARRIED MEN WIN.

The Married Men, of the East End, revived sufficiently Saturday to turn the tables on the Inner Triangle players, the score of the match being 7 to 2. Townley hurled for the "benedicts" and was well nigh invincible. The series between these two teams is now even, each team having won one contest. The third and deciding game will be played Labor Day morning.

DUNELLEN TROUNCES FARMERS TWICE

Norman Harney and Johnny Dixon Puzzle Farmer Batters In Easy Style.

Dunellen took two games in easy fashion from the Farmer A. C. at Dunellen Saturday afternoon, winning the first by the score of 13 to 1 and the second to the tune of 12 to 7.

Norman Harney occupied the mound for Dunellen in the first game and Johnny Dixon in the second. Johnny Maskell, the regular boxman of the Dunellen A. C., was the twirler for the Farmers in the first game.

Kenny Dealaman, another Dunellen A. C. player, covered left field for the Farmers and pulled fly balls down in great fashion.

RECORDS QUESTIONED.

Athletic club officials were discussing yesterday the possibility of times made Saturday in swimming events standing as records. At the outdoor contests of the Central A. A. U. held under the auspices of the Chicago Yacht Club, the Illinois A. C. relay team won the 400 yard race handily, and then a fifth swimmer was sent away to hang up a mark for 500 yards.

The time for the 500 yards was 5m. 1 3-5s. As a simlar contest had not been held before in open water, it was believed this would stand as a record. In the 100 yards breast stroke event Michael McDermott, of the J. A. C., made the distance in 1m. 13 1-5s., the best previous mark being 1m. 16 2-5s. As McDermott was helped by the wind and water athletic club officials expressed doubt yesterday whether the time would be allowed as a record.

JACK MARTIN'S RIVAL RELEASED BY BREWERS

"Stub" Stutz Given "Gate," Although Praised By Milwaukee Scribes.

Although "Stub" Stutz has been pastiming at shortfield in place of Jack Martin for the past few days, it was officially announced yesterday by Al Timme, president of the Milwaukee American Association team, that Stutz had been released to the Quincy, Illinois, team and that he would report to that club as soon as possible. According to the Milwaukee Sentinel Stutz has a string attached to him, inasmuch as he is considered one of the most valuable men on the team.

Jack Martin is still out of the game. Jack has given place to Stutz in the last few attractions and has been allowed to go in and do a little pinch hitting now and then. It would appear that the local lad is either ill or unable to clout the ball. If his playing were in fault, it surely would be he and not Stutz who would be paying a flying visit to Quincy.

She Ran For President.

Only one woman was ever a presidential candidate. In the campaign of 1884 Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood was the candidate of the Equal Rights party, advocating woman suffrage. She obtained only about 2,500 votes out of a total of 10,000,000. Mrs. Lockwood in 1873 had been admitted to the bar of the supreme court of the District of Columbia and in 1879 was admitted to practice in the United States supreme court.

She bought it with the money which her husband borrowed from her uncle, who had won it in a poker game from her brother, to whom she had loaned it shortly after her mother had taken it from her father's pockets and given it to her for a birthday present.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Bookkeeper—I'd like an increase in salary, sir.

Proprietor—An increase, you say? How great?

"About $20 per month."

"Are you planning to get married?"

"No, sir; I want to get a divorce."—Puck.

Embarrassing.

Conjurer—Now, to help me with this next trick, I want the services of a boy—just any boy in the audience—yes, you will do, my little man; come along. Now, you've never seen me before, have you? Boy (innocently)—No, father!—London Telegraph.

HISTORY OF THE [illegible]

Owing to the popular demand for the elimination of live pigeons as targets at trapshooting tournaments, the Interstate Association decided to recognize that demand, and the last G. A. H. at live birds was held in 1902. The history of the live bird competitions follows:

CITY BOWLING LEAGUE MAY BE ORGANIZED

The bowling alleys at the Gates' parlors on Somerset street are being planed, and it is expected that they will be ready for use by the end of this week. On these alleys the Imperials, the champions of last year's City Bowling League, perform.

According to plans that are now being formulated, there may be a City Bowling League this year. With such teams as the Imperials, Eagles, Elks, Knights of Columbus, Ramblers and Tabs all clustered in this vicinity, the promoters of the movement feel that their chances of reorganizing the circuit are unusually good.

HAND'S EXPRESS CO.

Didn't Fan Him Out.

The refusal of Harry Coveleskie to pitch against his younger brother because he did not want to have a hand in beating the boy in his first start of the season was unlike the case of Jess and George Stovall. Jess was pitching for Detroit and was not going any too well, as the story goes. George had just come into the American league with Cleveland and was trying to make good.

Brother Jess was on the mound for Detroit, Brother George was on the Cleveland bench. Cleveland got a couple of men on the bases and George was sent in as a pinch hitter.

"Come on, you busher!" was the way Jess greeted George as he came to the plate. "I'll fan you out of the big league."

But Brother George made a hit that cleaned the bases.

It broke Jess all up, and after that season he went back to the minors, while George stayed on for ten years.—Kansas City Star.

Tonkinese Inlaid Work.

In two species of handicraft—embroidered silk and inlaid furniture—the Tonkinese so far excel that their workmanship is unrivaled. However, their workmanship is rivaled by their craftiness, for one class of goods is made for tourists and another for connoisseurs. Tonkinese silk embroidery is far superior to that of China, Japan or India and is done entirely by hand. But perhaps more wonderful than the workmanship of the embroideries is that of the "incrusteur," which consists of inlaying in various native woods, especially ebony, "tim" and "trak," beautiful and delicate designs in mother-of-pearl. The articles include small boxes, trays, opium pipes, pictures, picture frames, letter files, chairs, tables, sideboards, wardrobes, sofas, beds and other articles of furniture or ornament. The designs are sometimes so delicate that the veins of leaves and other small objects must be done under the microscope.—Argonaut.

COUNCIL TO ASK BIDS ON PAVING

Permanent Improvement of Many Streets Is Authorized.

SEWER ORDINANCE UP

Important Measures Are Finally Disposed Of—East Second Street to Terrill Road Adopted As Highway.

An ordinance providing permanent paving for a number of important streets in Plainfield was passed on its third and final reading at last night's meeting of the Common Council, and the clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for the work, to be submitted on December 5. The streets that are to be improved follow: Portions of Ravine road, Leland avenue, Sumner avenue, Lake street, Kensington avenue, Edgewood avenue and Stelle avenue.

An ordinance accepting East Second street to Terril road as a public highway was also passed on its third and final reading, as was an ordinance accepting Clinton place and Clinton alley. Three women, property owners on Clinton place, appeared to protest against the action.

Other ordinances passed on final reading at last night's meeting were: That increasing the salary of the building inspector to $1,100 a year and making the office for life during the incumbency of T. O. Doane; that increasing the salaries of members of the fire department; that creating a municipal research and advisory commission for the city of Plainfield; a supplement to the tax ordinance providing money for schools, and an ordinance requesting the Public Service Corporation to relocate parts of tracks on Watchung avenue, East Fourth street and East Fifth street.

An ordinance providing for the laying of separate sanitary sewers on Watchung avenue, East Fourth street, Washington street and East Front street was also passed on its third reading, and September 5 set as a date on which bids for the work will be received. An ordinance authorizing the installation of sanitary or storm sewers on portions of Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth, Watchung avenue, Park avenue and West Front street and others was passed on its second reading and ordered advertised, as was an ordinance regulating the laying of sidewalks inside the corporate limits.

A petition of the Netherwood Residents' Association to have two lights moved in that section was favorably reported on by the light committee.

Upon motion of Chairman Babcock, of the finance committee, it was voted to transfer $2,000 from the general fund to the fire fund, and a resolution originating in the same committee adding $5,000 to the budget was also passed.

The report of the tax collector showed receipts during the month of July amounting to $12,949.38. The report of the alms committee showed expenditures for last month amounting to $688.61. The report of the building inspector showed 26 permits issued during the month, and that of the street commissioner 5 sewer permits issued.

The appointment of Frank Ingram to be a regular member of the fire department was received and referred to the fire committee.

The application of the M. & L. Auto Company to erect a 500-gallon gasoline tank at 125 North avenue was granted.

When bids for street lights for the year were received it was found that the Public Service Corporation was the only one bidding. Its price was the same as last year. The bid was referred to the lights committee.

A communication addressed to the clerk from the American-LaFrance Fire Engine Company asking for information as to lettering on the engine recently ordered was referred to the fire committee. It had already been answered by Chairman Cose.

A communication from the Allied Trades committee inviting members of the Council to review the Labor Day parade, to permit firemen and policemen to participate and to make a donation was referred to the public affairs committee.

S. H. Rushmore addressed a petition to the Council urging the laying of a sanitary sewer to connect with houses on Ravine road and Belvidere avenue.

A communication asking for a crosswalk on West Sixth street between Monroe and Clinton avenues was referred to the streets committee.

Many names were signed to a petition urging the straightening of the course of Cedar Brook. It was stated that the brook had caused much damage to local streets by overflowing. This was referred to the public affairs committee. A petition to macadamize Clinton place and lay sidewalks was received.

INVITATIONS ISSUED.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Mary Traynor, of Oxford place and Henry J. Brynjarski, of Duer street, the borough. The wedding will take place in St. Mary's church, Wednesday, August 16, at 6 p. m., and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

OPPOSE PAYING OF BILL FOR SURVEY

Three Councilmen Vote Against Warrant Due the Printer.

Three members of the Common Council still do not approve of the expenditure of money for the printing and circulating of the report of municipal experts on local departments. Some time ago the Taxpayers' Association paid $1,200 to have officials of the New York Bureau of Municipal Research come here and make a survey of all local departments. This report was presented to the city and was accepted by the Common Council. Some of the recommendations have already been carried out and it is the intention of officials to put more into effect as soon as possible. Upon the recommendation of Mayor Calkins it was ordered that 1,000 copies of the report be printed and distributed among the taxpayers. Councilmen Bird, Cose and Graves voted against this resolution. The attitude of the Mayor was that the report was practically useless unless put into the hands of those for whom it was intended—the taxpayers. The three councilmen still disagree with him and with a majority of those who make up the Council, for last night when warrants for the month were ordered drawn, they voted against one, which was to pay the Sabbath Tract Society for printing copies of the report. The warrant was authorized and the bill will be paid.

APPROVE PLANS FOR THE NEW CITY HALL

Council Fixes September 5 As Day On Which Bids Must Be In.

Bids for Plainfield's new City Hall will be received in the office of Clerk Carroll for presentation to the Building Committee on September 5, according to a resolution adopted at last night's meeting of the Common Council. All plans and specifications for the new municipal building as worked out by the committee were tentatively adopted by the Council as a whole. The following report was made by the committee:

August 7, 1916.

To the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

The City Hall Building Committee reports as follows: At a meeting of this committee held on June 5th, which the other members of the Council attended in conference, the preliminary drawings of the architects showing the general plan and the interior arrangements in detail, were presented, carefully considered and approved unanimously. The architects were authorized to proceed with the preparation of the specifications and working drawings. At a meeting of this committee held July 17th the architects reported that they had eliminated expenses wherever possible without substantial loss to the general plans, which is a building of simple design but substantial and fireproof, with ample accommodation for the city's present needs and reasonable allowance for growth. At a further meeting of this committee held July 28th, at which the architects were present, the working drawings and specifications in final form were presented and considered. These have also been examined in detail by members of the committee. In order to ascertain authoritatively what it will cost to erect the building as planned, it was unanimously decided to present the plans and specifications to the Common Council at its regular August meeting, with a resolution approving same tentatively, for the purpose of obtaining bids, and directing the city clerk to proceed at once to advertise for proposals.

We accordingly present said plans and specifications herewith, to be filed with the city clerk; and recommend the adoption of the annexed resolution for the purposes above stated.

CALKINS NOT A CANDIDATE

Does Not Want to Be Mayor Again, He Tells Reporter.

SENTIMENT FOR HIM

Public May Insist On a Second Term—Claybrook Mentioned In Case He Refuses to Hear Voice of the People.

Leighton Calkins is not a candidate to succeed himself as Mayor of Plainfield, and probably would not accept the nomination if it was tendered him. He made his first statement concerning reports of his candidacy to a Press reporter this morning. Tomorrow the Mayor leaves on a vacation, and will be gone at least a month.

"I am not seeking the nomination for Mayor," said Mr. Calkins. "I do not even want it."

For some time those interested in the local municipal government have been interested in the coming election for Mayor. Word that Mr. Calkins would be a candidate to succeed himself has gone out, but he has never authorized such a statement and there were those who feared that he would refuse to run. It is admitted by all that sentiment among all classes of voters is strongly in favor of his accepting a second term, although no organized movement to bring this sentiment to his attention has been started.

But one other name has been mentioned in connection with the campaign, so far as a reporter could learn, and that was a candidate in case Mr. Calkins could not be persuaded to accept a second term. Richard A. Claybrook has been mentioned for the office. Mr. Claybrook is one of those who are strongest for Mayor Calkins, and he would not even permit the consideration of his name so long as there is a chance of Mr. Calkins accepting. Mr. Claybrook is a Democrat. He is very popular among all classes and would come as near being a non-partisan candidate as any other in the city.

Mayor Calkins, accompanied by his wife and two children, leaves today for Massachusetts. Unless there is occasion for his return on city business Mr. Calkins will be away until the hot weather is over. During his absence Francis J. Blatz will act as chief executive of the municipality. The Mayor will get daily reports on the infantile paralysis situation while away and will also hear from other city departments regularly, so as to keep in touch with things at home. He will return to Plainfield at once if needed.

PARALYSIS GROWS IN GREATER N. Y.

New York, Aug. 8.—The infantile paralysis epidemic has assumed threatening proportions within the last twenty-four hours. The number of deaths reported today was 58 more than yesterday and new cases 183, compared with 145 for the preceding day.

SEEK EXPLOSIVES STORED HERE—NONE ARE FOUND

LODGE OF SORROW.

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 3 p. m., the arrival of all persons from out of town, INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

OFFICERS LIMIT RELIGIOUS RIGHT

Guardsmen at Douglas Indignant Over Attempt to Compel Attendance at Service.

ACTION IS THREATENED

Rev. J. Madison Hare, of Scotch Plains, Charged With Responsibility For Order—Catholics Forced to Worship With Protestants.

(By Telegraph to Daily Press.)

Douglas, Arizona, August 8.—Indignation has become general among the Fourth Regiment guardsmen stationed here as a result of compulsory orders to force men of all denomination to attend church service on Sundays. Catholics and Protestants alike have revolted and claim that it should be left optional with them whether or not they attend divine services.

Last Sunday Catholics were compelled to attend Protestant services. Many balked but were warned that refusal to obey orders would mean imprisonment, and in order to avoid this disgrace they yielded.

Prominent officers in camp here single out the Rev. J. Madison Hare, of Scotch Plains, as the chief mover in the attempt made to force Protestantism on Catholics, and a movement is already on foot to carry the matter to higher channels. He is chaplain of the Fourth Regiment.

It was said here today that Joseph Tumulty, of Jersey City, Secretary to President Woodrow Wilson, will be appealed to immediately, and the assistance of other prominent and influential members of the Catholic faith will be enlisted.

Protestants are equally as wrought up over the attempt at religious compulsion and maintain that this matter should be left optional with individuals. The incident has become camp gossip and men gather everywhere to express and exchange opinions.

ALLIGATOR GOES CRAZY WITH HEAT

Thinks He Is Home and Starts Out to Find Gulf Stream For a Swim.

Hot! Of course every one thinks so, but when an alligator takes Plainfield for the tropics its about time to seek refuge in the ice box.

Marching placidly along West Seventh street late yesterday afternoon, Patrolman George Muir was twirling his "billy" in midair when a wheezing sound issued from the bushes directly in front of him. "There's another poor bug that's got the heat," says George, but nevertheless he sidesteps into the middle of the road.

"Capt." Townley, of the fire department, was taking a spin along Seventh street just as Muir skidded into the roadway, and putting on his brakes the captain got out to help the officer. Together the two advanced in open formation toward the bushes, George with his trusty "billy" and Townley with an automobile wrench, with a crowd of morbid and scared bystanders bringing up the rear.

"Begorry, and it's a crocodile," whispered George as they came upon a four-foot scarly creature scuttling through the grass. On the instant Muir's creative brain hit on a moneyed scheme and he held a consultation with his chief lieutenant.

"We'll take it to the Airdome," says Bill, "and charge ten cents admission. These shark fakes ain't going to put anything over on us."

Somehow they got the animal in Townleys' machine and took it to a safe place of keeping for the night.

This morning the gardener at the Richard H. Hood estate on Stelle avenue reached the police station breathlessly and recounted to gaping hearers that an alligator from the Japanese pond on the estate had made its escape, and with the visions of becoming a show magnate gone, Muir had to tell the whole story.

FIRE IN DUNELLEN.

The Dunellen fire department responded to a call sent in from the old Henry Dunham place on Prospect avenue, that borough, this afternoon, but before the apparatus reached the scene, the conflagration was put out with several pails of water. The house is occupied by the O'Keefe family, and the fire was discovered in a closet in the attic. Spontaneous combustion was given as the cause of the blaze. The damage was slight.

GIVEN BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Miss Helen Thompson, of 15 Summit avenue, the borough, was the guest of honor at a party given last night in her honor. The affair was given in observance of her seventeenth natal day anniversary and was attended by a score of the young woman's friends. Music and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour and refreshments were served in conclusion.

IGNORANCE OF HEALTH RULES

Many Communities Have Trouble Enforcing Quarantine Regulations.

WHAT IS REQUIRED

Plainfield, North Plainfield, Watchung, Fanwood and Dunellen All Have Different Ideas as to What Is Necessary Precaution.

The Boards of Health in Plainfield and surrounding towns have been much troubled during the paralysis scare of the past month by the ignorance of residents and outsiders of the quarantine precautions taken, and as a result they are contstantly breaking them. Without a single exception all of the places in this part of the county have adopted measures—some more stringent than others—but all intended to reduce the danger of paralysis to a minimum.

The city of Plainfield requires report to the Board of Health of all guests from out of town and of the return of Plainfield people. Visiting children and those who have been out of town are quarantined to their own premises for two weeks immediately on their arrival in Plainfield, the house being posted to that effect. Should visiting children desire to return to their homes before two weeks, notification to the Board will permit them to leave. Certificates are not required. Children under 16 are not permitted to attend public gatherings of any kind.

North Plainfield has practically the same rules in vogue. Children under 16 are not allowed to leave the town without the consent of the Board of Health, and those arriving from other places are examined.

North Plainfield township, including Watchung, has taken more active steps than the majority of places. Children under 16 are even forbidden to pass through the township and deputies are stationed along the various roads to enforce the rule. Residents are cautioned to keep their premises strictly clean or they will be arraigned in court.

In Fanwood borough and Fanwood township all incoming trains and trolleys are watched and upon the arrival of children from other places they are examined. If there are any suspicious symptoms the place is quarantined.

In Dunellen children are allowed their usual freedom unless there is a suspicion of infantile paralysis. New Market and South Plainfield observe practically the same precautions.

LIEUT. HIGGINS BACK AFTER PLATTSBURG TRIP

Lieutenant Morris Higgins, of the Plainfield Police Department, is back after a month spent at the United States training camp at Plattsburg. He is much improved physically by his work under Uncle Sam's officers and says the trip benefited him greatly.

RELIEF IN SIGHT FROM HEAT AND HUMIDITY

New York, Aug. 8.—Bulletin issued by the Weather Bureau this morning said that warm humid conditions are indicated for this afternoon, probably followed by decreased humidity and a slight decrease in temperature.

Middle West Is Cooler.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—With the mercury up to 78, the Weather Bureau announced that the Middle West will have a day's relief at least from the heat wave that has been prevalent in varying degrees of intensity for nearly six weeks. The break in temperaure was attributed to a switch in the wind to the north and local thunder showers in various sections.

LADIES' NEST OF OWLS INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

In the Knights of Pythias Hall on West Front street last evening the Plainfield Ladies' Nest of Owls installed officers, and, after the installation, held a social hour. Addresses were made by W. F. Morgan, who organized the Nest on March 17, 1913; Mrs. K. M. Hess, the retiring president, and the newly elected officers.

The officers who were installed at the meeting last night were: Mrs. Elizabeth McDonough, president; Mrs. Louise Braun, vice-president; Mrs. Anna Long, invocator; Mrs. M. Regan, financial secretary; Mrs. A. Fleming, treasurer; Mrs. Martha Hoffman, recording secretary; Mrs. R. Poole, picket, and Mrs. K. Bimble, warden.

BOLD THIEVES IN RAID ON WESTFIELD

Get Articles From Empty Houses and Leave In An Automobile.

The police of this city, Westfield and other surrounding towns are on the lookout today for two of about the slickest thieves that have graced these parts in some time. Invading Westfield early yesterday morning, two men in an automobile made a round of all the vacant houses, taking everything they could lay their hands on, and then starting for parts unknown. As soon as the thing was discovered a posse started after them in several automobiles, but were unable to locate them.

The two men, one being described as tall and thin and the other as short and stocky, made their entrance into Westfield driving a Ford runabout with a large box on the rear end. In some cases going to a neighboring house and asking for the key to one that was vacant and going into others with people standing watching them, the pair took the faucets and other water connections from eighteen different houses before they decided to leave.

It was not until an hour or so after their departure that it was discovered what the two had done, and they had gotten such a start by that time that they were fairly safe from capture. The police of all the surrounding towns were notified and are watching for a Ford automobile with a big box.

LOUIS DE PHILLIPO DIES AT HIS WORK

Italian Farmer of South Plainfield Drops In the Field.

Louis De Phillipo, aged 58 years, and one of South Plainfield's most progressive truck farmers, dropped dead while at work on his farm at 6:30 o'clock last night. Dr. Pittis of Plainfield, was called, and he said that death was due to acute indigestion. He was found dead by his son Annuncio, who was also at work on the farm.

De Phillipo was born in Italy and came to this country over nineteen years ago. He settled in New York, where he conducted a thriving coal and lumber business for many years. Later he decided to live a country life and six years ago he purchased the Saverd farm at this place. Since this time he has been a very progressive farmer as he ran truck wagons to Plainfield, New Brunswick, Perth Amboy, Elizabeth and Newark.

He is survived by his wife, one daughter and seven sons. Fanny is the only daughter. The sons are Angelo, Peter, Annuncio and Columbus, of this place; Robert, of New York; Joseph, of Metuchen, and Frank, who is a sailor on the battleship Arkansas.

WILLIAM GOUGH LEAVES ESTATE OF $35,000

Gough, of Franklin place, this city, and member of the New York firm of Carton, Gough & Co., jewelers, applied in the Surrogate's Court, that State, for letters of administration on the estate of his brother, Richard Gough, who died in the New York Athletic Club on Friday last. The deceased left personal property worth $35,000. Beside William T. Gough, a sister survives, Miss Annie Gough, also of this city.

Mr. Gough was a rice importer. He was in his fifty-ninth year at the time of his death. The funeral took place in this city Sunday afternoon and interment was in Hillside cemetery.

E. R. HONEYMAN HONORED.

At the annual convention of the Supreme Court of the Orient, Jr. O. U. A. M., held in Asbury Park on Saturday, E. R. Honeyman, of this city, was elected grand treasurer. Other officers elected were: Joseph W. Wyks, of Hackensack, formerly supreme scribe, was elected to the supreme grand orient's chair, and H. C. Hooley, of Elizabeth, was elected vice-grand orient. E. N. Forbes, of Newark, was elected high priest, H. W. Greens, of Dumont, grand herald, and W. J. Smith, of Orange, grand scribe.

AGENT STRICKEN ILL.

Walter Hoffman, ticket agent at the Grant Avenue Central Railroad depot, was stricken suddenly ill while on duty yesterday morning and was removed to Gallaway's drug store nearby. Pending the arrival of Dr. P. B. Cregar first aid remedies were administered and he was removed to his home in the ambulance. This morning it was stated that Mr. Hoffman was suffering from an attack of acute indigestion, aggravated by the heat. His condition is not serious.

GERMANS RETAKE FT. THIAUMONT

French Admit Loss of Fortified Works Before Verdun.

OTHER ATTACKS LOST

Assaults Against Other Newly Won French Positions Break Down—Swedish Steamer Is Sunk By Submarine.

Paris, Aug. 9.—German forces, after terrific fighting, have succeeded in penetrating the French position at Thiaumont work on the Verdun front, it was admitted in a statement issued by the War Office today. Other attacks on the Fleury-Thiaumont line were checked by the French north of Somme. The French have made further progress north of Hardecourt, in the region of Hill No. 139, the French advance capturing forty prisoners. In the sector of Monacu farm, south of Hardecourt, the Germans made assaults last night against the newly won French positions, but the attacks broke down under the French fire.

Swedish Steamer Sunk.

London, Aug. 8.—A Lloyd's dispatch from Stockholm today reports the sinking of the Swedish steamship Vera, 2,308 tons, by a mine or submarine.

Italians Continue Successful.

London, Aug. 8.—The Italian offensive continues successfully. According to the official announcement, King Victor Emmanuel's forces have captured important Austrian positions, dominating communications in the Gader Valley in the Tofana region. Preparation is under way for further operations in this direction. Austrian counter-attacks on the declivities of Monte Zebio on the Sette Communi Plateau were broken up by the Italian artillery.

On the Lower Isonzo virtually the whole of Hill 85 passed into the possession of the Italians and was held against strong counter-attacks.

In the day's fighting the Italians captured 3,600 prisoners, including 100 officers, a battery of three guns, several dozens of machine guns, many rifles and much ammunition.

Italian Vessel Sunk.

Rome, Aug. 8.—Dispatches from Genoa state that the steamship San Guglielmo, from New York, has landed nineteen survivors of the steamship Siena, sunk on the way to Brazil.

The Siena was sunk without warning, according to one of her officers, and it is believed that thirty-six women and children have been lost.

The Siena was a vessel of 4,372 tons.

ONLY TWO CASES HAVE OCCURRED IN THE BOROUGH

At a meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Health last night, considerable discussion relative to infantile paralysis took place. The members of the Board made their stand on the question plain and strongly recommended that the parents of children living in the borough keep their youngsters at home, not allowing them to congregate in numbers on the street or to attend public functions or entertainments.

The inspector's report for the month shows that there was one death in the borough and, up to the present time, but one case of infantile paralysis. This case was that of little Edmund Scheelen, of Manning avenue, who died of the dread disease. Precautions, in keeping with those being taken by the health authorities of surrounding communities, have been adopted by the North Plainfield Health Board.

LIEUTENANT FATALLY INJURED IN ACCIDENT

(By Telegraph to Daily Press)

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 8.—Lieutenant James Connell, of the Fourth New Jersey Regiment, died today in Calumet Hospital here as the result of injuries sustained last night when he and Lieutenant Harry Wright, of the same regiment, were swept off a trolley car by a passing automobile. Wright was also injured but will recover.

Connell, who ranked second among the lieutenants of the New Jersey National Guard in point of service, received a broken leg and internal injuries. He was battalion adjutant of the Fourth Infantry.

DUNELLEN GETS A REPORT ON SEWERS

Taxpayers Petition For Improvement On Washington Avenue.

According to figures furnished by sewerage engineer at last evening's regular monthly session of the Mayor and Common Council, of Dunellen, the total of funds available on August 1st for the completion of the collecting system was $22,860.34. The estimated cost of the work yet to be done on August 1st was $13,480, leaving available funds after the completion of the sewers of $9,440.34. To this figure, however, the Mayor explained that $3,000 of improvement certificates which can be issued if necessary and $275, which will come of the New Jersey Central's bill for tunneling under its Grove street crossing, must be added, after which the cost of relaying pipe along Grove street and rebuilding of several faulty manholes, for which the sewerage engineer has ruled the contractor is not responsible, must come off.

That taxpayers and citizens residing on Waashington avenue, south, are incensed at the unimproved condition which the governing body has permitted that thoroughfare to remain in was set forth by a petition which was presented at the meeting. This petition read in part as follows:

"We the undersigned taxpayers and citizens residing on Washington avenue (south) call the attention of your Honorable body to a certain deplorable condition in the borough today. The assessed valuation of improved property on Washington avenue, between the railroad and Walnut street, is $30,000, while on Prospect avenue it is less than $30,000. Prospect avenue is macadamized and kept up in good repair and seems to receive every necessary attention, while Washington avenue, paying more taxes, receives no attention at all. Weeds and grass are growing in the midle of the road for the reason that traffic is compelled because of the sandy road and the sanitary trenches to go in the ditch."

Following the reading of this petition, J. Alfred Wilson, one of its signers, took the floor and made a strong speech. He termed Washington avenue as important a thoroughfare as North avenue. He said that he and other taxpayers were amazed that no provision had been made in the budget this year for the improvement of the street. He said it was rumored that one of the councilmen had said that nothing would ever be done in Washington avenue because it was a "hoodoo" street. He said that this would be looked into. In giving an example of the eagerness of the residents along that thoroughfare to have it put in first-class condition, Mr. Wilson said that John J. Givens had offered to furnish the machinery and the labor for paving the street with concrete free ofcharge if the borough would pay the cost of the material.

In answering Mr. Wilson, Mayor Latham said that Kashington avenue had sprung up over night, as it were and that in view of the present huge improvement undertakings of the town the Council had not felt free to consider the improvement of that street. As for the alleged improvement expenditures on Prospect avenue, the Mayor said that no such money had been spent in the past three years.

John J. Givens, like Mr. Wilson, also spoke in favor of the improvement. He certified the offer that he had made toward the improvement of that street, but explained that this offer would only hold until the end of the present year. While on the floor Mr. Givens gave some figures as to the estimated cost of the work.

With the object of throwing much needed light on a certain bridge on Washington avenue, and making travel less difficult south of Walnut street, a petition was addressed to the Council for the placing of an electric light there. This was referred to the lighting committee with power to act.

The Defender Fire Company was authorized to furnish needed hose for its Rex extinguisher and other necessary supplies.

An application of the Public Service Gas Company to lay its low pressure main along the north side of North avenue instead of on the south side, where it now is, necessitating the digging up of that side of the thoroughfare and the postponement of paving it with tarvia, was emphatically rejected by the Council.

A complaint registered by one who lives near the Chestnut street railroad crossing against the railroad crossing bell which, it is alleged, keeps people awake, was referred to the Board of Health.

The commissioners of assessment on the Front street drain filed their report last evening, which was accepted. The cost of the work was $.135.67. The benefited ones connecting with the sewer have been assessed about 95 cents a foot. The only remonstrance was from Lewis Schneider, who objected to the cost and gave several samples of how money was wasted.

Richard M. Ryan, W. S. Frederick and W. A. Houghteling were appointed a committee by the Mayor to raise money to aid each of the families of the local troopers at present on duty at Fort Douglas, Arizona, as may need assistance.

BOYS ON THE BORDER AND TO THEMSELVES, HONOR TO COUNTRY SAYS THE PRESIDENT

Tells a Mother That They Are There to Protect the Country and Expresses Sympathy That Conditions Have Made This Necessary.

Some Side Lights on Camp Life—How the Texans Make Trades Involving Immense Fortunes—The Kansas Men Limited to One "Cuss."

OUR boys on the border, many of whom are now anxious to return to their homes and occupations, are there to protect the country and in doing so are honoring their country and themselves, according to President Wilson. Mrs. Henry Smith of Winamac, Ind., wrote to the president protesting against the retention of her son on border duty and received this reply:

"Your letter of July 28 distresses me a good deal because it shows that you have not been correctly informed as to the purpose of having the national guard at the border. It is not for the purpose of drill, but for the purpose of protecting the country.

"The service the men are performing there is an honor to them and a necessity to the United States. I cannot believe that the men in the national guard would wish to be excused from it or would lose heart because of the discomforts and inconveniences of the service.

"The war department has the camps on the border under the most careful inspection, and is using every means known to make them sanitary and safe against disease. The health record of the men on the border, both the regulars and the national guardsmen, is exceptionally good.

"I would not have you think that I do not sympathize with your distress in the absence of your son, but I beg that you will take these larger matters into consideration."

Have 1,200 Pairs of Pajamas.

Consider the joy of a cavalry regiment which owns 1,200 pairs of pajamas and a colonel who sees bright red if anybody high or low tries to tamper with the health of his riding men. Pajamas and colonel are seized of and possessed by the First cavalry of Illinois, now encamped in 100 degrees of heat upon the sun baked adobe mud two miles west of Brownsville.

The pajamas are interesting, not only because they are the only regimental pajamas in the national guard contingent of the army so far as anybody knows, but because in this heat and in these conditions so trying to green troops they make for comfort and cheerfulness and health and are an equipment experiment which may be taken up by the army as a whole.

The colonel—his name is Milton Forman, and he practices law in Chicago when he is at home—is even more interesting than the pajamas. He declined to permit the war department to expose his healthy troops to peril of pneumonia, and when the war department ordered his men into ordinary day coaches he refused to take them. He paid for three trains of standard Pullman cars out of his own pocket—that is, he made himself responsible to the Pullman company for these sleepers.

Should Be Good Sports.

"To an observer the distinction between those things which offer a fair basis for complaint and those which do not is too frequently lost from view," says Earl J. Hadley, correspondent of the New York Evening Sun. "Many of the things to which objection has been made for the guardsmen by others are believed not to warrant the to-do made about them. As soldiers, or in civil terms as 'good sports,' they should have taken many annoyances as part of the game. All of them came down with enthusiasm enough to fight, but many with too little taste for the grind which would equip them to fight. They resemble athletes ambitious to break the tape in a quarter-mile dash without any preliminary training."

Want to Go Home.

Lieutenant Colonel J. Mayhew Wainwright, investigating the camps at McAllen for Governor Whitman, looked on a camp of the Twelfth of New York and said: "Well, men, I've come down here straight from the governor to see how you are fixed, what you need and whether there is anything that you do not have. Now, what do you want most?"

A number who had gathered around him promptly roared in reply, "We want to go home!"

Long Sleep For Soldier.

Private George Regans of Carthage, Mo., who went to Laredo, Tex., with the national guardsmen from that state, was asleep for four days except for slight intervals.

Physicians say his condition is caused by nervousness, due to worry over failure to receive a letter from his home.

One "Cuss" Word the Limit.

Edited and suitably deleted, a pronouncianento issued by Battery A of the Kansas national guard sets forth that the troubles of machine gun companies are trivial as gossamers compared to the pestiferous annoyances that assail artillerymen and, further, that there are as much restraint and moderation of speech per capita among the members of the battery as among the members of the machine gun company of the Second Kansas, if not more. With which preamble and the proper number of therefores and whereases the battery announces that it subscribes to the anti-swearing movement announced a few days ago by the machine gun company aforementioned.

And as an earnest of its sincerity the battery announces that a fine of 25 cents will be imposed upon any man or officer who hereafter shall use an expletive of more than one word at mess.

"That," said First Sergeant Frank Wilson of the battery, "is a mighty good start, don't you think? One mustn't be too abrupt. It's moderation in speech we're aiming at, and a good way to go about it is to apply the principle of moderation to the end in view, even though it won't swell the battery fund to such proportions as the machine gun company's."

The New Mexican War Song.

Here is the new Mexican war song, written in New York and introduced by the metropolitan militia, that has become immensely popular on the border:

[Tune, "Tipperary."]

It's a long way to Carranza;
It's a long way to go;
It's a long way across the border,
Where the bloomin' greasers grow.
Farewell, dear old Broadway!
Hello, Mexico!
It's a long way to get Carranza,
But that's where we'll go.

Sun as an Antiseptic.

And that sun!

"It's the greatest antiseptic, the most potent purifier, in the world," Major H. T. Salisbury, senior medical officer of the Kansas brigade, said as he was making his inspection rounds. "Notice how we take advantage of it."

He pointed to the big Sibley tents in which the men live. Row by row the canvases were being loosened and wrapped around the center poles, while the sun beat down on the cots, the bedding, the clothing and every article within the tent circles.

"Not all the antiseptic in the world nor all the artificial cleansing agents that ever were made could keep a camp so hygienic."

It was the sun, of course, and the dry, well drained ground—in part. But mostly it is eternal vigilance in applying the lessons of the past, added to fresh air and outdoor exercise, that has transformed hundreds of Kansas young men from white cheeked, pallid boys to ruddy, tough fibered, resilient beings full of the joy of life. Homesick? Of course. They're regular men. But they don't have much time to devote to it.

The Missing Sentries.

Two sentries of Georgia regiments slopped through the rain and slush side by side along the ditch that formed the boundary line between their camps. For hours they paced the muddy path, hat brims lowered against the driving gusts of rain. That night was black, and the only sounds the sweep of rain lashed by a high gale.

Forward they trod, side by side, but silent, separated only by the ditch, now a channel of rushing water. Midnight came and they were still wordless. Sentry No. 1 was from one regiment, sentry No. 2 from another. They might have been aliens. Their only bonds of kinship were the soaked khaki and dripping guns.

Suddenly sentry No. 1 slipped on the edge of the ditch. The soft soil crumbled, and he fell into the water. No. 2 reached to assist him. He, too, fell into the ditch. For a moment they made no effort to extricate themselves; just remained in the water, laconically pondering over their double plight.

Said sentry No. 1:

"It's rotten, ain't it?"

Answered No. 2:

"I'm ready to quit."

"So'm I. My girl needs me, anyhow."

"Mine's sick."

"Let's go."

"You're on."

The guard relief two hours later found only two abandoned rifles to relieve. They had, with due respect, been crossed in the patch over which their former possessors had paced through the stormy watches of the night. Somewhere in the distance a freight train blew for a grade crossing. Georgia men haven't yet been sent to the border.

Tells of First Nights.

"Battery A will not soon forget its first night in camp," writes a member of the Indiana national guard artillery battalion from Mercedes, Tex. "All the rain that had been missing since the 3d of January fell on the night the troops arrived. It was the dark of the moon, and even if there had been bright sun it could not have broken through those rain clouds. It was the Irvington squad's night on guard duty. Guns had been furnished for the guard, and instructions were to shoot if signs or sounds of an enemy developed.

"The fear was that the Mexicans would drive off the battery horses. Twenty-seven of these were tethered to one rope. The guard's instruction was to count the horses on every round. The night was so dark that the horses could not be seen, so the guard had to feel for the horses' heads and literally count noses. At 3 o'clock one nose was missing.

"'Corporal of the guard! All's well, and one horse's nose missing!'

"Neither the corporal of the guard nor the stable boss had eyes that would penetrate that darkness. So after feeling around in the chaparral a few yards the search was abandoned till daylight and at 8 o'clock the horse was found with one eye cocked steadily on the far away Rio Grande and Mexico."

Perfumed Soap Scorned.

Plain, everyday soap that will remove the dirt and can be used for laundry work instead of the perfumed, fancy article is wanted by members of the Eighteenth infantry, Pennsylvania national guard.

A request went from Captain Allan L. Garwood of Company A to the North Boroughs league, composed of prominent Pittsburgh women who have been furnishing the soldiers with luxuries, including scented soaps, since they left Mount Gretna for Texas.

Captain Garwood stated that every man in the ranks was grateful for the fancy articles, but old fashioned soap that would remove the dirt was more desired and would be even more welcome than the perfumed kind.

These Men No Pikers.

El Paso never fails as a source of interest to the encamped Pennsylvanians. One of the sergeants of the First regiment, Collins by name, had been an attentive listener to a conversation in the lobby of the Hotel Sheldon. The soldier returned to camp with his eyes popping in amazement.

"Yes, sir," wound up Collins, his tones laden with admiring wonder, "they made the trade for $652,000 right while I was standing there."

This was the climax to his tale that two cattlemen, leisurely standing in the hotel lobby, had put through that fabulous deal in cattle with no more formality than when our soldiers would borrow a chew of tobacco. The story naturally gave birth to skepticism. One man sneeringly reflected the temper of the entire circle when he said:

"They saw you coming and framed up that story to 'lid' you for a tenderfoot. That $652,000 was all in their minds. If they lost they would be penniless."

Collins insisted that he was right. The others persisted that it was a plan on the part of some townspeople to fool the easterner. One man went so far as to assert that Collins was dreaming the yarn and that he had taken a few too many.

Like all soldiers, sporting blood is rampant among the citizenry from Pennsylvania. From assertion and denial the little knot passed to the betting ground, and the writer, an interested on looker, was selected to hold the stakes.

He was also given plenipotentiary powers to investigate the story and bring back a report. On the writer's investigation hinged the payment of the wager. Here is what he learned:

A little more than two weeks ago H. L. Cisenaga, who owns three-quarters of Parral, Mexico, was posted at the Sheldon. He had arrived there in answer to a summons from H. L. Robinson and Augustus Moore, ranchmen, of Amarillo, Tex., in the heart of the luxurious Panhandle.

When the trio gathered in the lobby that following day the talk fell on cattle, and the Texans purchased some 58,200 head from the Mexican. The deal involved the sum that Collins named, and he won the bet.

The writer, staggered by the sangfroid of such hotel lobby finance, asked Robinson if such transactions were novel and far apart or whether or not the visiting cattlemen carried their offices in their wide spreading sombreros.

In the soft dialect of the southwest he said: "Yo' all don't need a suit of offices to do business. We knew Cisenaga, and he knew us, and we could do business here just as readily as if we had a squad of lawyers around. Yo' all know we Texans don't have any hankering for lawyers anyway."

The Health Rules.

The following is a copy in part of the health rules in all camps:

The surgeon of the regiment is its sanitary officer. He will inspect the entire regimental area at least once daily subsequent to 9 a. m.

Proper neatness and police of the camp site at all times is required.

The throwing on the ground of trash, remnants of food or other refuse is prohibited. Dirty water will be disposed of only in the places and manner provided for the same.

Flies are great nuisances in camp and spread disease. Every effort will be made to keep down their numbers and prevent their development.

Tentage and company streets will be ditched so as effectively to carry off all storm water. The vicinity of bathhouses will be so ditched and drained as to permit of no accumulation of bath water.

Bedding and equipment will be exposed to the sun and wind for at least two hours each fine day. All tentage will be struck or furled for this purpose at least twice a week.

The water supply for this camp is good and wholesome for drinking purposes without purification.

Every member of this command will bathe at least twice weekly.

Army regulations require that each man shall wash his hands before each meal.

All fresh meat, bread and vegetables will be inspected by a medical officer as to quality when issued.

Food will be prepared and served in a cleanly manner. It will habitually be protected against sun, dust and flies. Company cooks and mess equipment and kitchen areas will be neat and clean at all times.

Individual mess kits will be cleaned at the cook tent immediately after use. Cooks will maintain a supply of hot water for this purpose.

The keeping in the tents of uneaten portions of ration is strictly prohibited.

HOPKINS, PROGRESSIVE HEAD, SUPPORTS WILSON

Chairman J. A. H. Hopkins, of the New Jersey Progressive State Committee, will aid in the Wilson campaign, he said yesterday in Newark.

"It is the patriotic duty of every Progressive," said Mr. Hopkins, "in those States wherein the betrayal of our party has prevented us from having a national ticket of our own, personally to support and work for Mr. Wilson's election. The return to power of the Republican party, as at present constituted, would be a national calamity."

Mr. Hopkins said he was opposed to an official indorsement of Wilson by the Progressive organization, as reconstruction of the Progressive Party in New Jersey would be his aim. The State campaign of the Progressives, he explained, would be conducted in accord with the decision already reached by the State committee to nominate candidates where possible, otherwise to support those who more nearly represent Progressive principles.

"If, under these circumstances," Mr. Hopkins continued, "I can be of any assistance in connection with Mr. Wilson's candidacy, my services will be placed at his disposal."

FRELINGHUYSEN SURE OF SUPPORT OF GOLFERS

Former State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen is sure of the support of most of the golfers of the State in his campaign for the G. O. P. nomination for United States Senator. Frelinghuysen himself is a good player and a thorough sportsman, and his golfing acquaintances, those whose measure he has taken and those who have taken his, are strong for him.

On many of the golf courses the players are wearing a conspicuous emblem on their coats; it is a button bearing the likeness of the former State Senator, and on each side is a miniature bow of the national colors.

As one of the Frelinghuysen men has put it, speaking in the vernacular of the links, "Joe," as he is familiarly called, is "driving" his campaign in a straight line, and is "putting" it all over his opponents.

TROCKMORTON LOSES TO JAPANESE STAR

Hachishiro Mikami Turns Tables On Interscholastic Champion.

The Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club threw open its court yesterday afternoon for the annual invitation tennis tournament, one of the most important fixtures of the year, and although only one of the leading players was defeated, several others traveled uncertain paths, which several times led them near to the brink of disaster. Harold A. Throckmorton was the most prominent of those put out in the first round, Hashishiro Migami, of Japan, causing his downfall in a three-set encounter at 2—6, 6—3, 6—3.

However, fully as important as this was the fact that Karl H. Behr, who played such sterling tennis against Willie E. Davis in the East vs. West series, had a real battle to gain a victory over Harry S. Parker at 4—6, 6—1, 6—4, and Nathaniel W. Niles, a star among the Eastern team victors at Forest Hills, was forced to a three-set encounter by Francis T. Hunter, the former Cornell captain. Hunter took the first set from the Bostonian at 4—6, but Niles by increase in pace was able to capture the following two sets at 6—4, 6—2.

EXPLOSION SUCH AS ROCKED NEW YORK NOT A SURPRISE TO THE AUTHORITIES

Realize Danger From Immense Shipments of Ammunition, Powder and Dynamite That Daily Leave the Port.

Some Queer Results of the Shock—Eyewitnesses Tell How It Feels to See Carloads of Explosives Go Off.

EVERYBODY has been more or less expecting just such an explosion as that which rocked five states when ammunition ready for shipment abroad exploded on Black Tom peninsula in New York harbor.

For the past year an average of five vessels a day, of an average cargo capacity of 3,000 tons, have loaded war munitions in New York harbor. This means approximately 5,775,000 tons of munitions have been handled in the harbor in that time.

During the first year of the war the number of vessels was considerably less, as the output of munitions was not nearly as large.

In the harbor or at anchor along the Manhattan, Brooklyn and New Jersey shores there are now about thirty steamships ready to be loaded.

There are a few ammunition ships loaded in Philadelphia, but the great majority go to New York. This is shown in the fact that before the war the exports from New York were 38 per cent of the total for the entire country. They are now about 75 per cent.

It is not against the law to transport explosives in limited quantities about the harbor. The only federal law in the matter is one prohibiting the carrying of explosives on passenger vessels.

Anchorage Grounds Designated.

Anchorage grounds for vessels loaded with explosives are named at designated places. One is off the statue of Liberty. Since the war started vessels have been permitted to load explosives in Gravesend bay. Passenger vessels such as the White Star liners Adriatic and Baltic have carried great quantities of empty shells, which it is permissible to load at piers. Vessels not carrying passengers have been permitted to take on at piers loaded shells, but only those that have no fuses in them. These are classed as "dead" shells.

All explosives in bulk, such as powder and dynamite, have been loaded in Gravesend bay. This has been a requirement of the city authorities. They have stipulated the requirements in handling explosives and the federal authorities after the municipal departments have initiated a law have seen that it has been carried out.

Blown Into Water From Barge.

Peter Raceta, captain of the Moran lighter No. 8, told in the Jersey City hospital of his escape after he was blown from the deck of the lighter into New York bay. The only visible sign of his adventure was a severe burn on the back of his head.

"I was in the cabin when the fire started," he said. "I ran up to the deck, and then the explosion occurred. I saw the cabin door blown off. I remember it flew down the length of the deck and into the water.

"When the explosion came, it seemed as if it was from above—zumpf!—like a Zeppelin bomb. There were five or six other lighters alongside mine at the dock, and a tug was just coming up to drag us away. It was close by when the crash came. I don't know what became of the tug or the other lighters. It looked as if they all went up in the air.

"There were two other men on the lighter with me. I didn't see where they went, but I think they must be dead. I didn't see them or anybody else. When the explosion struck me I felt myself going up in the air like this," and he lifted his hands slowly from the bed, "and then I found myself in the water a long way from the boat. I couldn't see very well for awhile, and the noises around confused me, but I just kept swimming around.

"Finally, I found myself landing on Liberty island. We were only a little way from it, you see. I stopped there a minute, and then I started back. I swam a long time. Finally, I guess somebody pulled me out at the dock, and then the doctor took care of me at the hospital. I kept calling to the tug for awhile, when I was in the water, but nobody heard me."

Damage at Immigration Station.

The main building at the immigration station at Ellis island on the right and the general hospital on the left of the ferry slip had every window shattered, and in many cases the frames also had disappeared. The terra cotta roof of the hospital had caved in with the violence of the concussion as if it had been done by a "Jack Johnson," and the lawn and graveled walks in all directions were covered with broken glass, charred wood, cinders and all kinds of debris blown across from Black Tom island, a little more than a mile away.

The big iron bound door leading into the main building and the heavy stone portico had been blown in as if with a charge of dynamite. The casement of the two big hall windows over the entrance had been shattered, and the solid heavy castings, weighing fully 2,000 pounds each, were shored up with beams to prevent their collapse, while a notice below warned visitors to use other doors.

The dining room was wrecked, and the windows of the executive offices were all smashed, and in the board room, where hundreds of immigrants have been ordered deported, the heavy window frame fell with a quantity of masonry right across the table that is used by the officials when a special board of inquiry is in session.

For more than three hours shrapnel fell on the buildings on the island, interspersed with three inch shells, which dropped from the skies with tedious frequency in unexpected places.

In addition to the total of 482 immigrants in the different buildings there were 125 employees on duty during the night. Two of the nurses and two of the men received slight cuts on the face by falling glass, and two of the patients were cut on the face and hands, but no one on Ellis island was seriously injured.

The only living thing that was hit by the thousands of shrapnel bullets which struck the different buildings was Toto, a little black kitten, known all over the island as Chief Clerk Sherman's office pet. After the excitement was over Toto was found with a bullet wound in one of his hind legs, and a surgeon dressed the injured member, much to the relief of the animal.

Immigrants Taken to Battery.

When it looked as if the buildings might catch fire the 353 immigrants in the main building were ordered to dress and go on board the ferryboat Ellis Island, which conveyed them to the Battery. The boat was made fast there for two hours and then brought the people back to the immigration bureau. Four policemen were posted on the dock to see that none of the immigrants attempted to land.

The ninety patients in the general hospital, including the insane cases, were taken out of the building to the lawn at the end of the island facing the Battery and the ninety-two women and children patients from the contagious diseases hospital were also brought out and placed on the other side of the pier.

Night Superintendent Leonard, who was in the main building when the explosion was heard, saw the flames shoot up at Black Tom island and sounded the alarm to the hospitals on No. 2 and No. 3 islands. He also assisted the doctors in getting the immigrants onto the ferryboat Ellis Island. As they marched around to board the boat the shrapnel was falling on the roofs of the buildings like hail and shells were bursting in all directions, Mr. Leonard said.

Aliens Show Little Excitement.

After the first few moments of excitement had passed the 353 aliens, which included Austrians, Germans, Hungarians, Hebrews, Greeks, Italians, Syrians and other nationalities, behaved in an orderly manner. The only living thing on the wreck strewn shore of No. 3 island was a rabbit owned by one of the nurses in the hospital which had dashed out of the building after being smothered with molasses from a can upset by the effect of the explosion and refused to be comforted.

Wedding Guests Flee Hall.

John Pavelski and Mary Wolinski had just been married when the explosion occurred. They sat at the head of the bridal breakfast table in New York, beaming on several hundred guests. When the crash came the guests departed, preceded by several waiters, who dropped plates of soup and overturned several chairs. Undaunted by this perhaps [illegible] initial incident of married life, the Pavelskis remained at the head of the table.

Some one who reads the newspapers told an east side crowd anxiously searching for the cause of the rocking tenements that warships were fighting off Sandy Hook to capture the submarine Bremen. Thousands hearing this report camped near the Williamsburg bridge and in several parks frightened partisans keeping them there in suspense until morning.

The Italian populace of Greenwich Village decided enemy ships were bombarding New York. Several women fainted. Policemen were besieged for information. When the second shock came the crowd, terror maddened, ran north through the crooked alleys falling over children, husbands losing wives, and all of them convinced war's horrors were at last approaching. It was several hours before many of them returned.

A typewriter was thrown from the interior of an office to the sidewalk of a west side street. It was found unharmed and upright, its ribbon in position.

An unnamed cat found two baby kittens, just after the first blast, snuggling to her in a tent in front of the Lackawanna pier, North river. Policemen found shattered glass in front, but inside the same tent 400 crates of eggs unbroken.

The employer of Willie Barry, who has been an office boy three weeks and forgot to put down any of the windows, found that every other window in the neighborhood had been broken.

A man who left his home on Bleecker street in haste and two carpet slippers, came back limpingly ten minutes later to retrieve one of the slippers he had lost. He did not find it.

Colgate, the Logical Choice

Thinking Republicans are fully alive to the importance of naming the strongest available candidate this year if the party would win back the Executive office from the Democrats who have held it for the past two terms. With the Democrats united as not before in years and with the certainty that the most popular man in the Democratic stronghold, Hudson county, will be chosen to lead the State fight in this campaign, it behooves Republicans to consider well their choice for Governor. It is conceded that the race for the nomination lies between Senator Austen Colgate, of Essex county, and Senator Walter E. Edge, of Atlantic. If judgment were to be subordinated to sectional sentiment and the obvious logic of the situation wholly disregarded, then Republican voters in South Jersey might listen to the sectional appeal of Senator Edge's friends to support a South Jerseyman. But more serious considerations control. It is more important to party interests and to public welfare that a Republican Governor be elected this year than that the party choose its nominee from Atlantic county. If the lesson taught by the political history of the State has been well learned the Republican party will select as its candidate a popular North Jerseyman, a man with proven strength with the voters of the most populous section of the State, a broad-minded business man of wide experience, whose candidacy will appeal to progressive as well as to conservative Republicans. Such a man is Senator Colgate. He is admittedly the most popular man in Essex county, and his strength in the Democratic Gibralter, Hudson, is only a little less formidable. His candidacy is daily gathering momentum in the other populous counties of North Jersey, where the absurd claims of strength put out by his chief rival have had little effect upon the electorate, and he is making steady inroads upon the Edge support in the southern tier of counties. One need not go far afield to discover the reason for this rapid drift of sentiment to the Colgate candidacy. New Jersey Republicans want a Republican Governor. They are not particular whether he hails from Atlantic or Essex county so long as he sizes up to the requirements and can command enough votes to be elected. The results of past gubernatorial campaigns, however, have proven that a candidate chosen from the southern section of the State invariably enters the contest at a disadvantage. Only once since 1871 has New Jersey taken its Governor from a county south of the Raritan. This was in 1904 when Edward C. Stokes, of Cumberland county, won. In the election of that year Theodore Roosevelt swept the State by a plurality of 80,598. Yet Stokes, the South Jersey nominee for Governor, admittedly popular as he was, ran many thousands of votes behind the national ticket, and defeated his opponent by approximately 28,000 votes less than the Roosevelt plurality. Three years ago former Governor Stokes was again the Republican nominee for the Executive office, with the exception of his earlier candidacy the first South Jerseyman to be named by either party within a generation. His opponent was a Hudson county Democrat, of only mediocre strength, yet Stokes was beaten by 32,850 votes. This is no disparagement of Mr. Stokes but only for the purpose of illustrating our point. It is the incontrovertible fact that any party which elects a candidate for Governor from the less populous counties of Southern New Jersey must be many points stronger than it would have to be to accomplish the same result were it to choose its nominee from the county of Essex or Hudson. Senator Edge has demonstrated that he possesses unbounded energy in seeking the latest office to which he aspires and in corraling a certain kind of support in North Jersey not always regarded as a desirable asset in these days of chastened politics, but he has afforded no evidence that he possesses that popularity necessary to overcome the advantage enjoyed by his North Jersey Democratic opponent, were he to be nominated. He would remain a South Jersey candidate despite the efforts of his supporters to fit him into the larger role. The Mirror will not go as far at this time as to say that Senator Edge could not defeat Otto Wittpenn for Governor but it does say that unbiased public judgment in the densely populated territory of Hudson and Essex and some adjacent counties, does not favor the view that Edge would have anything like an even chance at the November election. It is significant, too, that many Democrats whose party allegiance is above question, are quite enthusiastically in favor of Senator Edge as the man for the Republicans to nominate.

On the other hand, Senator Austen Colgate's candidacy carries an appeal to public sentiment which cannot be denied. He has won the great county of Essex by more than 15,000 plurality, and his admirers assert that, if nominated in September, he will fall little short of doubling those figures at the ensuing general election. In Hudson county where the Democratic nominee for Governor defeated his Republican opponent by 25,959 plurality three years ago, Senator Colgate is undeniably the strongest Republican who could be named. He is an extensive and considerate employer and his popularity among all classes cannot be gainsaid. His labor record ensures him the support of working men irrespective of party. As one experienced observer of political conditions in Hudson county remarked not long ago, "If Austen Colgate is nominated for Governor I am confident that he will keep the Democratic majority in Hudson down to ten thousand or even less. If Walter Edge should be nominated, the Democrats of Hudson will roll up a plurality for Wittpenn of thirty thousand or as much more as they think they might need." These figures are merely given as the view of one man but they will be found to coincide with the opinions of many others who know conditions in North Jersey better than does the average politician in South Jersey. They surely should be gravely considered by those over-optimistic South Jersey Republicans who believe that the party "could nominate a yellow dog for any office and elect him this year." There is one obvious thing to do if the Republican party of New Jersey desires to elect its candidate for Governor next Fall and that is to nominate Austen Colgate, successful and experienced man of affairs, friend of labor, efficient legislator, yet withal, by his own confession, not a politician.—From The New Jersey Mirror, of Mount Holly, Burlington County.

TO HEAD U. S. FERTILIZER ORGANIZATION

W. D. HUNTINGTON HORACE BOWKER

Horace Bowker and W. D. Huntington, who were elected president and vice president of the National Fertilizer Association at their convention at Hot Springs, Va., are not only among the youngest leaders in the fertilizer industry but are both men who have made enviable reputations as organizers and leaders in the industry.

Mr. Bowker has grown up in the fertilizer industry, being a son of the late W. H. Bowker, one of the pioneer chemical manufacturers of the country and the man who during the latter years of his life was known as the dean of the fertilizer industry. Mr. Bowker began work with the old Bowker Fertilizer Company at Elizabethport, N. J., in 1899. In 1903, he joined the forces of Baugh and Sons Company at Philadelphia. Eight years ago he became secretary of the American Agricultural Chemical Company, at New York, in which capacity he has made a wonderful reputation as an organizer.

He has long been a recognized leader in Association work, being for five years a member of the Soil Improvement Committee. His election as the youngest president of the Association is fitting recognition of his broad-minded foresight and leadership.

W. D. Huntington, the new vice-president, started in the fertilizer business in Cincinnati. He was with the International Agricultural Corporation and was located at Buffalo for 12 years. In September, 1915, he became vice president of the Davison Chemical Company at Baltimore. He is chairman of the Soil Improvement Committee and a member of the Executive Committee. The election of these far-sighted men presages a new era in the fertilizer industry and a broadening of its already extended lines of activity.

KENNEL CLUB MEETING AT QUEEN CITY HOTEL

Further Plans For September Show Discussed at Gathering.

Further arrangements for the coming show of the Plainfield Kennel Club, to be held at the Horse Show grounds on September 2, were made at the meeting of the Bench Show Committee held in the Queen City Hotel last evening. At this meeting Edmund L. Mackenzie, president of the club, presided. At the meeting it was decided to place tickets on sale at several local stores in order that Plainfield people may have first choice. According to the present plans this show is going to be the best yet held by the local club.

Word was received last evening that John E. McBowman, proprietor of the Hotel Biltmore, in New York city, had offered a silver trophy. It is expected that there will be about ten other silver trophies awarded by local fanciers. The complete list of judges will be published in the near future. Nine judges have accepted the invitation to officiate here and the names of several of them, together with the classes in which they will officiate, were made known a few days ago. The names of the other officials will be ready for publication shortly.

Entries will close on September 8 and the premium list will be made known about August 22. Copies of this list may be obtained from John J. O'Donohue, secretary of the club, who resides on Tompkins avenue, or from John Conway, of 920 West Seventh street, who is treasurer of the club. Wilber Purcell, of 29 Broadway, who is superintendent of the show, will receive entries, which may also be filed with the secretary.

"BLACK FAST" BEGINS.

New York, Aug. 8.—With 24 hours of fasting and prayer, orthodox Jews the world over are today engaged in a solemn observance of Elsha b'Ab, the ninth day of the Jewish month of Ab, known as the "Black Fast," in contradistinction to Yom Kippur, which is designated the "White Fast." This day of mourning commemorates three fateful days in the history of Israel—the destruction of the first and second temples in Jerusalem and, in later times, the expulsion of the Jews from Spain in 1492. The day is observed only by orthodox congregations, the Lamentations of Jeremiah being read in synagogues.

Prior to the opening of the convention, a solemn pontifical mass was celebrated. The sessions will continue until Friday and will be presided over by the Very Rev. P. J. WILD WAVES AT ATLANTIC CITY WILL BEAR MESSAGE TO POLITICIANS WHEN NATIONAL SUFFRAGISTS ASSEMBLE FOR EMERGENCY CONVENTION

Atlantic City will exert a magnetic influence over both the eyes and ears of political leaders of all parties on September 6th. Answering the emergency call issued by the National American Woman Suffrage Association, more than a thousand of the most representative women of the country will mobilize at the famous Jersey resort that day to determine the next steps that are to be made in the campaign for nation-wide suffrage.

Although Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and other leaders of the national suffrage forces are reticent concerning the action to be taken, it is conceded by both politicians and suffragists alike that whatever decision is made by the convention will have an important bearing upon the national situation.

Since both the Democratic and Republican parties endorsed woman suffrage in their national platforms last June, the women have been determined to press their newly-won advantages to final victory. It is to decide how, most expeditiously, this result may be accomplished that the Atlantic City convention has been called. According to Mrs. Catt, one of three definite plans of action will be decided upon. The national suffragists will either drop all work on the federal amendment and confine their activities to the States; drop all State work and concentrate their efforts on the federal amendment, or continue their present policy of supporting both State and federal campaigns.

The fact that three great Canadian provinces have granted full suffrage to their women within the year has increased the sentiment for woman suffrage in this country and stirred up even the most apathetic States.

ROBINS RECALL MANY.

It was announced yesterday that the action of the Brooklyn club owners in purchasing the release of Infielder Kelleher from the Denver club last week will be followed shortly by the recall of at least eight players now farmed out to various minor league organizations. Included in the list of those who will be recalled are four fielders, a catcher, and three pitchers. These, with Kelleher, will bring the club's total of players up to thirty-one. It is probable that three of the players will report to the club before the close of the present season.

The new additions to the Brooklyn club are: Hickman, an outfielder, with the Asheville club, who has a batting average of .315 and a fielding average of .966; Nixon, an outfielder, with Beaumont, who has a batting average of .319 and a fielding average of .979; Smyth, an infielder, with Montreal, who has a batting average of .349 and a fielding average of .957; Wheat, a catcher, with Harrisburg, who has a batting average of .245 and a fielding average of .966; Zimmerman, an outfielder, with Hartford, who has a batting average of .228 and a fielding mark of .950, and Cadore, Colwell, and Goodbred, all pitchers, with Montreal.

McGRAW TO RETIRE?

There have been rumors of late that John J. McGraw would retire as manager of the Giants when his contract expires after next season. The Giants' leader said yesterday that he had no definite plan of quitting at that time, although he did admit that several times it had occurred to him that he had been in the baseball business long enough and would like to retire.

"I've been in a baseball uniform for twenty-six years," said McGraw yesterday, "and that is a long time. The best part of my life has been given up to the game, and sometimes I get the notion that I would like to give it up. Much can happen between now and the end of next season, however, so really I have come to no definite decision about it."

SHAWNEE OPEN EVENT.

The professional golfers teed up along the Delaware River this morning in the annual Shawnee open tournament. Long Jim Barnes, the leading money winner of the year, will endeavor to increase his profits at the expense of Walter Hagen, metropolitan open champion; Mike Brady, Massachusetts open champion; Gil Nicholls, Pat Doyle, MacDonald Smith and a host of other golfers.

The Shawnee open tournament is one of the well-known fixtures of the professional golf season, and it was at this tournament that the famous McDermott incident took place during the visit of Vardon and Ray to this country in 1913 and which finally drove the American open champion into obscurity.

TO CURB BAITING.

President John K. Tener has called a meeting of the National League in New York tomorrow, at which the umpire situation is to be discussed. Many of the club owners and also managers have openly criticized the indicator-holders this season and the league intends to put a stop to the practice.

It is significant that last year the Phillies won the pennant and had less trouble with the umpires than any of the other clubs. The Brooklyn team, which is leading the league this year, has had little trouble with the umpires. The meeting will be held at the league's offices.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Miss Dorcas Dean, a Chicago society girl, daughter of Richmond Dean, Pullman Company official, has entered the Convent of the Visitation Order, of St. Louis, Mo., to become a nun. Miss Dean was educated at the convent, where she studied eight years.

Miss Edith Johnson, a Boston musician, was recently married in Honolulu to Tarao Kawasaki, whom she had met while he was one of the many Japanese students who came to her home town for study. Though a Japanese, Mr. Kawasaki is a Christian, and secretary of the Japanese Young Men's Christian Association in Honolulu.

Miss Lillian Jones has been appointed assistant cashier of the New York branch of the National Bank of Cuba, one of the foreign banking institutions doing the largest business in the United States. Miss Jones is the only woman to hold so high an office in an important bank in New York. She entered the employ of the bank as a stenographer six years ago.

Miss Anne Martin, of Nevada, who as chairman of the executive committee of the Woman's Party of the United States will conduct the campaign of that organization in the twelve suffrage States of the West this fall, is a native of Empire City, Nev., and now lives in Reno. She was prominent as an educator before turning exclusively to suffrage work a dozen years ago. She studied at the University of Nevada, at Leland Stanford and at Columbia, supplementing her studies in America by two years abroad, spent at the Universities of London and Leipsic. She also studied art in New York. For six years she was a professor and lecturer at the University of Nevada, on history and the history of art. She organized and conducted the campaign which ended in the victory of suffrage in Nevada in 1914, and was the first woman member, appointed in 1915, of the Nevada Educational Survey Commission.

Mrs. Daisy Gordon, of Philadelphia, who received only $100 in the wills of her parents, has been awarded her father's fortune of $90,000 by a fantastic trick of fate and of legal chance. Sixteen years ago Mrs Gordon married a poor workingman against the wishes of her father, Edward W. Perrine, a wealthy hotel proprietor, who at once cut off all communication with her and made a mutual will with his wife by which the property of each should go to the survivor after the death of the other. After paying a bare $100 to the absent daughter this survivor was to dispose of the money as he pleased. Mr. and Mrs. Perrine were both in the prime of life, in the early fifties, but Mrs. Perrine met with an accident and died, and her husband was so affected by the event that he died two hours later. Mrs. Gordon, now 30 years old, had not seen her parents since she was 16. Her life was a struggle for a bare living, striving to support ten children on the meagre salary her husband earned as a mechanic. As no other heir was mentioned in the Perrine will, the entire fortune of $90,000 was turned over to the unforgiven daughter.

The first conference of the National Woman's Party, organized last June in Chicago and composed of the women voters from the twelve suffrage States, will be held this week at Colorado Springs, August 10, 11 and 12. It will be the most important suffrage conference ever held, and fraught with possibilities for the Presidential nominees. Its action, according to Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the Women's Congressional Union, will depend on what the Democratic party will do for the women, or what Hughes will promise to do, or what the Progressive or Socialist parties will do. There are more than 4,000,000 women qualified to vote for President, and the Woman's Party, which boasts of being now the third party in point of size in the United States since the disruption of the Progressive ranks, is determined to stand by the friend of the Federal suffrage amendment or see to the undoing of its foe. The conference may develop the most startling political results. Some suffragist leaders favor swinging the power of the 4,000,000 women voters to the Prohibitionists if neither the Democrats nor the Republicans come out openly for women's suffrage, while others stand stoutly for the placing of Women's Party candidates in the field.

BOARDMAN OFFERS SERVICES IN MAINE CAMPAIGN

New York, Aug. 8.—Richard Boardman, candidate for the Republican nomination as Representative from the Fifth New Jersey Congressional District, called at the National Republican Headquarters today and offered his services in the Congressional campaign in Maine. The general elections, except for President, are held in Maine in September.

Kirkner, of 441 West Eighth street, this city, appearing before Motor Vehicle Commissioner Dill, in the City Hall at Newark, yesterday morning, admitted driving thirty miles on hour on the Franklin turnpike in the township of Hohokus July, 30, when traffic was heavy, but denied that he had driven at thirty-five miles, as testified by Inspector Ackerman. He paid a fine of $20.75.

BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION OF PLAINFIELD — RELIABILITY QUALITY SERVICE VALUE — MEMBER

The Review of Reviews, of Plainfield and Its Business

The "Loyal" Plainfielder takes pride in the city's progress.

"Where do you live?" is frequently asked of travelers, and those travelers take pride, if they're loyal, in naming the city or town from which they came.

Plainfield "is" progressive; she's reached a period of decided progressiveness, preparedness.

The government of our city is doing wonders, the marks of progressiveness of our Council stand out in bold relief. As a mark of efficiency, national attention is attracted here to our automobile manufacturing, machine shops and printing press works, and other great plants.

And they're not over-night promotions, either, these industries, but, they're substantial institutions that have been tried and found true, by many long years of successes, through good, bad and indifferent times, and again, results, Plainfield stands on the brink of a still greater prosperity, so prosperous that not a hint of its inefficiency in any direction can be pointed to by the most jealous rival of our city's progress.

Our city has been most fortunate in avoiding ever, serious labor troubles, serious business failures, serious calamities of any kind that have been noted so frequently in many directions throughout the land —well, all things to Plainfield, "Plainfield Right or Wrong," but, Plainfield's right.

Our Plainfield retail mercantile establishments, what of them? Barring a very few, they have been successful to an extent made possible by a combination of the conservative and the progressive; both must go hand in hand to bring about successful results, and so Plainfield can point with pride to her retail mercantile establishments.

May we especially point out the stores of the members of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield? Stores that have had uninterrupted growth for as long as the oldest inhabitant can remember. But, in all their growth, nothing has equaled that of the past year; and incidentally, nothing has equaled that of the present spring season.

PUBLISHERS UP AGAINST IT.

Possibly there is no manufacturing business in the United States so thoroughly unionized and operated by union men as the printing and publishing industry. It is seldom, however that there is any serious trouble between employers and employes.

It is the business of the publisher to keep well posted on the general condition of the country and cost of living. Printers and workmen in the printing and publishing offices are of an intelligent class and come into pretty close contact with their employers. The union demands of the printers and allied trades have not been out of proportion to the cost of living and general tendency to shorten the hours of labor. The publishers, by installing typestting machines, automatic casting machines, fast-running presses, etc., have been able to absorb the increased cost of labor, which is today just 100 per cent. more than it was twenty-six years ago, and those who could increase their circulation have been able to live. Few, however, have grown rich. Three out of every four publishers have failed, but the proportion of failures among publishers is no greater than in other lines.

The item of the greatest expense in the publishing business is the paper, which is made mostly from spruce pine. Now, as a result of combinations and the condition of the export trade, the publishers of the country are called upon to pay an advance of 50 per cent. in the price of their paper, over the past year. No other commodity in the United States or Canada has had a rise of more than 10 or 15 per cent., with the exception of war materials. The cost of producing paper has not advanced over five per cent. during the past two years.

How are the publishers going to absorb this increase of 50 per cent. in the cost of their print paper? The cost of paper is usually 40 per cent. of the total cost of operating a newspaper plant. Fifty per cent. of the 40 per cent. is equal to a gross increase, in the cost of the whole business, of 20 per cent. Heretofore few successful publishers have made more than 5, 6 or 7 per cent. on the capital used. A 20 per cent. increase in cost simply puts them out of business. Only the old, strong papers will be able to live through the next year.

A Congressional investigation is now on foot, but, like all these investigations, it will amount to nothing. There is no relief in sight until six months after the war closes, when foreign pulp and paper will supply the foreign market and the United States and Canada will again have a shortage in tonnage. In the meantime "deaths" in the publishing business will add to that shortage and it will be a mighty strong combination or "gentlemen's agreement" that will hold when it will be necessary for one-third of the mills in the United States and Canada to shut down and for the others to make a market price for paper lower than the price when the war began.

The present profit on the manufacture of paper will pay the full cost of building and equipping any mill in the United States during the next twelve months. In fact, we know of two paper manufacturers who have cleaned up in the last six months a profit greater than the amounts for which they were willing to sell their whole property at the start of the year.

The general tendency among daily newspaper publishers is to raise the price per copy or subscription rates. It is not likely that there will be any change in the subscription price of weeklies.

THE COURAGE OF SPRING LAKE.

Spring Lake residents are doubting the wisdom of a course of absolute frankness in regard to the few cases of infantile paralysis there within the past few days. They point out that other coast resorts hide similar cases under false diagnosis, and thus get a reputation for health that means visitors. The policy of publicity will win in the end. Sooner or later State authorities will learn of paralysis cases that have been covered up and one such scandal will put an end to the popularity that any of the coast towns have gained through deceiving the public. The class of people that summer at Spring Lake are intelligent enough to go more deeply into health conditions than ordinary news despatches, and we hardly believe the colony there would find pleasant companionship in a family credulous enough to be taken in by press agent "yarns" that come from some of the resorts.

After conductors, motormen and other street car workers had voted to accept the mediation proposal of Mayor Mitchel yesterday afternoon the New York Street Railway directors announced that the strike was not settled and that they would not agree to the compromise offered. They still hold out against their workmen having the right to organize, and if long weeks of inconvenience to patrons, disorder and violence follow the blame must be borne by the company. Working men everywhere are unionized, and it is generally conceded that this is not only a privilege but a duty toward themselves and those dependent upon them.

Warden Hughes, of the State prison at Trenton, has closed the doors of that institution to visitors because of the danger of infantile paralysis being carried to the prisoners. This is the one effective method of prevention, but most of us would rather take our chances of becoming afflicted.

GIVE CONTRACTORS $6,500 HELD BACK ON SEWER WORK

At a meeting of the joint Councils of Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen, held in the local Council chamber last night, it was voted to pay the contractors on sewer contract $6,500 of the money that has been held back to guarantee the carrying out of the specifications. This was done on recommendation of Councilman Hylan. President Blatz presided at the joint meeting, which was attended by all members of the local council excepting Mr. Edgar, and by Mayor Smalley and all members of the Borough Council, excepting Mr. Stahl and Mr. McGee. No representatives of Dunellen were present.

NO SKY LINE LIMIT BY CITY ORDINANCE

There will be no ordinance regulating the heighth of buildings in Plainfield at the present. At last night's meeting of the Common Council, Chairman Cose, of the Fire Committee, reported for filing the communication of the Chamber of Commerce on this subject. In the communication it as recommended that a sky line limit be fixed for future buildings. Chairman Cose reported that his committee considered it unnecessary to take action at this time.

Personal.

Marguerite—No, I don't think you can keep a husband on your salary and afford him all the luxuries he has been accustomed to. He might go home to his father.

Harriet—You ask me how to get rid of your old hat frame, fudge tins and condensed soup cans. My advice is to keep an ostrich.

Mabel W.—Of course you may encourage the advances of the young man in the dress suit you saw at the party, in a mild way, unless he was one of the waiters. If he was a waiter don't be contented with mild encouragement, but grab him, as he probably has more money than any of the guests.

He Is a Man of Parts.

Your writer not being his own boss cannot always do as planned, but if present arrangements do not miscarry he will be absent from the dearest spot on earth from July 17 to July 25 or 26. It is thought that the town can get along without him for the time mentioned, but to make assurance doubly sure he has arranged to have the little wife look after the affairs at home, Ed Glerum to take charge of affairs pertaining to the township clerk's office, while Frank Francisco will make all arrangements for the Odd Fellows' Hall.—LeRoy correspondence in Tustin (Mich.) NEW JERSEY SOLDIERS HAVE CONQUERED WORST BORDER ENEMY—THE HEAT

(By A. H. KROH.)

Douglas, Arizona, August 3.—Sultry, oppressive, coppery-red heat settled on the encampment of the New Jersey National Guardsmen here today and continued until the sun dropped low over the western range of hills. Throughout the day there was no relief by wind or rain and for the first time since the men got here there was a noticeable humidity.

Men, animals and vehicles moved nonchalantly through the desert dust, kicking up clouds of it as they went. The heat shimmers lay woven upon waves as one looked out toward the horizon in any direction. Dull haze hung over the mountain ranges all around and gave to the sun a coppery glare well in keeping with the red, sun-baked land over which it poured its pitiless rays. And through it all the big copper smelters emitted great clouds of sulphurladen smoke that enveloped the camp, half choking and half blinding the men.

Altogether it was the most oppressive, dirtiest, muggiest, hottest day the men have gone through since they arrived here from Jersey. A big change has come over the soldiers, however, since the first alighted from their troop trains and made camp. In their first days here the heat reduced their energies. They fell exhausted at their work in the sun. They spent their strength early in the day and could not recover their force of activity.

But today they worked through it like soldiers they are getting to be. Many of them bared to their waist lines, handled shovels and picks, horses and plows, dirt scoops and wagons without a sign of the effect of the weather. They drilled and did the camp chores with a vim that showed they had overcome to a very great extent the worst enemy which they have had since they arrived here—the heat of the summer desert. Of course, there were a few who have felt the effects of the heat, but no more than on any other day, and the records show no dropping off of men despite the hard work they did all day.

The inspection of approximately $90,000 worth of artillery equipment, the property of Battery A, of East Orange, was started here today by representatives of the State and the Federal governmeint. Every tiny piece, no matter how small, if it is an established part of the equipment of any field piece, any set of harness or any other part of the artillery supplies, must be checked of and accounted for. The inspection is made because the property of the State military organizations it to be turned over to the Federal government and the State relieved of the liability for it.

Captain Stephen Barlow, of the Quartermaster's Department of New Jersey, is here as the representative of the State of New Jersey, to look after the interests of the State. Captain Bomford, the assistant mustering officer of the regular army here, is representing the Federal government. To clear up the inspection of one battery of field artillery will require more than a week, and when it is considered that a battery is but one unit out of about fifty in the field here, the magnitude of the job can be understood to better advantage.

The value of the equipment in the New Jersey National Guard runs into millions, and for every penny of it the State is liable to the Federal government through its various unit commanders. The elaborate system of entries makes it impossible to even lose so much as a bolt without the loss showing in the official records of the War Department. A few tent pegs remaining unaccounted for at the end of a term of service have held up the pay of an organization commander for two months. It is a continuous case of give supplies and take a receipt, and when the final check is made if there is anything that cannot be shown and for which the department holds a receipt, the last one receipting for those supplies is held responsible for their return.

The new base hospital for the Arizona district here was opened today, without ceremonies. A number of patients were taken from the various field hospitals and from the Calumet Hospital and interned in the new structure, but there was no auspicious opening. There is not time for such ceremonies down here now where every one is working as hard as possible toward one goal—the efficiency and speedy development of the fighting forces being marshalled here.

Captain Samuel Barnard, commanding Battery D, of Camden, left Douglas tonight for his home city, under a ten-day leave of absence. News reached the captain this morning that his wife was seriously ill and was not expected to live. His application for immediate leave was granted without delay. Particulars of here illness were not received here.

Captain Barnard has been commanding the provisional battalion of artillery composed of the two batteries here, A and D, and in his absence Captain Claude E. Lanterman, the commander of the East Orange outfit, will have command of the artillerymen.

Construction of a number of buildings and the erection of another tented city was started here today to accommodate a new military outfit, a motor truck company, which is to be a part of the Douglas family of organizations. The object of the truck company is to provide transportation for supplies of all kinds to and from the city to the various outfits stationed here, and in the towns both east and west along the border.

Colonel John D. Fraser, commanding the First Infantry, which is taking its course on the rifle range at target practice, last night was granted permission to move the men who are to shoot during the day out of the ranges the night before, and let them stay in their shelter tents at night. He explained that the trip to the ranges was a long, hot, dusty one at day. It is the intention of the colonel to send food and water out to the men and give them the benefit of a good fresh start in the morning.

The Fifth Regiment band was out bright and early this morning to serenade Lieutenant Fitz, of the Ridgewood Company of the Fifth. Word reached him yesterday of the arrival at his home of a bouncing boy Fitz, and the band, always eager for a chance to do honors of some kind, made the occasion a memorable one. Fitz celebrated by buying a two-quart bottle of grape juice and treating the crowd of officers. Those present insist that Lieutenant Alfred Kruitbosch, of the Passaic Company, got away with two-thirds of the grape juice.

AN UNDESIRABLE CITIZEN

— Proctor's Theatre —

Put to the extremity of wearing false beards and dodging practically every other person he meets on the streets because of a change for the better in his once distressful affairs of the heart and bank account, Douglas Fairbanks, as Augie, the love-struck artist, in "Flirting With Fate," shown at Proctor's today, puts a quantity of vim and zest into his work that will be heartily appreciated by patrons of that cosy playhouse. "Flirting With Fate" is a thoroughly enjoyable picture. It is nearly all Douglas Fairbanks, but when one considers that he is an actor possessing so much color and dash it is readily understood that this is nothing against "Flirting With Fate"—far from that; it is something in its favor. August Ainsworth is an artist, one who can draw anything except a salary. He falls deeply in love with a girl whose mother is watching for a rich husband for her pretty daughter. When things look utterly hopeless August engages the services of Automatic Joe to relieve him of his troubles by assassinating him. Only a few minutes later things go the other way. An aunt leaves him a million dollars, his friend sends the money he promised and Augy receives an invitation to call from Gladys, so no wonder he is on the sharp lookout for Joe. The latter "gets religion" in the meantime. Therefore August and Gladys marry and prepare to live happily ever after. One of those rip-roaring, button-busting Keystone comedies also is on the program at Proctor's today, as is also the 9th episode of "The Secret of the Submarine."

Tomorrow June Caprice, the little Boston miss, who was selected by William Fox as his ideal screen star, will appear in her first moving picture, supported by Harry Hilliard, entitled "Caprice of the Mountains," a story of the big out-of-doors told in a fetching way. The feature on Thursday will be a Thomas H. Ince military drama, entitled "The Deserter," starring Charles Ray, while on Friday and Saturday Charlie Chaplin will disport upon the screen in his latest comedy success, "One A. M."

CITY AND MUHLENBERG TO SIGN NEW CONTRACT

A new contract between the city of Plainfield and the directors of Muhlenberg Hospital for the care of indigent patients and those suffering from contagious diseases will be entered into within a short time. Chairman Hamilton, of the alms committee, last night reported to the Council that the contract had been agreed on by his committee and the hospital authorities and he was authorized by resolution to sign for the municipality. Instead of paying at the rate of $1 a day for patients sent by the city, the alms committee will pay $2 a day for all patients in the general ward, and $3.50 a day for patients with contagious diseases. The hospital authorities state that it costs $2.36 a day to care for a patient. The amount is an average. This will not mean the appropriation of more money for the care of the city's sick. A fund of $4,000 has already been allowed for this, and under the new apportionment it will be used during the year. If the money is not sufficient to pay for all patients at the new rate, the hospital will care for them anyway.

WHAT BETTER BATHING FACILITIES WOULD DO FOR PLAINFIELD HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

Annette Kellermann, Aided by the Plainfield Daily Press, Enlists Our Big Swimming Class in Behalf of Municipal Progress. Tomorrow She Prepares to Introduce You to Your First Water Lesson.

Article No. 7.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

Members of the Plainfield Daily Press Annette Kellermann Swimming classes, I congratulate all of you. The success of my plan to organize, almost in a flash, a nationwide swimming class with a membership of threequarters of a milion or more persons has been an instantaneous success.

You can imagine how happy this makes me feel. That three-quarters of a million persons in all of the large cities and several hundred smaller cities should heed this paper's call for you to come under my instruction causes me much gratification. You are all voluntary members and for a week you have gone through the exercises I described with vigor and attention of the closest sort.

It will be owing almost entirely to you if swimming gains a great new impetus in this country. In the end you and your children will establish a new power in our citizenship, built on the solid basis of greatest of all blessings, cleanliness and good health. The backbone of a new people is being built right now by these Kellermann swimming classes.

There are more than three hundred similar classes all over the big American map taking my lessons along with you. I realize that many of you who in the past week have striven hard to attain perfection in the art of dry-land swimming will find a barrier to actual swimming later because of the lack of swimming pools or beaches.

Now is the time for me to take you into my confidence and ask you to become active workers in behalf of municipal pools. One or two large pools in a large city are not enough There should be many pools for the enjoyment of men, women and children. In New York city, for example, I am quite sure that if there were more swimming pools there would not have been a terrible scourge of infantile paralysis, lasting two weeks and causing several thousand deaths. The fact that New York is near the ocean is of small consequence, for there are hundreds of thousands of its people who never go near the ocean and have no time to go.

If we, in our swimming class, can cause a widespread public movement in behalf of increased swimming pool and bathhouse facilities we will have accomplished much. I would rather have it said in years to come that, "Annette Kellermann and those who received instruction from her did much to improve the health of the nation," than to have the reputation the benevolent Mr. Carnegie has gained through his freehanded distribution of libraries in American cities and towns.

A tremendous membership like that of our national swimming class, numbering you and many of your friends on its roster, can exert an irresistible influence upon the politicians of your home community. Make those for whom your men cast their votes promise you in advance that the bathing facilities of the community will be increased. There is no plausible excuse that can be offered in opposition.

The cost of pool facilities is insignificant. The benefits derived are tremendous.

I am ready to take you into the water now but I have chosen this moment to pause and indulge in a deliberated health propaganda. The newspapers of America, great and remarkable institutions which, whether you really believe it or not, exercise an enormous influence for good, are deliberately lending the full weight of their influence to your efforts and mine in behalf of the public bath and pool movement. I need not tell you but nevertheless shall do so, that the newspapers are the greatest and most potent factors in keeping cities and towns healthful and clean.

I wish to make a suggestion to you—one that will save you money. In places where you have to pay an admission fee to enter some private pool, go to the owner or manager of the pool and tell him that you are a member of the Plainfield Daily Press Annette Kellermann Swimming class and that you will wish to use his pool a great deal. Ask him to make you a special rate, as he should be glad to do for all members of this class. It will be your duty to notify this newspaper of any manager who declines to give this movement his support and encouragement by making a special rate to the members of our organization.

Remember this, always: Swimming is the cleanest and healthiest of sports. It must receive its proper and deserved recognition. Swimming enthusiasm is manifest across the entire country. The other day when I was in the East a large Western newspaper sent me 200 swimming queries from the members of our class over its leased telegraph wire and asked me to answer all questions by telegraph so that the members would not have to wait for answers sent through the mails for publication in their home city.

In your campaign for bathing pool facilities you have one argument of the greatest importance: Adequate public bathing facilities will make an improvement of from 10 to 17 per cent. in the health of any community of 30,000 people or more and proportionately as much in the smaller places.

May I invite of our members, desirous to do so, to write me in care of the Plainfield Daily Press and I shall be glad to solve some of your puzzles.

Tomorrow—The Water: How to become acquainted with it and what to do when you go in for your first practice. Clip out this and all of the other lessons in the series and practice every day without fail.

PAVLOWA HEARS APPLAUSE FROM NEW YORK TO UTAH.

Miss Anna Pavlowa was obliged to be absent from her debut in New York as a moving picture star. Her engagement with the Russian Ballet in Salt Lake City, made it impossible for her to see herself make her bow on the movie stage, but she did not miss hearing the reception which New York accorded her.

While the first performance of "The Dumb Girl of Portici," the motion picture drama in which Miss Pavlowa is starred, was going on in the Globe Theater in New York City, Miss Pavlowa herself in Salt Lake City, called her manager at the Globe on the telephone to inquire "How is it going?"

"Wonderfully," was the reply. "Can't you hear the applause?"

And across the thousands of miles which separated her from her first movie "audience," she heard the clear witness of their approval and enthusiasm.—The Telephone Review, N. Y.

THE ESSENCE OF THE MARVEL.

Scarcely anyone stops to think how remarkable is the electric light, an automobile, or an aeroplane; interest is now centered in what they will do. As for themselves, the public has lost all interest except for the use that can be made of them.

There is a thought in this for us regarding the telephone.

What the telephone does was expressed by Dom Pedro, the Emperor of Brazil, when he saw the first crude instrument exhibited by Professor Bell at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876. Dom Pedro said, "My God, it talks!" He did not say, "What a wonderful piece of mechanism has been created out of the imagination and by the handiwork of a dreamer and a mechanic!" He saw all that, but what it would do was what startled him; and everything that has been done since then has been to make it talk better and, in the words of Mr. Vail, "to extend the talking distance."

But what good is it that the telephone "talks," and that the talking distance has been extended across the continent and practically around the world?

When the public begins to think as much of what they can do with the telephone as they are thinking of what they can do with electricity and automobiles and such things, the telephone will really come into its own.—The Telephone Review, (N. Y.)

ABOUT THINKING.

Suppose we become impersonal toward ourselves—like the Irish drill sergeant who told his awkward squad, "Step out here and look at yourselves!"

Suppose we were someone else—what would we think about ourselves?

Often we have very definite ideas of what we think about others.

An anecdote is told of Mr. Choate when he was Ambassador to Great Britain. The conversation at a dinner party turned to the subject of reincarnation, and Mr. Choate was asked what avatar he would prefer to become again, to which he gallantly replied, "Mrs. Choate's second husband!" (With British obtuseness, it is said, a peeress inquired, "Who is Mrs. Choate's present husband?")

It is to be hoped that every husband can pay such a tribute to his wife, but possibly the wife's choice might be different!

Would we care to be ourselves again?

"It is for want of thinking that most men are undone."—The Telephone Review, N. Y.

CATTLE FROM MEXICAN BORDER SENT TO NORTHERN PASTURAGE

CATTLE FOR NEW PASTURES

Cattle from the Mexican border, sent to safety in the north, in many cases have passed through the regions which were free range a few short years ago, but are changed now to farming regions and even crossed the international line to the prairie pastures of Canada. The frontier of the cattleman today has been driven back far north of the Canadian Pacific main line to the northern parts of the western provinces. Two entire trainloads of "feeders" from Texas passed Portal, one gateway, in a day. A general exodus from the vicinity of the Rio Grande is on.

Some of the cattle will fatten on the grasses of northern Alberta and Saskatchewan, where as yet the horde of homeseekers has only now begun to plow the virgin prairie. The cattlemen from necessity have begun to use the millions of acres of lush grasses which still are untouched by the shoe of a plow, the value of which is placed by Canadian Pacific officials at many millions of dollars every year.

In the northern states the rapid colonization of the ranges has left little territory open for the cowboy who once was king there. This has made a serious problem, for it was imperative for the Texas cattle to be removed from the zone where hungry bandits can make foraging raids.

If it's advertised today it is likely that it is of timely interest to you today.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

What the Moon Saw One Night In China.

Slowly Peh Stirred the Water in It.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

WITH Jack on one side of him and Evelyn on the other daddy told them a story of what the moon saw from his sky lookout:

"'One night,' the moon began, 'I looked down on a town in China. My beams lit up the long blank walls and shut doors. All windows were tightly closed with bamboo screens. The only light I saw was a dim one burning in the temple. So I looked inside. The walls were covered with wonderful pictures and bright colors, which meant the labors of Chinese gods on earth. Every niche had such a god in it with banners floating alongside.

"'At the upper end of the temple stood the chief of all the gods, Fu, draped in yellow silks. At the foot of this altar sat a young priest. His lips seemed to be praying, but his face was hot and flushed. Poor Sou Houng!

"'I wondered if inside that dark, hot temple he was perhaps thinking of his little flower garden and home, or were his thoughts straying to the barbarian ships on their way home to distant England, or were his thoughts sinful, although not flying so far afield?

"'Then I grew weary of the hot sweet air in the temple and turned around to glance at another part of the town. On its very outskirts I saw a flat flagged roof of a house where the parapet seemed to be made of porcelain, and among some handsome vases full of large white bell shaped flowers sat the lovely Peh, with her narrow roguish eyes, full red lips and tiny feet.

"'Her funny Chinese shoes pinched her little feet, but what pressed around her heart pinched harder. Wearily she raised her delicate arms above her pretty head, and the night wind rustled in her satin sleeves.

"'In front of her I saw a glass bowl with four goldfish in it. Slowly Peh stirred the water in it with a little painted lacquered stick; very slowly, for, like Sou Houng, she also was thinking.

"'Was she thinking how richly the fish were clad in gold, how safely they lived in their glass bowl, with all the food they wanted given to them, and yet how much happier they would be if they had freedom?

"'Yes; poor little Peh understood that! Her thoughts wandered from her home to the temple, but not for the sake of prayer. Poor Sou Houng! Their thoughts met, but my cold beams fell between them like an angel's sword. Then I turned around and glanced over to see what was happening in Scotland,'" the moon finished.

"The Chinese boy loved Peh," Jack understood. Then daddy said good night.

If values and prices ruled about alike in all stores at all times, there would not be any such thing as store competition. And, as finding desirable values would require no especial knowledge or insight, store advertising would be superfluous

You can make your task of "buying for the home" either a very irksome one or a very interesting and pleasant one. A habit of ad-study will make it ALWAYS INTERESTING and always full of ECONOMY POSSIBILITIES.

LOCAL T. A. B. TO SEND DELEGATES TO WASHINGTON

The forty-sixth annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America will be held at the Catholic University, Washington, D. C., on August 8, 9, 10 and 11. The formal opening of the convention will be at St. Patrick's church, Washington, on Wednesday morning, August 9. There will be pontifical mass, which his eminence Most Reverend John Bonzano, D. D., apostolic delegate to the United States, will attend. Most Reverend James J. Keane, D. D., archbishop of Dubuque, will preach the sermon.

This year, for the first time, St. Mary's T. A. B. Society, whose membership is slightly less than 200, will send two delegates. Joseph McCue, president of the society, and M. D. O'Keefe were elected at the last meeting.

A brief history of the organization has been prepared and will be presented if an opportunity is given.

STRANGER IS BURIED WITHOUT IDENTIFICATION

The unidentified man who was found last week on the Lehigh Valley tracks between Oak Tree and South Plainfield, was buried yesterday afternoon. The interment was in the Methodist cemetery. Every effort was made to locate relatives or friends of the man, but without success. The body lay at the undertaking parlors of Carey & Son., at North Avenue, and Park avenue for a number of days.

STOLE MILK BOTTLES.

Cornelius McCarthy was arraigned before Judge W. G. DeMeza in police court this morning on the complaint of Isidor Schwartz, who alleges that McCarthy on two occasions stole milk bottles from him. McCarthy asked for a postponement of the case until Friday to give him a chance to engage an attorney.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

MARQUARD'S TIME.

When Marquard shut out the Pirates at Ebbets Field on Saturday Uncle Robbie was jubilant. The Rube, as a Giant, never showed greater skill. He had a hop on his fast ball, the same old hook curve and excellent control. Furthermore he seemed to have no end of stamina. Robbie has been saving Marquard for the final test. The big southpaw has not been overworked and is in first class shape. The Brooklyn manager figures that if the Rube can stand a regular turn for the rest of the campaign the team cannot be excelled in the box. Robbie is anxious to work Cheney, Smith, Pfeffer and Marquard in rotation, as often as possible. Plenty of pitching will increase their effectiveness. But in case of a slump the rotund leader will not be at a disadvantage. He can summon Coombs, Rucker, Dell, Mails or Appleton to the slab. The Robins, therefore, have no reason to worry over their pitching staff. It is one of the strongest in the big leagues and there is little doubt that it will stand up under fire. The Brooklyns are leading the National League in team batting with a percentage of .260. They are second in base stealing and are close to the top in fielding.—Sun.

YANKEES RETURN HOME.

In spite of a long string of defeats in the West the crippled Yankees have not lost their friends. Donovan's players, after a series in Cleveland beginning yesterday, will return to the Polo Grounds next Saturday for a double-header with Connie Mack's Schoolboys. The Yankees' pennant chances are gone, it would seem, but they still have plenty of time to secure a berth in the first division. It is probable that High, Magee and Cullop will be in shape to play regularly some time this week, in which event the team should recover much of the lost ground. Frank Baker, I hear, will resume work about the first of next month, but Gilhooley may be out for the rest of the season. There should be much interest in the Yankees' remaining games in this city. They deserve liberal patronage in return for their plucky fight under trying circumstances.—Joe Villa.

BOXING PECULIAR SPORT.

Boxing is a peculiar sport. It belongs to that class of things which requires licensing, and of course that presupposes that it would otherwise be illegal. Licensing comes under the police protection idea of our government, and that presupposes naturally that the thing licensed requires police protection.

Occupying, as it does, a peculiar position under the law, boxing requires novel treatment, and so we find the tendency of the times is to regulate and supervise boxing through the medium of State commissions duly constituted by law, and representing the State as to matters related to the game.

This peculiar situation, under the law, requires peculiar administration and the men who are chosen to administer the law under the name and title of the boxing commission need to be peculiarly fitted for their duties. The ideal commissioner is one who is fearless in the discharge of his duty, but at the same time commands the attention, respect and obedience of those who are under his supervision. The ideal commissioner needs to be a man who is thoroughly acquainted with sports and sportsmen and with the peculiarities of those persons who think they are sportsmen, but who are known as "sports" in this country. The efficient commissioner is one who has nerve and courage and at the same time good common sense.

The duties of commissioners are important, not only to the people of the State, but to those who are engaged in this game as a means of livelihood, and it is indeed a cause for congratulation that Wisconsin has had a commission, since the passage of the law creating it, which has met most of the ideal requirements.

REJUVENATING THE BREWERS.

The process of rejuvenating the Brewers is proceeding along reasonable lines. Now that the team is hopelessly out of the running, it is a good time for experiments.

The Brewers need new blood. The release of several of the old-timers, while regrettable from a sympathetic point of view, was necessary for the welfare of the organization, and the getting together of promising young fellows and giving them an opportunity to show their possibilities was very sensible.

I have always thought, and have repeatedly said, that Milwaukee could be made a good baseball town, but the way to make it is to give it a winning team. Now is a good chance to lay the foundation for just that sort of thing.—Arbiter.

JERSEY TENNIS MECCA.

New Jersey may now call tennisdom's attention. Sea Bright tennis started yesterday, and for a week there will be play on the grass courts there which should be just about as keen as it was at Forest Hills last week, though, of course, interest may not be quite as high as in the intersectional battle. But all the stars of the East and West are entered for the seashore tourney. Williams, conqueror of Johnston, will not appear until the challenge round, but others will be on hand early. Behr, Niles, Church, Washburn, Alexander, Throckmorton and others of the East are down to contend in the singles, and the West will be represented by Johnston, Griffin, Roberts, Davis, Murray and Johns.—News.

PRAISES "BABE" ADAMS.

Charles "Babe" Adams is no longer a Pirate. In commenting on the release of Adams, Dreyfuss said:

"It is with real regret that we permit Adams to leave us. He stands as one of the greatest stars in baseball history. Adams realized his inability to work for us this year and was very agreeable to any change the club might plan for him. In compliment to his record with the Pirates he was given his unconditional release. My best wishes go with him, as the Pittsburgh baseball club holds the highest regard for Adams, not only as a player, but as a gentleman, as he has always acted the part of a true sportsman. Baseball is benefitted by such men as 'Babe' Adams."

DAN RANDOLPH LEADS BAPTIST HITTERS POSSESSING CREDITABLE PERCENTAGE

Baptist Batting Averages Compiled, Showing Consistency of Hitting Department—Garretson Hitting .526 For Four Games—Only Team With Official Scorer.

There is only one team in the City League that is in possession of an official scorer. That outfit is the First Baptist club and the official scorer is always on the job. For the second time this year he has made known the batting averages of the players on the team and his figures are of unusual interest.

According to the figures handed out by the Baptists' scorer, Dan Randolph is the heaviest hitter on the squad, although Dan has not played in every game. He has performed in eleven out of twelve of the attractions, however. Dunc Patterson, the team leader, is also one of the leading batters. Duncan has a percentage of .342 for eleven games. John Terry and Gauler have played in twelve games, Terry having earned a fairly good average. Gauler, however, has been doing but little with the willow.

The averages follow:

Van Norden	11	44	10	.227

ROYALS MAY MEET KNIGHTS OF ST. PETER

Tommy Apgar's Squad to Get Chance to Face Deinzer, "No-Hit" Pitcher.

According to information given out by a New Brunswick newspaper, Jake Deinzer, a pitcher well known locally, and Willie Fitzpatrick, a Factory League shortstop, will shortly be signed up by the Boston Red Sox. At least a scout from that club is on their trail.

Fans in this city cannot help but remember Deinzer. While Fitzpatrick may not be well known locally, no fan in this city is ignorant of Jake Deinzer's prowess. The New Brunswick lad has hurled a no-hit game against Pennington, which team took the Plainfield High School outfit into camp to the tune of 11 to 1. The Tabs and Dunellens, both City League outfits, can testify to the ability of the Middlesex pitcher. It is highly probable that the Dunellen crew will get another chance to do some testifying, as it is reported that the Knights of St. Peter team, of which Deinzer is the star hurler, has agreed to come to Dunellen after the close of the local City League season. It is also reported that Manager Tommy Apgar is contemplating a schedule that will bring several first class attractions to Maurer Oval.

Fans of New Brunswick, as well as of this city, will be glad to learn that negotiations between the Knights of St. Peter and the Royal Giants have been opened. If the guarantee offered by the manager of the Knights is up to William Kline's expectations something of interest may happen.

HARNESS AND RUNNING RACES AT MONMOUTH FAIR

Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 8.—Harness and running races, an attractive program of which is being arranged by Horace P. Murphy, the well known racing secretary, will be among the special sport features at the coming Monmouth Fair. There will be three open classes for trotters and pacers for purses of $400 each on August 31, September 1 and September 2, and some of the fastest horses in the East will be entered.

On Monday, Labor Day, there will be six running races over the splendid half mile track, under the rules of the New York Jockey Club. Among the day's events will be polo pony and farmers' races and a race for gentlemen riders.

Herman Conkling, well known in the running game, has been engaged to assist Horace P. Murphy with the running horses. Thirty years ago Mr. Conkling was one of the most prominent riders in the country and today he is associated with many of the best known hunt club meetings. Horsemen will also be pleased to learn that Mr. Murphy has secured the services of George T. Miller to start the running horses. Mr. Miller was the first man to introduce a flat starter and the first starter to use a barrier, which is lightning fast and weighs only seventy-five pounds. Mr. Miller, who was a former trainer, has started runners on nearly every important track in this country.

In the last six months trapshooting clubs have become organized on a more permanent basis than ever before, due largely to the systematic campaign carried on by the American Amateur Trapshooting Association in virtually every State and Canada.

By means of its nation-wide organization the national association has been able to reach many clubs which have long resisted the efforts of the State associations. In 35 States the number of clubs enrolled in the A. A. T. A. exceeds the number affiliated with the State associations. In ten States—Montana, Kansas, Ohio, Washington, Mississippi, Alabama, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Rhode Island and South Carolina—the State associations lead in number of clubs. In two—New Hampshire and Colorado—both national and State associations have been equally successful. In the United States 627 clubs are enrolled in the State associations as against 929 in the A. A. T. A.

On the basis of averages scored in their club shoots the appended list of shooters head the army in the medal contests being conducted by the American Amateur Trapshooters' Association. They are the only shooters who have won the solid gold medal awarded by the A. A. T. A. for an average of 90 per cent. on 1,000 targets: E. L. Bartlett, Baltimore, Md.; E. F. Brewster, Jr., Rochester, N. Y.; A. S. Dey, Syracuse, N. Y.; Claude T. Do Ville, Sodus, N. Y.; A. A. Farrington, Duluth, Minn.; J. F. Fisher, Titonka, Iowa; S. S. Foster, Mason City, Iowa; Mrs. H. Harrison, Rochester, N. Y.; Harry Harrison, Rochester, N. Y.; Fred T. Hopkins, Sodus, N. Y.; C. A. McKelvey, Seattle, Wash.; John M. Nelson, Attica, N. Y.; Fred Plum, Atlantic City, N. J.; Frank Templeton, Portland, Ore.; S. E. Wainwright, Lenox, Iowa; L. S. West, Rochester, N. Y.

Stanley F. Withe, national secretary of the American Amateur Trapshooters' Association, announces that the national council, the members of which direct the State organizations of the A. A. T. A., is now constituted as follows:

Alabama, R. H. Baugh, of Birmingham; Arkansas, W. Gus Nash, of Jonesboro; Idaho, E. M. Sweeley, of Twin Falls; Illinois, Ray Loring, of Marseilles; Indiana, H. E. Stutz, of Indianapolis; Iowa, E. O. RUTGERS FOOTBALL.

Captain F. J. Scarr, of the Rutgers football team, and Trainer Besas have been instructed to report on August 26, to get the training camp ready for the members of the football squad. The coaches expect to have about seventy-five candidates. The men will be given three weeks of training before the season opens this fall.

CITY LEAGUE SEASON ENDS SEPTEMBER 2

Postponed Attractions to Be Played Off Before That Date, Moguls Decide.

Despite the unusually hot weather, the moguls of the City League held their regular weekly meeting in the Daily Press office last night. The time was spent, in the main, in setting dates for the playing of postponed attractions. According to the plan mapped out the league season will close on September 2, with the Baptists and the Netherwoods playing the last tilt.

In accordance with the schedule agreed upon, the Tabs will play the Baptists on August 19. On that date the Hopes and Netherwoods will battle. The Farmers and Dunellens have no contest scheduled. On August 26 the Dunellen team will take on the Baptists, with the Hopes contesting with the Tabs. Netherwood has a contest with the Farmers on that date. On September 2 the final game of the season will be played. This game will be played between the Baptists and the Netherwoods.

The question of the game forfeited to the Hopes some time ago again came up for discussion. This question was once decided in the Hopes' favor, but for some reason or other another vote was taken and the result of the ballot was a tie between the supporters of the Hopes and the supporters of the Baptists. The matter was brought up again at the meeting last night and it was decided to hold the discussion over until the return of Walter C. Dobbins, the president of the league. Mr. Dobbins is spending his vacation at Stroudsburg and is expected home on August 19.

The Baptists dropped Jack Garretson last evening and he was immediately signed up by Hope Chapel.

Queries--Comment--Answers

Question: Are the Athletics ever going to stop losing baseball games? Philly.

Answer: Having lost his eighteenth game, the manager of the unfortunate club yesterday decided that it was about time to win. He used three pitchers in what proved to be a futile effort. That's the best we can do for you, old top.

Question: A young man, born in New York, came to this city five months ago and will be 21 years of age next month. Can he vote in New Jersey at the fall election? J. K.

Answer: No. The young man must reside in the State one year.

Question: Who is the chess editor of the New York Sun? J. L.

Answer. Your query awoke us to the fact that there is such a gentleman. His name is Hartwig Cassel.

Question: Who is the commander of the super-submarine the "Deutschland," and how many men are there in her crew? Bill.

Answer: Captain Paul Koenig is the commander and there are twenty-eight other men in the crew.

Question: With what company is Mary Miles Minter at the present time? Fan.

Answer: We understand that she is now with the American Film Company, at their studio in Santa Barbara, Cal.

Question: Is Charles Hughes, Republican presidential candidate, an advocate of woman suffrage? J. A. M.

Answer: Mr. Hughes says he is. Others say that he did not vote for the issue last year. We are noncommital.

Question: To whom should I write in Scotland to locate lost relations, and also to obtain a copy of the record of my mother's birth? A. S.

Answer: Write to the postmaster of the city or town where you have reason to think your relatives are now living or once lived. If you have no idea as to what part of Scotland they live in, or did live in, you have little chance of finding them unless you employ somebody in Scotland to make the search.

It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

ELECTRIC SHOCK KILLS LINEMAN

Twenty-three Year Old Gilbert Lewis Dies While at Work In Tree.

DEATH INSTANTANEOUS

Daniel Guinee, Boss of the Job, Makes Heroic Attempt to Save Companion and Is Also Severely Shocked.

Twenty-three thousand volts of electricity yesterday afternoon snuffed out the life of A. Gilbert Lewis, 23 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis, of Orchard place, death occurring almost instantaneously. Daniel Guinee, a veteran employe of the Public Service Corporation, who was working alongside of Lewis when the fatal accident happened, was severely shocked in a heroic attempt to release his companion after scores of awe-stricken spectators had turned a deaf ear and blind eye to the victim's dying moans.

At 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon Lewis climbed into a tree on Clinton avenue for the purpose of stringing a wire through its branches and Guinee stood ready to receive the dangling end on a pole nearby. Suddenly there came a vivid flash and heart-rending shriek and Guinee glanced up just in time to see his fellow worker's body fall prostrate across a tree limb.

Guinee hastily summoned aid and some one turned in a fire alarm. When Chief Doane and his men arrived on the scene the sizzling ends of the heavily charged wire were still wrapped about the tree trunk and were in contact with Lewis's body. To touch either the body or tree without properly insulated equipment would probably mean death. Although in a severely nervous state as the result of the sickening scene which he had witnessed, Guinee summoned enough courage together to volunteer to climb the tree and extricate the human magnet. He wriggled up to the spot where the apparently lifeless body of the youth hung and cut the live wires, making it safe for others to come to his assistance and carry the body to the ground.

In the meantime some one had turned in a call for the Muhlenberg Hospital ambulance and upon its arrival a pulmotor was put in use. Although physicians worked over the victim for three-quarters of an hour they failed to kindle a spark of life and instructions were given to remove the corpse to Higgins' undertaking parlor. Investigation showed that a tiny hole in the lineman's glove had been responsible for his death, the bare hand coming in contact with the live wire.

Guinee's remarkable display of heroism came in for a liberal share of praise last night, but his hazardous undertaking was not completed without some injury to himself. He received a heavy shock of electricity and is now under a physician's care. This is the third accident of a similar nature in which Guinee has been involved. On one occasion he had one of his fingers burned off by a live wire, but despite this handicap he is recognized as one of the most valuable employes of the Public Service in his particular department of work.

Lewis had been in the employ of this concern for three years, having previously been a student in the North Plainfield schools. He had tried on several occasions to gain admission to the police department as a patrolman and his name was on the waiting list at the time of his death. He was a powerfully built youth, standing over six feet in height and weighing close to 200 pounds.

Plainfielders will probably remember him best as a member of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. and as one of those most actively interested in the association here. He had attended a number of Y. M. C. A. boys' work conferences in different parts of the State and in 1910 he served as a volunteer aid in the New Jersey Y. M. C. A. camp at Lake Wawayanda. He took a prominent part in swimming and was an all-around athlete.

Besides his parents, Lewis leaves one brother, Charles, Jr., living at home.

ERIES HERE SUNDAY.

Despite the fact that they have been losing consistently, the Tabs are still booking baseball games. The attraction for this Sunday is the Erie A. C. team of Newark. The Erie team was here last year and made a good showing. That's why a return match was arranged.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

KEEP YOUR CHILDREN HOME.

WOULD KEEP ALL CHILDREN AWAY

Alan M. Johnson Writes to Mayor Urging a Strict Quarantine of City.

Urging an absolute quarantine against children under 16 years of age, Alan W. Johnson, a New York lawyer, who lives at 222 Stelle avenue, has written a letter to Mayor Calkins. His letter follows:

"Leighton Calkins, Esq.,
"City Hall, Plainfield, N. J.
"Dear Sir:

"I am addressing this communication to you as the Mayor of Plainfield.

"I am very reluctant to enter any complaint about the city adminstration which, as a rule, I consider excellent.

"It is, however, self-evident that the city officials have been grossly lax and inefficient in not establishing and maintaining a rigid quarantine against the prevailing infantile paralysis.

"New Brunswick has a rigid quarantine. Summit, with only one case, has established such a rigid quarantine to protect its children.

"To permit children from the infected districts to come to Plainfield and only require that their visit be reported to the health department, is an absurd and inefficient requirement for the damage that has been done. It is about equivalent to have a city abolish its fire department and pass an ordinance that all fires be reported. What is primarily required is to prevent the damage—not report it.

"The spread of the disease in Plainfield, Dunellen and vicinity shows that such a regulation is worse than useless.

"It is incumbent that the city at once prevent any more children under 16 years of age coming to Plainfield from the infected areas during the continuance of the epidemic and that all needful steps be taken to enforce such an order to protect the children of Plainfield.

"Yours very truly,
(Signed) "ALAN M. JOHNSON,
"222 Stelle Avenue,
"Plainfield, N. J."

After giving him a severe lecture Judge De Meza fined him $100 or in default to serve 90 days in the county jail. Five different women appeared in court and testified that Woods is the man that has been appearing on West Third street for some time in various stages of undress.

PUNCHED A POLICEMAN FOR HANGING CASEMENT

Because he punched Patrolman Brower in the nose Monday night, Jimmy Walsh was fined $10 by Judge William G. De Mesa in police court this morning. Walsh was feeling badly over the hanging of Sir Roger Casement, the Irish patriot, and tried to drown his sorrows. He fell in with Brower, and because he wanted to take his spite out on some Englishman, he proceeded to show his fistic ability and landed in a cell.

MAY QUARANTINE EVERY N. J. CITY

State Board Decides On Rigid Rules For Paralysis Precaution.

EFFECTIVE AUGUST 15

Asbury Park Baby Parade Will Never Be Permitted—No Relief Is Expected During Present Hot Weather.

The quarantine question is to be taken out of the hands of municipal authorities after Tuesday of next week, according to a decision reached by the State Board of Health at Trenton. That body will soon issue an order quarantining the State against all children under sixteen years of age, and also preventing children from traveling from one town in the State to another.

Health certificates, of course, will permit even children to travel, but they will have to be signed by a reliable physician after a thorough examination and indorsed by local boards of health.

It is said that this action on the part of the New Jersey Board of Health has been recommended by the United States Public Health Service through its surgeons who are assigned to infantile paralysis work here. One incident that had much to do with the recommendation was the action of the mayor of Asbury Park in sending out letters inviting children to that resort. This invitation urged that babies be entered in the baby parade there. While no official statement has been made in Trenton, it is certain that such a parade will never be permitted by health authorities. Dr. Charles E. Banks, senior Federal surgeon in charge of the precautionary measures in New York and New Jersey, declared yesterday that such a dangerous advertising scheme was fraught with peril, and that the baby parade would never be held if he could prevent it.

The new State health board order is expected to become effective August 15. It has not yet been issued, but unless the number of cases show a marked decrease before that time, will be enforced. Instead of decreasing the cases are increasing, and health authorities say this will continue until cool weather relieves the situation.

The State order is explained in the following statement from the Health Board at Trenton:

"The additional chapter of the State Sanitary Code provides that children under 16 years of age shall not be permitted to enter the State, or pass from one municipality to another within the State, unless accompanied by certificates issued by competent health authorities. The provisions of the new chapter of the code also prohibit a common carrier from receiving for transportation in the State of New Jersey any child under 16 years of age unless accompanied by a proper certificate.

"Upon arrival in any municipality in the State the parent or guardian of the child is required to present the certificate to the local board of health. Should a child under 18 years of age enter any municipality of the State without a proper certificate the local board of health of the municipality in which the child is found is required to quarantine the child for a period of two weeks dating from the time of its arrival.

"The law requires local boards of health to enforce the provisions of the State Sanitary Code. The enforcement of the provisions of the code, which have been enacted to meet the infantile paralysis situation, will therefore be in the hands of the local health authorities.

WILLIAM JOHNSTON, JR., DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Following a lingering illness from which he had been a sufferer since the early part of March, William E. Johnston, Jr., died last night at the home of his father-in-law, Charles W. Leveridge, 828 Sherman avenue. Mr. Johnston was 31 years of age and was born in Elizabeth. He spent the greater part of his life in the latter city, but came to Plainfield many times and made his home here for a number of months. Up to the time of his illness he was employed as traveling auditor for the Public Service Gas Company. He belonged to no local fraternal organizations, but was a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church and of the Central Baptist church in Elizabeth.

Besides his widow, Mr. Johnston is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Johnston, of Elizabeth, and three sisters. These are: Miss Helen Johnston, of Elizabeth; Mrs. C. H. Appley, of Westfield, and Mrs. E. P. Gaston, of Elizabeth. The funeral will be held from the Sherman street home Friday afternoon at 2:30, the Rev. B. S. Hudson officiating, and interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

NEWARK MAN HELD AS AUTO ROBBER

Samuel Kline Accused of Having Entered Houses In Westfield.

Charles A. Kline, of 823 South Sixteenth street, Newark, was arrested in that city yesterday for robberies committed in Westfield Monday afternoon. Kline denies his guilt.

Monday afternoon practically all of the vacant houses in Westfield were robbed of brass and lead plumbing fixtures by a band of men who rode in a Ford automobile with a box on the back. They boldly entered the town and carried off the goods while neighbors looked on. No one suspected them of being thieves, so openly did they work, and it was long after they had gone that the crime was discovered. One woman had taken down the number of the machine, however, and it was found to be that of Kline. Kline admits having been in Westfield on Monday afternoon, but denies any knowledge of the robberies. Two brass fixtures similar to the kind reported stolen were found in his car.

COLLINS MAY RUN FOR COMMITTEEMAN

Petitions In His Favor Soon to Be Circulated, In County, It Is Said.

Elizabeth, August 9.—Although he made no statement concerning his candidacy, it is probable that petitions for General Dennis F. Collins, for Democratic State Committeeman will soon be placed in circulation. Gen. Collins is at present a member of the Democratic body and the opposition to his re-election, which was threatened a few month ago, has evidently disappeared.

General Collins has for a number of years been a figure in the councils of the Democratic party and has played an important part in the various Democratic campaigns. This year, the most important from a Democratic standpoint in the past generation, he will doubtless be called upon to bear a big share of the responsibilities of the national and State campaign in Union county and will necessarily play a part in the larger campaigns.

Collins, it is aid, is not anxious to to return to the State Committee, especially in view of the responsibility the comptrollership has laid upon him, but the possibilities are that he will again be chosen to take an active part in the goings of the State organization.

Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

ME GREW SAYS IT IS NOT AN OUTING

Local Man Back From Border Tells of Hard Work Done There.

TROOPERS DIG DITCHES

"Highly-Colored" News Stories Are Scored By Returned Member of Troop D—Says Men Are In Good Spirits.

George Me Grew, of Stelle and Central avenues, arrived home last night from the Mexican border, where he had been with Troop D ever since the boys left Plainfield last June. Shortly after Mr. Me Grew reached the border his health failed him and he has been constantly growing worse until now it became imperative for him to return home and seek the aid of specialists.

Mr. Me Grew expressed himself as being greatly enraged at what he called the "highly colored" articles that have appeared in the various papers through the country giving the impression that the troops are having a summer outing. Mr. Me Grew said that if the facts were really known it would be found that everyone was working early and late to be in condition for whatever may come. Work starts at 5 o'clock in the morning and except for a short respite during the heat of the day continues until 6 o'clock in the evening.

Men working in trenches, often three feet deep, do not get the same impression of the so-called "outing" as that given the public by the newspapers, he said. There are a number of instances where men are compelled through health or personal necessity to ask to be mustered out. The married men naturally worry over business and family matters, but are sticking to their tasks like men.

As yet, he said, there has been little chance for actual drilling because the work of making the camps absolutely sanitary has not yet been completed. The storms that occur at frequent intervals wreck havoc with the camps and trenches have to be dug to carry off the rain water.

HIGGINS LOST 22 POUNDS IN MONTH

Says Plattsburg Camp Training Brought Wonderful Results.

Twenty-two pounds lighter than when he left four weeks ago, Police Lieutenant Morris Higgins returned home yesterday from the military training camp for business and professional men at Plattsburg and was loud in praise of the work that is being done by the government. A fair sample of the condition the men of this country that are called on in time of war are in, he said, was clearly shown by the fact that it took three weeks of training at each encampment before the men were able to stand a week's hike.

Looking better than he has in years and weighing only 218 pounds, the lieutenant said that although the four weeks at the camp were full of hard work, there was no serious cases of illness and every one of the 7,026 men were in fine condition when camp was broken Monday. He was a member of Company G, Sixth Regiment, and had regular army officers in command, the lieutenant in charge of the company having just returned from the Philippines.

During the fourth week when they were on a hike along the Lossable River, the day's work began at 4:45 with reveille. Mess was at 5:00, and the order to march came at 6:00. After a march of usually ten or twelve miles with manouevres along the way, a halt was called about 12:30 for mess and the afternoon was devoted to cleaning up, putting up the tents and listening to instructions.

While on the march a pack was carried weighing forty pounds along with the rifle of eight pounds. A rate of three miles an hour was usually maintained, and ten minutes out of every hour was used as a rest period. Although the extreme heat and hard work affected some on the march, the specially provided water that accompanied the troops on motor trucks and the fine food kept the men in good shape, and sore feet was the only general complaint.

He leaves a wide circle of friends in the city. Funeral services will be held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Robert Deter, 742 West Front street, Thursday afternoon at 2:30. New York, Aug. 9.—Ready to intervene in the threatened strike of 400,000 trainmen on 225 railroads throughout the country, the three members of the United States Board of Mediation and Conciliation arrived here today at the request of President Wilson.

RAILROADS PROPOSE TO GO TO MEDIATION BOARD

New York, Aug. 9.—When the conference between committees representing the steam railroads of the United States and the leaders of the four principal unions was resumed this morning Elisha Lee, chairman of the railroad committee, read a communication to the four labor leaders, the substance of which was as follows:

"We have given careful consideration to all phases of the proposition which you have made. The demands are so extraordinary that we feel there is little probability of reaching a settlement through the medium of conferences. We therefore believe the only course to be pursued is to submit the whole question to the Federal Mediation Board, and we respectfully invite you to join us in making such an application."

ITALIANS TAKE TOWN OF GORIZIA

15,000 Austrian Prisoners Captured In New Offensive.

ENEMY LOSSES HEAVY

Wave of Enthusiasm Sweeps Over Country As News of Victory Is Received—Germans Strengthen Hold On Thiaumont Work.

Rome, Aug. 9.—The Italians have captured Gorizia in a new offensive that is carrying Austrian armies before it, according to an official announcement made by the War Office today. More than 15,000 Austrian prisoners have been captured in two days, and Italian cavalrymen are pursuing retreating soldiers beyond Gorizia. Enemy losses are tremendous. Everywhere the Austrians resisted with the greatest stubbornness, and many thousands were killed in addition to those captured. Rome was swept with a tremendous wave of enthusiasm today as fresh dispatches from the front brought fragmentary details of the fighting around Gorizia. The whole city was instantly baflagged when announcement of the capture of the bridgehead was made. A huge crowd gathered in Piazza Colonna and cheered the army, King Victor Emmanuel and General Cadorna. Similar demonstrations occurred in the theatres and cafes.

In other Italian cities, Milan, Bologna, Leghorn and Florence, great crowds gathered in patriotic demonstrations that lasted all night. The general conviction is that the War Office statement was most conservative, and that Italy is on the brink of a great and decisive victory that will send Italian armies marching on Trieste.

Teutons Retake Thaiumont.

Paris, Aug. 9.—On the Verdun front heavy engagements continued during the night for possession of Thaiumont work. The Teutons gained a further footing. The French hold the outskirts of the work. In the village of Fleury the French made some progress.

Germans Retire on 30-Mile Front.

Petrograd, Aug. 9.—The Czar's troops, extending the advantage reported in an early bulletin yesterday, have thrown back the Austro-Germans on a front of thirty miles, extending from Nadworna to Nisniof.

Nadworna, a railway city of 10,000, has been captured. The Russian centre is now within a few hours' march of the important city of Stanislau, whose capture will materially increase the danger in which General von Bothmer's army now finds itself.

Zeppelins in England.

London, Aug. 9.—Zeppelins raided the east coast of England early this morning and another Zeppelin raided southeast Scotland, without penetrating far from the coast, the War Office announced today.

Three women and one child were killed and fourteen persons injured.

The Zeppelins dropped a number of bombs on certain localities. They were engaged by coast guards and driven away from their objectives without doing any damage of military importance, the statement said.

SOCIALIST SPEAKER WAS A PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER

John D. Long, D. D., who will speak on "True Preparedness for War or Peace," under the auspices of the local branch of the Socialist party at the corner of North and Madison avenue, tomorrow evening, became a member of the Socialistic party in Kings county, N. Y., early in the Presidential year of 1908. At the time he was pastor of the Parkside Presbyterian church at Brooklyn, in the fashionable Flatbush section of the city. Dr. Long's step aroused general interest to such a degree that the Brooklyn Eagle devoted two pages to the doctor in the Sunday Eagle. Other papers have repeatedly given front page positions to his lectures on Socialism.

In the year 1908 Dr. Long became general secretary of the Christian Socialist Fellowship. He managed a three days' conference of the fellowship in May of the same year, which ended in the Carnegie Hall meeting at which Eugene Debs and other noted men spoke.

During that summer Dr. Long ran a Christian Socialist tent at Coney Island, and also conducted summer conferences on Socialism at Old Orchard Beach and Asbury Park.

Through the closing months of the Presidential campaign Dr. Long spoke frequently at party meetings in New York and Brooklyn. He brought Stitt Wilson from England and held meetings at which Mr. Wilson was the leading speaker in Cooper Union and Carnegie Hall.

After a time financial considerations compelled Dr. Long to give up his church, although he still maintains his ecclesiastical connection with the Presbytery of Brooklyn.

In recent years Dr. Long's activities have mostly been employed along literary and educational lines, but he is now giving some time to the campaign in this State.

TWO BICYCLES COLLIDE.

Albert Malakoff, the local newsdealer, was proceeding along North avenue towards his stand after the rain yesterday when another cyclist who was riding his wheel as rapidly as he could towards Bound Brook lost control of his bicycle, and it struck Malakoff's, knocking both to the ground. The two were smeared with mud when they rose to their feet. Both sustained a thorough shaking up, bruises and minor cuts. Malakoff's wheel was not damaged, but the front wheel of the other bicycle was wrecked.

Mrs. J. Newton Apgar will act as chaperon.

Glazier, of Plainfield; Benjamin Dodwell, Peter Benson and N. Willis Newman.

The porch was lighted with Japanese lanterns. The program of entertainment included dancing and singing, the feature being several vocal selections rendered by Albert J. Glazier. Music for the dancing was furnished by a Victrola. Refreshments were served during the course of the evenin.

It is said that the damage done to the Henry Dunham house, tenanted by a family by the name of O'Keefe, when it caught fire shortly after noon yesterday, evidently was a result of some wall paper which had been stored in a closet in the attic igniting by spontaneous combustion, was insignificant. The fire was discovered shortly after it started by a member of the family, who put it out with a pail or two of water.

The crusade of the Board of Health through the local police department against cats and dogs which are permitted to run at large, was inaugurated about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Marshal Harry Shugras correled a stray dog and took it to the borough hall for execution. It is said that the dog belonged to Louis Feldman.

NEW TYPE OF HERO IS DEVELOPED AT VERDUN.

Couriers Carry Orders to Front at Great Risk of Life.

The unexampled conditions of fighting before Verdun have developed a new type of soldier called "the couriers of Verdun." They maintain communication between the troops in the midst of the melees and officers commanding from the rear. The battlefield into which they dart with orders or after information is a desolate zone, where nothing but thick smoke, sometimes black, sometimes white, gives appearance of life. Excepting during the brief time of an infantry attack it is to all appearances deserted; the sharpest eye discovers no movement of humanity.

Occasionally a form is seen going over this desert land something after the manner of a rabbit, bounding into sight out of the herbs and above uneven ground to disappear again; leaping from obstacle to obstacle, from ditch to ditch, from shell hole to shell hole as it approaches the front line, at times vaulting, at others crawling and sometimes kept motionless for considerable periods by showers of projectiles sent over from the other side of the line for his personal benefit. This is the messenger of modern battle; he was never more needed nor more useful than at Verdun.

Not a telephone line can resist the incessant bombardment. Communications by carrier pigeons are uncertain, and optical signals are insufficient for various reasons. Nothing is certain except the man himself, and to transmit information and orders across that beaten field requires something extraordinary in the way of man.

The courier of Verdun is unable to use the communicating trenches, where he would be out of sight of the enemy, because that line is crowded always with soldiers going to or from the front line, with wounded being carried back, with men of the commissary department carrying provisions to the men on guard. That is too slow a route for the courier. He must take his chances of being sighted—and hit—above ground.

The first formidable obstacle to pass is the zone that is beaten by "drum fire," where eight inch, six inch and four inch shells are bursting with formidable explosions, sending showers of shrapnel over the whole zone. In going through this ordeal the courier sees everywhere the spectacle of death, stumbling over corpses, sometimes runs into a cloud of poison vapor, before he has crossed it. Once through he is within range of the smaller guns and the deadly quick firers.

During the whole distance of a mile or two miles, according to the position, his nerves are at the highest tension, with his mind on the end of his mission and at the same time on the obstacles that are multiplied each instant in his path.

PAPER FROM COTTON STALKS.

German Testing Station Announces Important Discovery.

The royal material testing office at Grosslichterfelde, a suburb of Berlin, announces paper can be manufactured from cotton stalks.

The discovery was made, it is stated, by a German institution while carrying out a commission from an Egyptian firm given before the war. A shipment of stalks which had arrived from Egypt before the opening of hostilities was used for the experiment.

The stalks were cut and ground, boiled and bleached, and the paper making then proceeded after the usual methods. The result moved the testing office to arrive at the decision cotton stalks are a good material for making paper.

Lincoln B. Palmer, manager of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, said that, although private and governmental laboratories had been seeking for years to find a suitable substitute for wood pulp in the manufacture of paper, nothing had been produced that would stand the test.

"If the Germans have solved the problem," he said, "they will have rendered the United States a valuable service, and it ought to bring millions to the inventor of the process. The discovery, if true, should prove a boon to the paper making industry in this country."

HUMPHREYS COMES BACK AT SEN. EDGE

Tells Why He Is For Col. Colgate For Nomination for Governor.

Camden, N. J., August 9.—Harry R. Humphreys, son-in-law of David Baird, is out with a vigorous response to a statement of Senator Walter E. Edge, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, to the effect that there was only one man in Camden county against him and that this man had lost a State job by the passage of the "Economy and Efficiency Bills. Although Senator Edge mentioned no one by name, it is pretty well understood that he referred to Mr. Humphreys.

"If Senator Edge did mean me," says Mr. Humphrey in a formal statement, "he is circulating a misstatement when he says he put me out of office with the Economy and Efficiency bills. My term of office with the Water Supply Commission expired on June 23, 1915, and Governor Fielder then appointed Henry S. Scovell, of Camden, in my place. The commission was not merged with the Conservation Commission until July 1, 1916.

"Should it be possible Senator Edge refers to somebody else, as there is no reason to believe he does, he has overlooked the fact that I also am against him and that several hundred of the best people of the city of Camden have signed my petition for Colonel Austen Colgate for the Republican nomination for Governor.

"It would seem strange that Senator Edge should attack me simply because I am advocating the candidacy of Colonel Colgate, I believe, for various reasons, that Colonel Colgate can be elected. He is from that section of the State in which the great bulk of the population lies. He is from Essex county, where he will get a big plurality. I believe he can hold down the Democratic plurality in Hudson county, where his factory is located and where most of the employes reside. They are working for him. There is a reason for this. At the head of the great plant of Colgate & Co., manufacturers of soaps and perfumes, he has been a successful business man in the best sense, as he has been able to make money for himself, at the same time giving his employes good wages, under the very best of working conditions. I have been through his factory, and came away impressed with the happy, healthy lot of employes there.

"For the reasons I have given and because of his clean personal and political record, Senator Colgate is to me the strongest candidate the Republicans can present. I also believe that, if nominated, he will greatly strengthen the candidacy of the Republican nominee for President. It seem to me that, with the Democratic Presidential candidate coming from New Jersey, we Republicans should place in nomination a man whom we shall not have to defend on election day and whom we can enthuse over. The Democrats don't want Colgate nominated because they regard him as the hardest man to beat."

The statement of Mr. Humphreys follows a similar statement by Editor Charles M. Folwell, of the Mount Holly Mirror, in Burlington county. Senator Edge has declared that in Burlington, as in Camden, there is only one man against him and that that man was put out of office because of the Economy and Efficiency bills. It was clear that he was hitting at Mr. Folwell, who formerly was secretary of the State Water Supply Commission.

Mr. Folwell said in his statement that he tendered his resignation as secretary in May, 1915, because he was not in a position to give the office the time required. He says that his resignation was entirely voluntary and that after he resigned Nathan Pendergast, a Democratic lawyer of Jersey City, held the position for thirteen months.

"Senator Edge and his so-called economy legislation," declared Mr. Folwell, "had nothing to do with my retirement from office."

TECHNOLOGY TELEPHONES.

Alumni of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology In Thirty-five Cities Hold Grand Reunion by Telephone.

"Carty's Hall"—the United States of America—was the scene recently of a nation-wide demonstration of the telephone, when thirty-five cities were linked together at one time for the celebration by the alumni of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology of the fiftieth anniversary of their Alma Mater. The meeting is described in The Telephone Review, N. Y., which says in part:

"Simultaneous and continuous communication was held between the largest number of cities that had ever been thus united, and their geographical separation only enhanced the achievement of bringing into personal intercourse these distant places."

The most distant of the thirty-five cities were 4,850 miles apart (Seattle and New Orleans) and 74,532 miles of wire connected the entire group. Over 1,700 alumni "reuned" over the wire, singing songs, cheering, and pledging money for the new Technology buildings.

The cities which participated, and the number present in each, follows:

1. New York, N. Y.	130
2. Schenectady, N. Y.	42
3. Syracuse, N. Y.	78
4. Rochester, N. Y.	78
5. Buffalo, N. Y.	35

32. Portland, Ore.	30
33. Spokane, Wash.	63
34. Seattle, Wash.	93
35. Boston, Mass.	2,784
Total	4,737

President Charles A. Stone of the Alumni Association presided, and introducing Mr. Carty, chief engineer of the Telephone Company, to the audience, which was assembled in thirty-five cities, he said:

"We are gathered here this evening to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the activity of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Pure science and technology have combined to make possible in 1915 many things which in 1865 the most courageous prophet would not have dared to predict.

"Perhaps the most marvelous of all the achievements of science is the power to transmit the human voice three thousand miles and more. The courtesy of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company has made it possible for us to speak this evening, not only to the alumni and guests in Boston, but also to the alumni gatherings in thirty-four cities in different parts of the United States.

"We are honored by having with us at this banquet a man who has been active in the Telephone Company since its inception, and to whose genius much of the marvelous development in long distance telephony is due. I take pleasure in presenting Mr. J. J. Carty, chief engineer of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company."

Mr. Carty's response quickened the pulse of his hearers. He said:

"To-night, in recognition of its great debt to the Institute and to its graduates, the telephone art does homage to Technology. The telephone system of America, planned and built with the aid of Tech engineers by the hundreds, is vibrating, in all its parts, with the thrilling words of congratulation and achievement coming to the Institute from its graduates everywhere attending this great continental reunion.

"Nothing could be more pleasing to us men of the telephone than to acknowledge by this demonstration our gratitude for the great services you have rendered to our art and to testify to our faith in even greater achievements which you are to attain in the future.

"I wish I could call the roll of the Tech men who have made notable contributions to telephony, but there are so many things now to be done that I must pass on by saying that Tech men are everywhere in charge to-night.

"This great undertaking is in their hands, and I am proud to announce that my distinguished colleague, Mr. A. W. Drake, '05, is in supreme charge of the thousands of men and the tens of thousands of miles of wire placed at your service to-night by that great and loyal Tech man, Theodore N. Vail.

"After a roll call of the cities present, and addresses to the entire assemblage in the various cities, by President Maclaurin, Dr. Michael I. Pupin, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell and Mr. Orville Wright, greetings were exchanged between the president of Harvard and the president of Chicago University, and between a number of professors and alumni in Boston, Seattle, and San Francisco. One of the most impressive features of the occasion was the cheering. The cheer leader, Mr. H. W. Goddard, '04, would call for cheers from the North, then the South, then the East, and the West, and the alumni would respond in the following groups:

NORTH.
Akron	Chicago
Cleveland	Milwaukee
Detroit	Minneapolis
Dayton	Duluth
Indianapolis	Urbana
SOUTH.
Washington	New Orleans
Atlanta	Cincinnati
Birmingham	Louisville
WEST.
St. Louis	San Francisco
Kansas City	Los Angeles
Denver	Portland
Salt Lake City	Spokane
Anaconda	Seattle
EAST.
Boston	Rochester
New York	Buffalo
Schenectady	Harrisburg
Syracuse	Pittsburgh
Philadelphia

When each group had cheered separately, they would all cheer together, and to hear the long M. I. T. cheer coming from nearly five thousand throats in all parts of the country was wonderful.

At the close of the evening Dr. Maclaurin called the roll of all the cities and said good night. Each responded, as it was called, with a felicitous expression of congratulation to him and to the Institute.

The last number on the program was "The Star Spangled Banner," played in Washington, D. C., every member present standing the while. President Stone was so impressed that he requested it be played again that the alumni all over the country might join in singing it.

After the formal proceedings, many lingered at the wire to hear the reports of the contributions that were coming in. A mysterious "Mr. Smith" was announced as giving $5 for every $3 the alumni raised, up to a limit on his part of $3,500,000, and before the evening was over a total of $2,666,666 was raised.

MOBILIZING THE GUARDSMEN.

How the Telephone Was Used to Speed Up the Concentration of Troops.

When the President called out the militia, a little before midnight on June 18, there was one agency to which those who were responsible for the mobilization knew they could turn at once in the swift work of ordering out the men. From one end of the country to the other telephone wires began to be busy making the myriad arrangements that were necessary. The Telephone Review, N. Y., describes some of the work the telephone did in the mobilization of New York and New Jersey troops, and this may be taken as typical of the situation throughout the Union.

In New York State, where the task of mobilization was the greatest, it was expected that 17,000 men would be in camp within five days after the call came.

The Twenty-second Engineers were among the first to be ready—they had received their orders by telephone on Sunday night just after Governor Whitman had received the word from Secretary Baker, at 10.45 p. m. The Sixty-ninth, the first to leave New York City in a body, had much of its swiftness and efficiency of mobilization to attribute to the telephone. Colonel Louis D. Conley, of this regiment, was one of the first to receive the order. He immediately called up James Mullans, the armorer, on the telephone and ordered him to telephone the word of mobilization to the men. Two hours later every man in the regiment had been ordered out.

The officers in charge of the mobilization as a whole have been constantly dependent on the telephone in handling the stupendous undertaking with such record-breaking speed. General O'Ryan, after being in almost constant touch with the organization of the National Guard throughout Monday night, the nineteenth, got General Leonard Wood on the long distance telephone and went over the situation with him in the early morning of Tuesday. Governor Whitman, just before leaving New York State for Massachusetts, where he was to deliver an address on Tuesday, received official reports from General O'Ryan and Adjutant-general Stotesbury by telephone. One of the first measures to be taken to facilitate the mobilization was the installation of special telephone wires at General Stotesbury's office. "By this means," says the report, "the adjutant-general's office can be kept in almost constant touch with every part of the State." The order for immediate installation of telephone equipment at Camp Whitman was received by the telephone company early Monday morning. A line of poles was already available and by six o'clock that evening crossarms had been placed, three miles of wire run, and the line was working into Poughkeepsie. By the night of the twenty-third a two-position switchboard was working with 3 direct lines to New York, 5 to Poughkeepsie, 1 to Pawling, 1 to Beacon, and 1 to Hopewell Junction, with wires to all parts of the big encampment, taking care of the local service.

In New Jersey it was the same. The order from Secretary Baker was received by Governor Fielder over the telephone. The text of the order for the State-wide mobilization of the militia was approved over the telephone by Governor Fielder, so that it could be immediately transmitted throughout the State without waiting, while the messenger took the document to Jersey City, where it had to be signed, and back to Trenton. At the militia encampment at Sea Girt the news came at 12.15 Monday morning, when a megaphoned shout, "General Hine wanted on the telephone," aroused the camp. In a few moments General Hine had returned from the telephone and gathered his officers about him to hear the announcement.

In one New Jersey town at least, a bugler was sent through the streets before daylight, but it was the quiet, efficient method rather than the spectacular, that was generally adopted, and most of the guardsmen were notified by telephone, each officer telephoning to his immediate subordinates, right down the line. It was these business-like methods which characterized the mobilization from the first, and were responsible for New Jersey's splendid record of completing her mobilization in three days.

Although the order for mobilization had not been unexpected by the officers of the National Guard there was enough to be done in the way of providing additional accoutrement to overtax less well-telephoned officers than those of the Guard. They managed the infinite detail of the purchasing with speed and dispatch, largely over the telephone. Colonel Bostwick, assistant to Adjutant-general Stotesbury, found it necessary to purchase twenty-two motor trucks. He got into communication with a concern which had 500 such trucks all ready to ship to Russia. "You can have as many of those machines as you want," he was told. "A couple of hundred of them will be at your service, if the National Guard of New York needs them." But an option on the twenty-two was all that was needed until Colonel Bostwick got the State comptroller at Albany on the telephone wire and asked him for an allowance of $75,000 to pay for the trucks and some other supplies. This is typical of the rapidity with which the necessary steps were taken to equip the 600 acres at Camp Whitman to receive the 17,000 men and care for them properly when they assembled.

The news of the call was published in the newspapers Monday morning, and this was the first information that many of the guardsmen had of the sudden change they would have to make in their affairs. And their readiness was apparent in the early hours of Monday, for the telephones at the various headquarters began to ring with inquiries from the men who had seen the news and wanted to know if they should report at once. In many cases the official information had been sent out to the men of the companies by telephone, and in other cases the men themselves sought their instructions by telephone.

PLAN PARALYSIS HOSPITAL IN UNION

Committee Will Report at Mass Meeting In Elizabeth Friday Afternoon.

A committee consisting of Health Officer Louis J. Richards, of Elizabeth; Freeholder Elias J. Applegate, representing the hospital committee of the board, and Dr. John T. Brickell, of Rahway, president of the Associated Health Boards of Union county, is at work trying to determine whether or not an isolation hospital for infantile paralysis patients is necessary in Union county. The committee will report to a meeting of the hospital committee of the Freeholders and the Associated Health Clubs Friday afternoon.

It was appointed at a meeting held in Elizabeth Monday afternoon that was attended by Health Officer Chandler, of this city.

Chairman Hall has sent out letters to the Mayors of cities and boroughs of the county, as well as to the chairmen of township committees, asking them to meet in the courthouse in Elizabeth at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon to tell "in plain English" how well prepared they are to care for any patients of their own. Before planning for a temporary structure, Chairman Hall intends to be sure that there is need of such a building. After the conference of the Mayors and chairmen it will be possible for the committee on estimates to go ahead rapidly and wisely.

The committee will carry out plans for a temporary structure along lines suggested by Mayor Mravlag. The Mayor is of the opinion that a temporary building should be put up to care for the overflow of patients after Elizabeth's isolaton hospital was filled. He did not specify whether the city or county should pay for this building, but suggested that the city should bear the cost of the hospital in return for the various municipalities paying the board and medical expenses of their own patients. He argued that rather than charge Elizabeth 40 per cent. for a county building, the larger cities should be made to take care of their own patients, and Elizabeth could look after the smaller ones.

"If you saddle us with another white elephant like the Bonnie Burn Sanatorium," asserted Mayor Mravlag, "you might as well have a monument built for yourselves, for that would be the biggest blunder you could make. There is neither time, money nor the legal machinery for erecting a permanent isolation hospital," continued the Mayor, "and the only thing to do is to put up a temporary shed."

In his opinion the question resolved itself into whether the county should build the hospital and pay for all patients, with Elizabeth paying for its own, or that the different municipalities pay a fixed rate for each patient they send in to a building put up by the city. The Mayor closed his talk with this parting shot: "If you make us build a large hospital, you'll have a small Board of Freeholders."

MAY RECONSIDER AND LIGHT BOROUGH CLOCK

The North Plainfield Board of Education will likely reconsider its action in refusing to light the big clock in the tower of the Somerset Street School. This was decided on at the last meeting of the board, and a communication was addressed to the Common Council notifying that body of the fact that the clock was dark in the hopes that the expense would be borne by the Council. However, the communication was not favorably received, and Mayor Smalley and other officials left no doubt as to their position. "If the Board of Education wants us to light the clock, let it be moved to the City Building," said Councilman Stahl, and that is the position of other members of the board. A petition urging that the board reconsider is being circulated in the borough and it will be presented at the next meeting.

HOUSE ADOPTS REPORT ON THE COMING ARMY BILL

Washington, Aug. 9.—By a vote of 81 ayes to 9 noes, the House today adopted the conference report on the army bill. The conference report has already been adopted by the Senate and the bill now goes to President Wilson for his signature.

SHAPE OF THE SHOE.

It Is Radically Wrong, and All on Account of the Last.

In the American Magazine Dr. Arthur R. Reynolds, former health commissioner of Chicago, tells of the many troubles that can make life miserable and that come from feet that were neglected in childhood. Among other things he says:

"Children should go barefooted at all times while indoors and through the summer. They should never wear any foot covering at any time that in any way distorts the toes or any part of the foot or that interferes in any way with its normal growth and development. The same may be said of adults.

"Any reform in the shape of shoes must begin with the shoemaker's last. Shoemakers do not seem to be able to get away from form and beauty in shaping it. It is shaped largely by guess and is pointed and turned up at the toe. No normal foot is so shaped.

"The only rational last is made from a plaster cast of the foot while bearing weight, and the mold can be made only of some semi-solid material that hardens when cool or dry. There is little hope of getting a rationally shaped shoe until the wooden last is totally discarded. It is safe to assert that good looking and nondeforming shoes can be made without it."

The Magic Shave.

The man with a retreating chin may grow a beard and hide it, or he may frankly shave the exiguous offender, careless whether it recedes or not. The utmost candor may be seen in a shaven chin, and of all the manly, valorous qualities that of candor, downrightness, may be ranked first. The weakness attributed to a retreating chin may be canceled by shaving it. The man who accepts his face as nature gave it to him, braving it to the world without concealment or decoration, must be classed among those with the manly quality. Cartoonists and novelists have waived the weak chin to the limbo of the inefficient and inept. Let the man without the masterful jaw take heart; he has but to shave to show the qualities desired.—Atlantic.

Too Sensitive.

It was the first night after the show. The leading woman's mother was downcast.

"What's the trouble, dear?" asked the leading woman in surprise. "I made a brilliant hit tonight."

The old lady was surprised.

"Did you, Sophie? I heard the audience shouting 'Play right! Play right!' and I thought you had failed."

And the leading woman laughed in amusement.

"Why, my dear, they were shouting 'Playwright! Playwright!'"—Chicago Tribune.

Oil Wells In the Ocean.

One of the most novel and interesting sights along the California coast, especially to tourists, are the oil wells in the ocean at Summerfield, southern Santa Barbara county. Long wharves carry the scores of derricks which mark the location of these unique wells. The field is small, covering about 125 acres.—Argonaut.

No Game.

Pat and I were watching a game of chess. Suddenly I turned to him.

"Have you the time?" I asked, glancing at his watch pocket.

"Sure," replied Pat. "I have the time but not the inclination."—Princeton Tiger.

Sometimes.

Willis—What is it called when two people are thinking of the same thing at the same time—mental telepathy? Gillis—Sometimes; other times just plain embarrassment.—Judge.

How It Was.

Landlady (sympathetically)—Why, how did you fall downstairs, Mr. Lanks? Boarder (with dignity)—Unexpectedly, ma'am.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Vacations Wanted

If you could rescue one little child or one overworked mother from the city's hot, glaring walls and pavements and stuffy rooms, and give them an outing at the beach with bountiful food, rest, coolness, fresh air, a daily dip in the surf, shady porches and sandy beaches, would you not regard such a gift as well worth giving?

Such a gift is entirely within your power. Ten thousand of these mothers and children are waiting for invitations to our Sea Breeze Summer Home. You can send as many as you will for a day, a week or a fortnight.

Allow 50 cents a day or $3 a week for each person, and direct your gift to George Blagden, Treasurer.

Volunteers are wanted in every town to plan a fair, sale, entertainment or lawn party to raise special Sea Breeze vacation funds for certain poor mothers and children whose circumstances are particularly distressing, and whom clubs, societies, classes, schools or churches can adopt as their special guests at Sea Breeze. Write for suggestions for planning a fresh air fund fair in your own town or your summer home.

A printer's best work is not obtained on the competitive basis. It cannot be.

The man who asks for competition in price seeks estimates on so much stock, composition and presswork and nothing more. He does not bargain for the skill, originality, time and individuality of the printer, and he does not get them.

We get only what we pay for in this world and nothing else that is worth having.

Press' printing is the result of ceaseless efforts to render the best service.

JOHN D. PROTESTS AGAINST TAXATION

Wants Assessment On "Comfy Little Home" Cut Down.

New York, August 9.—If it were not for the persistency of tax collectors life for John D. Rockefeller would come considerably nearer to being a dream of eternal bliss. As it is, the tax men seem determined to dig into the Rockefeller coffers and take out such gobs of money as would relieve Mr. Rockefeller considerably of the burden of looking after his wealth. The "richest man in America," however, seems to have no desire to be relieved in such a manner. That is why he, or his legal representative, is going to appear before the Board of Assessors of Tarrytown tomorrow to protest against the increased assessment on his Pocantico Hills estate.

The Standard Oil magnate admits that he has a very "comfy" little home within the bailiwick of the Tarrytown tax collector, but he is not ready to confess it is worth anything like the value placed upon it by the assessor. Three-quarters of a million dollars would be a fair valuation, in his opinion, and he might be willing to boost it a few notches higher in order to avoid any controversy over the matter. But when the assessor places the valuation at $1,324,000, an increase of nearly half a million dollars over last year, Mr. Rockefeller thinks it is time to utter a vigorous protest.

And when protests are unavailing in such matters Mr. Rockefeller has the habit of invoking the law in an effort to prevent the collection of what he declares to be exorbitant taxes. Last October he obtained an injunction in the United States District Court in Cleveland preventing the enforcement of tax collections on his Cuyahoga county holdings, which the authorities there rated at more than three hundred million dollars.

Cuyahoga county filed an appeal against the injunction in the United States Circuit Court and has since been busily at work endeavoring to obtain evidence to prove that Mr. Rockefeller is a legal resident of Cleveland.

It is rumored that the legal representatives of Cuyahoga county are preparing to spring a surprise when the case comes up for hearing in the circuit court here this fall. In their possession, so it is said, is a duplicate of a balance sheet compiled on the occasion of Mr. Rockefeller's seventy-seventh birthday, on July 9 last, which is alleged to show that his private fortune, exclusive of endowment funds and other benefactions, exceeds a billion dollars, which means that Mr. Rockefeller's wealth exceeds that of any other man in the world, and, indeed, in the history of the world.

Of the enormous total nearly $500,000,000 is said to represent Mr. Rockefeller's holdings in the various Standard Oil companies and their subsidiaries. He holds approximately 247,962 shares out of a total of 992,383 shares issued in all the companies. The stock is now quoted around $1,700, about three times what it was before the Federal courts issued an order dissolving the great corporation into independent companies.

The remainder of Mr. Rockefeller's fortune, it is understood, is show in the enormous holdings of various railway and banking corporations, the United States Steel Corporation, and in national, municipal, State and in foreign bond issues. Among his holdings, it is recorded, there are $10,000,000 of Anglo-French war bonds, floated in this country last year by the Allied Commission.

Cuyahoga county intends to fight and fight hard to establish as a legal fact that Cleveland is the bona fide home of Mr. Rockefeller, and that the bulk of his enormous wealth is subject to taxation there. If the authorities succeed in the fight—well, then Cuyahoga will be able to lift the indebtedness off its new $500,000,000 courthouse and buy a few blocks of the surrounding land for a park.

ARRESTED FOR VIOLATION OF QUARANTINE LAWS

The first case of prosecution for violation of the quarantine laws since the infantile paralysis epidemic started over the State is reported from West Orange. Frank L. Tyson, a New York lawyer, is charged with having not only shown contempt for the quarantine laws, but with having twice removed a quarantine sign from his door. The Board of Health has engaged an attorney to press the case against him, and it will be watched with interest by officials of every municipality in the entire State.

TELLS WILD TRIP FROM ANTARCTIC

Shackleton Man Has Little Hope For Those Left Behind.

750 MILES IN OPEN BOAT

Hardships of Polar Regions Described by Member of Crew Who Has Now Reached London—Drifted Into South Georgia Just as Food and Supplies Were Exhausted.

Harry McNish, a member of the Shackleton antarctic expedition, has arrived in London, bringing details of the terrible experiences undergone during the escape from Elephant island.

McNish told how Sir Ernest Shackleton led the little party in an open boat 750 miles through mountainous seas, driven by great gales and filled with floating ice. They were forced to jettison most of their supplies and even lost their sea anchor. During the weeks of struggle they ran out of water and food, but finally reached South Georgia island.

McNish has little hope of the rescue of the men left behind on Elephant island.

"Perhaps the worst fact we have to reckon with regarding the men left on Elephant island," McNish said, "is that they may think the small boat in which we reached South Georgia island has foundered with all hands and that consequently the world is still ignorant of their fate.

"It was, I suppose, one chance in a hundred that the boat ever would get through, and time after time it was only by a miracle that we escaped drowning. It was only by an act of Providence that we were able to make Elephant island at all. Even then the wind blew everlastingly, and we had to crawl on our hands and knees to make headway against it.

Had to Find Help.

"The chief decided that a push must be made to the nearest land where help could be found, and I was set to work to fit our largest boat for the adventurous voyage. It was a difficult job, but with the help of George Marston, the artist, and McCarthy, a seaman, who made a great hand at sewing frozen canvas, the most difficult proposition in the way of sewing that there is, we managed to make good.

"We decked the boat with sledge runners, box lids and canvas and made it as seaworthy as possible, but even then it seemed a crazy craft in which to sail 750 miles through ice and gales.

"The journey was almost worse than our expectations. Though we set out with a fair wind, that was the last decent weather we had, and for a fortnight there was a constant succession of storms and gales. I do not think we saw the sun half a dozen times, and it was very difficult to get an observation.

"Ice was constantly forming on the boat and was the worst handicap we had to face.

"One man was employed all the time in cutting the ice away with an ax, but we were never free from ice, and we had to jettison quite a lot of stuff, even the oars, to keep the boat afloat.

"A week after we started, while hove to in a gale, we lost our sea anchor, the rope being cut by the ice.

"This seemed to be almost the last straw, but Sir Ernest Shackleton rose to the occasion, and I never saw him in better form than he was that day.

"'We are going to get there all right,' he said when things seemed perfectly hopeless. And, sure enough, we did.

"We first sighted the west coast of South Georgia. It was during a great snowstorm, and, as we knew nothing about the tide or the island, we had to hold off until daylight the next day. The wind was blowing a hurricane, and we had great difficulty in keeping the boat afloat on a dead lee shore and it was hopeless to try to land.

"When we got to South Georgia—on the wrong side of the island, as it happened—we were just about at the end of our water. We were all frostbitten, too, but the main thing we troubled about was something to fill our stomachs, and that we found soon after landing."

FRUIT BASKETS STANDARDIZED

House Passes Bill to Stop Cheating by Small Containers.

The bill of Representative Reavis of Nebraska prescribing dimensions for standard baskets for interstate shipment of grapes, small fruits and berries has been passed by the house.

Grape growers of New York and southern and western small fruit and berry raisers advocated it to protect them against competitors using undersized containers.

Patriotism In This Will.

The late Judge John D. Crabtree of Dixon, Ill., had five sons. A part of his will reads: "Enjoin upon my son John and all of my sons that should the occasion arise (which God forbid) when our country requires their service that they be as ready to devote their lives to her defense as their father was in the dark days of 1861 and 1865. It seems to me now that I could hardly rest quiet in my grave if a son of mine was so unpatriotic or so cowardly as to fail to respond to the call of his country in its hour of danger or peril."

DE MEZA WINS FROM HETFIELD AT GOLF

Match Will Long Be Remembered By Few Who Witnessed It.

A match that will live forever in the memory of many local golf enthusiasts who witnessed it was staged on the links of the Hydewood Golf Club yesterday afternoon, when City Judge William G. DeMeza and Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter Hetfield, Jr., played nine holes for the championship of the police court. Unmindful of the baby cyclone or other drawbacks to the afternoon's engagement, the two toiled through an hour of golf with the result that the Judge came off with first honors, with a score of 62 to 90.

The caddies for the match were so exhausted at the end of the play that they wanted to sit down in the middle of the links and spend the night. Councilman Alexander Milne carried the bag for Walter Hetfield. Judge DeMeza's sticks were handled by Dr. Hillman. The official timer for the affray was Robert Hand, who filled the position like a veteran.

With spirits dampened by defeat the counselor was explaining to his friends at the Elks' Club last night how it all came about.

"The Judge has been practicing for two weeks, while I had only one week to practice. But I beat him putting, anyway!" added the defeated one as his chief adviser and first aid, "Doc" Whelan, made his entrance.

"Doc" is having a hard time accounting for his protege's defeat, but says that with one more week of practice his man will challenge for a return match.

NETHERWOOD AND HOPES PLAY ON PARKER FIELD

The baseball game between the Hope Chapel and Netherwood City League teams will be played on Parker Field on Saturday. It was originally intended to play this game on Soccer Field, but the managers held a conference and agreed to play on the playground field.

The fact that a change in the plans has been made will make it necessary for Pete Simmons to change the playing field for his attraction with the Queen City outfit. According to Manager Houston, of the Queens, this game will be played on West End Field.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

A GREAT many of our most prominent men, commercial and professional, are drinkers of Beer. They keep it in their homes and they serve it to their friends.

They serve it because, besides being a delightfully refreshing beverage and a splendid quencher of thirst, it has a distinct food value and, when used in moderation, is decidedly beneficial to health.

They believe with Henry Watterson that

"The introduction of Beer in America has done more for Temperance than all the Temperance Societies and all the Prohibition laws combined."

Prof. T. J. Clouston, of Edinburgh, said:

"Alcohol is a food and may in a diluted form be a very valuable adjunct to ordinary foods by exciting appetite, improving digestion and stimulating certain nutritive processes."

WALTER HAGEN LEADS.

Playing a steady game in the morning round and making a brilliant recovery from a poor start in the afternoon, Walter C. Hagen, of Rochester, metropolitan open golf champion, led the largest field that ever started in the annual Shawnee invitation tournament, with a score of 75, 75—150. For the thirty-six holes Long Jim Barnes, of Whitemarsh Valley, who forced Hagen to a play-off for his metropolitan title at Garden City, was only a stroke behind the leader, followed by Jack Campbell, of Old York Road, with 162; Jack Dowling, of Scarsdale, with 153; Emmett French, of York Country Club, and Gil Nicholls, of Great Neck, with 154, and Herbert Strong, of Inwood, and Bob McDonald, of Buffalo, with 155 strokes each.

BASEBALL

Even pastiming with the Reds doesn't take the lustre off the brilliant work of Hal Chase.

Just as the Braves were showing the stuff that champions are made of, Hank Gowdy busted the best thumb he owns and will be out of the game for a week or two.

Manager Fielder Jones announces that the Browns have graduated from the easy picking class and from now on will slam every American League team they run against.

Speaking of the cracking of several of our very best pennant contenders, Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn Robins opines that there is nothing like that in the Robin family.

Baseball critics who predicted the fading of the Red Sox crew through the loss of Speaker have retreated across the field and taken up a new position behind the scoreboard.

About the only way Connie Mack can break even is to provide the Athletics with skiing regalia and send 'em to Norway. The ability to slide downward would cop the world's record.

It does seem that the breaks are always against some of our pastimers. There's Bobby Wallace. Bobby quit the Browns to become an umpire. And now he has quit umpiring to rejoin the Browns.

Tilly Shaffer, who quit the Giants and retired from the game, declares there is more action in golf than in baseball. We never heard of any riots on the golf links.

After waiting long and patiently for his couple of million dollars' worth of White Sox to show something, Charley Vomisgey now can plainly see the 1916 banner on the centre field flagpole.

Pitcher Cicotte is giving Faber a good run for the leadership among the White Sox heavers. Very good, Eddie.

News of the Athletics' doings has now narrowed down to the writing up of Larry Lajoie. There is nothing else of interest ever happens among the Mackmen.

Now that he has his Cubs lined up for the great drive against the National League strongholds, all that General Tinker and his troops has to do is to take New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Brooklyn.

Honus Wagner could like to have the scribes lay off the big writeups of his wonderful work until after the close of the season. Two or three hundred columns about Honus had just been published when his batting average began to shrink.

The Giants now have the same infield—Merkle, Doyle, Fletcher and Herzog—with which they won the championships of 1911, 1912 and 1913. Having stopped winning pennants at '13 the chances are that the Giants will remain stopped.

FAMOUS POLO PLAYER KILLED ON THE SOMME

JESS WILLARD MAY FIGHT NEWARK MAN

And now comes Harry Pollok, director of the business destinies of Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion, and of Charles Weinert, a heavyweight championship hopeful, and declares himself thus:

"The Hundred Million Dollar Athletic Club, which is staging the Welsh-White championship contest at Colorado Springs on Labor Day, is already after another big attraction. Yesterday I received the following wire from Eddie Pitts, matchmaker:

"'We are prepared to offer Willard $50,000 to box Weinert for the heavyweight championship. What are your terms? Answer immediately.'

"This looks as if Weinert's persistent efforts for a crack at the heavyweight title are to be realized. Weinert is recognized as the leading contender for Willard's laurels, and has found it impossible to get such men as Fulton, Moran, Morris, Dillon or Coffey to meet him."

Pollok thinks the proposition has numerous characteristics of attractiveness. Meanwhile Willard calmly pursues peaceful pursuits with a circus.

HUGHES INVADES NORTHWEST.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 9.—Tonight the Twin Cities are to extend to Charles E. Hughes, Republican nominee for President, the first of the series of demonstrations planned for him in the Northwest. The visit is the first that Mr. Hughes has paid to this section of the country since 1908, when he made a Western campaign tour for President Taft. In both St. Paul and Minneapolis, in both of which cities he is to deliver speeches tonight, the business sections are displaying a profusion of flags and bunting in honor of the distinguished visitor. The morning trains brought many Republican leaders from all sections of Minnesota anxious to take part in the welcome to the head of the national ticket.

MEN'S ASSOCIATION OF PLAINFIELD — BUSINESS MEMBER — RELIABILITY SERVICE VALUE QUALITY

The Review of Reviews. of Plainfield and Its Business

The "Loyal" Plainfielder takes pride in the city's progress.

"Where do you live?" is frequently asked of travelers, and those travelers take pride, if they're loyal, in naming the city or town from which they came.

Plainfield "is" progressive; she's reached a period of decided progressiveness, preparedness.

The government of our city is doing wonders, the marks of progressiveness of our Council stand out in bold relief. As a mark of efficiency, national attention is attracted here to our automobile manufacturing, machine shops and printing press works, and other great plants.

And they're not over-night promotions, either, these industries, but, they're substantial institutions that have been tried and found true, by many long years of successes, through good, bad and indifferent times, and again, results, Plainfield stands on the brink of a still greater prosperity, so prosperous that not a hint of its inefficiency in any direction can be pointed to by the most jealous rival of our city's progress.

Our city has been most fortunate in avoiding ever, serious labor troubles, serious business failures, serious calamities of any kind that have been noted so frequently in many directions throughout the land—well, all things to Plainfield, "Plainfield Right or Wrong," but, Plainfield's right.

Our Plainfield retail mercantile establishments, what of them? Barring a very few, they have been successful to an extent made possible by a combination of the conservative and the progressive; both must go hand in hand to bring about successful results, and so Plainfield can point with pride to her retail mercantile establishments.

May we especially point out the stores of the members of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield? Stores that have had uninterrupted growth for as long as the oldest inhabitant can remember. But, in all their growth, nothing has equaled that of the past year; and incidentally, nothing has equaled that of the present spring season.

THE CALL FOR CALKINS.

Mayor Leighton Calkins says that he does not want a second term, and there is nothing to cause surprise in the announcement. He has served the municipality for one term, and during that time has given to the duties of the office several hours each day—all of which were taken from the allotment of time to the practice of his profession, and from that set aside for recreation or to be spent at the home fireside. Mr. Calkins has served the city at a sacrifice, as does every one of those who sit in the Mayor's chair or in the Common Council. This sacrifice should be recognized by every voter in the corporate limits, and they should be individually appreciative of the offering to good government.

However, the people have a claim on the services of Mr. Calkins that is to be recognized. Public servants that are conscientious, intelligent and are interested in government are rare, and when a man is proven to have every qualification for a public office that office has a valid claim upon him in the final analysis of responsibility in democratic government.

The frazzled claim of justness in a second term has lost its meaning to the people, because it is always involved in a job-seeking candidate, but it is nevertheless true that an office-holder who has demonstrated his honesty and efficiency through one legal period deserves the responsibility for a second term. This is an obligation that rests upon the people, but the obligation is not predicated upon the personal whim of the office-holder. If he has given good service, then it is incumbent upon him to accept a second term, so that the masses of voters may benefit from the experience and training that he received through their good judgment in selecting him to govern. Mr. Calkins has made a good mayor. His administration has been one of constructive municipal legislation, of progress that is permanent, and of management of city affairs high above the dirt and slime of petty politics. No other man in the service of Plainfield has given so much real thought to the future of the municipality, we believe, and the Calkins' administration will not only be a model for future mayors, but in the years to come city officials will continually find that some emergency arising in their time had been foreseen and planned by an intelligent man who occupied the chair in 1915 and 1916.

Mr. Calkins has been a popular mayor. He has not reached down to the level of some of our citizens, nor has he "played to the masses," but he has been mayor of all the people, and he has governed wisely. We believe that the people understand and appreciate this, and that they want him to accept the office for another term. We know that those familiar with municipal affairs will insist on his acceptance of the nomination, for they recognize the service that he can render in the mayor's chair again.

However, he has said that he is not a candidate. Unless he can be made to feel that the people want him he will not permit the use of his name in the coming campaign, and it will be necessary to elect a man to whom the duties of mayor will be new, and the best that can be hoped for him is that at the end of his first term he will be as good a mayor as Mr. Calkins is now. Mr. Calkins will respond to a public call. If he can be persuaded that he is needed, he will again make the personal sacrifice. This we know, because we know the conscience of the man.

- Proctor's Theatre -

June Caprice, William Fox's latest star, appears at Proctor's today, supported by Harry Hilliard, in "Caprice of the Mountains." Its leading lady is the subject of a test, a theory held by William Fox. The details have been published widely and the name of June Caprice is already well known. The experiment as announced is to prove this theory, that any young girl without stage or picture experience who is possessed of beauty of the childlike, innocent type and with the charm of simplicity, may, if given the right sort of advertising and fitting plays, rival at once those established film stars who head the list of favorites. Now for the little lady herself. She is beautiful, she wears her hair in tangled curls which fly about her face, she laughs and puts and runs away. She is a perfect type of the screen ingenue, which film fans have proved that they like. The play, which was written by Clarence J. Harris, is well chosen. It is a sentimental story, beautifully presented. The photoplay, especially of the lovely outdoor scenes, is excellent, and a fairy story interpolated gives opportunity for charming pictures. Among other attractions today which include special comedy and educational subjects, Edward Coxen and Lizette Thorn are starred in a story of the sea entitled "The Fate of the Dolphin."

Tomorrow a Thomas H. Ince military play, entitled "The Deserter," is the headline photoplay offering, with Charles Ray, the popular young screen star, in a role admirably suited to his talents and ability. One of those mirth-provoking and renowned Keystone comedies will be another popular feature and an Edison drama, entitled "Celeste of the Ambulance Corps," will meet with popular approval.

On Friday and Saturday, in addition to the regular program of features, Charlie Chaplin will be seen in his latest two-reel comedy success entitled "One A. M.," a novel comedy creation for the reason that Charlie Chaplin is the only participant and creates a whole half-hour of uproarious amusement without a supporting player.

A leading feature of the program will be the formal dedication of the new museum building and the great concrete pier recently completed by the Scripps Institution for Biological Research.

Contentment.

I do not care for riches,
I am not built that way;
All that I hanker after
Are three square meals a day.

I do not care for mansions,
I long for no steam yacht;
I'm pretty middling happy
With comforts I have got.

I do not care for riches,
Or great powers—heaven forbid!
The reason is that it would make
No difference if I did.

Uncle Abner

When a man starts to goin' down hill there are plenty of friends ready to help him along.

A feller who has got the gift of gab generally lands somewhere, even if it is only in jail.

All things considered, a baby cab represents just about as much of an investment as an automobile.

There is a rubber trust in our town. The members of it stand out in front of the postoffice on windy afternoons.

Anse Frisby, our banker, says it is harder to break into society than to break out of jail. He ought to know. He has tried both.

Hank Frisby and his wife sold all of their bedroom suites, their gas stove and their dining room furniture to buy an automobile, and still some say there is no prosperity in this country.

Some of the poetry a young fellow writes to his gal sounds fine and dandy when she pulls it on him ten years after they are married.

As Our Brother Sees It.

Editors are all born boosters. The other day the editor was solicited to join a lodge and was handed a petition printed by a supply house in another city. He got a dun from a merchant in a government stamped envelope and written on a gargling oil statement; he made a purchase at a store and got a duplicate bill printed at Chicago and wrote a check on a blank printed at Denver. Ye gods, how can an editor expect to join lodges and pay bills on such treatment as that, and all the time tell the people to trade at home? Editors have to be born boosters, prepared to live on herring and stand for anything.—Verden (Okla.) News.

A White Pigeon Fish Story.

Robert Carnefix, our genial druggist, has leaped into the limelight suddenly. Not by introducing anything new in the way of summer drinks or selling a cure for the pip. Nothing so commonplace, gentle reader.

It was a fish.

Mr. Carnefix says he sawed this particular denizen of Fish Lake. The view he had was in broad daylight. The fish was close in shore.

Mr. Carnefix solemnly affirms that the fish was—well, five feet long, and built in proportion.

Any one doubting this story please call on Dr. Cady. He was particeps criminis, or judex loco, or, that is to say, he was with Carnefix at the time. The doctor says he had left his tape measure at home, but he agrees with his friend, the druggist, as to dimensions.—White Pigeon News.

SAND STORM HITS NEW JERSEY CAMP, BUT IT BRINGS RELIEF FROM THE INTENSE HEAT

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 4.—The unannounced arrival in the New Jersey camp of a terrific sand storm late this afternoon put to rout the almost unbearable heat of the past few days, swept the camp clean as a floor and gave the boys plenty of excitement for half an hour. The storm came up without warning and thirty seconds after the first cloud of dust had been picked up by the advance guard of wind the entire camp was enveloped in a sand storm of the most severe nature.

Men sprang to their tents with the first warning and made all haste to let down the tent walls and close up the entrance flaps. As quickly as they moved they were too late to prevent the sand being strewn over everything. Tents rustled in the wind, boarded-up walls of the officers' tents groaned and croaked. For several minutes one could not see twenty-five feet away, the dust was so dense.

A few tents were almost divested of their movable contents before their occupants could get the walls and flaps tied down. Papers went scurrying across the desert in the throes of the high winds or mounted high into the air if they happened to be caught in one of the spiral air currents that are so characteristic of this country.

The storm abated almost as suddenly as it started and the deluge of sand was followed by a most welcome spattering of rain that served no more serious a duty than wetting down the surface dust and cooling the atmosphere. The rain was welcomed by the men, who have been tramping through sand and sun-baked dirt for several days, owing to the failure of the rainy season to make good on its promises of daily showers. The rain turned the heat into pleasant cool and the men took a new lease on life. Tonight the oppression of the heat has left the men and they are singing and enjoying themselves to their hearts' content in their quarters.

The second resignation of a commissioned officer to be handed in since the New Jersey troops reached camp was that of First Lieutenant Frank A. Roberts, a physician in the field hospital. Lieutenant Roberts tonight handed his resignation to Major Harold D. Corbusier, commanding the field hospital. Roberts stated that business stress demanded his return home, where he is anxious to devote his time to his medical practice.

Following closely on the resignation of Captain I. Newton Davies, adjutant of the First Regiment, which reached Colonel John D. Fraser two days ago, Roberts' withdrawal leads to the belief that other resignations may follow quickly. While there is considerable talk of others coming, there is no confirmation of the reports to be had, and it is considered unlikely that there will be a very noticeable number of withdrawals.

The men are beginning to realize that the training they are getting here is merely in preparation for duty if the call should come and they are beginning to take more kindly to the hard tasks of camp life, realizing as they do that they are really learned many a lesson in their personal preservation. A slight relaxation in the demands from back home that the men return has also had a heartening effect upon the troops. Worry about families back home is being reduced to a minimum with the reports being received almost every day of the good work being done for the relief of the soldiers' families who need aid.

"This Right Leads All the Rest."

There are many men in the camp who are sticking rather than be called "quitters." Many of them have been hesitant about notifying their commanders that their families need aid. They are getting away from the idea of not accepting the support of the relief organizations and letters from homes back East tell every day of a better understanding of the situation and a better feeling toward the service that husbands and sons are rendering.

One Woman's Letter.

Colonel John D. Fraser today received what he calls the best letter he has gotten since the camp opened here. It came from Mrs. Henry Darcy, of Newark, and told him of the shipment of a large box of comforts for the men that had been donated by the Bamberger company. In the letter Mrs. Darcy wrote:

"We want every man to stay at his post. We are and will look after every family whose breadwinners answered the call. Trusting in this way to add peace of mind to the men at the front and share a little in the glories of doing something for our country."

Colonel Fraser had the letter read to every company, and it was followed by prolonged cheers from the men. Colonel Fraser today replied to Mrs. Darcy, who is the secretary of the Newark Branch of the Soldiers' Relief League of New Jersey, and told her that he appreciated the donations mentioned. He wrote that most all the men appreciated the spirit back of their work and the patriotic spirit that prompted them to assume the work of caring for the dependent ones back home.

Douglas is up against a near-ice famine. The local manufactory is unable to meet the huge demands for ice since the New Jersey troops came to town and it is both an expensive and an almost impracticable method to bring it here by rail. No ice has been delivered to the encampment for two days now and there is some doubt as to whether we will be able to get ice tomorrow. Even General Edwin W. Hine's brigade headquarters has been unable to secure ice.

For several hours today the green room in the Hotel Gadsden resembled the happy haunts of the Kickapoo Indians. The Indians came here from Sonora to receive money which is due them at this season from the United States. Each received about $100 which is due them as rental for his eighty acres of land along the North Canadian River in Oklahoma. The money was paid them by Disbursing Agent O. J. Green.

Indians See Charlie Chaplin.

While waiting for the arrival here of the disbursing agent and his interpreter, John Snake, the Indians, dressed in the gaudiest of clothes, have been "doing the town." This afternoon they went to see Charlie Chaplin in the movies and they had the time of their lives, according to all reports. They are camping near the city and will start their long trip back to Oklahoma tomorrow. They travel the entire distance overland.

When newspapermen tried to interview them they were very reticent, explaining through the interpreter that they feared to talk lest they say something that would hurt the tender sensibilities of the Great White Father, meaning the President.

After the rigors of the hot day and the hair-raising experiences in the sand storm, the steps of the officers tonight turned socialward. Scores of the New Jersey officers hied themselves over to Camp Harry J. Jones, the camp of the regulars, where they attended a reception and dance given in honor of Colonel Edwin F. Glenn, the new commander of the Eighteenth Infantry. The officers reported having a splendid time. The New Jerseymen are finding that they are popular at such affairs and they are taking their compliments very modestly, but are at the same time aiding in the effort which is under way to bring about more social activities in Douglas.

Lieutenant Harry V. D. Moore, of Englewood, one of General Edwin W. Hine's staff, and a party of other Amherst alumni, held a get-together dinner at the Country Club tonight. In the party were: Lieutenant Moore, S. W. French, general manager of the Phelps-Dodge mining interests here; Sergeant F. W. Goddard, D Troop, of Plainfield; Sergeant W. L. Righter, Troop D, Plainfield; H. S. Brewster, who is the rector of the First Episcopal church of Bisbee; S. B. Joost, Troop D, of Plainfield; W. H. Webster, Douglas; A. M. Morris, Douglas; C. J. Fairhurst, Fifth Regiment, New Jersey, and R. E. Ellenwood. Alexander Dade, a son of Lieutenant Colonel Dade, of the cavalry, who was the first cavalry leader to go into Mexico in pursuit of Villa, and who is expected here for a visit to his family tomorrow, was also present. He is to enter Amherst next fall.

A wonderful reduction in the number of men sick is to be noted every day. Great strides have been taken toward stamping out the dysentery outbreak and there is actually very little of it in camp now. Most of the illnesses are of a minor nature, requiring only a day's attention.

The telegraph company started this afternoon sending out a printed sheet of baseball scores to each outfit in the New Jersey camp.

ONE SOLDIER QUITS, BUT LATER REGRETS

Will Not Work For Democrats, He Says—10 Days at Hard Labor.

(By Telegraph to the Press.)

Douglas, Arizona, August 9.—Mrs. James F. Fielder, wife of New Jersey's executice, has forwarded a check for $150 to Colonel John D. Fraser, of the First Regiment, to be used to the best advantage for the boys. The money is to be used toward making a permanent hospital tent for the regiment. At every little storm the hospital tent blows over on the patients, and a conference of officers decided that it could be best expended for that purpose. During late storms Major Jean Wolfe, the regimental surgeon, and other medical officers, have faced the storm in their efforts to hold the tentage safe.

Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler, of New Jersey, has sent here the report of the senior recruiting officer for the State. It shows recruits enlisted as follows: First Infantry, 48; Fourth Infantry, 22; Fifth Infantry, 57; Signal Corps, 1. All of the new men have been sent to Fort du Pont, it is stated.

John S. Castmore, a private in Company D, of Paterson, the Fifth Regiment, made the mistake of his life yesterday. He is meditating over it now between spells. Castmore refused to do some work yesterday when a non-commissioned officer told him to work. He spoke very harshly of the Democrats, accusing them of all manner of things and winding up with the declaration that he wouldn't work for them any more. The noncom smiled a little around the mouth and told him he would be arrested.

"That would suit me," said Castmore. "Arrest me and put me in the guard house. I won't have to work if you do that."

Little he knew about it because half an hour later Lieutenant Colonel Gilmor A. Cydmus, the summary court officer, sentenced him to ten days at hard labor. He is now enjoying the pleasure of digging all by himself a big hole in the rocklike earth. He has lost his ideas of no work in the guard house.

DON'T FEAR THE WATER, DON'T ENTER AFTER EATING, SAYS ANNETTE KELLERMANN

Do Not Try to Float at Once; Do Not Hold Your Head Too Far Back; Keep Your Hands Four Inches Under Water; Your Feet Near the Top and Use the Combined Breast and Leg Stroke.

Article No. 8.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

Before I ask you to enter the water—and we are now ready—I desire you to become as well acquainted with water as possible. Whether it is a pool, or the seaside, a lake, a river or pond, does not matter.

First of all, you must not be afraid of the water, for while it is true that water is a good servant and at the same time a bad master, this does not apply to you if you understand it.

Self-Confidence Is the Greatest Asset You Can Have.

One of the most important things to remember is this: You must never enter the water directly after eating. This has been the unfortunate cause of many deaths by drowning due to cramps. Let at least two hours elapse before entering the water, otherwise your stomach will be subject to too great a strain and this will cause paralysis of your other muscles and result in cramps. As this is a very easy matter to avoid I hope you will not disregard my warning.

When you enter the water give your self a good "dousing" at once. Don't enter the water and "dabble" about with your feet and then wait until you think you can stand it. That is wrong, for the blood rushes up and may congest.

Don't be afraid to give yourself a good "ducking," in shallow water, at once. You will feel much better and will learn to swim far more quickly.

Do not try to float. The first thing to do is to obtain a broad canvas belt and have this placed under you so that your body rests on it and you are perfectly balanced. Ask some person to hold the handles and slowly drag you along in shallow water to where it is deeper and where you can use your arms and legs freely. Tell the person to add just enough strain on the belt to hold your mouth out of the water. Now go through the motions I taught you. Do not let your feet down too far; try to keep them up near the top of the water. But do not let them splash out near the top. Keep them just under the top of the water.

Don't keep your head back too far for that will make your legs sink. Now your hands must remain four inches under the water. That is on your first forward movement of the arms. Try to do this movement slowly and gracefully.

Your friend must not exert undue efforts to keep you afloat and if you carefully follow the directions I have just given you it will not take you half an hour to master the art of swimming.

Do not attempt to master the movement in a few lessons, for while a great many of you will be able to swim by this method in a few minutes, it is always better to be sure of yourselves before venturing out alone. Then as you improve you can dispense with the belt and remaining near the shore where aid can be rendered quickly if needed, proceed with your lesson.

The most important thing to remember is, perefection of movement, for if you ever wish to become a good swimmer, you ust be able to swim with a perfect and even stroke. Learn to time your movement. Your first effort at swimming and distance should be restricted to ten or twelve feet.

But when you swim that ten or twelve feet swim it well and watch your every movement for in that lies the secret of long distance swimming.

Some time I will tell you of my experiences and how I had to start, you will then realize what I mean when I ask you to perfect your movement.

Tomorrow Miss Kellermann answers many questions you have asked her in your letters to the Plainfield Daily Press. Be sure and write, asking her about anything connected with swimming, sports and athletics, about which you are in doubt.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ethel Learns From the Lips of Mrs. Morton Just How Useless She Is.

"You are no fool. That is what exasperates me—that you should be one of the women who hinder men's lives from having any nobleness in them. You make yourself a tormenting insect that robs life of all quiet." Mrs. Morton looked with grave displeasure at Ethel's drooping little figure before her.

"You don't know me. I never nag, I am good natured. Everybody always said I had a good disposition." There was an appealing desire to gain the old lady's favor.

The old lady shook her head. "You have nothing to guide your life but idle fancy and selfish inclination. You give your soul up to trifles." Ethel looked down and fingered the cushion of the chair.

"Life is a solemn thing, and you must either be a blessing or a curse to many, especially to your husband, for there is something awful in the nearness marriage brings." There were tears in the blue eyes that looked up at the stern accusing face, and the lip trembled as she said:

"I do not want to hinder Ralph, I ——"

"You who care to be a bird, trimming its plumage and pecking about for what pleases it, fancy you are like a bird, a blessing because you are so beautiful. But women can not be like that, mere ornaments, graceful things of beauty. God gave them souls and such a life dwarfs the soul. You are discontented with your world because you can not get all the small things that suit your pleasure," continued the old lady, determined to drive home the truth while the girl would listen.

"I never thought of it in that way. Ralph always said I would be something lovely to work for. If I made his life happy I thought I was doing what a woman was made to do, but it was all a mistake. He does not love me any more." She showed signs of weeping.

"You spoil your husband's life. He can not help loving you and so is made a slave to your petty desires. All toil is for things that have no part in real life. His life is stunted to match your littleness."

Ethel was sobbing out her humiliation over this terrible arraignment into her filmy handkerchief.

"I'll never go back to him. I will cease to spoil his life. He is a grand man and must do big things in life." The words came between sobs.

"There, there, child, none of that." The old lady's voice was almost kind. "You never had a chance in life; never a bit of education. Now that you ——"

Ethel lowered her handkerchief and a flicker of a smile crossed her face as she said: "Oh, yes I did. I graduated from Mrs. Sayer's finishing school."

"Humph!" Mrs. Morton gave a mild snort. "That may have given you schooling, though I doubt it, but schooling is not education. Education is a preparation for life and you have had no preparation."

"And I am twenty-two years old," said Ethel dismally.

"If you were forty-two it would not count if you were awake and ready to learn." Mrs. Morton took the useless white hands in her own.

"We'll teach these hands to do things in the world, and we'll teach the head to think. What do you say?"

"Oh, Mrs. Morton! Will you help me to learn to be a good wife to Ralph?"

"We'll begin right away." The old lady patted the hand she held and smiled down into the tearful face looking up into her own.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

A King Finds Grethel In The Woods.

Grethel Was Much Frightened.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

WHEN the children clapped for a story daddy told them the fate of Hansel and Grethel: "Hansel, who had been turned into a fawn by a spiteful fairy, you remember, always managed to get away from the king's huntsmen in the woods. But the king finally called one hunter and said, 'Take me to the little hut you found in the woods.'

"So the hunter and the king went to Grethel's cottage, where the hunter had watched and listened the night before, and when they reached the door they said, 'Sister, let me in!' just as the hunter had heard the fawn ask.

"Then Grethel, thinking it was her brother, opened the door, and in walked the king.

"Of course Grethel was much frightened to see it was not her fawn. But a king with a golden crown on his head had come into her hut. He stood and looked at the maiden, who was far lovelier than any he had ever seen at court, and he spoke kindly to her and took her hand, saying, 'Will you come with me to my castle and be my wife?'

"'Yes; I will go to your castle,' answered Grethel, 'but I cannot be your wife, and my fawn must go with me. I cannot part with him.'

"Said the king, 'He may come with you and want for nothing.'

"Just them in through the door sprang the little fawn. So Grethel tied her little rush string around his gold bead collar, and together she and Hansel and the king left the little hut in the woods.

"Then the king led them all to his palace, and on the way Grethel told him her story—how a spiteful fairy had threatened her and Hansel with evil, how they had taken her wand and fife to protect themselves and how the old fairy had stolen them back while they slept and turned Hansel into a fawn."

"Was the king sorry?" asked Evelyn.

"So the kind king sent for the old fairy and made her wave her wand and turn the fawn back into Hansel again. And he and Grethel loved each other very dearly and were married and lived happily together all their days in the good king's palace."

"Oh, daddy," cried Jack, "how could a boy marry his sister?"

"Ah," said daddy, "you forget that Hansel's father, the woodchopper, found a little girl baby up in a treetop and took her home to grow up with his own little boy. The children were not really related."

"We liked that story best of all!" cried the children.

And daddy hugged them both.

BARNYARD PLUMAGE FEATURED
By Mary Glynn.

For a while the eager followers of fashion were at their wits' end wondering what step would be taken in the World of Millinery, for, to all appearances the sailor held full sway. Gradually clever draped turbans appeared, different from those shown any previous season—some with and some without brims. Then the pressed beaver creations appeared in many unusual and very attractive styles. The trimmings varied from ribbon—usually grosgrain, braid, and occasionally buttons, but the most distinctive and striking features was the barnyard plumage that was introduced. Guinea hen, pheasant and many other species difficult to name have appeared, to produce some of the most attractive and unusual creations.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

ATHLETICS' POOR SHOWING.

Connie Mack once was the manager of a real baseball team. No man would accuse him of being that just now. The Athletics have been traveling at such a poor pace, that half the fandom in Philadelphia does not know that the team is still in the league. The players on the team are out of place in the American League. One or two of them could not get on one of the City League outfits, not alone holding down a position in the major league. The Athletic outfit is possessed of three good pitchers with one other promising man on deck. The three "good" men are Joe Bush, Nabors and Elmer Myers. Jack Sheehan is also one of the men around whom Connie Mack centers his hopes of not falling out of the cellar of the circuit. One New York writer, commenting on the poor showing now being made by the Philadelphia squad says, that the team is a disgrace to organized baseball and an insult to the fans of the Quaker City. In our opinion this scribe is perfectly correct in his statements. If Connie Mack relies on past performances to carry him through this season, he is making one great blunder. It is said that Connie has intimated that he will retire from baseball before he will sell another baseball star. That's an odd statement, considering the fact that Mack has no more "stars," excepting, of course, "Stuffy" McInnis. And even "Stuffy" has felt the sting of the Philly decline. Who would have thought that the Athletics of not so long ago, would ever be the Athletics that they are today? We cannot answer.

PITTSBURGH PEN PUSHING.

Unacquainted as we, unfortunately, are with the sport writers of this period, we beg to comment on one of them. He is a Pittsburgh scribe, and living as he does so far out of the reach of the circulation of this paper, will not, perhaps, get a chance to see this article. As clever as any sport writer ever was, he has one fault, and that is centered around the fact that he can see no good in the Pirates. He is willing to console them, send them flowers and all that. But as to giving them a little "boost," even though they may not be worthy of it, he says nothing. If the team is weak, as many fans believe, it should be treated, at least, with pity. But this scribe does not believe in that. He is one of the sort that praises a man for something done. That plan is not prompted by unusually broad-mindedness. Giving a man a boost because he has tried is worth ten times as much value as giving a man a boost because he has been successful. There are many of us who never try and we are not entitled to praise. But the man who makes a game effort and fails, tries again and fails and then makes a fresh start is the man to be praised. The Pirates are men of this sort. Give them a chance, Mr. Sporting Editor, give them a chance. No names have been mentioned and we know that no local person can guess to whom this is consigned. It has a local moral, however, and, perhaps, we can profit from the example it sets.

• • • • • •

GIVE HIM A CHANCE.

Ollie O'Mara, said to be the "Kerry Patch" lad, is a victim of the rabid, unfeeling "rooting" of the bleacherites. Ollie is the promising little shortstop of the Brooklyn National League team. He is ambitious and is said to be a likeable chap. Last year he broke a leg and was laid up for some time. The accident came at a time when the "sandy" fellow was just entering upon what promised to be a successful career. His return to the fold this year was met with adverse criticism of the fans who haibitate the bleachers. They seemed to take a delight in making life miserable for Ollie. Now, we are not personally acquainted with the young fellow and, naturally, do not know what sort of a fellow he really is. But we do know this much. His personality is by no means as offensive as that of many other popular diamond lights. His ability as a player has been vouched for by many fans of intelligence, who have seen him play. Just why a certain set of fans desires to make things generally unpleasant for O'Mara we do not know. But we do know that the sooner Brooklyn fandom decides to "give Ollie a chance" the better for the team in general. If the Dodgers are to win a pennant and if the fandom of the City of Churches wishes a pennant won, all this "crabbing" or "picking-on" the sandy-haired O'Mara must stop.

• • • • • •

ARE THE BRAVES BASEBALL PLAYERS?

Percy Haughton never made a reputation as a prize fighter. At least, we never heard that he did. But when he assumed the ownership of the Boston Nationals, he took over the reins of a "prize-fighting" machine, equal to any in the world. But there is the prevalent opinion that this pugilistic attitude of the Braves is not for the best interests of the team, and that the club would benefit very much were is put to an end. Such an opinion is correct. The latest episode in the Braves' "fighting" serial, is the late lamented fist fight between Johnny Evers and "Red" Smith. The papers do not say which player won the fight. Neither do they record any baseball battle won by virtue of the conflict. If Johnny Evers does any more prize-fighting he will be permitted to talk business with Jess Willard's manager. He will have no more use for baseball. The Braves, presumably as a result of internal dissension, are having a hard time. They are in the running, that's true. But the fact that they will not remain in the running long, if these fights continue, is also all too true. The Madison Square Garden promoters will be hot on Percy Haughton's trail, if care is not taken at once.

HAVE A HEART, JINX.

The Jinx has been hovering around the Yankee camp too long. Why is it that he does not take a trip to another clime? Manager Bill Donovan cannot reason out the situation. Never before in the history of baseball has a team been so completely disrupted by injuries. And, in addition to the large casualty list, the unfaithfulness of "Slim" Caldwell has struck the New York management a terrible blow. Caldwell has broken the training rules and has been fined for doing so. His infringement comes just at a time when he is needed most. He is not entitled to sympathy. He has been treated very fairly and has done nothing, this year at least, to show his gratitude. Such a player is a side-partner to "Jinx," but is no friend of "Jinks."

If you are a student of the "ads" you KNOW WHAT IT OUGHT TO COST.

The "buyer for the home" who does not read the ads is as unprogressive as the merchant who does not advertise.

At the Traps

(By Harriet Hammond)

Pinehurst was the scene of much bombarding the past winter and the first thought of the new arrival as she stepped off the train at this resort, was that she had landed on the other side of the waters by mistake. She was soon reassured, however, that such was not the case and that the report of the shotgun and smell of powder meant only pleasure, health and the best of sports to the bombarders.

The Pinehurst women this year under the guidance of Mrs. Frank Butler, better known as Annie Oakley, have taken up the sport of trapshooting, the newest and most alluring of all the outdoor sports, and have had lessons every morning under this competent instructress.

A recent letter from Mrs. Butler says:

"Since coming here I have had 819 pupils of my own sex and a few boys. One whole family started, and some of my pupils have shown so much skill with the rifle and shotgun that I am very proud of them."

Eight hundred and nineteen new women shooters in 20 weeks certainly speaks well for the sport of trapshooting, and when we consider that last summer there were nearly 600 women who took part in the "Beginners' Day Shoots" at the gun clubs throughout the country it means that 1,400 recruits have joined the army of women trap shots during the past year.

Women and girls all over the country have found out for themselves the fascinations and delights of this splendid outdoor sport, and since they have learned that it is not alone a sport for men they, too, enjoy breaking the elusive blue rocks, and many of them have become so proficient that they are able to compete in tournaments and matches with the male experts.

There are few trapshooting events scheduled now in which women are not asked to participate, and the men are not only proud of them, but their hearts throb with delight when they realize that they have real comrades in their wives and daughters who are not only interested, but able to take part in their best loved sport.

At the Westy Hogan tournaments at Atlantic City for the past two years a number of women shooters from different sections of the country made their entries and received the heartiest of welcomes from the "Hogans."

Women have taken part in the annual trapshooting tournaments held in connection with the Sportsmen's Show in New York city for several years and have displayed wonderful skill in the handling of the shotgun.

This year they are to take part in the biggest of all the trapshooting tournaments, the Grand American Handicap. The Interstate Association for the Encouragement of Trapshooting, at their annual meeting, decided that the women had earned their place in this important event and the blistering August days will see them from all parts of the country lined up at the traps during Grand American week at St. Louis, Mo.

The wonderful growth of trapshooting among women in the past three years proves conclusively that it is the coming outdoor sport for them. Up to April, 1913, there were only 30 known women trapshooters in the United States, and very few of them were active.

That spring a few outdoor sport-loving women of Wilmington, Del., fascinated by the sport of trapshooting through frequent visits to the local gun club, made up their minds that they, too, were going to try their hand at breaking the elusive clays. The gun club management gave the women permission to use the club grounds one afternoon each week and also provided a competent instructor to teach them to shoot.

On the first afternoon 11 women presented themselves for instruction and each week the number increased to such an extent that by July it was deemed advisable to organize a women's trapshooting club. Constitution and bylaws were adopted and the name Nemours Trapshooting Club was selected for the first women's shooting club.

Regular shoots were held each week and the good work of the women and the reports of the good times they were having influenced women in all parts of the United States to get together and shoot and while there have been no other organized women's trapshooting clubs there are a number of auxiliaries to men's clubs and a large number of women who are shooting regularly with the men at their weekly shoots.

Aside from the fascinations of trapshooting, we must consider the great benefit of the sport to women and young girls. As a strengthener of muscles and a steadier of nerves it cannot be surpassed. It also causes women to lose all signs of timidity and makes them fully competent to take care of themselves under all circumstances.

The frail, delicate girl starts out with a little 20-gauge shotgun and a correspondingly small load. At first the gun seems heavy and she looks in perfect amazement at her chum who can handle a 12-gauge. After a few weeks, however, her muscles become accustomed to their new work and she is able to put her gun to her shoulder easily and gracefully, for she is no longer conscious of the weight of it. In six months' time she, too, asks to be promoted to the larger bore gun and soon handles that as well as she did the little 20-gauge.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

Things That Never Happen—The Athletics receiving the plaudits of the baseball public.

When it comes to umpiring a baseball game there are few men who can handle the indicator in better fashion than "Ump" Corigll. The local man earned for himself considerable praise by working almost faultlessly in one of Saturday's contests. Performances of the calibre of his exhibited on Saturday certainly are few and far between in this City League of ours.

Ira Vail is now a "hero." He umpired in the City League and was not assassinated. His next step will be an attempt at umpiring in the Southern League. After that he will be unable to step. But, setting aside all efforts at comedy, Vail's work on Saturday was not so awfully bad. He did his best and was satisfactory. He missed a few, but they all do that.

It's so hot these days that it is no wonder that some of the New York players are complaining of injuries. We would do that little stunt, too, if the doctors would keep their distance.

Dan Randolph executed several fancy catches on Saturday. Dan is an old reliable, and anything that he does, is done with a will. He can hit, field and coach, but he does not like to run the bases. Neither does John Terry. By the way, John is another reliable Baptist. He and Dan are the mainstays of the club.

What Shakespeare Missed—(Apologies to Tom Power)—The Farmer baseball team in action.

It is said that the Red Sox have a "scout" in New Brunswick. It might be well for him to take a little trip over this way. Welcome, "Scout" McCarthy! New Brunswick papers please copy.

"Informant" asks where we get all the "stuff" we put into this column. In answer to the inquiring one, we might suggest that he read the metropolitan dailies.

Poor Cliff Randolph was given a shower at Washington on Saturday. The Washington papers say that the eight runs scored on him in the eighth inning were due to the fact that Cliff was overcome by the excessive heat and could not slip over his usual assortment of curves.

Wanted—Nine batters of recognized ability. New York Giants preferred. Address Jim Scott.

They say that there are no holes in the regulation bats. But there are nine baseball players in this vicinity who are eager to testify that there are holes in regulation baseball bats. They are also ready to swear that several dozen of Russ Ewart's curves passed through these holes. May be so, at that.

There is no truth in the rumor that Charley Chaplin has signed up with the Netherwoods. Kindly "down" the rumor whenever you hear of it, gentle reader. We do not want Charley in this city. He might be looking for our job. You know he isn't satisfied with the million he gets. He wants something bigger and knows he can (?) get it here.

NEW ATHLETES ORGANIZE.

Application for membership in the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union has been made by the Red Star Athletic Association, composed of employes of R. H. Macy & Co. There are a number of other mercantile and business houses now represented in A. A. U. affairs through athletic associations composed of their employes. The Red Star Association has secured permission from the Board of Education to use the Brooklyn Athletic Field for competitive purposes. Attempts were made to get the Gravesend Bay race track as the headquarters of the club, but without success.

—If you have something to rent, you have something to advertise—and something that it will pay you to advertise adequately and persistently.

DESPERATE RACE ON FOR SECOND PLACE

Dunellen, Hope Chapel and Tab Teams Still In Running For Honors.

While the City League championship race has lost much of its "spice" owing to the comfortable lead assumed by the Netherwoods, nevertheless, there is a great battle on for second place honors. The games played on Saturday demonstrated that three teams are in the running, with the chance of each being about of equal value.

By virtue of a double defeat handed the Farmers, Tommy Apgar's Dunellen squad advanced to third place, just a half game in the rear of the Hopes. The Tabs are close behind and may spring a surprise at any moment. The three-cornered race for second place honors will extend to the end of the playing season, inasmuch as one of the teams concerned has a game at the last moment.

Each of the three managers is confident that his charges will eventually capture the honors, but a close examination of the material on each team shows that each squad is fortified in at least one department, excelling the other in that particular brand of work. Of the three teams the Dunellen outfit looks the best on paper and, as some say, on the diamond. The Hopes are a wonderful aggregation and have been battling with a will. The addition of Jack Garretson should materially strengthen the Chapel chances. The Tabs, if they keep up the pace they set in their last four games, will find the going hard. The Abstainers have been going very poorly of late, injuries being partly responsible for the poor showing made. However, the Fourth Street lads are due to brace and will make thiings lively for their rivals.

ENGLEWOOD GOLFERS DEFEAT PLAINFIELD

Local Women Forced to Give In to Visitors On Plainfield Links.

Competition in the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association tournament was continued yesterday afternoon, but of the scheduled matches only two were played, the remaining being forfeited. In the matches played Englewood defeated the local golfers over the Plainfield Country Club course by 9 to 3. In the match between representatives of Baltusrol and Forest Hills, over the latter club's green, the honors were even, each team having a total of six.

The other scheduled matches which failed to materialize were: Glen Ridge against Hollywood; Montclair against Norwood; Arcola against Cranford, and Hackensack against Westfield. The results follow:

ROYAL GIANTS ARRANGING ATTRACTIONS WITH PROMINENT CITY LEAGUE TEAMS

Manager Pete Simmons Agrees to Play Dunellen On August 19 and Queen City on August 12—Tabs to Be Played On August 20.

The manager of the Royal Giants baseball team is at last awaking from his slumber and is arranging diamond attractions as quickly as conditions will permit. On Saturday he will lead his team against the Queen City Club on Parker Field, and expects his lads to "bring home the bacon." The Queen City outfit is the one composed of the best players of the Westfield A. A. and Plainfield A. C. teams.

It was announced this morning that on August 10 the Royals will play Dunellen at Maurer Oval. The Dunellen team has not City League game for that date, and it is expected that a large crowd will be on hand to witness the fray. As announced previously, the colored fellows will take on the Tabs at Avon Oval on August 20. This is the second game of the series, and should prove exciting. The Netherwood manager is being sought by Pete Simmons and a game with that team is not entirely out of the question. The East End clan is recognized as the "champion" outfit of the league and the Royals, if they succeed in defeating Dunellen, are entitled to a game with Netherwood.

The Knights of St. Peter, of New Brunswick, were willing to pay the Royals, but the guarantee did not suit the local leaders. If the Knights come a little higher, perhaps the Royals will make the trip. That the Royals would prove a tremendous attraction in the Middlesex city is true beyond the shadow of a doubt. There is only one position that should give the Royals cause for worry. That position is pitcher. "Senor" Maiden may be good, but he is no "iron man."

TROOP IN NEED OF FLY SCREENS

Volunteers' Auxiliary Ask $400 to Protect the Mess Hall.

SCOURGE ON BORDER

Men Hardly Able to Eat For Flying Pests—Tooth Paste, Shaving Necessities and Towels Sent By Individuals.

A fund of $400 is needed at once by the Volunteers' Auxiliary of Plainfield to screen the kitchen and mess hall of Troop D, so that the men on the border can eat with some safety from flies.

The Volunteers' Auxiliary of Plainfield and North Plainfield realize that a great number of people are out of the city on summer vacations at the present time. Still, the Auxiliary feels sure that the health of the men of Plainfield, who are members of Troop D, stationed on the border during this torrid weather, is a matter of interest and concern to the whole city of Plainfield and North Plainfield as a community.

It is with great pleasure that the Auxiliary acknowledes having received through contributions about $.50. They have left on hand $197.00, after having made their August disbursement. However, $400 additional is needed as soon as possible.

During this hot and rainy weather on the border the flies are so numerous that it is, without exaggeration, almost impossible to take a drink of water or to eat any food without having your cup or plate full of flies. We people, who live in the North, cannot realize what a regular scourge of flies there is down in that territory at this season of the year. It is very necessities and requirements to proand kitchen should be enclosed with wire screens.

This was an item that the Volunteers' Auxiliary had not figured on when the Auxiliary was originally started. Therefore, if $400 can be obtained as soon as possible, it will take care of the screening of the mess hall and kitchen and likewise the September disbursement of the Auxiliary ,and it will not be necessary to ask Plainfielders for any considerable amount of money for some little time. It is very necessary, however, that we do get this additional money as soon as possible for certain necesities and requirements to protect the men's health.

D. C. Ivins, of Hillside avenue, recently sent down a most useful contribution to every member of Troop D. There are, all told, in that organization, 103 men, and Mr. Ivins sent down nine dozen tooth paste, nine dozen shaving powder and nine dozen talcum powder, which would mean that each man in the troop would get one each of these essential necessities for their personal use.

Then again, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Delafield, chairman of the Prince of Wales Relief Committee of New Jersey, acted promptly in regard to the needs of the troop in the way of gauze, towels, handkerchiefs, wash-cloths, etc., and after conferring with Mrs. Allen Cowperthwaite, of the Ladies' Supply Committee, arranged at once for the preparation and shipment of 600 of these gauze articles to be expressed to Troop D. This generous contribution and the promptness with which it was arranged by the ladies of the Prince of Wales Relief Committee will certainly be much appreciated by the members of Troop D.

The people in Plainfield must realize that any money that they are contributing to the Volunteers' Auxiliary is under no condition being spent for delicacies or comforts but only for absolute necessities and articles for safeguarding the health of the members of Troop D.

Those who have contributed to the fund follow: E. R. Ackerman, R. F. Murray, Leighton Calkins, Mrs. S. B. Joost, Miss E. B. Hartridge, B. O. Bowers, E. F. Feickert, Anonymous, F. C. Colton, B. M. SENTENCE SUSPENDED.

Carrie Johnston and Mary Johnson, two colored neighbors of West Fourth street, were in city court this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct. The quarrel started over money matters and ended in the court-room. The Judge suspended sentence with the understanding that the two shake hands and be friends.

WEAVERS' STORY OF LOCAL SILK STRIKE

Say They Want Right to Organize and Small Salary Increase.

The weavers of the Jersey Silk Mills, who are out on a strike, made a statement today through an authorized agent, in which their grievances against the local company are set out. They say that a meeting was held on the night of July 20, at which the question of an organization was brought up, and that on July 22 four weavers, accused of being leaders in the organization movement, were dismissed. A committee was sent to the superintendent of the mill to demand the reinstatement of the men, and upon his refusal to put them back to work the strike was decided on. The weavers insist that they will not surrender, and that they will continue to strike until their demands are met. A small increase in salary is also demanded by the strikers. The Jersey Mill is not tied up because of the strike, but resumed operations Monday morning. Its management declares that the men who quit are no longer with the company, and will not be allowed to take back their jobs.

SUFFRAGISTS WILL MEET IN SEPTEMBER

National Association to Convene in Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, August 9.—The forty-eighth annual convention of the National Amercan Woman Suffrage Association will be held here September 6 to 10. The principal work of the convention will be to decide whether the association will confine its efforts in the future to federal or State legislation, or both.

The convention will determine among other things, what course the suffragists will pursue to press the advantages won in the endorsement of their cause in the platforms of the various political parties. Leading suffragists are enthusiastic in the belief that the developments of the convention will pave the way for what they confidentially assert is the inevitable establishment of national suffrage for women.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, of New York, president of the association, will preside over the convention. Dr Anna Howard Shaw, honorary president, is expected to address the delegates. Former Justice Charles Evans Hughes, Republican Presidential nominee, and Theodore Roosevelt have been invited to speak. Mrs. E. F. Feickert, of Plainfield, is in charge of arrangements for entertainment of the delegates.

TAKE CARE OF HANDS, MOUTH AND NOSTRILS

"If commuters and others who pay frequent visits to New York, or any other infected locality, will pay careful attention to their hands, mouth and nostrils, I believe we will have fewer cases of infantile paralysis in Plainfield," said Health Officer Ollif, of the Borough of North Plainfield, last night. It was during a conversation on the disease when the question of contagion came up.

"Of course, no one knows exactly how infantile paralysis is carried," said Ollif. "The strongest microscope has not yet revealed its germs. It is communicable in some manner, and as infection is heavy by districts, the germs are probably borne by air. However, they are also carried by the human body, or in clothing, and any father coming home from New York may deposit death on the lips of his child with his evening caress. An ordinary precaution would be to wash the hands, mouth and nostrils in salt water solution. Put half a tablespoonful of salt in a pint of water and wash with that, but be certain that the water has been carefully boiled. This should always be done before going home."

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature recorded at The State Trust Company today was as follows: 9 a. m., 66 degrees; 11 a. m., 67 degrees; 1 p. m., 68 degrees.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

NO CHANGE HERE IN HEALTH RULES

New State Order Will Not Be Strictly Enforced In Plainfield.

FANWOOD IS ALARMED

Two Cases Yesterday—Plainfield and North Plainfield Have Not Had a New Case Since First of This Week.

The new order of the State Board of Health putting all of New Jersey under quarantine will not change the situation locally. It gives to Health Officer Chandler and his assistants more authority, and will greatly lessen their work by reducing the number of children coming to Plainfield from outside sources, but there will be no attempt here to guard all entrances to the city and absolutely bar outsiders who are under sixteen years of age.

No new cases have been reported to the local board since the first of this week. The same is true in North Plainfield, Dunellen, and other nearby communities excepting Fanwood. Two cases were discovered there yesterday, and more may be found at any minute. The report that Dunellen had three new cases yesterday was found to be absolutely without foundation on fact.

Health Officer Chandler has received a copy of the Health Board order sent out from Trenton. As was told in the Press of yesterday it prohibits the entrance of children into the State, coming from New York or Pennsylvania, and also prohibits the passage of children from one community in the State to another. These two clauses simply add to the authority of the local health officers by giving State support of community qauran. tines. The order also prohibits a common carrier from conveying children from one State to another, or one community to another. Exceptions are made where the children have health certificates from reputable physicians.

If the order was strictly enforced here men would be stationed on every road leading into Plainfield, and children would not even be permitted to pass from North Plainfield into the city. In addition to the fact that it would result in an enormous expenditure, the result would be a hardship upon the community.

When interviewed by a reporter for the Plainfield Daily Press this morning, Health Inspector Louis Ollif, of North Plainfield, stated that, as yet, no preparations for conforming to the order given out by the New Jersey State Board of Health have been made. However, he said that the borough authorities would do all in their power to conform to the rule, which will take effect August 15, but, that, in his estimation, the borough authorities already had the situation well in hand.

At present, the situation in the borough is very good, only two cases having occurred in the borough itself. The methods pursued by Inspector Ollif have been thorough.

The supervisor of tenements sent a notification to Inspector Ollif this morning The communication was in the form of notices, written in English, Jewish, Italian and Polish. These notices have been placed in the corridors and halls of all tenement houses in the borough and call attention to the fact that the yards, hallways, living rooms and cellars on the premises must be kept clean. The notice makes it plain to the reader that dreaded diseases can easly result from neglect. The fact that a violation of the law in respect to keeping strictly within the bounds required by the health code will result in a fine of $100, has been impressed upon the minds of tenement owners in North Plainfield.

GILBERT LEWIS' FUNERAL.

The funeral of A. Gilbert Lewis, the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis, who was killed Tuesday night on West Front street while stringing electric wires, will be held at his late home at at 450 Orchard place, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The official clergyman will be Rev. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First Methodist church. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

AT ASBURY PARK.

Miss Elizabeth Flynn is enjoying a two weeks' vacation from her position with the Plainfield Water Company, and together with Miss Marion Greene, of East Sixth street, is spending some time at Asbury Park, where they are registered at the Fourth Avenue Hotel.

The funeral of Joseph Chaseo, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Chaseo, who died yesterday morning, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the parents' home at 1422 McCrae place. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

BELIEVES COUNCIL MADE A MISTAKE

David T. Kenney, President of Chamber of Commerce, Makes Statement.

Considerable dissatisfaction has been expressed by representatives of local civic bodies and real estate interests relative to the refusal on the part of the Common Council last Monday night to consider an ordinance standardizing and limiting the height of buildings. Those who fostered the proposition presented arguments urging the need of such a restriction and the Council was believed to be generally in favor of such a plan.

In commenting on the matter to a Daily Press reporter this morning David T. Kenney, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said: "At this time the Common Council of the city of Plainfield could have given a great boom to realty in the city of Plainfield had it given even serious consideration to the question of the height of buildings. No prudent investor in real estate should take a chance where there is an uncertainty such as gives one man the privilege of putting up a three-story building and another a thirty-story building. This applies particularly to business buildings, apartment houses and hotels.

"For instance, should a large, say twelve-story, apartment house be erected in a fine residential section such as Seventh or Eighth street, or in that vicinity, there would be a fair prospect of emptying a large number of residences and greatly depreciating the value of residential properties, which values are low enough now. So far as the business district is concerned one skyscraper for Plainfield, at the present time, would have the effect of vacating the small office buildings, with the consequent depreciation in values as well.

"But since the Council does not wish to act in the interests of its citizens and taxpayers, the only safe plan would appear to be one-story buildings for business districts. I hope, however, that the Council will reconsider the matter and put through an ordinance so that we will know where we are at."

FEDERAL BOARD STARTS RAILROAD ARBITRATION

New York, Aug. 10.—Meeting with the railroad employes' committee today, the Federal Board of Mediation and Conciliation continued its effort to effect an amicable adjustment of the differences between the railroad company and the men.

FOREST JONES.

Forest Jones, son of Mrs. Hulda Jones, died at his home in Newark, Tuesday night. He is survived by one daughter. Miss Pearl Jones, of this city and two sons. These are Harold and Arthur Jones, of Esmont, Va. Four sister-in-laws also survive him. These are Mrs. Julia Carey, Miss Norah Cary and Mrs. Edward Taylor, of this city, and Mrs. Harris, of East Orange. The funeral service will be held at the Shiloh Baptist church in this city, Sunday afternoon at 2:30, and Rev. E. W. Roberts will officiate.

THIEVES IN BOROUGH.

While the family of Edward Allen, of 18 Lincoln place, was away yesterday, thieves entered the house and ransacked the upper rooms, securing about $4 in cash. An attempt was also made to enter the home of Charles Dresselt, of 36 Lincoln place. The thieves were not successful. The matter was reported to the North Plainfield police and Acting Chief Marshal Charles Keller is working on the case.

READY FOR BIG LABOR DAY SHOW

Allied Trades Committee Completes Plans For Annual Parade.

LUNGER IS MARSHAL

Many Local Merchants Will Have Floats—Bands and Drum Corps Engaged By Union Delegations.

This year's Labor Day parade in Plainfield will be the biggest and best that the city has ever known, according to plans now being worked out by the Allied Trades committee, which is in charge of the September celebration.

William H. Lunger has been selected grand marshal for the parade. Mr. Lunger will name his aides in a short time. A number of bands have already been engaged, all local unions are arranging for big delegations and local merchants and manufacturers have announced their intention of putting attractive floats in the formation.

At a meeting of the general committee on Tuesday night the following committee on floats was appointed: Richard Scott, Thomas Dumphy, Edward Sutton, John Whelan, Allan Anderson, Harry Thomas, Milton Hinchcliffe, James Cassidy and Peter Rowe.

The committee on badges will be Samuel Bowden and Allan Anderson.

The Somerville and Bound Brook Building Trades Council have been invited to participate and it is expected that each will send a big delegation to Plainfield for the parade. The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association has also been invited, as has the Clerks of the Federal Immigration Bureau of New York. The latter organization, it is hoped, will send 100 marchers.

Smaller local unions will be headed by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, while the painters, machinists and the moulders have engaged bands and drum corps.

The committee on floats will see practically all local merchants within the next few days and urge that they be represented in this section of the parade. Industrial plants will also be invited to have floats advertising their products.

SEND LETTER TO TROOPERS THAT IS 110 FEET LONG

Passaic, Aug. 9.—Five members of Co. A, Fifth Regiment, of this city, now at Douglas, Ariz., will receive within a few days a letter 110 feet in length. It was sent yesterday to Jacob Eelman, Martin D. Karl, Willis E. Scott, Thomas Collard and Hubert Jones by the Tony Frylickn Association.

The missive was wrapped up in a package that cost forty cents to send. Writing the letter took the authors a week. Tobacco and other gifts accompanied the letter.

OARSMEN GATHER AT DULUTH.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 10.—Crews and individual scullers are here from all over the country for the opening tomorrow of the annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen. All sections are well represented, and the regatta promises to go down in history as one of the most successful ever held. Representatives of boat clubs in New York, Washington, Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Chicago, St. Paul, Detroit and a numberof other cities will compete in the various events that make up the two days' program. The races will be rowed over a mile and a quarter straightway course on St. Louis Bay, which is divided by a narrow strip of land from Luke Superior. At the finish mark there has been erected a grand-stand seating 4,000 persons.

BIRTHDAY OF JUSTICE McKENNA

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—Today is the seventy-third birthday anniversary of Associate Justice Joseph McKenna ,the oldest member of the Supreme Court of the United States in point of service. Justice McKenna is a Philadelphian who removd to California in his twelfth year and afterward became an eminent lawyer. He served four terms in Congress and was attorney-general in President McKinley's cabinet. He has been on the supreme bench since 1897, when he was appointed to succeed Justice Field. He has been eligible to retirement for several years, but in view of his present good health it is not considered likely that he has any intentions of quitting the bench in the near future.

CANDIDATES DINE UNDER SAME ROOF

Attorney General John W. Westcott and Senator J. E. Martine Deliver Addresses.

Whether Attorney General John W. Wescott was peeved or merely satirical toward Senator James E. Martine when they appeared on the same platform in Hackensack, Tuesday night, the crowd was not able to determine. But the audience was certain of one thing—that Wescott was trying to rub it in on Martine. Both men were received cordially. If a decision had to be given on the basis of applause accorded, Martine had somewhat the better of it.

Those who heard the two orators were convinced on another point—that, unless somebody interferes, there is going to be some political blood spilled in this Democratic senatorial primary before the issue is settled.

It is known that Wescott left Trenton for Hackensack, Tuesday afternoon, under a firm determination not to talk at all. He had just learned that Martine was to have the stage, too, and declared there was no use speaking if the Senator was to have the floor. Somewhere between the State capital and Hackensack, Wescott changed his imnd and decided to make a speech.

Two dinners were to have been given before the meeting, one by friends of Martine for him at the Union League Club and another for Wescott by his friends at the same place. When each group learned of the other's plans the dinner parties were merged, so that Wescott and Martine were entertained at the same table, where the program proceeded pleasantly.

Subsequently, at county headquarters, Martine was introduced by Chairman Jesse Moore, of Oradell, as a man who was "always a Democrat," and the Senator responded with one of his characteristic addresses. Martine analyzed the record of the national administration and fairly lavished praise upon President Wilosn. He took occasion to say about himself that he was born in New York, that his grandfather was a Frenchman, and that his "good mother first saw the light on the banks of the sunny Rhine." He also related that he was a farmer, which gave him opportunities to pay oratorical and poetical tribute to the goodness of the corn husks, the green dales, purple hills, etc.

Americanism then engaged Martine and apparently he left no doubt with the audience that he was undiluted, untainted, and 100 per cent. American. He boasted that he had rarely missed a roll call and that he was always recorded, aye or nay, on every question that arose in the Senate.

Closing, Martine said he intended to return after September 26, the primary date, to discuss further the record of the administration, in a plea for re-election instead of renomination. He was going to take all honorable means to defeat Wescott, he added, but if, by any chance, he should lose, nobody, he declared "will support John Wescott with more enthusiasm than Jim Martine."

Wescott, when introduced, said he was greatly embarrassed. It did not appeal to him, he explained, that he and Senator Martine should be exhibited like prize horses. There was a personal element in the situation that was distasteful to him.

"The discussion of ancestry is interesting," continued Wescott, "but I doubt its propriety, in a situation of this kind. I might digress to say that my mother was a French woman, because she was, and that my father was a Dutchman, because he was, but these things have nothing to do with a campaign for the Senate. They do not entitle me to confidence and respect.

"I know a farm when I see one, and I know a politician when I see one. Oh, I have worked on a farm, but what has that got to do with it? I never sat in the United States Senate, nor voted aye or nay, and I don't know if I ever will. If I had sat there I would not give any personal reasons why I should remain.

"The last time I spoke from the same platform with Senator Martine I said to him: 'Jim, if you don't get a new speech I shall repeat yours.'

"I am here by a conspiracy of circumstances, agreements and wishes and persuasions. It was put to me this way—I won't say by whom—I was told that if I believed in representative government I would be merely repudiating my faith if I refused to accede to the wishes of those who wanted me to run. It was further put to me that it was my duty to answer the call from my friends. Against all that there was a personal disinclination to go into this campaign.

"What concerns me is not the pursuit of office, but the accomplishment of an idea. I know President Wilson. He is a great man, wonderful moral stability, giant intellectual power. I know his purposes. Many times have we talked them over. His purposes interest me. But not what Woodrow Wilson has accomplished, but what he proposes to do is the great thing in the future. I desire to help him, to promote his purposes—that is the reason I am in this campaign. After the war this country will have problems big enough for any farmer to handle or any glasscutter, either."

ITALIANS AFTER FLEEING ENEMY

Pass Through Gorizia and Take An Aeroplane Station.

SMALL FORCE CUT OFF

Russians and French Both Report Small Successes On Big Offensive—England Allows Tobacco Shipments to Germany.

Rome, August 10.—Victorious Italian troops have captured an Austrian aeroplane station at Aisovizza, six miles east of Gorizia, and the pursuit of the fleeing Austrians continues, although it has been hampered by the necessity of repairing damaged roads and rebuilding burned bridges.

Cavalry detachments and Bersaglieri cyclist detachments entered Aisovizza after putting to flight the Austrian rear gaurd which attempted to make a stand in the eastern suburbs of the city. In this action a small body of Austrian troops is reported to have been cut off from the main body. Infantry detachments are reported in close contact with the right wing striking unceasing blows and attempting to cut off and surround bodies of Austrian troops moving northward toward Carso plateau.

Russians Near Bistritza River.

London, August 10.—Russian troops under General Letchitzky were approaching the Bistritza River, only three miles east of the Galician city of Stanislau, yesterday morning, according to dispatches from Petrograd today.

The Austro-Germans were expected to make a final stand on the west bank of the Bistritza. If they are driven from these positions by the advancing Slavs the fall of Stanislau and an Austro-German retirement northward to the Dniester is considered certain. It is barely possible that Stanislau already has been captured by the troops of the Czar, officials believe.

If Stanislau does fall to the Russians, the retreating right wing of General von Zothmer's army is expected to take up positions behind the strongly fortified Dniester River bridehead northwest of Halicz. At this position the decisive battle for Lemberg may be fought.

French Win in Hem Wood.

Paris, August 10.—French war statement, more progress for the French troops north of Hem Wood in the Somme sector, was announced today. Only intermittent cannonading in the neighborhood of Fleury Vaux and Capitre was reported from the Verdun sector. Fifteen battles in the air occurred yesterday on the Somme front. One German aeroplane is reported to have been destroyed and two forced to descend inside the French lines. French machines dropped bombs on various railroad stations.

Raises Tobacco Blockade.

Washington, August 10.—Great Britain has raised her blockade of Germany and Austria for the benefit of American tobacco exporters. That is, she will allow them to fulfill contracts made before the war broke out.

SPRING LAKE FIRST TO HANG A WILSON BANNER

Spring Lake, Aug. 10.—A large Wilson-Marshall banner bearing portraits of the candidates was raised across Main street here yesterday, with an enthusiastic demonstration on the part of the Democratic citizenry. The banner raising, believed to be the first in the State, was in charge of Postmaster C. W. Simonson. Several impromptu speeches were delivered to the large crowd that gathered.

LANE AND BRANDEIS ON MEXICAN MEDIATION BOARD

Washington, Aug. 10.—Secretary Lane, of the Department of Interior, and Associate Justice Brandeis, of the Supreme Court, have been selected as two of the three American members of the joint commission which will undertake a settlement of the Mexican border difficulties.

The name of the third member will be made public later, as soon as his reply to President Wilson's request to serve is received.

ENTERED EMPTY HOUSE.

William Smith, of Rockview avenue, reported to the police this morning that someone had broken into a house he is repairing at 322 East Sixth street, and taken garden hose and various other articles.

FIELD PRACTICES.

Wilson Field, a P. H. S. track athlete, who just returned from the Y. M. C. A. summer camp, has already begun practice on Parker Field. While away, Wilson captured honors in five events.

HALE AND HEARTY, "BOB" WALPOLE IS TODAY CELEBRATING HIS 84TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

(By Walter Van Hoesen.)

Hale and hearty despite his age and with his shoulders squared as in his younger days, Robert Walpole is celebrating today with his wife, children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren gathered about him at his home on Front street, his eighty-fourth birthday. It has come to be a day of festivity once a year now when "Old Bob" has a birthday and not only the people of Scotch Plains help him celebrate the event, but his many friends in Plainfield, Westfield, Elizabeth and Newark all send him greetings. The one dark spot on today's pleasure is the illness of Mrs. Walpole, who, despite her eighty-three years, has enjoyed excellent health until recently.

Gathered at his home today helping him observe his birthday are seven children—Mrs. Fred Houton, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Susan Ryno, of Bayonne; Mrs. William Beacon, of Plainfield; Mrs. George Demarest, of Plainfield; Lynus Walpole, of Newark, and Robert Walpole, of Bristol, Conn. Mr. Walpole also has twelve grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, most of whom are with him today.

Sitting on the porch of Mr. Walpole's modest little cottage last night as the last rays of afternoon sun were coming from the west, I asked him to tell me something about his experiences during an adventurous and active life.

Starting in a slow undertone, Mr. Walpole warmed to his subject and was soon talking of the old days before the war as if they were yesterday. Born in England in 1832, Mr. Walpole's parents brought him to this country when he was 7 years of age, and shortly after they settled in Scotch Plains, where he has remained all his life.

"I have no love for England even though I was born there," said the old man, and he thumped his cane on the floor with a vigorousness that left no room for doubt.

Shortly after the family settled in Scotch Plains he was sent to the old one-room schoolhouse that stood where the Baptist church now is. An early liking for the blacksmith shop caused him to lose many days from school and at last he realized the ambition of his youthful heart when he learned the trade, and in the 40's opened a shop of his own on Park avenue, near the present school. Flames not long after consumed the shop and contents and it was then that he located on Front street in a small building near his present home. During the forty years he conducted his business at that place he had as apprentices the majority of the blacksmiths in this section at the present time.

It was while working there that he heard Abraham Lincoln's call in 1861 for volunteers to put down the rebellion, and leaving his shop to be cared for by a helper he went to Plainfield and was one of the first to enlist in Co. I, Third New Jersey Volunteers, and served through the four years of the war, seeing many of the important engagements. He was captured four times and made his getaway each time.

The first time he fell into the hands of the Confederates was at the battle of Spottsylvania Courthouse. After his capture he was taken to the Andersonville stockade and confined for seven months with thousands of other Union soldiers. At last he found a chance to escape with a fellow prisoner one day while cutting wood, but after working their way down the Flint river for several hundred miles the infidelity of a negro caused their capture at Florence. While being transferred to Charleston with a number of other prisoners he again got away, but was caught soon after. He was then put in prison at Danville, where after a time he was returned to Andersonville.

Mr. Walpole never tires of telling how he was treated by Major Wurtz, the commander of the prison, who after the war was taken to Washington, and following a trial was hung for his cruelty and traitorous treatment of Union prisoners.

"When I told him I would escape again if I could," said Bob, "he must have liked my grit, for instead of putting me in the ball and chain gang with a block of wood fitted to my neck, he made me sit with a block of wood fitted to my knees, and I soon got away and made my way North."

After the war ceased and he was mustered out of the service, Mr. Walpole returned to his blacksmith business at Scotch Plains, but, as he says, the roving fever had taken hold of him and he neglected his business to go hunting and fishing for days at a time, a sport that he has never forsaken. Selling his business shortly after, he secured an appointment as court officer at Elizabeth, after he had been constable in Scotch Plains. He was constable forty-eight years and court officer for eighteen years. Four years ago he was retired as court officer and at the same time refused to run again for constable.

Mr. Walpole was married twice. His first wife was Miss Sarah Petite, of Rahway, whom he married in 1853. After a lingering illness she died in 1897, leaving seven children. In 1905 Mr. Walpole married Mrs. Anthony Dobbins, who has been a lifelong resident of Scotch Plains. Mrs. Walpole will be 83 on August 20.

All of his life Mr. Walpole has been an ardent sportsman and even now goes hunting or fishing frequently. And the best part of it all, he says, is that he always brings home something. He told a story last night of a trip he took toward Berkeley Heights two years ago. He was 82 at the time and was accompanied by Fred Vaulkman, of Roselle, who was 81. After hunting several hours, "Old Bob" said, he shot a woodcock. The two old men started for home and just as they reached the road coming out of the woods the game warden drove up. After giving them the scare of their lives he made out he had not seen anything and went on.

Hobert Petite, another lifelong friend, over 80 years of age, is expected to come out from Brooklyn shortly to visit Mr. Walpole and the two plan to go fishing along the Passaic river.

TWO NEW PARALYSIS CASES IN FANWOOD

Twenty-five-year-old Brooklyn Girl and Infant Stricken Yesterday.

Two cases of infantile paralysis, making a total of three, were discovered in quick succession in Fanwood yesterday. Miss Clara Petri, aged 25, became ill Tuesday night while visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. George Eberly, of Martine avenue, and yesterday Dr. F. W. Westcott decided she had paralysis. She was taken to the isolation hospital at Elizabeth yesterday afternoon, where they are doing all they can to save her.

Miss Petri is a resident of Brooklyn and had been visiting her sister for several days before she was taken ill. It is one of the rare cases where adults are taken with the plague and as a result it is a severe one.

The second case was discovered a short time after the first one, when Dr. Wescott diagnosed the illness of Marie Howell, the 14-month-old daughter of George Howell, of Midway place, as infantile paralysis. The case was found in its early stages and as a result is not as yet a severe one.

The occupants of both houses have been quarantined for two weeks and the health authorities have redoubled their vigilance in maintaining a strict quarantine against outsiders.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS MAY DELAY SCHOOL OPENING

Unless the wave of infantile paralysis that has been sweeping over this section decreases greatly before September 12 it is probable that the opening of the local schools will be considerably delayed. Although the epidemic here has not approached even serious proportions the local school authorities will likely follow the course of the Plainfield and Westfield heads. If the local High School students do not return to the High Schools of the two neighboring towns at the regular opening date the local grammar schools will not open.

GATHERED AT RANDOM

Frank Lee, of Front street, is detained at his home by an injury, several bones being broken in his foot. "Billy" was playing with the T. A. B. baseball team several weeks ago when he received the injury.

George Estelle, of Cook avenue, has taken a position with the New Jersey Central as fireman.

A regular meeting of the Saturday Night Club will be held in the Fanwood firehouse Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Korn, of Martine avenue, are spending their vacation at Perryville, R. I.

Harry Paff, of Westfield avenue, is spending the week at Rutherford.

The tennis stars of Fanwood and Scotch Plains will hook up in a championship tennis tournament on Hatfield's court in Scotch Plains next week.

Miss Eva Baker has returned home after visiting friends in Bound Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. William Buckley, of Front street, are spending their vacation at Saratoga, N. Y.

MAY POSTPONE CELEBRATION.

Unless all danger of infantile paralysis is over by Labor Day the local Italians will postpone their annual celebration until Columbus Day. If the postponement is made necessary it will mean a greatly added expense and there is a possibility that it will not be held at all. Committees have been appointed to purchase the fireworks and make other arrangements for the affair.

WORK ON NEW SCHOOL STARTS WITHIN WEEK

Contractors Ready to Begin Work—Alterations to Be Made First.

Another week or ten days will see the actual starting of the eight-room addition and the making of repairs to School No. 1. Since the letting of the contracts last Friday the successful bidders have put up bonds to guarantee the completion of the work and General Contractor William Pangborn is anxious to get started on the building.

So as not to hinder the opening of the school for the fall term, which will probably be on September 12, the repairs to the main building will be started the first of all. The tearing out of the old stairs and installing of new ones, together with the other minor changes, will probably take the better part of a month.

The addition will not be completed before the fore part of cold weather and will not be ready for use before the beginning of next year. The structure, which will be of brick construction and otherwise fireproof, will be joined on to the northeast end of the main building. Besides the basement, it will have four class rooms on either floor.

The contracts were all awarded to Plainfield men, as follows: General, William H. Pangborn's Sons; heating and ventilating, George Tobin; plumbing and metal work, Den Galbraith, and electrical work, Allen B. Laing.

BOYS ON THE BORDER ALL WELL, THEY WRITE

Frank Carter Gains Promotion J. Madison Hare Building Hospital.

But little has been heard from the local boys on the Texas border during the past week. All the friends and relatives have received postals or letters from the boys, but little has been said aside from the fact that they have been working hard.

Frank Carter, of North avenue, who is stationed at Camp McAllen, Texas, with the First Signal Corps of New York, is enjoying his camp life, according to reports sent to his family. He has met several of his old friends there, among whom was Leonard McAneny, formerly of this town and now a member of Squadron A of New York. He states that "Len" never looked healthier and happier than his recent camp life has made him.

Carter is often in charge of 96 regular army men and 26 Mexicans, who are in the United States service. His duties are pleasant, hours long, work strenuous, but healthy, and weather is extremely hot.

The Rev. J. Madison Hare is still keeping up his work on the raising of money for a tent for the soldiers. He has succeeded in raising the money needed for the hospital to be for the use of the Fourth Regiment, of which Mr. Hare is chaplain, and work has been started on the building of it.

Letters from Maurice, who is with the Seventh Regiment, N. Y. N. G.; Elbert Morely, with the Twenty-third Regiment, N. Y. N. G., and James Hardy, Troop D, have been received during the past week, but none of them has anything special to say.

FINED FOR STEALING RIDE ON FREIGHT

Four Strike Breakers Arraigned Before Recorder Sheelen Yesterday.

Charged with riding freights and disorderly conduct, Seaton Lyns, of Jersey City; Vincent Monahan, of Newark; Frederick Ryan, of Roselle, and Joseph Ryan, of Jersey City, were arraigned before Borough Recorder Charles Sheelan yesterday afternoon and were each fined $1, or in default to serve ten days in the county jail.

Charles Laveratt, chief of the railroad detectives of the New Jersey Central, and David Johnson, another detective of the road, made the arrests after a chase. The four men were riding atop an Allentown, Pa., fast freight and all the way from Jersey City had been throwing stones at everything within reach. At Fanwood the train was stopped and the four men had a chance to run, but when they saw who were after them they gave up.

They all admitted that they were railroad men who are out on a strike now at Jersey City. They were going all along the road trying to get others to join the strike.

FLOOD CONDITION AT PARK AVENUE CROSSING RELIEVED

After trying for the best part of a year to get the P. S. C. and Board of Freeholders interested in the improving of drainage conditions along Westfield avenue, something has at last been done to remedy the flood conditions that exist at the corner of Park avenue and Westfield avenue after every storm.

The Board of Freeholders has had a concrete culvert laid at the corner of Westfield avenue and Forest road that is big enough it is hoped to carry off the water before it can gather at the corner of Westfield and Park avenues. The P. S. C. has been asked to lay its trolley tracks over the culvert.

The Township Committee has done what it could to help matters by enlarging the gutters that are in that section.

REV. J. MADISON HARE.

Mr. Hare is chaplain of the Fourth Regiment, N. J. N. G., at Douglas and is engaged in benefit work for the militiamen.

AGITATION FOR CONCRETE SIDEWALKS IN BOROUGH

A movement has been started among a number of prominent borough residents that has reached as far as members of the Council that may result before the coming of spring in the passing of an ordinance making cement as the standard walk. The agitation is not a new one, it being prevalent some years ago. At that time a special election was held, but because one citizen voted against the proposition of making all walks of concrete the affair fell through and has not been raised again until the present time.

The walks at present are made of gravel and slag, it being up to each property owner to keep the path in front of his premises in condition. This, in a majority of cases, has not been done, either because it has been impossible to or because no attempt has been made to do so. Criticism has been directed toward the street department for not making the delinquent ones do their share, but the committee does not think it has the jurisdiction.

ITALIANS CELEBRATE.

In observance of the victory of the Italian army at Gorizia, when a fortress and 10,000 prisoners were captured, the local Italians are going to hold a week's celebration. The clubhouse on Stanberry avenue will be open and nightly gatherings held.

STONY HILL DANCE.

A dance will be held at the Stony Hill parish house next Wednesday night. There will also be a minstrel show and a one-act sketch. Music will be furnished by an out-of-town orchestra and refreshments will be served.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

ONLY ONE CASE IN DUNELLEN BOROUGH

Quarantine Is Being Strictly Enforced By Health Authorities.

Since yesterday there has been a rumor in circulation to the effect that there are three infantile paralysis suspect cases on South avenue, but when asked to substantiate this this morning Health Inspector-in-chief G. Sumner Smith would only say that there is but one case of the dreaded plague in the borough, that of little Anna Hubenskie, who was stricken last Saturday. The little girl, who is paralyzed from her waist down, is said to be still doing satisfactorily.

With a full realization of the imminent danger of an epidemic, the Board of Health is increasing its activities. The merchants of the borough were notified today that they must keep their gutters in a sanitary condition and not sweep paper and rubbish out into them as heretofore. All violators of this decree will be arrested and fined from $2 to $100.

The board has furthermore decided to stop all automobiles and accost all passengers as they leave the trolley and steam cars. This will be put into effect as soon as Chief of Police Mohan can make the necessary arrangements. Another step is the decision to quarantine all vistors under sixteen for two weeks.

Inspector Smith has expressed through an officer as being highly pleased with the assistance rendered by the people to date. Special Marshals Harry Shugars and Isaac V. Smalley, who are patrolling the infected district to see that the quarantine is not broken, have been doing very good work. Yesterday two men, boarders it is said, in the quarantined house, attempted to break the quarantine. They left by the back way with their dress suit cases and were about to vault the fence which adjoins the railroad when they were stopped and turned back by Marshal Shugars, who was very much on the job.

The case of Goldstein vs. the Dunellen Home and Investment Company, which came out of the refusal of the company to allow Goldstein to occupy one of their houses after he had rented it through John Fedderman, was scheduled to be heard before Judge Woodbridge in the istrict court at New Brunswick today.

Mrs. Fred Wrage took Mrs. John Hunt and the Misses Mary and Elizabeth Hunt on an outing in her automobile to Paterson, yesterday.

Tomorrow evening is the date of the watermelon, ice cream and cake social, to be given under the auspices of Camp 67, P. O. of A. in W. G. Holton Hall.

J. Alfred Wilson had a narrow escape from being run down by John Marien's new Chalmers touring car the other day. In the car at the time were Marien and his instructor. The narrow escape occurred at the Washington avenue entrance to the railroad park, out of which Marien was coming with his car just as Wilson was proceeding along the sidewalk which crosses the park entrance. The only thing that saved Wilson was that he stuck out his hand and pressing it against one of the fore mud guards of the machine which was about to run him down, and shoved himself back out of danger.

Anna May Labarre, of Wilmington, Del., is visiting her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McGovern for a couple of weeks.

Those who attended the Union service of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches held in the Presbyterian church last Sunday morning, enjoyed and appreciated the violin and 'cello solos and duet rendered by Miss Gean Crow and Miss Lillian Pringle.

These ladies, who are Berlin University students, are spending a short vacation in town. The selections rendered showed the wonderful powers of the instruments and their own ability as musicians. The wish was expressed by many that they might consent to play again next Sunday, and should they remain in town they may possibly do so or possibly accompany Miss Beatrice Cameron in a vocal solo.

Gifford Kuhns has taken a position with George A. Schenck, the iceman.

Leslie Bowlby will sever his connection with the George T. Schenck grocery to take a position.

Mrs. C. G. Althoen and daughter, Miss Alice, are spending their vacation at Sea Side.

Miss Priscilla Pennock has returned from a visit of a month at Atlantic City and Philadelphia.

Virginia, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Young, of Prospect avenue, is ill at her home with tonsilitis and malaria.

Frederick Reinhardt, of Bound Brook road, who strained his back at the plant of the Levgar Structural Company Saturday morning, has been unable to work since Monday.

Melacthon Apgar, of Dunellen avenue, returned to his duties at Spicer's yesterday, after a layoff of several weeks, due to malaria.

Miss Ruth Voorhees has returned from Harris Lane, where she was the guest of her uncle, Nelson M. Giles for the past two days.

Theodore Kuldoshes was fined $2 by Recorder David S. Campbell in the borough court last evening for riding his bcycle on the sdewalk. Marshal Patrick J. Tarpey was the complainant.

C. L. Wahl, Jr., will leave shortly on a trip to Wisconsin, where he has a large number of acquaintances.

Elias Giddes, of Front street, nearly cut off the end of his thumb with an axe at the plant of the Hall Printing Press Company Monday.

William Carter has purchased an automobile.

George Holt and Carl Beiler spent this afternoon in New York city.

George Nelson has purchased a bicycle from Walter Clark of Dunellen.

Robert L. Pierce was a business visitor at the county seat today.

Friendship Council was well represented at the outing and shore dinner held at Seidler's Beach yesterday by the Middlesex County Past Councellor's Association.

South Plainfield.

Miss Esther Martin, of North Plainfield, and Angelo Chirelo, of this place, were quietly married in New York on Saturday, July 22. The couple are now residing in New York, where Mr. Chirrelo holds a responsible position with the Columbia Graphanola Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thornton, Jr., have returned from a visit to New York, where they were the guests of friends.

Clifford Brown has accepted a position with John B. Geary as a driver of one of Mr. Geary's delivery vans.

James Robinson, of New Brunswick, visited friends here yesterday.

Charles Randolph has accepted a position at the local American Express office, in the absence of William Ball, who is spending two weeks at Atlantic City.

EARLY TRADEMARKS.

When First Used They Were Without Any Protection In Law.

The recognition of trademarks by English law may be said to date only from the beginning of the nineteenth century, but the use of trademarks was, of course, of far earlier date.

So far back as the reign of James I. a certain clothier applied the mark of another clothier to his own inferior goods, but the reports of the lawsuit which ensued leave it doubtful whether the action was brought by the owner of the mark or by an indignant customer, in which latter case it would simply be an ordinary action for fraud.

In 1742 Lord Hardwicke declared that "every particular trader has some particular mark or stamp." At the same time his lordship refused to grant the protection of the law to the "Great Mogul" stamp on cards. He was apparently under the impression that the legal recognition of trademarks meant the creation of a new kind of monopoly, and he made up his mind to obviate such possibility.

Lord Eldon, on the other hand, repeatedly granted injunctions to restrain one trader from fraudulently "passing off" his goods as those of another and thus helped to lay a foundation on which the present trademark law has been built up in successive stages.—London Standard.

Shakespeare Plus Cervantes.

There is an old tradition which links Cervantes with Shakespeare in connection with the lost play "Cardenno," or "Cardenna," which was twice acted at court by Shakespeare's company in 1613 and was announced for publication some forty years later as "The History of Cardenio, by Fletcher and Shakespeare." The publication never took place, and nothing is otherwise known of the piece with certainty, but Sir Sidney Lee believes it to have been a dramatic version of the adventures of the loveloru Cardenio, related in the first part of "Don Quixote," Shelton's translation of which appeared in 1612.

Why Salt Causes Thirst.

Salt has been described as a natural element of the blood in about the same proportion as in the water of the ocean. Under general conditions we do not feel the existence of salt in our bodies because its effect is counteracted by a due proportion of water.

When we eat an excessive amount of salt thirst is created by the demand of nature that we also take a proportionate amount of water and dilute the salt to its proper relative amount. Any food that tends to absorb the moisture of the body will cause thirst for the same reason—that our physical welfare requires a balanced quantity of water.

Scared by the Elephant.

Tradition has it that Caesar brought elephants with him to Britain and that they contributed to his conquest of the island. Having unsuccessfully attempted to cross the Thames, Caesar built a large turret on an elephant and, loading it with bowmen and slingers, ordered them to pass the stream, whereupon the Britons, terrified at the sight of the unknown monster, fled in confusion.—London Chronicle.

Tabby.

"Tabby" cat ought to be really "atabe," being derived from "atab," the name of a famous street in Bagdad which used to be the great market for silks. A tabby cat's coat was thought to be like the wavy markings of watered silk.

Questions and Answers.

The time elapsing between a question and an answer is almost as important as the answer itself. It may be wisely long or short, but the longer it is the wiser must be the answer.

Manipulating Bones.

"Pop, what's osteopathy?"

"The art of manipulating bones, my son."

"Then is an osteopath a minstrel end man?"—Baltimore American.

PROTEGE OF GRANT RETIRES FROM NAVY

Rear-Admiral Howard Was Educated By Famous Civil War Leader.

Washington, D. C., August 10.—Rear Admiral Thomas B. Howard, who has held many of the most important posts of the navy both sea and land, was automatically retired from the service today by operation of the age limit. Admiral Howard came from Illinois and was graduated from the Annapolis Academy in 1873. His last important sea duty was as commander of the Pacific fleet. As navigating officer of the Concord he fought with Dewey at Manila Bay and subsequently he saw much active service during the Philippine insurrection. In the celebrater around-the-world cruise of 1908 he was in command of the battleship Ohio. Later he commanded a division of the Atlantic fleet and in 1912-13 he was president of the Naval Examining and Retiring Board.

Admiral Howard is proud of the fact that he owes his naval career to a compact his father made with Grant when the two went to war in 1861. The stroy begins in Galena, Ill., where the future admiral was born in 1854. As every one knows, one of the unregarded citizens of Galena in the days which immediately preceded the outbreak of the Civil War was Ulysses S. Grant. He had been captain in the United States Army, but he had resigned, and he was poor.

"Bush," said Grant one day to his nearest friend, Bushrod Howard, "we'll have a war sure, and I'm going."

Bushrod Howard had commanded a company in the Mexican war. He came of a fighting family.

"I agree with you," said he. "And I'm going, too. We'll each raise a company."

"Bush," said Grant, "you can't afford to go to war. If anything happened to you, who would take care of your family?"

"Ulysses," said Howard, "you can't afford to go to war, either. But you're going, aren't you?"

The two men made a friendly compact. If either failed to return from the war, the survivor pledged himself to watch over those left behind.

Captain Howard raised his company, and was killed with most of his men in a railroad accident on his way to the front.

After the war Grant interested himself in Howard's two sons. One was sent to West Point. The other Thomas D., received an appointment at Annapolis. When he graduated Grant sent him a sum of money.

"Buy what you will," said he. "I've been a boy at graduation time—and I know how many things you'll need."

One of Admiral Howard's most cherished possessions today is the sword he bought with Grant's money.

In the service Howard has been known as a strict disciplinarian, but he has never failed to win the affections of his men in whatever post he has served. Whenever he changed his ships an avalanche of requests flooded the Navy Department from the men who had come in personal contact with the admiral and wished to follow him.

Perhaps the most picturesque incident in Howard's career was his service in command of the caravel Pinta when that ancient Spanish model swashed sidewise across the waters to America at the time of the Chicago World's Fair. The Pinta could not be sailed. Howard's opinion, as expressed later, was that no credit was due to Columbus for discovering America in such a ship. He thought the great navigator was simply blown off shore and couldn't get back. The greatness of Columbus in his opinion, consisted in his ability to stay on board such a foolish marine contrivance.

AUTOS TO CLIMB PIKE'S PEAK.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 10.—The cars entered for the Pike's Peak hill climbing contest were given a final tuning up today and all other arrangements were completed for the inauguration of the big event tomorrow. With more than a score of entries, the contest promises to be the greatest of its kind ever held in this country, and with a list of drivers which includes the leaders, headed by Ralph Mulford, the establishment of a new world's hill climbing record is regarded as a certainty. The course over which the famous drivers will dash in their powerful cars into and above the clouds is known as the Pike's Peak auto highway, the highest and most wonderful motor road in the world. The course measures 12 miles, 2,200 feet, and in order to negotiate this climb to the summit of the famous mountain, the cars will have to conquer a rise of 6,686 feet. With a maximum grade of 10.5 per cent. and an average of 7 per cent., with numerous turns, an exciting contest is assured. Furthermore it will be a contest in which driving skill will play a big part.

AN ORDINANCE

Concerning the Construction of Sidewalks and Curbs. Revision of 1916.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The space devoted to sidewalks, not already laid out under prior ordinances of said City, shall have a width not less than one-fifth of the entire width of the street. On all streets, lines drawn parallel with the side lines of the street and distant therefrom the exact width of the space devoted to sidewalks shall be known and designated as the curb lines. The grade and width of all sidewalk spaces and the grade of the curb lines shall be that fixed by ordinance or otherwise legally established either heretofore or hereafter but all sidewalks shall be so graded as to rise from the top of the curb line to the nearest side line of the street at the uniform rate of one-half inch to each linear foot of such distance unless otherwise specifically directed by resolution of the Common Council.

Sec. 2. All sidewalks shall be curbed and paved at such established grade and kept and maintained so curbed and paved in good condition so as to be even on the surface and freely shed water, and all of said space devoted to sidewalks shall be kept free from long grass, weeds, shrubs or other thing or substance likely to interfere with safe and easy travel thereon or thereover by pedestrians or persons lawfully using the same, at the expense of the owner or owners of the land or lot abutting thereon, as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 3. All curbs hereafter constructed in this city shall be of concrete, six (6) inches thick and at least twenty (20) inches deep. Where combined curb and gutter is used, the curb shall extend to the bottom of the gutter concrete, which shall be at least six (6) inches deep below gutter grade.

Concrete for curbs shall consist of one (1) part Portland cement, two (2) parts fine aggregate and from two and one-half (2½) to three (3) parts coarse aggregate, mixed with clean water, in the manner hereinafter specified. A coat of mortar, mixed one to two (1 to 2) and not more than one-half inch thick may be applied to the inside of the forms immediately before placing the concrete.

Curb and gutter shall be divided into sections not less than five (5) nor more than eight (8) feet long, by some method which will insure the complete separation of the sections by a joint not less than one-eighth nor more than one-quarter inch wide.

Curb corners at intersecting streets shall have a radius of at least six (6) feet; where possible, the radius shall be equal to the width of the narrower sidewalk of the intersecting streets. The circular corners shall be protected by approved corner bars.

At private driveways, the upper edge of the curb may be lowered to within one inch of gutter grade, the grade of the base of the curb to be at same elevation as that of the adjoining curb. Where a driveway is concreted from the paved portion of the sidewalk to a line outside the curb line, the curb may be omitted. The ends of the curbs at the driveways may be beveled at an angle of forty-five degrees, or circular corners having a radius of not more than two (2) feet, may be used, the return curbs disappearing at the established grade of the sidewalk at a distance of not more than eighteen (18) inches from the curb line.

Sec. 4. All sidewalks hereafter paved in this city shall be constructed of concrete, of the materials and in the manner hereinafter specified.

No paved walk shall be less than four (4) feet wide and four (4) inches thick. Sidewalk slabs twenty-five (25) square feet in area shall be five (5) inches thick; slabs thirty-six (36) square feet in area shall be six (6) inches thick.

The concrete for one-course work shall consist of one (1) part Portland cement, two (2) parts fine aggregate and from two and one-half (2½) to three (3) parts coarse aggregate.

The cement shall meet the requirements of the Standard Specifications for Portland Cement of the American Society for Testing Materials.

The fine aggregate shall consist of sand or crushed stone, graded from fine to coarse, passing, when dry, a screen having one-quarter inch diameter holes, it shall be clean, sharp, coarse, free from deleterious matter, and not more than five per cent. shall pass a sieve having one hundred meshes per lineal inch.

The coarse aggregate shall be sound gravel, trap rock or blast furnace slag. It shall be free from all foreign matter, uniformly graded and of sizes that will pass a one and one-half (1½) inch screen and be retained on a one-quarter (¼) inch screen.

Such methods of measuring the several materials for the concrete shall be used as shall insure reliable proportions.

The ingredients of the concrete shall be thoroughly mixed with clean water on a water-tight platform. The concrete shall be wet enough to be easily "struck off," but so that it can be handled without causing a separation of the coarse aggregate from the mortar.

Cross forms shall be of three-sixteenths inch metal, of a depth to correspond to the thickness of the proposed walk and shall extend the full width of the walk and be set at right angles to the side forms. They shall be left in place until the concrete is sufficiently set to permit of their withdrawal without injury to the walk.

On walks which are four feet in width they shall be placed not more than four feet apart, and on no walk shall the divisions or joints be more than six feet apart in any direction.

After the forms are filled, the concrete shall be "struck off" and the coarse particles forced, with a suitable tool, to a depth below the surface which will permit of properly finishing the walk.

The slabs shall be rounded on all surface edges to a radius of about one-half (½) inch.

Concrete shall not be mixed or deposited when the temperature is below freezing.

All sidewalks and curbs shall be protected from injury by sun, rain, or freezing, until sufficiently set.

Sidewalks constructed in two courses will be permitted. When used, the concrete for the base course, three (3) inches thick, shall consist of one (1) part Portland cement, three (3) parts fine aggregate and five (5) parts coarse aggregate. The mortar for the top course, one (1) inch thick, shall consist of one (1) part Portland cement and two (2) parts fine aggregate.

Sec. 5. All sidewalks of the following named streets and portions thereof, to wit: Front Street (East and West) from the easterly side line of Watchung Avenue to the Easterly curb line of Grove Street on the Northerly side of West Front Street and to the Easterly curb line of Central Avenue on the Southerly side of West Front Street, Madison Avenue from the Southerly side line of Street to the Northerly line of the right-of-way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, Second Street (East and West) from the Easterly side line of Watchung Avenue to the Westerly side line of Madison Avenue, North Avenue from the Easterly curb line of Park Avenue to the Westerly curb line of Watchung Avenue, Somerset Street from the Southerly side line of Green Brook to the Northerly curb line of Front Street, East Fourth Street from the Westerly curb line of Watchung Avenue to the Westerly side line of Park Avenue, Watchung Avenue from the Southerly side line of Green Brook to the Northerly curb line of East Seventh Street, Park Avenue from the Southerly curb line of Front Street to the Northerly curb line of Seventh Street, and West Third Street from the Westerly curb line of Liberty Street to the Easterly curb line of Plainfield Avenue, shall be paved as aforesaid from each side line of the street to the nearer curb line thereof except such portions of such space devoted to sidewalks as aforesaid as may be occupied by telegraph, telephone or other like poles lawfully standing therein and except such portions thereof as may be occupied by the trunks of any trees growing therein and an additional space not exceeding five (5) square feet in area around each tree.

Sec. 6. All sidewalks of each and every street in the said City of Plainfield other than the streets and portions of streets in Section 5 of this ordinance particularly described, shall be paved, for a width of at least four (4) feet, with concrete of the materials, the proportions and in the manner required in Section 4 of this ordinance.

That hereafter, whenever a new sidewalk line is to be laid out on any street it shall be located so that the nearer edge of the concrete shall be the following distances from the side lines of the streets, that is to say: On streets having a width of eighty feet or more, a distance of six feet; on streets having a width of seventy feet or more, and less than eighty feet, a distance of five feet; on streets having a width of more than sixty feet and less than seventy feet, a distance of three feet; on streets having a width of fifty feet or more and not more than sixty feet, a distance of two feet, and on streets having a width of less than fifty feet a distance of one foot.

Where the sidewalk is crossed by a private driveway, the concrete shall be six (6) inches thick.

Where a sidewalk, paved for its entire width, is crossed by a private driveway, the driveway shall be depressed at the curb line to the gutter grade and shall slope up to the established grade in a distance not exceeding eighteen (18) inches from the curb line.

Sec. 7. The word "street" as used in this ordinance is intended to include and to mean every public highway in the City of Plainfield, whether commonly called a street, road, avenue, place or otherwise, and shall be so taken and construed.

Sec. 8. If after the passage of this ordinance the owner or owners of lands affected thereby shall neglect for the space of thirty days to make the improvements to the sidewalks thereof by this ordinance directed and required, the Common Council may cause such improvements to be made under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner, as authorized by the statutes in such case made and provided. Before proceeding to make any such improvements the Common Council shall cause notice, by

STILL FIGHTING FOR SLAVERY.

Just as fifty years ago their fathers shed their blood that the black man might be their slave, Southern Senators are now fighting with all the energy at their command that the children of the South—the white children—may be held in bondage, body and brain by the slave-driving textile mill owners of a new age. Not all of them are opposed to the passage of the administration child labor law, but Senators Overman, Bryan and Fletcher, representing three States that are hotbeds of child slavery, seek to defeat the bill on the ground that it is a national usurption of the sovereign rights of the States. These men do not represent the South. They represent the blood-sucking, money-grabbing owners of cotton mills who have grown rich out of the working of children. Every dollar of their profits means a ray of sunshine shut out of the life of a boy or girl, a smile snatched from the face of innocent youth, and they have made enough of them to hire United States Senators to do their bidding. In each of the States that the "honorable" Senators make their homes anti-child labor laws have been written onto the statute books. That they are not enforced is due to the same influence that now invokes the Constitution—that sacred document which guarantees liberty to every American citizen. President Wilson has included the child labor bill in the list which he insists must be passed, and the real American, both North and South, who are yet opposed to slavery, must give him credit for at least one bit of legislation that will uplift the race when he has forced its passage.

SORTING OUT THE HEROES.

Trooper McGrew is incensed because stories from the border have not "told the truth" about the hardships the men are forced to undergo. So far as the Press is concerned its news columns have never carried the statement that New Jersey militiamen were enjoying a "picnic" on the border, nor has it sought to minimize the grim reality of the task that confronts the volunteers who answered the call of their country. If some of the personal letters that have reached Plainfield and have been turned over to reporters by friends who received them have portrayed the cheerful spirit of the writers, it is but evidence of the heroic hearts that are able to stand up under the strain. Some men can suffer with a smile and dare death with a joke on their lips. It is the final test of courage, and no better tribute will ever be written for the Plainfielders who "went to war" than that they made the sacrifice cheerfully. At least, most of them did.

It would require an army of health officers numbering up into the thousands to strictly enforce the new quarantine regulations of the State Board of Health, but municipal authorities are given greater power, and they now have the support of the State in enforcing their own rules. Formerly parents who sought to travel, even in their own State, with children, did not know what might be expected in the next town, and if they moved by motor they usually encountered a new set of quarantine rules in each one. Now they have reasonable assurance that their children will not be admitted anywhere, unless they have a health certificate. Plainfield will not attempt to guard all its roadways, nor to put a watch over passengers alighting from the many trains that stop here. This would mean an expenditure of many thousands of dollars. The present health force can handle the situation, with the co-operation of the police department. All that is necessary is for the people to report immediately the arrival of children in their neighborhood who come from outside the city. An investigation will then be made and if they are from an infected district they will be quarantined.

The need of an isolation hospital for the cases of infantile paralysis that are developing each day in Union county is imperative, but because of the defiant attitude of the Mayor of Elizabeth those who have authority to build are hesitating. It is not fair to force Elizabeth to pay more than her share of the cost of maintenance, but until some arrangement is made to equally divide the expense the county is paying in lives. If the present Board of Freeholders and the health officials of the county cannot settle this question without weeks of wrangling they are not fit to hold office even until successors can be named.

Once again the ball you swat.
Keep on swatting as before.
When as far as this you've got,

Where Is This Man At?

Many queer relationships have been mentioned from time to time, but one that is rather unique has come to light in Michigan, according to one of our valuable correspondents.

A man in Luther met a widow and married her. She had a step-daughter. The man's wife thus became the mother-in-law of her father-in-law and the man's step-daughter became his step-mother. His own father was therefore his step-son. After a while his step-mother, who was also the step-daughter of his wife, had a son. This boy became the Luther man's brother, being the Luther man's father's son, but the boy is also the son of his wife's step-daughter and so her grandson. Thus the Luther man becomes his brother's grandfather. Then the Luther man's wife had a daughter. His mother-in-law is this new daughter's step-sister, and also his grandmother. His father is the brother of his daughter, who is also the daughter of his grandmother. The Luther man is his mother's brother-in-law, his daughter is his father's niece and he has finally figured out that he is his own grandfather. Help!

Another Way.

A story is told of a sewing machine agent who had pried himself into the front door of a house in this city, and had bothered the thrifty housewife until she was out of patience.

"There are only two ways of getting rid of a sewing machine agent," said he with much assurance, "and those are: Buy a machine yourself or send him to someone else who is likely to buy a machine."

"Only two ways, are there?" replied the housewife. "Well, let me show you a third," and she started for her trusty rolling pin.

When she got back to the door the coat tails of the sewing machine agent were just disappearing around the corner a block away.

Grandma's Bonnet.

Grandma used to wear a bonnet
With but very little on it;
Not a single peacock feather
Flopped or fluttered in the weather.
Five-foot brims were not in order,
Nor the hanging curtain border.
Ostrich plumes that cost full twenty
Were not then so very plenty.
Stuffed flamingoes, embalmed parrots,
Turnips, rutabagas, carrots,
Grape and apple imitations,
Were not used as decorations.
Grandma's hat did not disguise her;
You could always recognize her—
So we dedicate this sonnet
To the modest little bonnet.

Each succeeding generation
Makes us love grandma's creation.
Women's hats keep growing bigger,
And they cut more of a figure.
Loved ones' faces, all concealing,
Not an eye or nose revealing.
Man can't pick his wife or cousin
On the street out of a dozen.
He is very oft mistaken
And his nerves are badly shaken
When he elevates his cady
To some strange, offended lady,
And she glares until to him it
Seems to be about the limit.
Wife's new hat has too much on it.
Ah, for that old grandma bonnet.

- Proctor's Theatre -

A sure-fire vehicle is provided Charles Ray in "The Deserter"—a role similar to Frank Winslow in the Ince production "The Coward." But in no other respect are these pictures alike, save in this—that both are excellent. We can easily understand why Ray was made a star—for the very good reason that he deserved to be. Here he is seen as an American army lieutenant who deserts rather than face court-martial for his participation in a disgraceful brawl, and then redeems himself later by saving a band of settlers from total annihilation in a fight with Indians. Film fans who are acquainted with Ray's remarkable ability to put over a part of this sort need only to be assured that he is given ample opportunity to do so in this picture. There are some splendid bits of realism, some magnificent Western panoramas, some thrilling riding, some stirring fights, to offset the strong emotionalism which is thrown around the young lieutenant. It is distinctly an action picture, and Director Scott Sidney has done his work in very fine style. One of those rip-roaring, rib-tickling Keystone comedies also appears today, as well as a cast of prominent Edison stars in "Celeste of the Ambulance Corps."

Tomorrow and Saturday all eyes will be riveted upon Charlie Chaplin at Proctor's in his latest comedy success, entitled "One A. M." This comedy proves to be decidedly in the nature of a novelty, for, after the first hundred feet or so, the illustrious comedian becomes star and supporting cast all rolled in one. No other living creature is seen after this short introductory space, and Charlie, by himself, creates all the stir that is needed. The usual big feature show will be provided in addition to the Chaplin act tomorrow and Saturday, tomorrow's program consisting of Sally Crute and Robert Brewer in "The Matchmakers," Vivian Rich in "Pastures Green," and the latest Mutual weekly. On Saturday Mabel Trunelle will be starred in "The Southerners," Frank Borzage and Anna Little will appear in "Nugget Jim's Pardner," and special educational subjects will complete the program.

SENTENCE OF RALPH WOODS LIGHTENED BY JUDGE DE MEZA

Re-arraigned before City Judge William G. De Meza in police court this morning, Ralph Woods, of Webster place, was fined $25, put on the blacklist in Plainfield and North Plainfield and put on probation for one year. When he was arraigned in court yesterday he was fined $100.

Woods had been drinking heavily and had become crazed to such an extent that he did not know what he was doing. His wife and family aroused the sympathy of the judge and he decided to be more lenient with the fellow.

STRIKE NOW

PUTNAM COULDN'T FIND A 'SKEETER

And Inspector Stine Claims He Saw But One In Fanwood.

Plainfield was practically mosquitoless last Tuesday night, according to the results of the night collections of Mosquito Inspector Frank Putnam, of this district. Not a single specimen could be captured by the collector in this city at any one of the three separate and distinct collection stations. As a matter of fact, this city has been practically free from the winged insects during the greater part of the present summer. There has been a marked falling off in the numbers of the pests, especially the pipiens, the common house mosquito, which in past years caused so much annoyance in this city.

The night collections of the pests continue for fifteen-minute periods at each station. The collector captures the specimens by means of a potassium cyanide tube. At each station the inspector collects for fifteen minutes. The stations at which Inspector Putnam failed to capture any specimens last week are located at Park avenue and Cedar Brook, Fourth street and Plainfield avenue, and Front street and Clinton avenue.

Chief Inspector Russell W. Gies, of the commission, is pleased with the successful results which are evident in this city. A great deal of this has been due to the co-operation on the part of Health Officer N. J. Randolph Chandler and his staff of inspectors. During the last week many new temporary breeding spots, formed by the recent rains, have been uncovered by the city health inspectors. Inspector Putnam has also been of much assistance to the city authorities in their attempts to check the spread of the infantile paralysis epidemic in this city. While performing his duties as a mosquito inspector in his house to house inspection work, Mr. Putnam has been able to notify the local Board of Health of many violations of the city code. In this way the efficiency of the two departments has been doubled without any additional cost for either body.

One Found in Fanwood.

In Fanwood the extermination work has likewise progressed this summer under the direction of Inspector H. A. Stine. The night collections here last week turned out only one mosquito. This specimen was a salt marsh pest; in all probability one of the few of this species which escaped during the rainy spell. In Scotch Plains and Netherwood, Inspector Stine is likewise experiencing success. The night collections in both of these municipalities have failed to produce any large number of specimens at any time during the present summer. Not a single insect was collected in either of these two sections at the collection last week.

Cedar brook has recently been cleaned by the commission. This brook was in a bad condition during the early part of the summer, permitting the swamps bordering on it to hold sufficient water for breeding. In addition to cleaning out this brook, many new drains have been dug in the swampy sections. The swamp mosquitoes have been fewer than ever as a result.

Dr. Frank C. Ard, of this city, the president of the Mosquito Commission, has done much to assist Chief Inspector Gies in freeing Plainfield from mosquitoes this summer.

Finds a Rare Brood.

Although there are very few mosquitoes on the wing in the entire county, yet Chief Inspector Gies recently found a brood of one of the rarest mosquitoes in the State, known as the psorophora ciliata. This insect is also the largest and most ferocious of the New Jersey mosquitoes. This brood of mosquitoes was found last week near the pumping station in Springfield by Chief Inspector Gies and Assistant Chief Inspector Edward A. Clare.

While these two exterminators were on an inspection tour to Springfield last week they were suddenly surrounded by a swarm of these ferocious insects. Both succeeded in capturing several specimens by means of potassium cyanide tubes which they carried with them. Chief Inspector Gies plans to preserve these rare specimens.

Chief Inspector Gies attributes the appearance of this mosquito to the fact that many new temporary breeding places have been formed by the recent heavy rains. It is in these pools that this species prefers to lay its eggs. Many such pools in every section of the county, however, fortunately dried out, and thus prevented the entire county from being subjected to the fierce attacks of this monster. Many other pools were oiled, thus killing off the broods.

This mosquito lays its eggs in depressed areas which are likely to be filled with rainwater. Its larvae, considerably larger than the wrigglers of all other species, thrive on the larvae of the other species. If these pools contain no other wrigglers, then these wrigglers actually obtain their food by eating each other. In the pupa stage this insect is five-eighths of an inch in length.

This species does not appear on the wing until early in July, remaining in this state until late in September. In the larvae stage it has been found very early in June and as late as October 1. This species measures about an inch from its beak to its hind legs. Its beak, which is the fierce puncturer with which it searches for human blood, is a quarter of an inch in length. In its quest for human blood it can actually bite through a man's coat, vest, shirt and underclothes.

So far this summer only six of this species have been captured. Although this is not a large number, yet it is more than might ordinarily be expected. This mosquito is one of the rarest in the State, seldom appearing on the wing in large numbers. Further efforts to locate this monster in the county have failed, and Chief Inspector Gies now believes that the county is rid of them, and that they will cause no trouble during the remainder of the summer.

EXHIBIT OF I. C. S. PUPILS OPENED IN THIS CITY

The local branch of the International Correspondence Schools, Abraham Lincoln Chapter, has opened an exhibit in the Frost building on Park avenue. The exhibit is open to the public and is indicative of the good work being accomplished by the I. C. S. throughout the country.

The exhibit shows the accomplishments of the I. C. S. students in the Plainfield district, which comprises the territory between Roselle and Lincoln. In this district there are in the neighborhood of 1,500 students. The work consists of show card writing, architectural drawing, advertising, bookkeeping, mathematics, electrical and commercial work, penmanship and language study. In each branch of endeavor the student who follows out the course as given out by the International Correspondence Schools is given a thorough, practical training that cannot help but be of benefit to him in later life.

ANTI-PROFANITY CLUB IS FORMED IN OHIO TOWN

As a Result, Language of Bucyrus Is Now 99 Per Cent Pure.

Several of the most respected citizens of Bucyrus, O., have formed what they call an "Anti-profanity club," and it is said the membership is constantly increasing.

It appears that these gentlemen who have taken the initiative in the establishment of this organization have heretofore been addicted to the use of violent and picturesque language when things didn't go along smoothly. It appears that before this club was formed there was considerable rivalry in Bucyrus among the charter members as to which one could under stress emit the largest volume of sulphuric language in a given time without repeating himself.

At last, however, the wives, daughters, sisters and sweethearts of these naughty word jugglers shamed them into reform. The ladies pointed out to them the evil influence their profanity was sure to have on the rising generation of the town and suggested that when a man resorts to profanity to express himself it is an admission that his education in pure English has been neglected.

These arguments seemed reasonable, so the gentlemen who had been doing ground and lofty tumbling as to their use of pyrotechnical language got together and formed the Anti-profanity club. Since then their language has been 99 per cent pure.

In lieu of the volcanic verbal eruptions which they formerly used each member of the club has been furnished with a list of mild and harmless expletives to be used in case of emergency. Here are a few of these gentle and refined expressives:

"Mercyarion!" "Oh, goodness!" "La-la-la!" "Gracious sake!" "Gee-whilliker!" "Dad-bing!" and "Ding-bust it!"

"Ding-bust it!" is regarded by the club members as perhaps the most forceful and expressive expletive in the list, and as a result there has probably been more "ding-busting" done recently in Bucyrus than in any other town of the same population in the United States.

MISS KELLERMANN'S CLASS IS NOW READY TO ENTER WATER

Do Not Be Discouraged By Your First Few Moments in Water. Remember: Keep Your Feet Close to Surface.

Article No. 9.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

Pupils in the Plainfield Daily Press Annette Kellermann Swimming Class:

You can now go in the water for your first practice.

In six lessons I have laid down for you a careful and accurate course of instruction. Article No. 8, printed yesterday in the Plainfield Daily Press was the final "Dry-Land" swimming lesson.

I will wager that many of you after reading yesterday's lesson have not waited till now to go and put my instruction into actual practice. Those of you who have already slipped away and entered the water to see just how practical my lessons have been may have had a little difficulty at first. Going alone or with one or two friends does not give you the same degree of confidence that you have when you go in large parties; a dozen or a score of would-be swimmers all together.

Confidence is always greater in the individual when he is a member of a group. Do not be discouraged for a moment because you may have found it difficult or impossible to swim with your very first stroke.

When you enter the water today, place your head in just the position I have taught you and keep it there—so that the mouth is just clear of the water. Don't mind a few little splashes. They will not hurt you. If you cannot stand the rush of water about the ears wear a rubber cap. I always do. Then, too, perhaps your bathing suit is too heavy.

Now I will explain why you feel as if you were sinking. I told you in my lesson yesterday that you must keep your feet up—up—up. Until you do this your head is bound to sink, for the weight of your legs held at the angle you are holding them now, is dragging you down. So the higher you hold your legs without letting them come out of the water the sooner you will overcome the fear of being drawn down.

Do not move your hands and arms too quickly. I gather that some of you will not be able to swim as yet, because your every movement is jerky and not combined.

Try to overcome this jerkiness and bring the movement of your arms and legs together so that both motions are made at the same time.

Keep the old canvas belt and have somebody tow you about until you overcome the overabundance of jerky movements.

Under no circumstances use a life-belt or other apparatus for floating. While some are reliable other are not, and it would be a very sad thing for you after trusting yourself to one of these to find yourself suddenly sinking through some defect of the apparatus. Trust yourself to the old canvas belt and the strong hand of some friend.

Tomorrow—Special information and replies by Miss Kellermann to inquiries made by the pupils of the Plainfield Daily Press Annette Kellermann Swimming Class.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Fawn Brought a King To a Hut.

She Washed It With Pure Spring Water.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

JACK and Evelyn both loved the story of Hansel and Grethel, so daddy began: "When a king and his huntsmen saw a fawn with a gold collar around his neck they chased him through the woods. Now, this fawn was really Hansel, who had left Grethel that morning to watch the chase. He was much too swift for them, and the chase lasted all day. But at last the huntsmen almost closed in on him, and a hunter wounded the fawn in one foot.

"Poor Hansel became sadly lame and could hardly limp home to Grethel. The hunter who had wounded him followed close behind and heard the little fawn say, 'Sister, let me in!'

"Then the hunter saw the door open a bit, and the fawn bounded in. So he marked the hut well and, going to the king, told him what he had seen and heard. The king said, 'Tomorrow we will have another chase.'

"Grethel was very much frightened when she saw her dear fawn was hurt. She washed the blood away with pure spring water and bound some healing herbs on his foot. 'Now go to bed, dear fawn, and soon you will be all well,' she said.

"Sure enough, in the morning Hansel's foot was all well. When he heard the horns blowing he said: 'Sister, I can't stay here. I must go and watch the hunt. I will take care that none of the hunters catch me.'

"But Grethel said: 'They will surely kill you this time. I cannot let you go.'

"'I shall die of grief if you keep me here,' answered the fawn. 'When I hear the horns I feel just like flying.'

"Then Grethel was forced to let him go. With a heavy heart she opened the door, and out into the deep woods bounded the little fawn.

"Soon the king and his huntsmen saw him, and the king said: 'Now, chase him all day long. Chase him till you catch him. But let no one do him any harm.'

"So all that day Hansel went bounding over the bushes and through thickets and across dells, with the huntsmen and their great dogs fast on his track. But he loved to run, you see, and always managed to keep a safe distance ahead of the king and his hunters, although they were on horseback.

"At sunset no one of the hunters had been able to catch Hansel. He was very tired, of course, but when the dogs stopped baying he frisked home to his Grethel, who was eagerly waiting for him in the little hut," daddy ended.

"Oh, daddy, what a beautiful story!" cried Evelyn. And daddy kissed her.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

In Which Ethel Firmly Resolves to Turn Over a New Leaf.

Ethel settled herself under the fine old apple tree, whose barren branches swept the ground on the side toward the road. She had a writing pad in her lap, which she spread out, and taking the cap from her fountain pen tried the point to see if the ink was flowing properly. But instead of writing she settled her chin in her hand and gazed off into the distance. It was a warm day in November. One of those fragments of summer that set birds to chirping as if the hopeful creatures believed that winter were really over and summer would have its own sweet way again. A lovely blue haze lay on the bare line of the forest and stubble fields. The air was so still that the ragged leaves of the corn in the nearby shocks rustled and the yellow pumpkins nestled against the broad shocks smiled back at the sun. Peace brooded over the smiling landscape. The girl's eyes followed the brown trail of the plow and she heard the cheery voice of young Tellson as he urged the sleek horses along the furrow. There was a pathetic droop of the mouth, indeed, of the whole figure as she gazed off to the white road, down which a balloon of dust moved, indicating that a motor car was coming.

"I must write to Ralph," she said, prodding herself to begin her work, "but I will never go back till I know a little something about cooking and housework." She leaned back against the tree and closed her eyes. "Poor Ralph," she mused. "I have been such a disappointment to him. It is a long journey back to his respect and love." Two tears crept from the closed eyes and stole down the cheeks. "But I will show him that I am something besides a doll; that I can be of more use than a parlor ornament."

Finally she sat up and squaring the sheet of paper before her began to write. For some time the pen traveled over the paper, but when she turned the page she stopped and reread what she had written.

"No, that will never do; that does not say what I mean," and she tore the paper and began again. She wrote rapidly for some time, but again the letter was displeasing to the severe little critic, and it was reduced to fragments.

"That is too long. I will only write a note, saying that I realize that I have been all wrong in my attitude and am ready to try and learn."

"There, I think that is long enough. I do not want to say too much. His mother may know about this." She held up the sheet and read:

"Dear Ralph: I have had time to think since I came to this farm; more than I ever had in my life before. At least I have thought more. I see now what a failure I am and how patient you have been with me. I shall not come back until I can do better. I am not telling you where I am, for I want to work out this knotty problem alone. When I have succeeded I shall return to be your loving, helpful wife. ETHEL."

The girl read and reread the letter, smiled with satisfaction and tucked it in an envelope and addressed it.

"I hope Ralph's mother will not say anything to spoil the effect of this," she thought with an anxious little pucker between her brows. She knew nothing of the mother except that she had been opposed to their marriage. She concluded, therefore that she would take occasion to gloat over the fulfillment of her dark prophesies.

"Tomorrow I am going to take my first lesson in cooking of dear old Mrs. Morton. I mean to ask Ave Tellson to loan me a big apron and cap so I can dress the part. I can the old lady to believe I am in earnest." She gathered up her writing materials and started for the house.

NEW BUTTON SHOES OFFERED.

By Mary Glynn.

Paris decrees that the skirt length for fall be from four to six inches from the floor and not an inch shorter. Truly this is good news to the majority of women, for though many of the extremists did go in for and wear skirts that were twelve and fourteen inches from the floor, the really conservative woman did not wear it above seven inches. It was largely due to this fact that the majority of women adopted the laced boot, for this style of shoe has been featured with a sixteen-inch top, this affording an ample view of the ankle. On the contrary, the button shoe does not lend itself to so extreme a height, consequently the more conservative woman continued to wear it, and did not adopt the very short skirt. She realizes, also, that the button boot, when well fitted is infinitely more dressy and feminine than the laced shoes. The styles for fall are very attractive though not at all splashy in appearance. White and black glazed kid is to be extensively used, while tops with bronze vamps will also prove popular. Invariably white pearl buttons or else buttons in the same shade as the vamp. Button boots featuring cloth topped and kid vamps will be shown in one-toned effects in a very attractive manner. Stitching and perforating will also be featured, though in comparatively conservative design.

Infantile Paralysis.

Some of the facts of this disease as given by Dr. Flexner who is one of the greatest authorities in the world on infectious diseases, are: The disease is caused by a minute organism which lodges first in the nose and throat and may be thus carried about by people who are well or who are only so slightly ill that the disease is not recognized. Little children are more susceptible than adults, as they are to any other disease. The usual means by which the virus of the disease escapes from the sick is by way of the nose and throat and the intestines. It is thus readily distributed by coughing, sneezing, kissing and by fingers and articles contaminated by secretions and intestinal discharges. Dust, composed in part of these dried secretions, may be a source of infection. The virus is readily destroyed, however, by exposure to sunlight. A mild attack confers immunity just as a severe one does and those who are crippled by the disease may in many cases be helped by proper treatment.

A report of a paper given by Dr. Flexner before the New York Academy of Medicine is given in the Outlook of July 12.

"Dr. Weir Mitchell in his novel, 'The Iron Master,' makes the hero of the story, in speaking of a dear, lovable, ne'er-do-well family say, 'They are unprosperous people because the wife is not the husband.' Have we not all of us known such families? Take Louisa Alcott's home life as an example. I am not advocating lazy women nor am I defending inefficient men, but I am trying to show that as the life is more than meat and body more than raiment, so, too, the spiritual atmosphere of a home means more than its furniture or its social rank or even its food. Man does not live by bread alone."

A Better World.

When we are better mothers, when men are better fathers, there will be better children and a better world. The sooner we feel the value of beginnings the sooner we realize that we can put bunglers anywhere else better than in nursery, kindergarten, or primary school, the sooner we shall arrive at better results.—Kate Duglas Wiggin.

A Right View of Weakness.

Only he who regards the young with the eyes of love recognizes the real cause of most blunders, namely, childish weakness, and learns to bear them with patience.

He looks back upon his own youth and remembers how difficult it was to rid himself of his faults. It perhaps occurs to him that many a weakness of character troubles him even in his manhood, so that he, a mature man, frequently falls before temptation.

Then perhaps some humanity enters his heart, and, ashamed of himself, he recognizes that we never finish our education. This lesson teaches him to be twice as forbearing and considerate toward the mistakes of youth.

Goethe said: "One must become older to become more gentle of heart. I see no mistake made which I might not have made myself."—Dr. Herman Weimer.

Vocational Training After Fifteen.

One can always make little children eager over anything by tactful methods. One can make them enthusiastic over care of babies very easily, but is it best for the next generation that little girls of 10 to 14 years, instead of freedom and open air and play, be taught in the schools to lift, carry, tend, feed, manage babies? It is best for the baby to be cared for by an intelligent child or by an intelligent mother. It is wise for society to tolerate or to encourage through its educational system the economic or any other condition that separate mothers and babies by teaching little girls to do mother's work? We hear much of child labor in factories; but there is also a problem of it in the homes. Do any sexual mistakes of early adolescence come from the too early cultivation of parental instincts before right education has laid foundations of ideals? A recent masterly study of vocational education in Europe, for the benefit of this country includes among its final recommendations one that vocational education should not be given under 15 years of age that their earlier years are needed for founding general intelligence and ideals and tastes, and securing elementary co-ordination of hand and brain centres. If this is right and it claims to sum up all educational experience, then the vocation of home making in its most important art—care of babies—does not belong in elementary schools. We are the only animal, some one has said, that works its young in the care of others. With us it is already proving a blight.

GETTING THE PUBLICITY.

If the coming show of the Plainfield Kennel Club is to be successful, it must get publicity. That it will get the necessary press notices is the business of the man appointed by the Bench Show Committee to look after that feature of the work. If that man succeeds in talking or writing up the show to any reat extent, the affair will be successful and will shower upon Plainfield plenty of advertising. We believe that he intends to do the thing correctly and know that the work has been already started. However, there is nothing like doing a little "billboard" and newspaper advertising, and it is hoped that the Bench Show Committee realizes the value of this branch of the business. While there are many newspapers in this section of the country, it is possible, although not probable, that some fanciers may not read or hear of the local event through the medium of these newspapers. On the other hand, they might see flashy billboard posters and might be attracted by them to a greater extent than they would have been had they seen merely a newspaper article to the effect that the show was to be held. Man is human, and is attracted by showy things. Pictures attracted us when we were young and they have an attraction for us still. A few "cuts" of various entries in the show would be appreciated, Mr. Publicity Agent. That's one way to get your "publicity" department in good working order. The columns of this newspaper are open to all articles regarding the coming show. We will do all in our power to make the affair a success, believing that the cause is a worthy one and that the show can best profit by an enormous amount of publicity.

TALKING WORLD SERIES.

Many are the sporting editors of the metropolis who are talking World Series. Predictions, rash and sensible, are being made and "re-made" every day. The scribes and scribblers in New York have to pick the Giants or lose their popularity. Still, the more intrepid writers are content to sacrifice popularity and stick to their candid opinions. Miller Huggins led his Cardinals into the Big Burg yesterday and set to work at once in a prediction campaign all his own. Huggins says that the Brooklyn and Boston teams are the class of the Nationals and that he looks forward to a final clash between the two. He did not speak of the American League. Doubtless, he holds views on the situation and if he cared to express an opinion he would have voiced the opinion that the Athletics are likely to finish in the league. To us the Red Sox and the White Sox look good.

BUT DONOVAN HAS HOPES.

Some people are naturally optimistic and others are confirmed pessimists. We believe that Bill Donovan, the energetic leader of the New York American League baseball team, is a pleasant mixture of the two. Wild Bill has had plenty of cause to worry about the team of which he is the leader. The outfit has been going poorly and has been hard hit by the jinx. Injury after injury has crippled the club, until now it is about as active as the team owned, operated and "operated upon" by the once famous Cornelius McGillicuddy. Still, Donovan believes that if his boys break even with Cleveland they will win the pennant. He takes this view because he figures on taking all four games scheduled with the Mackmen who visit the Polo Grounds on Saturday, to remain for four days. In our opinion, if the Yanks are to win the pennant, they must start now and must continue to at least take a majority of the fourteen games to be played with the Western teams. The Red Sox are due to start things on Labor Day, and then the final swing begins. It is, therefore, clearly visible that the Yankees must start now, if Manager Bill's hopes are to be realized.

SEA BRIGHT TOURNEY.

The second day of tennis in the Sea Bright invitation tournament, due to the rain, was short, but some of the stars offered interesting play in both doubles and singles. Play in the singles of a fast nature was limited to one match, between Roland Roberts, of California, and William T. Tilden, of Philadelphia. Tilden made a poor impression when he started, and Roberts, with a reputation as a speedy man from the coast, was much of a favorite. In the warm-up Tilden smashed the ball all around the court, and, despite the heat, was active every minute. Roberts took more time about it. Throughout the match Tilden kept up the same pace, and spectators looked for the Philadelphian to break under the strain and to see Roberts, with his easier methods, pull through. Roberts let the match get away from him, however, and Tilden won without a let-up in his speed.

R. NORRIS WILLIAMS' WORK.

The more one watches R. Norris Williams the more one becomes convinced that the slower back court game is the better in the long run. The slap-dash players score with shots that stir up enthusiasm of the crowd, but it is certainly risky tennis, tennis apt to fail against a steady player who is accurate with long base-line shots and others placed with a view of forcing the opponent into returns on the next shot will leave an opening for a sure, hard drive. Williams never hits the ball hard unless he is pretty sure of getting it over the net. When he is in that position it is generally because he has paved the way with the preceding stroke. And all the while Williams takes care that he does not became exhausted. He played in the doubles yesterday with Washburn against O'Neale and Hunter, and, though the match was easy for him, his play was as finely drawn as it might have been in a big match.—Newark News.

SAMPLE SCENARIOS.

The Athletics are staging a great five-reel feature that will probably appear in Proctor's Theatre shortly. The play is entitled "Twenty Straight," and is said to be better than Triangle's "Going Straight." That's going some.

Bob Bogardus, we see by "the" sporting page, is fond of treating the fans of Dunellen. If Bob were left in charge of the affairs of the Dunellen team, the club would be ahead of Netherwood now. There's very little that Bob does not know about baseball.

"Slim" Sallee is counted upon as being a valuable addition to the New York club from a financial point of view. He eats lightly.

TRAPSHOOTING HELPS BALL PLAYERS STICK IN MAJOR LEAGUE CIRCLES

An Interesting Tournament Could Be Staged If Leading Players Got Together—Peter P. Carney Gives a Little "Dope" On Situation—"Newsy" Notes.

By Peter P. Carney.

The batting averages of the National and American baseball leagues are mighty interesting at this particular time.

Can Cobb repeat? That is a question asked by many fans. Others are greatly concerned in the performance of that 42-year-old wonder, Honus Wagner.

At the present time Tris Speaker and Joe Jackson are showing the way to Tyrus in the American League. The Georgia firebrand doesn't appear to be able to hit his stride of other years, but he has always been a demon finisher. Wagner's new lease on life is remarkable. He is only a few points behind Robertson in the National League averages. Both races are more exciting than in many years past.

Speaking of excitement, don't you think a trapshooting competition between the most skillful ball players would make a lively afternoon's sport? Of course, all the players who are good trapshooters are not in the same city at the same time, but, nevertheless, they are interested, and no doubt a tournament could be arranged at a time that would be suitable to all of them.

Among the "big leaguers" who are experts with the trap gun, and think there is nothing better than firing at manimate clays, are Tyrus Raymond Cobb, Joe Jackson, Charles Albert Bender, Leslie Joe Bush, Frank Baker, Grover Alexander, Bill Carrigan, Pat Moran, Wilbert Robinson, Christy Mathewson, Harry Davis, Tris Speaker, Jack Coombs, Eddie Plank, Charles Clifford Cravath, Bob Shawkey, John Henry Wagner, Eddie Collins, Billy Killefer, Oscar Dugey, Bert Niehoff, Walter Johnson and Ernie Shaw. This is only a few, but it shows the calibre of the ball player who is interested in trapshooting. By way of added interest it might be well to arrange a match for managers. Mathewson, Moran and Robinson then might shoot a match for the pennant. It would be an easier way than fighting through 154 ball games.

Some of these above mentioned players, notably among them being Mathewson, say that trapshooting keeps their eyes in more satisfactory condition than any other exercise or diversion. Maybe this is the reason why those interested in trapshooting bat so well and stick around so long in the big show. There is a reason.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

The Baptists believe that they have a very valuable hurler in Freddy Mills, who has occupied the mound for the team in the last five or six starts. While Freddy has not accomplished anything out of the ordinary, still he has been pitching as consistently as any hurler in the league. His ability with the willow has not earned him any laurels, but his mound duty has commanded considerable attention.

Now that the Royals have awakened from their slumber we feel doubly sure that baseball around these parts is due for a rise in popularity. The finances of several of the organizations need a little "touching up" and the way to do the stunt is found in the booking of the Royal Giants as opposition.

We have taken a liking to tennis and lemonade. The former is a sport and the latter a diversion. Tennis bees, like golf bees, get one in an enthusiastic mood. The game certainly is proving of great value to the various laundry concerns.

Dan Randolph, heavy hitter on the First Baptist team, is one of the veterans of this vicinity. Of course, we do not mean "vet" in years, but in point of service on local diamonds. Dan was a member of the now extinct Mono baseball team and played first base on that squad. He has hopes of rejuvenating the outfit and placing it in the league under a different and more modern name.

Hats off to Russ Stewart, the premier slabman of the Netherwood baseball team. Russ is entitled to all the publicity he can get.

A story to the effect that there is considerable difficulty in getting crowds out to Dunellen baseball games comes at a rather inopportune time. The Clinton avenue franchise was given to Dunellen with the understanding that if the fans failed to turn out to the games the franchise would be returned to the Clintonians. In the face of these facts it is hard to believe that other stories of this sort will be of benefit to the club.

Miller Huggins says the National League pennant will go either to the Brooklyns or the Boston Braves. He does not figure the Giants in the running.

If the jinx does not cease following the Yankees we will have to induce some of the City League managers to send some of their stellar talent over to Donovan's camp. We believe the Yanks could use men of recognized ability.

Jack Garretson played with the Trenton team against the Lincoln Giants about a week ago. Jack failed to hit, but he handled everything that came in the vicinity of first base, over which station he had been placed as guard.

There is a rumor afloat that the Farmers will not be composed of exactly the same talent next year. The team will be considerably fortified by the addition of a capable staff of hurlers. Infield and outfield will also be given a "brushing up."

FIVE GOLFERS IN TIE FOR ACHEL'S TROPHY

With weather conditions fair, although still somewhat sultry, matches were rattled off in fast style yesterday on the courts of the Sea Bright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club to make amends for the postponements of Tuesday. So much was done in the singles for the Achelis Cup that only five men of the original thirty-two starters survived and the final four would have been decided if darkness had not called a halt on the contest between Lindley Murray, the Californian, and William T. Tilden, 2d., of Philadelphia. Each had won a set, but the last one, which was taken by Tilden, was the longest one so far played in the tournament, twenty-six games being necessary before the hard-hitting Quaker could win at 14—12. The others left to fight it out for the right to play Norris Williams, the holder of the trophy, are George M. Church, who will be drawn against Willis E. Davis, the national clay court champion, in the top of the semi-finals, and Ichiya Kumagae, the Japanese champion, who will meet the winner of the Tilden-Murray tilt in the lower half of the draw.

MISS WAGNER LOSES.

Miss Marie Wagner met unexpected defeat in the second round of the invitation tennis singles for women, which opened on the courts of the Montclair Athletic Club yesterday. After an impressive start in the opening set she tired quickly and dropped the next two to Miss Edith B. Handy. While she had her strength Miss Wagner placed beautifully, particularly on the backhand, and the score of 6—2 gives a fair idea of her superiority in the first set.

Early in the second set Miss Wagner's returns, lacking snap, began finding the net frequently. She continued to try hard, but could not mate Miss Handy's speed in court covering. The latter, recognizing her opportunity, forced the pace continually, and by coupling steadiness with hard hitting managed to hold the lead throughout the second and third divisions of play.

CORAL REEFS.

Nature's Methods In Building These Seashell Monuments.

Coral reefs surround many of the islands in the Pacific. They protect the lowlands from the washing of the waves, and the still waters inclosed by them are the only harbors of refuge for ships. The reefs themselves furnish the greatest peril to navigation, and if there were no inlet through which a vessel could enter their protected circle they would be a danger and nothing else.

But almost every reef has such an inlet. It is a necessary result of the laws under which the forces of nature work. To understand this we must see how these reefs are formed.

Chemically the reef corals are almost pure carbonate of lime, the substance of ordinary limestone and marble. The reef grows as the shell of the oyster or any other shellfish grows. It is itself the common and undivided shell of innumerable polypi, or minute insects, which are being produced and are dying in successive generations.

These tiny beings get all their living from the waters of the sea. It is from this source also that they derive the salts of lime from which they secrete the bony structure that remains after the animal is dead.

The coral polypi cannot live in fresh water. Their food supply is brought to them by the waves and currents of the sea. As a result it is found that directly opposite the mouth of the stream from the island the reef does not grow. There will be the inlet to the inclosed waters.—Los Angeles Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK BOARD OF HEALTH WOULD TERMINATE BASEBALL GAMES

Would Prevent Children Attending Games—Advises Temporary Close of Season—Stringest Measures Enforced.

The Board of Health of New Brunswick has taken a step that may be followed by the Board of Health of this city. While no mandate was issued, the New Brunswick body suggested to the directors of the Manufacturers' League in that place that the baseball games scheduled, be called off. In response to the suggestion and willing to do all in their power to prevent the spread of the child plague, infantile paralysis, the directors called off the games and will probably terminate the league season, unless the danger, now believed to be imminent, is averted. From other sources it is learned that there is no objection to the holding of baseball games, provided children are not allowed to congregate.

It is hardly possible that such a mandate will be issued in this city, inasmuch as local children are already being kept at home by anxious parents. That they should not attend baseball games, where they will be in communication with every sort of person, is an admitted fact. But, on the other hand, it is hardly fair to deprive the older folks of an opportunity to take wholesome exercises. Who knows but the privation may have other and far more degrading effects?

For the present, then, baseball in Plainfield goes on.

The Yankees' veteran catches, Leslie Nunamaker, is, at present, hitting in first-class fashion.

BOONE'S PLACE IN HISTORY.

A Figure That Stands For All That Is Typical of Pioneer Days.

Kentucky's rich country had originally been a neutral zone, threaded with Indian trails, a territory where none might dwell, but through which all were at liberty to move in hunt or war. The shade of its forests was so dense, the story of its white settlement so full of tragedy, that it was known as the "dark and bloody ground."

The great character of its pioneer period had been Daniel Boone, whose picturesque, half legendary figure stands for all that is typical in that vanished phase of our national life.

Born in Pennsylvania, he had grown to manhood on the banks of the Yadkin in North Carolina, had built his hut and married early, after the fashion of the locality. But he found tilling the ground dull work when the forest called. Expeditions into it to hunt game or to make salt at the salt licks, where animals and men alike went to satisfy their cravings, only fastened its dominion more firmly upon him, and when a wandering Indian trader strayed across his pathway and told him of the rich country to the west called Kentucky, which, in the language of the red men, meant "at the head of the river," or "Long river," he gave himself up to it with a fervor that was little short of fatalism, believing himself "ordained of God to settle the wilderness."—Helen Nicolay, in Century Magazine.

When Nature Was Timekeeper.

In the British museum is a large stone composed of carbonate of lime, which would serve perfectly as a day laborer's calendar, inasmuch as it would indicate to him every Sunday and holiday of the year, though not the day of the month. Moreover, the stone is an actual time record of the work done for a long period in an English coal mine.

The "Sunday stone," as it is called, was removed from a colliery drain. When the miners were at work the water running through the drain left a deposit colored black by the coal dust, but when no work was being done the water ran down clear and left a white deposit. These deposits in the course of time built up the stone. Each day of work left a black streak, immediately followed by a white streak made during the night. Wide white streaks indicate the holidays and Sundays.

Unanimous Consent.

There was a wedding in a certain church the other day, and, as usual, the minister in the course of the ceremony said: "If any one has aught to say why this couple should not be joined in the holy bonds of wedlock let him now speak or forever hold his peace." During the silence that followed a man who was accustomed to serving as a chairman of meetings arose and, rapping the top of the pew sharply with his knuckles, said, "There being no objection, the motion is carried."—New Orleans States.

Modern Life.

"Was your courtship romantic?"

"A little bit. I met my wife on the seventy-eighth floor of an office building. We took the elevator together. At the fifty-seventh floor we became engaged. At the forty-ninth floor a minister got on. We enlisted him, eventually reached the ground floor, sent for a license and were married."—Kansas City Journal.

SAYS HOT WATER WASHES POISONS FROM THE LIVER

Everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it, before breakfast.

To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddle, we must keep the liver washed clean, almost every morning, to prevent its sponge-like pores from clogging with indigestible material, sour bile and poisonous toxins, says a noted physician.

If you get headaches, it's your liver. If you catch cold easily, it's your liver. If you wake up with a bad taste, furred tongue, nasty breath or stomach becomes rancid, it's your liver. Sallow skin, muddy complexion, watery eyes all denote liver uncleanliness. Your liver is the most important, also the most abused and neglected organ of the body. Few know its function or how to release the dammed-up body waste, bile and toxins. Most folks resort to violent calomel, which is a dangerous salivating chemical which can only be used occasionally because it accumulates in the tissues, also attacks the bones.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate for a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleans, stimulates you feeling fit day in and day out, and you can eat anything afterwards, cannot salivate, for it is harmless, it is inexpensive and almost tasteless. Take a quarter pound, which is sufficient phosphate in it, to wash from the liver the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Limestone phosphate does not restrict the diet like calomel, because it does not salivate.

GOVERNOR HOST FOR NEIGHBORS

Politicians From His Home County Gather Today at Sea Girt.

WITTPENN PRESENT

Friends Predict Withdrawal of Thomas Martin As Democratic Candidate For Governor—Many Prominent Men Present.

(By Telegraph to Daily Press.)

Sea Girt, August 11.—With his friends and neighbors from his home county of Hudson as guests, Governor Fielder today brought to a close the series of five Governor's Day receptions for 1916. A few visitors from Hunterdon county were included in the throng, but by far the largest part of the four hundred or more who were invited came from the various municipalities of Hudson county.

The military features, which played such a prominent part in the last two Governor's Day gatherings, were lacking, and without the camp to attract them, most of the visitors did not arrive until shortly before 1 o'clock, the time for the luncheon. A large number of the visitors came by automobile. Governor Fielder was assisted in receiving them by his secretary, L. Edward Herrmann, who arrived here last night from Jersey City. As on the preceding days, H. Otto Wittpenn, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, was an early arrival, motoring down from Avon with Mrs. Wittpenn, who was one of Mrs. Fielder's luncheon guests, the others being Mrs. Arthur H. Mackie, of Newark, and Mrs. J. H. S. Brewster, of Elizabeth, who were here in connection with work of the New Jersey Soldiers' Relief League.

Secretary of State Thomas Martin, who is the only person in the race for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination that has not formally withdrawn, was one of the visitors of the day, but his friends predict that he will leave a clear field for Mr. Wittpenn. Colonel Austen Colgate came down from Orange and mingled with his friends in the crowd, as did Frank J. Bock, his campaign manager, and several others from Essex county.

Following the precedent set at the four preceding days Governor Fielder just before his guests sat down to lunch under the big tent which had been provided for the purpose, asked for contributions for the Soldiers' Relief League, and there was a liberal response. At the five gatherings the guests of the executive have contributed a total of over $1,800 for the cause.

Among the better known Hudson county men who accepted the invitation to be present today were Justice Charles C. Black, of the New Jersey Supreme Court; Sheriff Eugene H. Kinkead, Judge Charles L. Carrick, Circuit Court Judge William H. Speer, who has a summer home at Spring Lake; Mayor Mark M. Fagan, of Jersey City; Prosecutor Charles S. Hudspeth, several of the Democratic Assemblymen of last year and Senator Egan. Joseph P. Riordan, of Harrison; Egbert Seymour, William C. Stuhr, E. Edward Kane, B. Franklin Hart, Jr., Walter M. Dear, De Witt Van Buskirk, of Bayonne; Leon Abbett and Palmer Campbell. Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary of President Wilson, also advised the Governor that he would try to reach Sea Girt this afternoon and shake hands with friends from his home county.

Both the Pidcock and the Gebhardt factions in the Democratic party were represented in the group from Hunterdon county. Mr. Gebhardt being one of those who accepted. There was a scattering of Republicans in the throng, but this is the first day where the vistors of the Democratic persuasion were in a great majority. In fact at some of the gatherings there have been more Republicans than Democrats, this having been especially so last week when the Essex county visitors were here.

CRISIS IN STRIKE OF R. R. MEN SOON

Meeting at 10 a. m. Tomorrow Will Likely Settle Mediation Proposal.

New York, Aug. 11.—The crisis in the threatened national strike of 400,000 railroad employes will be reached within twenty-four hours. The railway brotherhoods today gave the Federal Board of Mediation and Conciliation until 10 o'clock tomorrow to present its final proposition for averting the strike. An official of the railroad companies who did not wish to be quoted this afternoon stated that the railroads would hold out for arbitration to the end. He said that railroad managers in the conference with the Federal Board this afternoon would propose a larger board of arbitration, consisting of four representatives of the brotherhood, four from the railroads and four or six neutral.

The ninety-third anniversary of her birth was quietly observed yesterday by Mrs. Joseph S. Powlison, of Grandview avenue, the borough. COURT LIFTS BAN ON EXPLOSIVES

Holds Jersey City Had No Right to Declare Embargo On Freight.

PLAINFIELD EFFECTED

Railroads Can Store Munitions at South Plainfield If They Desire—Ruling of Judge Relistab In Belmar Hearing.

Plainfield is affected by the lifting of the ban placed on Jersey City officials on explosives. As the matter now stands railroads cannot be forced to handle freigh touching interstate as is desired by the community through which it passes, except a law is violated, and this means that South Plainfield can be made a storing place for explosives until a prohibitory statute is passed by the State Legislature, and even that might be held illegal by the United States courts.

The action of the Jersey City commissioners in placing an embargo on shipments of munitions into the city by railroads, following the disastrous Black Tom explosion, was illegal, U. S. Judge Rellstab decided yesterday at a hearing in Belmar, N. J. Judge Rellstab heard argument on the return of an order obtained Tuesday by the Canadian Car & Foundry Company directing that the city commissioners and the Lackawanna Railroad show cause why they should not be restrained from interfering with such shipments.

A preliminary injunction was granted the Car & Foundry Company, which has a plant at Kingsland, Bergen county, N. J., restraining the city commissioners from enforcing the recently enacted embargo. The railroad company was joined with the commissioners as nominal defendants in the application for a restrainer.

Judge Rellstab, in granting the preliminary injunction, held that there cannot be two sources with power to regulate the same subject. He declared that control of interstate commerce is vested exclusively with the Federal government, through its agent, the Interstate Commerce Commission. If the municipality has any grievance it can be taken to the Interstate Commission.

He does not hold by his decision that the police powers are entirely abrogated by the vested power, but says that the commissioners of Jersey City acted illegally.

Corporation Counsel John Milton, for Jersey City, argued that admitting the illegality of the commissioner's action, the plaintiff has no standing in court, not having asked permission of the Jersey City authorities to ship munitions into the territory.

MANY SIGN PETITION TO LIGHT CLOCK IN BOROUGH

Within a few hours this morning thirty names were secured to a petition urging that the North Plainfield Board of Education light the town clock in the Somerset street school building. The petition was put into circulation by Collector James K. Arnold. Residents of the borough were eager to sign it, and Mr. Arnold is confident that it will be full by the first of next week. Taxpayers in the borough are very much interested in the clock lighting proposition, and they want to be able to tell the time at night again. Most of them seem to feel that this expense should be borne by the Board of Education, although a few do not care who pays the bill so long as the light burns.

MRS. MARGARET W. FORT DIES IN EIGHTY-FIFTH YEAR

After an illness ertending over three years, Mrs. Margaret W. Fort, aunt of former Governor John Franklin Fort, and mother of Frederick W. Fort, principal of the Hamburg Place School, Newark, died yesterday in Newark, in her eighty-fifth year. She was the widow of Rev. Jacob Fort, at one time pastor of the Union Street Methodist Episcopal church, Newark. He was for fifty years a member of the New Jersey Methodist Conference.

Mrs. Fort was born in Red Mill, now known as Arcola, this State. Besides those mentioned, she is survived by a son, Charles A. Fort, of 64 Eaton place, East Orange, and these daughters: Mrs. Frances E. Lane, Mrs. Ella Faulk, Mrs. Margaret Havener, Mrs. Lida A. Van Blarcom and Mrs. Carl De Baun. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

FUNERAL OF GEORGE KLINER.

The funeral of George W. Kliner, whose death occurred Tuesday, was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Robert Deter, of West Front street. The service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, pastor of the Monroe Avenue Baptist church. The interment was in Hillside cemetery, the following acting as pallbearers: F. Whalen, R. A. Deter, H. R. Deter, Frank Locke, J. H. Schmidt, and T. B. Haskard.

DOG BITES SON OF HOWARD WOOLSTON

Fourth Child to Be Attacked By Animal—Health Officers Guard Him.

The young son of Howard Woolston, of Mountain avenue, North Plainfield, was bitten on the arm by a dog owned by William Perrine, of Verdon street, yesterday afternoon. While the injury is not considered serious, still it is very painful and some concern is felt over the matter.

The affair was reported to the North Plainfield Police Department as well as to the Health Department. Inspector Louis Olif looked the canine over and decided that it did not have rabies. Nevertheless, he ordered it tied up an will watch it for several days. It is said that this dog has attacked four children at various times, but it was not thought the animal was in a furious mood. The Woolston boy was running by the Perrine residence when the dog leaped from behind a hedge, biting the youth on the arm and inflicting a painful wound.

If the dog shows any signs of being mad, he will be killed at once and his head sent to the Health Department at Trenton.

NO HOLY JUMPER DECISION THIS WEEK

Judge Connolly Withholds Judgment In Local Case For Another Week.

It will be at least another week before any decision is handed down by Judge James Connolly at Elizabeth in the appeal of the Pillar of Fire sect for a review of the court proceedings in the local city court several weeks ago, when two of their number were fined and sent to the county jail for attempting to hold a meeting on the street. Although Judge Connolly sat on the bench today he did not give any decision nor did he give any intimation as to when he would act.

G. W. V. Moy, as attorney for the sect, is trying to get the proceedings of the case when Levina Leech and Laura Wilson were sentenced to seven days each in jail and to pay a fine of $10 reviewed in order that he may take it to the Supreme Court in an effort to have Judge William G. De Meza's verdict set aside.

The two women were arrested by Patrolman George Muir on West Front street on the night of June 25, when they persisted in holding a street meeting against the orders of the Mayor and when they had no permit. Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter Hetfield, Jr., is handling the case for the city of Plainfield.

TOTAL CASES IN STATE HAS REACHED 1,300

Reports of infantile paralysis cases made to the State Department of Health in Trenton yesterday, brought the New Jersey total to 1,300 cases.

Eighty names were added to the tabulations. Those from this city, which were previously published unofficially, were Lizzie Tackash, 2 years old, of 150 Hancock street, and Mary Pargue, of 42 Adaline street. The cases reported at the State House follow: Forty, Newark; 7, Jersey City; 5, West New York; 3, Camden; 2, Kearny, Trenton, Acquackanonck township; 1, Borough of Bogota, Bayonne, Guttenberg, Hoboken, West Hoboken, Dunellen, Perth Amboy, Asbury Park, Raritan township, Monmouth county; Wall township, Hanover township, Newton, Linden township, Union township.

SCHOOLS MAY OPEN ON TIME.

School children of the Borough of North Plainfield may not be given a few days' grace this year, as has been expected, because of the prevailing epidemic of infantile paralysis. While no decision will be made by the Borough Board of Education, its members feel that the paralysis danger will have passed long before September 11, the time set for the regular opening of schools, and they are going ahead with plans for work beginning with that day. If there should still be danger, the opening will probably be put off until October 1, but such action is not expected.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

KEEP YOUR CHILDREN HOME.

TWO NEW CASES; ONE CHILD DIES

Infantile Paralysis Plague Takes New Spurt In Plainfield.

IN A NEW TERRITORY

Kensington Avenue Hit When Norman Mann Is Stricken—Fanwood Case Is Traced to Associations In This City.

Two new cases of infantile paralysis in quick succession appeared in Plainfield within the last twenty-four hours. The first case was reported early yesterday afternoon by Dr. G. W. Endicott, who diagnosed the illness of Norwood Mann, the 3-year-old son of Mrs. Lousanna Mann, of 722 Kensington avenue, as paralysis in its most malignant form. After several hours' fight the little fellow died at 6 o'clock last night. Interment was made this afternoon in the Bound Brook cemetery, where private services were held.

The second case was reported this morning by Dr. Albert Pittis, who after a short period of observation decided that Frank Wood, Jr., the 3-year-old son of Frank Wood, of 289 Watson avenue, had a light case.

The case that resulted in the death of the Mann child was the worst that has yet developed here and it was only twelve hours after Dr. Endicott discovered the case that the youngster was dead. The origin of the two cases could not be traced by the Board of Health, and as a measure of precaution all children that have come in contact with them will be quarantined.

No new cases were reported in Fanwood since the two of yesterday. Miss Clara Petri, the 25-year-old Brooklyn girl who was stricken while visiting relatives in Fanwood, is holding her own, according to reports coming from the isolation hospital at Elizabeth, where she was taken. The case that developed in the family of George Howell, also of Fanwood, at the same time, has been traced to the Millwater case on South avenue, this city. It has been found that members of the two families were mingling together less than two weeks ago.

Eighty-one new cases were reported yesterday in the State Department of Health at Trenton.

New York is preparing to quarantine against all other communities, according to reports from there today. Railroads will be forbidden to bring children in without a Federal certificate, and these will not be issued to any person exposed to the disease until after a month of quarantine.

WHIPS HUSBAND FOR WALKING WITH COUSIN

Lulu Dunham, colored, had Carrie Bergen in court this morning because she thought the girl was trying to entice her husband away from her, but after the judge heard both sides of the matter he dismissed the case. The Bergen girl is a second cousin to Dunham, although unknown to Dunham's wife, and when she saw the two walking arm in arm down the street yesterday, she proceeded to give both of them a drubbing. Officer Dunlap brought the three into court.

C. A. KLINE IS HELD FOR ROBBERIES IN WESTFIELD

Toucey at police headquarters Wednesday evening to answer charges made by Lieutenant William McNeeley, of the Westfield police department, on a charge of breaking and entering several houses in Westfield and removing plumbing and other fixtures.

Kline pleaded not guilty to the charge and was held under $1,500 bail by the court to await the action of the Grand Jury. He was unable to furnish security.

F., to the number of thirty, gathered at the home of Dr. Charles Hendricks, on the old Fritzsimmons farm in Dunellen, last night, to surprise Dr. Hendricks, who is a member of No. 44. The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the evening was spent in a pleasant social way. At a late hour refreshments were served. Mrs. Hendricks received the guests, assisted by Mrs. Baun, of New York. Dr. Hendricks is in charge of the Silver Springs Sanatorium in Dunellen.

STIELOW CLEARED OF MURDER CHARGE

Peddler Confesses—He Was 4 Times Ready to Go to Chair.

Little Valley, N. Y., August 11.—Charles S. Stielow, saved from the electric chair at the last moment by an order issued by Supreme Coutr Justice Guy, is today cleared of the crime for which he was convicted by the confession of Irving King, a peddler.

King was arrested on a charge of assault in the first degree in connection with the killing of an old storekeeper named Bowen two years ago and confessed in the jail here that he is the real murderer of aged Charles Phelps and Miss Wolcott.

Four dates were set for Stielow's execution. On each occasion he was saved by an eleventh-hour stay.

SAY THERE IS NOT A STRIKE AT SILK MILLS

The Jersey Silk Mill is not tied up because of the walk-out of a number of weavers, according to a statement made by Manager Coddington, and its officials do not consider that there is a strike in progress. They have secured men to take the places of those who were discharged and others who quit, they say, and the former employes will not be allowed to come back to work.

MANY ATTEND FUNERAL OF WILLIAM E. JOHNSTON

Relatives and friends in large numbers attended the funeral service of William E. Johnston, Jr., held this afternoon at 2:30 at the home of his father-in-law, W. J. Leveridge, of Sherman avenue. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Birney S. Hudson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. During the service William Holmes, of this city, sang "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown?" and Lead, Kindly Light." A profusion of floral sprays attested the esteem in which the young man was held, many set pieces coming from friends and relatives in this city and Elizabeth.

The interment was made in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being Walter, Roland and Charles Leveridge, of this city; John Mayer, of Camden, and Edward Wilday and Stephen Ford, of Elizabeth.

GOV. FIELDER PRAISES MEN OF 2D INFANTRY

Captain Peterson, of Company K, Plainfield, has received a memorandum from the headquarters of the Second infantry, in which is included a letter to Col. Horace Reading from Governor Fielder complimenting the organization on the good work done at Sea Girt last month. Col. Reading also expressed pleasure at the efficient showing made by the infantrymen. The letter of Governor Fielder follows:

"My Dear Colonel Reading—I regret that the time has arrirved for your command to break camp and that you cannot remain for at least a few days longer. You have been so unfortunate in having almost continuous rain, that you should be entitled to the advantage of the fine days now promised us. I want to compliment you on the work you have done, notwithstanding the adverse weather conditions, and I feel sure that much has been accomplished. The maneuver of Thursday night and Friday morning was especially interesting and well worked out, and the very favorable comment I have heard from many sources on the soldierly appearance and movement of the regiment at yesterday's reivew pleases me as much as I hope it will gratify you. Had it been possible to order the Second regiment to the Mexican border, I know it would be giving a good account of itself.

"With best wishes for the continued success of your organization and for you personally, I am,

"Yours,
"JAMES F. FIELDER."

BREMEN SAID TO BE DUE TODAY

Second Super-submarine May Even Dock In Port of New York.

WIRELESS CALLS HEARD

New London Is Also Expecting German Boat—British Win Trenches In Assaults Along the Somme Front.

New York, August 11.—That the German super-submarine Bremen is in United States waters waiting for an opportunity to slip into the port of New York is the belief of marine men today. Observers at Sandy Hook are even expecting the cargo laden submersible to come in during the day.

New London, Conn., also expects the submarines, and a dock is being built there for its use. Everything indicates that the boat is near and will dock within a few hours.

The belief is based on two mysterious wireless calls for the "Telefunken Station New York," picked up by the wireless stations at Sandy Hook and Sea Gate early this morning, and the refusal of the sender to disclose his identity when questioned by the shore operators.

The first of the wireless messages was picked up at 1:50 a. m., and was merely a repetition of a "call" for the Telefunken station. The Telefunken operator did not respond, and the wireless operator at Sea Gate told the sender the Telefunken station was closed for the night. The calling operator signed himself "DBU," which, up to date, has been the private signal call of the North German Lloyd steamer Breslau, believed to be tied up in the port of New Orleans.

Realizing that the Breslau could hardly have put to sea without the world being informed, Sea Gate asked the sender who he was. The only answer that came out of the air was that the sender was on board a coal steamer. He would give no other information regarding his identity.

At 3 a. m. Sandy Hook and Sea Gate both heard the stranger call again. Sea Gate responded and the wireless operator signing himself "DBU" asked the operator at Sea Gate to ascertain at what hour the Telefunken station would open this morning. Further inquiries as to the sender's identity were ignored.

Before the war, all German vessels transmitted their wireless messages through the Telefunken shore station, which is German controlled. Since no other German vessel is known to be at sea, it was believed at Sandy Hook the calls came from the Bremen. This belief was intensified by the fact that the mysterious caller was using a sending set of low power, such as might be carried in the limited space on a submarine, and not of the high power that would be carried on a large steamship.

Russians Make Big Gains.

London, August 11.—A dispatch from Petrograd says that the War Office announced today that the Russians are moving on the Serath River in Galicia. They have also entered the town of Monas, Terzyksa, northwest of Stanislau. Fighting is continuing. Russians have reached the Dniester south of Marianpol, which is eight miles southeast of the important town of Halicz. They also advance to the right bank of Rystritza River, a branch of the Dniester, which joins that river near Marianpol.

British Push Foe Hard.

London, Aug. 11.—Advances were made by the British at two points on the Some front last night, the War Office announced today. North of Bazentin Le Petit a short length of German trenches was captured. In the district north of Pozieres the British renewed their pressure against the Germans, pushing them back still further. A determined counter attack was delivered by the Germans east of Pozieres, but it was repulsed.

MRS. MARTIEL BURIED FROM ST. MARY'S CHURCH

Rev. Father Hennessey, pastor of St. Mary's church, conducted the funeral services held in the church this morning at 9 o'clok, for Mrs. Emma T. Martiel, whose death occurred Wednesday. The service was largely attended by relatives and friends of the deceased, and beautiful floral pieces were in evience from both the former and latter. Among the number were a pillow, inscribed "Wife," and a wreath, "Sister." The interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the following acting as pallbearers: Earl Smith, Henry Winters, John Elster, Edward Simpson and Louis McDermiss.

VIOLATED ORDINANCE, FINED.

John W. Singer was fined $2 by Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning for violating the fire ordinance and lighting a fire in the rear of 119 West Front street.

SOCIALIST TALKS ON PREPAREDNESS

Says Country Would Be Safe If Every Battleship Were Sunk.

The lecture given last evening by John D. Long, D. D., at the corner of North and Madison avenues, under the auspices of the local branch of the Socialist party, whose secretary is Edwin W. Wheat, 708 Front street, was not as well attended as the timely subject and the ability of the speaker would seem to warrant. This was one of a series of street corner lectures on various educational subjects being given under the auspices of the local branch.

"True Preparedness for War or Peace" was the subject, and the lecture was listened to with much interest.

The speaker said: "If we desire true preparedness and not show preparedness, we must take a leaf from Germany, which before this war had carried preparedness to the Nth power.

"Nearly sixty years ago Germany adopted the first requisite of military preparedness—universal military service.

"The logical outcome of preparedness is war—and Germany soon had three short wars—wars with Denmark, Austria and France.

"Then the other great powers proceeded to follow Germany's lead in the matter of universal military service—France, Austria, Italy, Russia, while England prepared on the sea.

"This preparedness resulted in frequent war scares, growing more and more until two years ago the great war that has now lasted two years and will last two years longer broke out.

"Latterly Germany adopted the second element of true preparedness, as opposed to show preparedness, namely, industrial preparedness. In this Germany also led the other nations. Here again, too, after the experience of the first year of the war the other nations took a leaf from the experience of Germany.

"Before the war Germany alone was industrially prepared by the introduction of socialism.

"The means of production and distribution were either State-owned or State-controlled. Production was mostly the latter. Germany had organized her industries into sixty-seven cartils, or trusts, which the government controlled and directed absolutely, and which on the firing of the first hostile shot the government made tributary to the national war machine.

"If we want a run for our money and real preparedness we must use German methods both in the matter of universal service and the nationalization of our industries.

"Part preparedness will mean war. Do you want war? No!

"The Socialists are the only people that are not fooled by this preparedness outcry.

"As a matter of fact we would be safer today if every battleship we own were sunk in mid-Atlantic.

"Only one colony was safe from the tomahawk and scalping knife of the redskin—the Quaker colony. William Penn made the only treaty with the Indians that was never sworn with an oath; the only treaty, too, that was never broken.

"If this country were big enough to take the Quaker stand and the Christian stand we should have no more need for preparedness than did Penn's colony. In all the colonial period there was never any record of trouble between the Quakers and the devilish redskins. The Indians could match the other colonies in devilishness. They could also match the Quakers in kindness.

"Let us not be 'too proud to fight,' but, like the Quakers, let us be too good to fight. Stand on the Golden Rule and we shall have no need to fight. So if you wish to rebuke those that endanger the peace and prosperity of your country, vote the Socialistic ticket."

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Dean have returned from a several weeks' stay at New Milford, Pa.

The case of Goldstein vs. the Dunellen Home and Investment Company, which was scheduled to be heard in the district court at New Brunswick yesterday, was postponed for two weeks. Smalley and John Feiderman were among those on hand as witnesses for the complainant.
